3rd Lemon Lily Festival begins Thursday

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The 3rd Annual Lemon Lily Festival festivities begin with an evening of food, beverage, music and a creekside visit to see lemon lilies in bloom on Thursday, July 19. The “Lemon Lily Launch” 5 to 7 p.m. at the home of Erin O’Neil offers beauty and pleasures for the eyes, ears and palate in the lovely O’Beck Garden — music by Joe Baldino, lemon lily beer by Idyllwild Brewing Company, cocktails by Scott Fisher, hors d’oeuvres by Design and lemon lilies blooming on Strawberry Creek by Mother Nature. Tickets are $20 and include two drinks, food and the garden tour. Tickets can be purchased at the Nature Center and the post office. Sales benefit restoration of the native lemon lily, one of the key objectives of the festival.

Friday offers more gastronomic gusto with the annual Taste of Idyllwild at the Nature Center, the primary festival site. Idyllwild’s finest chefs present samples of their best and the event, from 5 to 7 p.m., also launches the Lemon Lily silent auction. Tickets are $20 and are available at the post office and Nature Center.

New this year, and expanding in scope and excitement even as of this writing are the bluegrass concerts that begin 4:30 p.m. Saturday on Park Lane between Jo’An’s Restaurant and the Fort. The street will be alive with a main performance stage, tables, hay bales, barbecue, hot dogs and a beer truck. The main attraction will be the

Ambulance decision disappoints CSA 38

BY J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

‘The [ambulance] service provider didn’t want to honor the additional year at the current price,” Bill Brown, the County Service Area operations manager for Riverside County’s Economic Development Agency, told the CSA 38 Advisory Committee last week. He was referring to the negotiations between the County and the Idyllwild Fire Protection District, or the provider.

On June 20, the committee recommended to 3rd District Supervisor Jeff Stone that the county terminate the contract with IFPD for ambulance service to Pine Cove. Stone listened, but his priority was response time for emergency calls.

Consequently, he advised the County’s Emergency Medical Services Agency to renegotiate the contract with IFPD.

“The supervisor’s first question to us was ‘What is the response time?’ [There was] only one acceptable answer to him — the fastest,” Brown said. The contract between IFPD and the county sets 12 minutes as the minimum time from call to arrival at the incident. “AMR could not provide a 12 or 15 minute response,” Brown added.

If American Medical Response, the county’s current ambulance service, replaced IFPD, their contract requires a less than 30-minute response. While the ambulance might have been lodged at Pine Cove Fire Station 23, during the time for emergency calls.

Patrick Reitz, next fire chief

BY J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

The Idyllwild Fire Protection District Commission appointed Patrick Reitz, formerly the fire chief and emergency services director for the City of Sheridan, Wyo., as the next Idyllwild Fire Chief. Reitz will begin service Aug. 1.

Reitz, originally from eastern Ohio, the Akron area, has always wanted to be involved in public safety and protection. He began his service as a volunteer firefighter and then emergency medical technician

Break-ins escalate

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Barney Brause, reserve sheriff's deputy and local Neighborhood Watch coordinator, said incidents of burglary and vandalism are increasing in Idyllwild and Pine Cove. Between five and eight break-ins occurred in the past 10 days. It is time, said Brause, for neighbors to become more vigilant, given lean staffing at Riverside County Sheriff's Department Hemet Station. In at least a few of the burglaries, off-Hill suspects have been identified.

Five houses on Pine Crest, which Tracy Philippi watches, were broken into this last week. "They come with moving boxes and take high-end tools, generators, newer flat screen TVs, food and supplies," said Philippi, who reported the break-ins. Philippi said he believes he knows who the miscreants are and that drugs are involved.

Rick Foster repairs or manages a number of homes that were also broken into last week. In one, he and a sheriff's department community service officer stopped what may have been a burglary in progress when they prevented a car with two men from Hemet from leaving a home on Falling Leaf. When asked by the officer what they were doing, the men replied they were lost and looking for direction. Neighbors saw the patrol car, came by and said the same men were there the day before, again saying they were lost. Foster said the men had real estate and Forest Service maps in the car.

Brause recommended neighbors begin organizing. Contact Brause or Deputy Walter Kurtz to set up a Neighborhood Watch meeting at (951) 791-3406. Neighborhood Watch packets are also available at the Town Crier office.

Car flies over side of Hwy 74

About noon Tuesday, July 10, a vehicle ran off the road near mile marker 57 on Highway 74. The car catapulted over the side of the highway and rolled about 100 to 150 feet.

County fire personnel were able to safely extricate and transport the driver to an area hospital. American Medical Response was the transporting agency.

Early Wednesday morning, July 11, a fire started south of Banning along Highway 243 near Twin Pines. The Twin Fire, which burned 45 acres, was contained that morning and under control the next day.

The fire was located near Highway 243 and Twin Pines Road and the highway was closed for several hours while firefighters battled the fire.

Peak resources totaled 175 firefighters, 19 engine companies and four air tankers.

No injuries and no significant loss of property were reported during the firefighting. One firefighter did suffer heat exhaustion and was transported to a local hospital.

Multiple agencies were involved in this incident. CALFIRE, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego county fire departments, the California Highway Patrol, Riverside County Fire Department, the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

OUTSIDE IDYLLWILD

By BRUCE WATTS

Flora to fauna ...

On Saturday, I decided to take the climbers' trail to Suicide Rock. The day before I had gotten two reports of lemon lilies, one on Deer Springs Trail and the other about half way up the climbers trail.

Since I have not been on the climbers trail in a while and Sue had never hiked it, I decided to go there to add a lemon lily picture to my collection.

To reach Suicide Rock and climbers trailhead, take Fern Valley Road toward Humber Park and then turn right on Forest Road just before the water tanks. Most of the climbers park their cars on Forest facing Fern Valley (on the right). After parking, you cross Fern Valley Road and you look for the railroad tie steps.

After crossing Strawberry Creek, you come to a paved road where you turn right (uphill). Follow the road until you reach the trailhead on the left.

The first thing I noticed is that the bottom of the trail is now maintained. It was smooth and clear of debris. In the past, you were constantly climbing over and around fallen trees, now the trail is clear, at least half way up, where you see a sign saying that the trail is not maintained ahead.

I knew that the lemon lilies were just before the sign but all I saw were a couple of azalea flowers. While returning, Sue noticed the lily plant and it had been eaten by deer. All that was left were a few leaves growing close to the ground.

Last week, we ran into a similar result at Lake Fulmor. Lots of plants had their tops chewed off. It took me a while to realize that deer had been eaten the plants.

I spent most of our hike photographing Tahquitz and Suicide Rocks. I'm always looking for new species of flowers; but now I have started shooting butterflies and birds.

As luck would have it while walking down the trail two butterflies landed on the ground directly in front of us. They were California Sister butterflies (Adelpha bredowii). With their black wings with orange spots on the top and white dots, they are quite striking. They seemed to be mating, as they were distracted and did not mind my approaching them. For once I was able to take several photos before they flew off.

We saw several other species of butterflies that day including a tiny, fast moving light blue one and a medium sized bright yellow colored one whose wings looked white on the bottom.

Suddenly I caught a glimpse of orange and I followed it until I saw a Painted Lady butterfly (Vanessa cardui) land on a Chinese Houses flower spike. Once again I was lucky as the butterfly fed on the flowers for a minute or so and I got several photos.

Although the Painted Lady is the most common butterfly in the world, I still enjoyed getting a few pictures. Now I have three species in my butterfly photo collection. The third species is my favorite the Western Tiger Swallowtail (Papilio rutulus) butterfly.

Until next week have fun, be safe.

To the "HILL" Community:

Thanks so much for all the prayers, cards, support and donations as part of the Celebration of Maggie's life with us.

It was often said during the events that she was the epitome of how we should all live our lives and share life with others. So the challenge is for each of us to take that essence of Maggie and carry it forward in our daily lives. She is here with us on a daily basis. If we do so imagine the possibilities.

Again thanks for your love and support.

Obituary Steve Hudson

Steve Hudson, a longtime Idyllwild resident and a staff and faculty member of Idyllwild Arts, passed away on Saturday, July 7. We deeply mourn the loss of a teacher, educator, artist and friend who made innumerable contributions to the lives of everyone around him.

Steve is survived by his three children: Emily Hudson of Homeland, Calif.; Skye Zambrana and her husband Michael, of Idyllwild; Devlin Hudson and his wife Ashley of North Carolina; his sister, Jamie Zamora; and two brothers Chris Hudson and his wife Mary, and Tim Hudson and his wife Lisa; his grandchildren Zoe Crawford, Zach Zambrana, Ava and Emma Hudson; and his partner in love, Jayne Davis.

Steve Hudson received his Bachelor of Arts in English from California State University, Long Beach in 1972. He had been at the Idyllwild Arts Academy since its inception in 1985, teaching a variety of courses, including American Literature, Western Literature, U.S. History, Western History, World Cultures, Mythology, Art History and Graphic Storytelling. He also lectured on the visual arts at Mt. San Jacinto College and College of the Desert. He was the former director of the Krone Museum on the Idyllwild Arts campus. He also developed and presented "The Hand and the Eye," an arts education program for children and adults. His paintings were exhibited nationally and internationally as well as in private collections. His work can be seen at www.shudsonfineart.com.

A celebration of Steve's life is scheduled for 8 p.m., Wednesday, July 18 at Café Aroma. Musicians, singers, and readers are invited to contribute to this event.

Additionally, Idyllwild Arts will hold a Tribute to Steve Hudson from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 1 in the Memorial Grove or "Cairns" at Idyllwild Arts. This was one of Steve's last projects and is a beautiful reminder of the history of the school. We'll celebrate his life with remembrances, stories and the bagpipe. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Steve touched each and every part of Idyllwild Arts and put his indelible stamp and style upon it. We will miss him.

MOUNTAIN FOLK

On June 15, Cody Wohlman, Idyllwild School from kindergarten through eighth grade and a Hemet High School graduate, earned his Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine from the University of California, Davis. While there, he focused on large animal treatment.

He and his wife Silvia, who also graduated last month, have passed their state and national licensing exams.

They both have taken employment and intern positions in the Carson City, Nev., area.

ONLY IN IDYLLWILD

Last week I went to Café Aroma for dinner. As I was being seated by the host, I noticed that I did not have my wallet in my back pocket.

I told the host I would be back in a few minutes after I got my money and wallet from home. He said, "Why don't you enjoy your dinner first, then return with your wallet."

I am not a regular and they did not know me. That is just what I did. It is good to see that there is some trust still around, along with good food.

Remember a friend of Idyllwild

Viola Hallacy, a long-time resident of Idyllwild, passed away on May 4 this year. She was not only a resident, she was an important part of what is right with the community.

Through her nursing skills, Vi gained an insight of what is important to a community and she worked to do more than just talk about what needed to be done. Part of her nursing skills were applied to helping people who needed some assistance and part of her effort went toward helping with the beginnings of what is now Mountain Disaster Preparedness.

Going beyond that, she earned her Amateur Radio License (call sign of K6VBH) and became active in the local Mile High Radio Club. Then she joined the Riverside County RACES (Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service) and became an important figure in the linking of emergency communications between these organizations.

Continuing her helpful way without giving up on her other efforts, Vi joined the Woodies, a group that cuts wood for those who cannot cut their own or cannot afford to buy it.

With all that, she never lost sight of what else was important to her. Vi used her knitting skills to create hundreds of little caps for preemie babies. Ever so soft and beautiful they were sent to an organization that distributes them to hospitals for the babies.

A remembrance for Vi Hallacy will be from 2 to 4 p.m., Sunday, July 22, at the Idyllwild Fire Station.

All are invited to see a video review of Vi's life and add their words and insights of this fine lady.

Proud to have been her friend.

Bill Baker, Idyllwild

On Thursday night, July 12, the band Grupo Bohemio, from Indio, performed a Santana Tribute during the Idyllwild Summer Concert Series. Approximately 200 or more people attended the event, filling the dance floor.

A vision

EDITOR:

I have a vision — a vision for a prosperous and happy Idyllwild.

A place where all the locals, Pine Cove, Idyllwild and Mountain Center, closely work together on the Hill's problems. A place where we all trust one another.

A place where the local heroes, our firemen who put their lives on the line for us, get bonuses, not nickel and dime pay cuts.

A place where all our limited resources, Mountain Communities Fire Safe Council, Marc and his crew in Pine Cove, Jerry and the Pine Cove 38, and our Idyllwild fireman are united in saving lives.

I have a vision, a vision of trust.

All the board members are chosen by general elections. (Mr. Capparelli should resign, he snuck back in with a vote by two board members after roundly being rejected by the people.)

Where Pine Cove and Idyllwild are working together again. (Thanks Chief [Mike] Sherman, you destroyed decades of bridge building. You stated, "You got a lot of criticism from the residents of Pine Cove, so you broke off ambulance service negotiations." The whole idea was dumb. You destroyed decades of bridge building. You got rebuked by our supervisor and rejected by our leaders.)

A vision, where our brave boys have a chief, a chief they can trust. Not four chiefs in three years.

Our fire department already has two captains who know the area. They've each served us for over twenty years, why not pick one of them as chief?

Prosperity. A town that's so close to money, so close to Palm Springs big money, L.A., Las Vegas and San Diego.

A vision of a downtown park, all along Strawberry Creek all the way to the highway. A park where children play, the old folks talk, and visitors come to see it and the quaint businesses.

A landmark park, along the creek, filled with giant trees, beautiful plants and shade, and visitors. Not more real estate. No to a huge community center financial drain.

The weekends are so filled with visitors that all the businesses and the property owners gladly pay for their heroes that put their lives on the line for them.

This commission permitted three sets of sloppy books, none that agreed. They should all resign, they should all take responsibility, they almost brought us to bankruptcy.

This board disgraced and fired former Fire Chief Norm Walker, our popular leader who united all our communities in fire-safety.

And Pine Cove was banished, because they didn't want to hear criticism.

The only solution is trust building. And the commission and Chief Sherman have failed.

Every commission member that comes up for re-election gets defeated and will be rejected.

Trust building. We trust our firefighters, we don't trust you.

Leash or unleash

EDITOR:

I am so glad this discussion of dogs on and off leash has been spurred.

Dog owners, Riverside County and state forest laws require all dogs to be leashed when in public.

Then why do we see dogs off leash in town, in campgrounds, and on trails? Ask the dog's owner and you might hear, "Oh! He never strays," or "She always comes when called. Always!"

Just last month, ARF received a call from a very distraught young man who was in Boulder Basin campground. He'd stopped just to admire the view and had his small dog with him ... off leash.

Soon, another vehicle pulled in, and out jumped an unleashed, very large dog that immediately saw the small dog and gave chase. They both ran off, the small dog terrified. Eventually the larger dog returned, but the small dog continued running for its life.

Both owners swore their dogs could be trusted off leash, because "He always comes when called." Regardless, the damage was done.

Fortunately, the small dog survived two nights in the forest by itself and found its way back to the campground and into the arms of its owner. Needless to say, all involved were traumatized.

The bottom line [is that] dogs will be dogs, and only a very, very small percentage of them are 100 percent reliable when unleashed.

And no matter how well trained a dog is in recall, it will run if it fears for its life.

An owner might want everyone to know his dog is well trained and is afraid that putting it on a leash might give a different impression, but being a responsible dog owner is more important. Obey the law. Be smart. Be safe. Keep your dog leashed when away from home.

Noise in town

EDITOR:

I just returned from a walk to the pharmacy and on my way back, I encountered the "Battle of the Bands."

My issue isn't with the musicians, they are doing what they get paid to do. My issue is with the proprietors that hire them.

I totally understand why they are hired and that is to draw attention to their establishment. But the battle of the bands is a little much.

After all, this is a small village and there is an infinite range of volume on all amplifiers. Somewhere between off and full blast would be appreciated.

Visitors come to Idyllwild for many reasons. To be entertained, to shop, to eat, to hike, to stroll through the village and, occasionally, to enjoy the ambiance of the trees, the sky and peace and quiet.

I have been to many small towns and villages in the past where they had curb side musicians. The music, for the most part, was intended to be heard by the customers in the

by Chris Fisher

immediate vicinity of the employer, not by the red tailed hawk sitting in the top of a pine tree near High Castle.

I understand that summertime is a busy time on the Hill and particularly in the village. With all the activities that are planned, I think we could accommodate all of our visitors if just one thing were exercised, and this consideration.

Consideration of all of our visitors' wants and needs can be achieved and everyone can go home with a good feeling about Idyllwild, not a bad experience.

Welcome to Idyllwild. I hope whatever you came to Idyllwild looking for, you found and return home relaxed and feeling refreshed.

Noise from camp

EDITOR:

It is about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 11. There is a lot of loud singing, music and screaming coming from Idyllwild Pines.

It is not unusual to have a lot of noise coming from there, but since I thought we were good neighbors, sharing our lovely natural beauty, I have never complained.

But now that we have been told not to enjoy the joys of Strawberry Creek near the camp, as if we are intent on criminal activity, why should my evening be disturbed by the loud noise coming from Idyllwild Pines?

Idyllwild Pines, stop trespassing on my privacy and peace and quiet!

OFF THE MAIN ROADS

By HELENE LOHR, RMRU MEMBER

Beat the heat ...

It's getting hot. I noticed this obvious little fact on the Fourth of July as we were running litter races up and down North Circle Drive in all our call-out gear with litters full of girl scouts throwing candy. After the parade we were covered in sweat and very happy to enjoy a cold beverage of our choice.

Whether you're running litter races or hiking a trail, you can become dehydrated in any season, but the summer heat is obviously the worst offender.

Recognition

Heat can cause you problems quickly if you're not prepared for it. You can lose up to 20 percent of your stamina with only two percent dehydration. That's a big drop.

Even worse, when your system is low on water, you tend to lose mental acuity as well. This can lead to other, and perhaps worse, mistakes that can put you in real harm's way.

As you get more and more dehydrated, your body quickly loses its ability to regulate its own temperature. As you may have guessed, this is not really a good thing. Loss of temperature regulation on a hot day in the back country can lead to both heat exhaustion and heat stroke, neither of which you really want to experience.

Heat exhaustion happens when a person exercises in a hot environment and sweating does not sufficiently release enough of the heat generated in their body. The body's systems start to become overwhelmed as they become more and more dehydrated and lose temperature regulation.

Symptoms of heat exhaustion include profuse sweating, weakness, nausea, vomiting, headache, lightheadedness and muscle cramps. This is a serious condition that can escalate into a life threatening emergency.

Heat stroke is one of the most severe forms of heat illness. It can kill you or damage your brain and other internal organs irreparably. It can occur as a slow build up from conditions like heat exhaustion, or happen suddenly. Symptoms range from headache, lack of sweating despite heat, rapid heartbeat and breathing, nausea and disorientation to the extremes of seizures and coma.

The best treatment is to cool the person as rapidly as possible and calling for advanced medical aid as soon as possible.

Not really on my agenda for a fun day hiking.

Prevention

Make sure you drink, but don't just chug water. Your body needs electrolytes in order to keep its systems balanced and running well.

You can actually overwater your body to the point that things start going wrong. This condition is called hyponatremia and can be pretty serious, with similar symptoms to heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

The only major difference? You'll probably be urinating like a racehorse as your body attempts valiantly to rid itself of the excess fluids to restore electrolyte balance.

LIFELINES

By TED EWING, PH.D.

A bridge to hope ...

In my last column, we examined the effect of hope's deferral and fulfillment as expressed in an ancient Jewish proverb: "Hope deferred makes the heart sick, but a longing fulfilled is a tree of life."

We need to hope. When hope is fulfilled, we gain energy and motivation. Hope fulfilled is a lifeline. When hope is delayed, we become heartsick.

Extended periods of "hope deferred" are agonizing. We are stuck in "the waiting place," to use Dr. Seuss's term, longing for our hopes to be realized. The longer we wait, the more listless we become.

To make matters worse, during these times others may provide help that's not helpful. Perspective can be useful, but exhortations to "be hopeful" usually are not. They only make us aware of the gap between hopelessness and hopefulness in which we are stuck.

That's where I found Lauren and Tom. Years ago I was teaching at a Midwest university. Lauren and Tom were also professors and we attended the same church. Over a series of meetings, they told me the pain-filled story about the death of their 20-year old son, Andy.

Andy mowed lawns to earn spending money during the summer. Two days before going to one of his regular jobs, a thunderstorm charged through the area.

Midwest thunderstorms can be fierce. Winds and lightning leave behind fallen branches, uprooted trees, and downed power lines. Fallen branches brought down a line on the property where Andy was trying out his new mower. It had been reported to the power company and investigated by the local fire department, but nothing was done about it.

As he cut a swath near the fallen limbs, Andy's right shoulder brushed the live wire. Grounded by his right hand on the mower, he was electrocuted. He was rushed to the hospital only a few hundred yards from where he was working. For two agonizing days, he clung to life, but too much damage had been done to allow for recovery and he died.

With events as ferocious and swift as the storm that led to them, a first born son and brother was gone.

Tom dealt with it differently than his wife. He was hurt and confused, but a demanding schedule forced him to postpone grieving.

Lauren only worked part-time and she was a mother. She grieved profoundly and privately, but the effects were etched on her face. Lawsuits against the power company and the fire department dragged on for months and kept the wound open and bleeding.

She was angry. At times her fury was white-hot. She was mad at her God and his world and frustrated with the system. Sometimes her rage was cold, leaving her aloof and distant from friends, and leading to the frozen anger that is depression. As the "U2" lyrics suggest, she was "stuck in a moment" and she couldn't get out of it.

One day at coffee, I offered a new way to bridge the gap between hopeless and hopeful. Lauren was an English professor and loved to play with words, so I presented her a new word to describe her condition: hopesome.

OFF THE LEASH

By CONOR O'FARRELL

Flawed, but capable of better ...

For the past couple of weeks, I've been reflecting on the role of institutions in our lives.

More specifically, how institutions lose sight of their mission statement in their ascent for and protection of power.

Two examples come to mind. The first involves the Freeh Report, the recently filed investigation into the Jerry Sandusky scandal involving allegations of rampant child abuse on the Penn State campus. The report, headed up by former FBI director Louis Freeh, revealed an orchestrated cover-up for over a decade extending into the highest corridors of power on the Penn State campus, including the much loved Penn State football coach Joe Paterno.

The report states, "the most powerful men at Penn State failed to take any steps for 14 years to protect the children that Sandusky victimized." It appears those in power were more concerned with protecting Penn State's reputation than with looking out for the welfare of the children involved in the scandal. In short, protecting the institution trumped the welfare of the children.

The second example involves my recent trip to Italy with my family. While in Rome, we visited the Vatican. We stood in Vatican square, toured the museum and spent time in St. Peter's Basilica. The scale and grandeur of Vatican is, in itself, magnificent. The museum houses so many great works of art that if you spent one minute with each art piece it would take you 12 years to see them all.

As the seat of one of the oldest Christian traditions, it struck me strangely devoid of spiritual inspiration. It seemed to be more a testament to power and money rather than a reflection of the humble life of Jesus, to whom it purports to represent.

I kept thinking of the scripture in the gospels where Jesus states, "The birds have their nests and the foxes have their holes but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head." We honor a humble, homeless man by building huge and opulent edifices in his name. I see an irony here.

These two examples are in no way alone. All institutions, if they are around long enough, have their contradictions and their dark hours of the soul. Religiously, the Roman church is no more tempted by power than any other religious institution, my own included, and Penn State isn't the first university to have a scandal. But it saddens me.

I would hope that those in power would learn that the institutions in which we place our trust are only valid to the extent in which they live out their mission. History is littered with such stories from which you would think that we would learn our lessons.

I guess I shouldn't be surprised or disappointed when our most sacred institutions let us down. They are, after all, created by a highly flawed species.

Board vacancy at Pine Cove Water

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Pine Cove Water District announced the resignation of Director Dan Frandrich, who has moved out of state. That sets up a vacancy on the board. District Secretary Becky Smith said she had contacted the Riverside County Registrar of Voters to post the vacancy and comply with applicable regulations for holding an election.

If interested in serving on the water board, submit an application at the district office by Aug. 9. In his general manager's report, Jerry Holldber wrote that June 2012 production totals are 200,000 gallons above same month last year and 200,000 below June 2010. Static measuring well number 10 is down 2 feet, and holding relatively well according to Holldber. He noted the crew would be going out to listen for leaks to help explain a fairly large 15 percent water loss. "We will follow up on it," said Holldber. "If we have to we'll have American Leak Detection come out."

Holldber also reported the weather station camera is now up and running and that interested constituents can check it out on the district website at www.pcwd.org.

In other business, Holldber noted Stonewood Community is now only interested in an emergency intertie, not connecting with the district system.

Marshall Smith can be reached at marshall@towncrier.com.

Reitz

From there he migrated west, first to Washington, south to Oregon and then east to Wyoming.

He was an emergency medical technician and firefighter for Clallam County Fire Protection District 3 in Sequim, Wash. From there he became the chief of the Crooked River Ranch Rural Fire Protection District in Central Oregon.

As Crooked River Ranch's fire chief, he grew an essentially volunteer department to a full-time well-recognized regional organization. He served as Sheridan Fire chief from August 2005 until February 2012.

Reitz has maintained his paramedic certification, even as fire chief. "I like it so much I thought I might want to become a doctor or physician's assistant," he said.

When discussing the highpoints of his career, Re-itz mentioned that he was responsible for the explorer post while at the Sequim department. Several of the kids that participated in the program keep in touch with him.

"They've become fire captains, registered nurses," he said with pride. "Seeing that! They send wedding and birth announcements. One wrote thank you for your patience and faith."

His management at Crooked River "turned a district rarely looked to for help to one known for training, leadership, equipment and personnel." To accomplish this, Reitz perfected his grant writing ability and became very successful securing funds to improve and augment the Crooked River District. When he left the $290,000 annual budget had more than tripled.

He also has experience rounding up loose emus. On two separate occasions, he has participated in the recovery of escaped emus, he said.

Idyllwild is a department "that has everything I'm looking for in a department," he said describing his decision to come here. Idyllwild's advanced life support and emergency medical services, structure and wildland firefighting opportunities on the urban wildland interface, and good people working in the department were attractions for Reitz.

His first six to 12 months will be devoted to meeting and learning the community. After that, he wants to see how the department can do what it does even better. Once he is comfortable, he would like to reach out to "those who pay the check and to those whom we serve and ask 'What does the community want?'"

"Should the fire department focus on lowering the fire insurance rating? And what is it willing to pay to achieve that result? What is the community's expectations for ambulance service?" were questions Reitz said would have to be discussed. He stressed that this planning will be a process, not a singular exercise done and forgotten.

"Government fire departments need to get away from reflexive and reactive behavior," he said. "I'm thinking more proactive."

And he recognized that the Idyllwild Fire Department's budget resources are limited. He's visited and seen the town is largely built out and not many vacant lots remain for future growth or industry.

While chief of emergency services at Sheridan, the city contracted out its ambulance services. Reitz stressed that he was responsible to the mayor and council to implement this policy, it was not his idea nor the direction he would have preferred. As a result, the city's ambulance calls per year, about 3,000, fell nearly two-thirds to 1,000 annually.

Bill Brown, the County Service Area operations manager for Riverside County's Economic Development Agency, and Michael Franklin, CSA project manager, attended and addressed Pine Cove attendees at the CSA 38 meeting on July 11.

day it could have been stationed elsewhere, such as Lake Hemet, to help AMR respond to any call on the Hill.

Beginning this year, the CSA 38 cost for accelerate response will increase from $94,905 to $119,137, and 4 percent more each of the two following years. Despite the Committee's opposition to the contract extension, the additional funding will come from the CSA 38 reserves, according to Brown.

Both CSA 38 Chair Jerry Holldber and Vice Chair Marge Muir said they were told CSA 38 would not be the source of the additional funds. Nevertheless, Brown was adamant that the CSA 38 funds would be tapped.

Stone stressed that response time was his most important criteria. He also understands the frustration and discontent in Pine Cove about the contract cost.

"I empathize with Pine Cove," Stone said. "Why do they have a fee and Idyllwild didn't vote for one. My long-term goal is to fix this."

As the county develops a new emergency services master plan, including drafting a new contract for rebidding within the next two years, he expects Pine Cove's situation to change. The renewed contract is only for three years, through June 30, 2015.

"Pine Cove could be brought into the county fold," Brown speculated. "The special tax would no longer be needed if negotiations with a new provider treat Pine Cove like the rest of Riverside County. You're in a three-year glide path with IFPD."

While Stone recognizes that people choose to live in isolated (non-urban) areas of the county, the county's EMS plan can provide equitable service to these residents.

"It's possible a new contract would provide a level of service in form of raising transport fees so the provider can justify making money in the urban areas, but provide good service in rural," said Stone. "My goal is the best care and no assessment with the new EMS provider — appropriate response without the burden of a tax."

While the room was full of Pine Cove residents who supported the committee's recommendation and were disappointed with the unexpected decision, the meeting ended with promises of trying to find a path to greater

Fire commission appoints new chief; Approves new ambulance contract

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

The Idyllwild Fire Protection District Commission selected Patrick Reitz, formerly the fire chief and emergency services director for the City of Sheridan, Wyo., as the next Idyllwild fire chief. Reitz will begin service Aug. 1.

The vote was 4-0. Commissioner Jerry Buchanan was absent.

He was laid off from this position in February 2012. He recommended to the Sheridan Mayor and City Council that his position and a chief for operations could be combined into one and would save the city money. His starting salary at Idyllwild will be $85,932.

(See page 1 for an interview with Reitz.)

"In addition to being a paramedic, Chief Reitz has over 13 years of experience as fire chief with a keen understanding of finances and administration. He has been successful in obtaining grant monies and in meeting budget challenges," Jeannine Charles-Stigall, IFPD Commission president, said in an email. "One of Chief Reitz's core values is that the fire department needs to have strong ties to the community and the community should have strong ties to the fire department. It was his focus on community, as well as his exceptional medical, financial and administrative experience, which made him stand out from the other candidates."

The commission also unanimously approved amendments to the ambulance contract for Zones 2 (Pine Cove) and 3 with Riverside County. Idyllwild will receive $165,404 this fiscal year (beginning July 1). This is $67,500 (nearly 70 percent) more than last year. The contract subsidies increase four percent annually to $178,901 in fiscal 2014-15.

The Riverside County Board of Supervisors must also approve the contract amendments. This is likely to occur before August, according to Bruce Barton, EMS Agency Director, Riverside County Department of Public Health.

In other business, the department reported its end of 2011-2012 finances.

Nancy Layton, consultant for financial and book-keeping services, said these figures will be very close to the actual final results.

In fiscal year 2011-12, IFPD lost about $270,000. About $200,000 was the depletion of reserves, such as a $125,000 certificate of deposit. The remaining loss was the difference between operating expenses and revenue. The 2010-11 loss was about $190,000.

The agency's checking account balance as of June 30 was $277,000 with no additional cash in reserve. A year ago, IFPD's overall cash balance was $364,000, which included $264,000 in reserve.

cooperation and partnership between the CSA and IFPD.

The change was in response to IFPD Commissioner Dr. Charles "Chip" Schelly's attendance at the meeting and his effort to find a way to enhance future relations between the two local organizations.

Advisory committee members had questions about the cost of service to Pine Cove compared to Idyllwild calls and why Pine Cove residents would have to pay more for service since they already pay the contract costs.

"Basically we're a consumer paying for service, paying a premium," said Pine Cove resident Dave Miller, when asking Brown if his agency couldn't mandate IFPD to release this type of information.

Schelly, who requested time on the committee's agenda, began by saying, "we need to build on this relationship. I'm asking the community too. Meetings are not just for [members of the] boards, they're really for the community. And I hope they can be involved."

During the discussion of possibly holding a joint meeting, Holldber said he hoped the two organizations could "discuss the bigger picture." He was referring to looking at emergency medical service to the entire Hill area. How would that be structured to benefit all the residents and visitors?

"Most of us consider themselves part of Idyllwild," Thom Wallace, advisory committee member, told Schelly. "But when we try to take part, we're stonewalled. There's no invitation to be part of the decision making."

Holldber agreed to invite the new Idyllwild Fire Chief to the CSA 38 September meeting. CSA 38 will not have an August meeting, he told Schelly.

Castaneda confidante next at Author Series

By Marshall Smith
Staff Reporter

Amy Wallace, daughter of author Irving Wallace, met Carlos Castaneda on her father's recommendation when she was 15. "You would love him," he said. And eventually she did. Wallace had already established herself as a successful writer when, pursued and seduced by Castaneda's stories, charisma and promise of marriage, she joined him in Mexico only to discover that she had become one of his many conquests and converts.

Wallace, who appears as the last of Eduardo Santiago's authors this season, will discuss her association with Castaneda in "The Sorcerer's Apprentice: My Life with Carlos Castaneda" (2003, Frog Ltd., North Atlantic Press, Berkeley, California).

The lesson Wallace learned in the eight years she spent bouncing in and out of Castaneda's favored circle was, "Don't listen to the short shaman with the mellifluous voice." But that is in retrospect. The journey, as detailed in her memoir, is much different — intriguing, hopeful and appalling at different turns, especially for a successful author already recognized for her talent, accomplishments and intelligence. Castaneda, as Wallace recalls, was compelling and cruel, mesmerizing and manipulative and supremely seductive. And, she remembered, there was always the possibility that there was magic, real magic, that he alone knew how to unlock.

"Mexico with Castaneda!" writes Wallace in "Sorcerer's Apprentice." "I had never been to Mexico, and now I was going with caves where we would sip strange, mind-altering brews and converse with ancient wizards. We would explore the 'power spots' he described in his books.

Coachella Valley Symphony brings Broadway

By Marshall Smith
Staff Reporter

Broadway conductor and pit band veteran Wayne Abravanel is the new maestro of the Coachella Valley Symphony, appearing next for the Idyllwild Summer Concert Series.

For his first season as the symphony's principal conductor, Abravanel tapped into his Big Apple roots. Those included 25 years in Broadway musical pit bands, on piano, for the original cast productions of Stephen Sondheim's "Passion," Lloyd Weber's "Sunset Boulevard," and other Broadway fare such as "Saturday Night Fever," "Footloose," and "Dream, the music of Johnny Mercer."

Abravanel, a New York native, said his most satisfying gig while part of the New York theatre community was conducting the Radio City Music Hall Christmas Spectacular for several years.

At its Thursday, July 26, appearance, CVS will present suites from Leonard Bernstein's "West Side Story" and Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma," as well as sampling other musical disciplines. Book ending Broadway showstoppers, Abravanel has programmed jazz with Claude Bolling's "Suite for Jazz Piano" and classical with Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." Abravanel will also, as he does in his regular seasons, showcase sections of the orchestra, so that audiences can hear the distinct tonal differences of the sections.

Since settling in the desert with his wife in 2003, Abravanel has stormed the desert's musical battlements and found welcome in many different arenas — as conductor for Kaye Ballard, musical director for the Villa Theatre, sketch artist and musical arranger for "The Fabulous Palm Springs Follies," and as choral conductor for Coachella Valley High School where he also directs and conducts an annual musical.

And now, as permanent conductor and music director of the CVS, Abravanel said he has found a home. Asked how a New Yorker could adapt to the desert, he said it's an easy fit and, with the breadth of his work, it's emotionally satisfying. Abravanel also conducts the Peninsula Symphony in Palos Verdes, which, he laughed, gives him a break from desert temperatures.

CVS takes the stage at 7 p.m. Thursday, July 26, at the Idyllwild Community Center site. There is no opening act for this performance. All ISCS performances are free to the public but donations are appreciated.

Church sponsors Alzheimer's seminars

By SALLY HEDBERG
CORRESPONDENT

Last year, the Idyllwild Community Presbyterian Church sponsored four informative and well-attended seminars dealing with dementia and Alzheimer's. Starting on July 18, the series has been expanded to six sessions and will run from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Aug. 22. The programs are held at the church located at 54400 North Circle Drive in Idyllwild and are free and open to the public.

The first session dealt with "Neurobiology of Dementia," facilitated by Shannon Easton who has degrees in human development and counseling ministries with professional experience in senior care. Her slide presentation showed what actually happens to the brain with the onset of dementia.

According to Jane Farmer, co-facilitator, the five remaining topics will cover communication in dementia, family dynamics, living with dementia, the emotional roller coaster and care for the caregiver.

Farmer knows first hand what it's like to be a caregiver. She became acutely aware when her mother was diagnosed with Alzheimer's in 2000, and she became her primary caregiver. Jane went on to be trained in memory care and is passionate about helping others through the journey of memory loss.

The seminar provides knowledge and information about Alzheimer's and related forms of dementia that are crucial for caregivers and important for the population.

We would take the steps to precede the shamanic death we dreamed of, 'burning from within' together, in a rapturous ball of fire, emerging intact in another world, and nothing would ever separate us. What adventures in her right mind could possibly say no?"

Wallace used the writing of "Sorcerer's Apprentice" to extract herself from Castaneda's influence and re-enter a life of her own construction.

Before Castaneda, Wallace had already written the bestselling "The Book of Lists," with brother David Wallenchinsky and "The Psychic Healing Book."

"I don't remember not writing," said Wallace who was a bit of a prodigy. "Five, I think," when asked the age when she began. "By eight, I was writing short stories." After Castaneda, Wallace is exploring new forms: an online site, www.catsinplaces.com that she will illustrate and turn into a book, resuming fiction writing, concentrating on the short story form, with an emphasis on horror, but ultimately, more and more writing. In 2008 she coauthored with Del Howison and boyfriend Scott Bradley, "The Book of Lists: Horror" (2008, Harper Collins, New York).

"I'm driven by ideas and concepts," she said of her writing. "And I'm drawn to dialogue, even a book with just dialogue. And now, I'm doing what I want to do, writing the books that are in me."

As are all of the Santiago's Idyllwild Authors Series, the event is free to the public and begins 2 p.m., Sunday, July 22 in back of INK Book Gathering on North Circle.

Marine band; different band, different day, different format

Conducting at this year's concert is Gunnery Sgt. Jonathan Bley.

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The Marine Band plays again as part of the Idyllwild Summer Concert Series but this year on a different day, different time, from a different Marine base and in a different configuration.

The Marine Band San Diego's 18-piece jazz ensemble, led by Gunnery Sgt. Jonathan Bley, will play from 3 to 4:30 p.m., Saturday, July 21.

Bley, an electric bassist, named in 2011 as Non-Commissioned Officer Marine Musician of the Year, said the band would feature some patriotic big band arrangement, play charts of Doc Severinsen, Arturo Sandoval, Tommy Newsom, Count Basie and sample a broad cross section of big band swing.

Featured will be saxophonist Cpl. Charlie Arbelaez on lead alto and soprano sax. Arbelaez, who came to the band after studying at Florida International University and a brief stint as a firefighter, said the common denominator throughout his life has been his love for jazz and for the saxophone. He'll have opportunities to stretch out throughout the Idyllwild concert, including in a jazz arrangement of "America the Beautiful."

For many years the Combat Center Band based in 29 Palms played the series. That band was deactivated recently. This year, the Marine Band San Diego is supplying the music. It has been in existence for 90 years. The 50 Marines in the band perform in seven different ensembles.

USMC music started with an executive order signed by second President John Adams on July 11, 1798 authorizing the corps to enlist a drum major, one fife (flute) major, and 32 drummers and fifers. This first corps band and its successor USMC band, the return of bluegrass music to Idyllwild.

The Reedy Creek Rogues open from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. Headliner Silverado plays from 5:45 to 8:30 p.m., with Kathleen Johnson on auto-harp and vocals and Jamie Olsen, guitar and vocals sitting in.

Bluegrass resumes at noon Sunday with Bucket List, Johnson, Olsen, Don Reed, Fred Wade on bass and Eric Uglum on guitar, mandolin and vocals. Uglum, who operates New Wine Sound Studio and Audio Mastering Lab, has a recently released and well-reviewed new CD, "Shenandoah Wind."

Following Bucket List,

Bodie Mountain Express, who have played with Ray Price, Tammy Wynette, Kenny Rogers and others, take the stage at 1:45 p.m. At 3 p.m. there will be a bluegrass jam.

With festival events, including a high country hike in search of lemon lilies, both in town and at the Nature Center, and shuttle transportation available between locations, there will be much for attendees to enjoy and celebrate. Proceeds for events go to lemon lily education and restoration.

Check out the full program for the Saturday and Sunday events, July 21 and 22 at www.lemonlilyfestival.com.

Native American Arts Festival featured Jock Soto

Principal dancer New York City Ballet

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Jock Soto, son of a Navajo mother and Puerto Rican father, said he knew at age 5 he wanted to dance ballet. It was not something that grew out of his Native American tradition.

On Thursday and Friday, July 13 and 14, the Idyllwild Arts Summer Program's Native American Arts Festival paid tribute to Soto, a much honored principal dancer of the New York City Ballet.

On Thursday the festival screened "Water Flowing Together," a PBS/Independent Lens documentary. Gwendolen Cates directed the film that follows Soto as he prepares for his retirement after 24 years with the New York City Ballet. Soto, one of the most influential of modern American ballet dancers, inspired the creation of 100 new roles choreographed for him by, among others, dance legends George Balanchine, Jerome Robbins and Peter Martins. He was one of the last four dancers to be chosen by Balanchine to be part of New York City Ballet. Soto joined the company in 1981 at the age of 16, became a soloist in 1984 and principal dancer in 1985.

The film juxtaposes highlights of Soto's New York career along with his returns to the vistas and people of his Arizona and Puerto Rican roots. It concludes with his farewell performance on Sunday, June 19, 2005 and provides unprecedented backstage access and looks into the workings of New York City Ballet. "It was better that I decide when it's enough rather than have somebody tell me," said Soto in the film about his emotionally difficult decision to retire. As the documentary observes, 24 years is a long career for a dancer. It is an arduous and physically demanding career. And in his career, Soto spent most of his years as principal dancer.

He was early on told he did not have a traditional dancer's body. Nevertheless, he possessed a combination of grace, athleticism, and dramatic sensitivity that set him apart both as an individual dancer and as a partner and led to an unprecedented long and successful career.

Soto, while in residence at Idyllwild Arts in March, choreographed a Pas de Deux, "Dark Made Light," for IA faculty members Jonathan Sharp and Ellen Rosa Taylor. The piece was performed on Friday, to original music by Laura Ortman, a White Mountain Apache. Soto attended.

Soto, who now teaches at the School of American Ballet at Lincoln Center in New York, continues his association with New York City Ballet. The school trains dancers for the company. Soto taught master classes to Idyllwild Arts dancers while here in March. Would he come back? "I'd come in a minute," he said.

Architectural students build for the Navajo

By DON DIETZ AND SALLY HEDBERG

The Idyllwild Arts Native Arts Week speaker, architect Hank Louis, gave a new and refreshing perspective on architectural training and education. Louis' presentation was entitled "Building with Empathy: Homes on the Navajo Reservation."

"While our educational system is good at teaching many things, how to be an architect isn't always one of them," he said. "Students come out with a degree, yet the vast majorities are sent out into the workforce without ever having to mix concrete, turn a screw or pound a nail."

So how does a group of University of Utah architectural students learn about construction? They begin by completing the DesignBuildBluff program, which gives the students an opportunity to design and build sustainable housing for Navajo families.

Louis founded the rigorous six months "hands-on" building program to give students experiences in every aspects of construction. The work occurs on the Navajo reservation in Bluff, Utah, near Four Corners and Monument Valley.

In collaboration with the Navajo elders, students select and interview families to determine their needs and desires. An important aspect

Art Alliance seeks future leadership

Business leaders with an interest in promoting the arts and gaining recognition for Idyllwild as an art lover's destination are sought by the Art Alliance of Idyllwild. "We are working to establish officers for this coming year's board of directors," offered Lea Deesing, current AAI president, adding, "I have a strong interest in the arts, but I discovered that my information technology background, marketing, and leadership skills were just what this group needed during my past few years on the board. As my term comes to an end, we are looking for someone to continue the positive momentum and growth this organization is experiencing."

The AAI president position calls for someone who can effectively run the board meetings, prepare agendas, review contracts and other legal documents, work with the board to prepare the event schedule, and coordinate board member-assigned tasks. Most importantly, the organization needs someone who has strong leadership skills and is technologically savvy.

Anyone interested in finding out more details about the positions or AAI is urged to call (877) 439-5278 or send an email to artinidyllwild@gmail.com.

SPORTS

Town Hall Adult Softball

Town Hall Sports Coordinator Jeremy Teeguarden reported on Town Hall Adult Softball for the week of July 9.

For the fifth consecutive year, the opening game of the season matched Pacific Slope Tree Co. and Ajax. Pacific Slope got their bats going in the fourth inning with Jody Posey's home run. Ajax's bats never got going as Pacific Slope won the game 11-0.

On Tuesday, July 10, Creekstone Inn, the defending champion, took on Café Aroma. The game was close for the first few innings as each team put a few runs on the board. Dawn Sonnier had a few great hits for Creekstone Inn as they pulled away in the later innings and won 11-6.

Wednesday's game was between Forest Lumber and Team Patty Perez. It was the first ever game for team Perez. Forest Lumber came out swinging and hit the ball all over the field. Kendra Wines and Jeremy Potter each scored three runs as Forest Lumber went on to a big win 25-4.

On Thursday, July 12, Café Aroma faced Pacific Slope Tree Co. who took the lead immediately in the first inning as Justin Lehr scored one of his two runs in the game. Café Aroma struggled hitting as Pacific Slope won 13-0.

for their second straight shutout.

On Friday, Creekstone Inn played Ajax. Both teams struggled early to put runs on the score board. Creekstone Inn's Josh White scored three runs as they took a late lead. In the final at-bat, Ajax mounted a come back when Janey Espinoza got a key hit and came around to score. Creekstone got a key out at third base and held on to win a close game 10-9.

On Saturday, July 14, the season's first week closed with Creekstone Inn meeting Team Patty Perez, who took a 3-2 lead in the third inning when Kadeem Perez came around to score. Creekstone Inn's bats began making contact and Kelly Cochrane scored twice. Creekstone Inn won 12-3.

Architect Hank Louis talks about how he teaches architectural students to build sustainable and cultural based homes for Navajo families in Utah.

is for the construction to be culturally sensitive, such as doors facing east, views of the four sacred mountains and a clockwise rotation in the houses while considering the sun and wind.

Plans for each structure are developed as the students and family collaborate on the final design.

The real learning experience began when the students arrive at the building site on the reservation. Most sites are remote with no water or electricity, and the temperature half of the year is hot while the remaining months are covered in snow.

A solar paneled trailer provides electricity for power tools. Donated or confiscated nontraditional building materials like abandoned car parts and tires, telephone poles, large pipe, rejected tin paneling, straw bales and shipping pallets, save costs and encourage creative design. Natural clay is used for rammed earth building blocks similar to traditional adobe.

With the various materials available, students face the challenge of building homes by hand. This nonrestrictive learning environment gives them an opportunity to create and build original, sustainable structures in a cultural environment very different from their own.

Louis concluded his talk saying, "Many of the 200 students had no idea that a third world country was in their own backyard. Forty-three percent of the Navajos live in poverty and 45 percent never graduate from high school. Building these homes for the Navajo families gives the students a social awareness that I hope will stay with them forever."

'Playground open to all' states ICRC

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The newly built Idyllwild Community Playground is open to all and available for use by the entire community. Last week, three Idyllwild Community Recreation Council directors met and issued the following statement: "The Idyllwild Community Playground was built by the members of this community to create a safe gathering place where people of all ages will benefit. This will also be a public access playground that all people are welcome to enjoy and allow them to promote a healthy, active lifestyle outdoors all year round."

The need for stating a policy arose after Town Hall officials posted a statement on Facebook stating they felt unwelcome at the site and would no longer take the Town Hall kids there. After much discussion of Town Hall's decision on social media sites, ICRC directors met, formulated the explicit policy and approved it.

The confusion began immediately after completion of the playground Town Hall summer camp counselors took local children to the new playground and several incidents occurred that resulted in Town Hall management's decision to stop using the playground. On Monday, June 18, the day after it was dedicated, Town Hall summer counselors reported several exchanges that left them feeling uncomfortable.

ICRC directors Claudia Posey and Dawn Sonnier confirmed that Sonnier approached the counselors and questioned why no one from Town Hall had come to help build the playground. ICRC directors said they did not suggest Town Hall counselors could not bring their summer campers to the playground. Town Hall counselors confirmed that. But county recreation counselor Destiny Walton said the questioning made her and the other three staffers there that day feel both uncomfortable and unwelcome. Walton said questions were also raised about provisions for Town

The Idyllwild Community Center Committee has announced that it has begun planning the first phase of construction. The committee is currently selecting an architect for the plan.

The initial center construction will include a meeting room, an activity room, an office, bathrooms and parking.

Future phases will add considerably more to the facility, including a gymnasium, kitchen, and several more rooms for meetings and specific audiences.

Committee members Bill Sanborn and Pete Capparelli estimate the cost for this first phase construction will be $300,000.

After an architect prepares detailed plans, the committee expects construction to begin within 12 months. The ability to move forward this soon is the result of the continuing generosity of the couple who bought and donated the land — Dave and Loie Butterfield.

The community's turnout to build the playground was very impressive, Dave said.

"This is a venue for the community and we're very glad to be part of it," he said. "A lot of good people made this happen. They may not have had the money, but they were willing to commit effort and time."

Consequently, the benefactors have promised the $300,000 in advance of the committee raising and matching any funds. The Butterfields will match all contributions in excess to the $300,000 through the end of the year.

"Both [the Butterfields] are very supportive of what the community is doing here," Sanborn said.

The 11-member committee has already pledged $50,000 themselves toward the first phase building.

Sanborn and Capparelli plan to meet with 3rd District Supervisor Jeff Stone to discuss the project and to seek an agreement that the local recreation program might shift its headquarters there from Town Hall.

If you are eating as well as drinking, you're likely to get enough of these electrolytes from your food. If not? Make sure to bring an electrolyte powder mix to add to some water or something like Gatorade to fill the need.

Carry enough water and be sure to actually drink it. Yes, it's heavy, but it's worth it! It also doesn't help if your water is solidly wedged into the unreachable side pocket on your backpack. Either make a pact with your hiking partner to grab it for you whenever you stop, or invest in an easy access solution like a camelback or platypus water bladder and suction tube.

Know your resources: Most people don't carry enough water, or know where it's available if they need it in the high country. U.S. Forest Service rangers have a good idea of the conditions of water sources in the high country — ask at the Ranger Station (54270 Pincrest in Idyllwild) front desk for an update before you head out.

Wear loosefitting, lightweight clothing. Wearing heavy clothing or those really hip tight leggings you just bought won't allow your body to cool properly. Wear light-colored clothing, especially if you're in the sun. Keep that awesome black workout shirt for your indoor Jazzercise class. Dark colored clothing absorbs heat. Light-colored clothing can help keep you cool by reflecting the sun's rays. So, even if its not fashionable that beige hiking shirt is the way to go.

Get conditioned to heat. Limit the amount you spend hiking in the heat until you're used to it. It's just the beginning of the summer season.

You don't have to run up to San Jacinto Peak during midday just yet, do you? People who are not used to hot weather (like us mountain folk) are especially vulnerable to heat-related illness. Remember, it can take up to several weeks for your body to adjust to hot weather.

Consider this your yearly temperature regulation reminder.

She wasn't completely void of hope — the way we use the term hopeless — she merely had less hope than before the accident. Life went on and so did she.

However, she could not imagine ever being as full of hope as people kept exhorting her to be, so she needed a realistic goal to bridge the gap between those two extremes. I felt that if she could redefine hopeless, and not try to be hopeful, she would be able to grieve and recover gradually.

Exercising some hope each day was achievable. She could be hopeful. She could write, care for her two girls, love her husband, live.

Dealing with deferred hope in the waiting place is not as easy as just using new words to describe it, but it's a start.

The words we use to tell our story can keep us imprisoned in an unhealthy, hopeless version of that story. The first step to becoming hope-filled may be recognizing where some hope still lies within us.

We humans carry within us the seeds of our own destruction and some of the most grievous evils in the world's history have been carried out by ideologues who deluded themselves into thinking that they were saving humanity. No person is perfect, therefore neither is any human institution and I am not suggesting that we should throw the baby out with the bath water. Imperfect institutions, which all are, can still make great contributions.

But I hope, in the future, we can do better. That we can remind ourselves from time to time why we started down this particular path to begin with, be it political, religious or any endeavor that sets out to better humankind. Nevertheless, perhaps an institution that has lost sight of its primary mission may no longer be worth protecting.

Hall campers' trash.

The next day, Town Hall campers and counselors returned, this time bringing their own trash bags. According to counselor Christina Martinez there was another incident involving a young boy who was not part of the Town Hall group for which Town Hall was later blamed. Martinez said she walked the boy, who had had a bathroom accident on a playground slide, over to his mother.

Based on these incidents and others including a phone call from a local woman who complained about Town Hall campers leaving trash and a visit from a local man who claimed to speak on behalf of ICRC blaming Town Hall for the bathroom incident, Town Hall management decided to stop using the playground. Recreation Manager Amy Righetti noted, in posting the decision on Town Hall's Facebook page, that many parents of Town Hall campers participated in the playground build.

In an email to the Town Crier, Posey addressed the growing tension, "I cannot give you any answers as to Dawn's exact quote for the record but I can say that I was there that day, she did approach MARS [county recreation] staff and mention that it was a disappointment that Town Hall staff had not been part of the build. It probably came out more harshly than it was intended but never a threat or meant to stop them [Town Hall kids] from coming back. As far as the trash goes, I can honestly say that because it was the first day the park was open, we hadn't thought about trash yet and when we saw the MARS kids with their lunches, all of us who where there began discussing trash cans and trash bags."

Posey noted, "Fortunately the playground is built and it is ICRC's intention to make sure that the community understands that no group or individual has the right to exclude any other group or individual from joining in the play."

Sonnier said ICRC is still working on issues

Chamber reschedules installation dinner

The installation of the new board directors for the Idyllwild Chamber of Commerce has been rescheduled to 6 to 8 p.m., Tuesday, July 24, at the Fern Valley Inn.

The Chamber will announce its new officers and recognize outgoing directors. Honorary Member Marshall Hawkins, Idyllwild's Jazz-

Man Emeritus and the musical co-ordinator for the 2nd Annual Town Jazz events will also be honored.

The Chamber had originally planned to have the installation dinner Thursday, July 26, but rescheduled to avoid a conflict with the Idyllwild Summer Concert Series Thursday programs.

involving playground maintenance and trash pickup, including providing appropriate bins for recycling. She said that ICRC, at its August meeting, would draft schedules and specifics of playground maintenance and that between 10 to 15 thousand dollars will be set aside from money raised for the playground build to fund maintenance.

Sonnier recently wrote to 3rd District Supervisor Jeff Stone about these issues, and stated she felt it was unprofessional for Town Hall's staff to discuss its decision on its Facebook page. Further, ICRC had invited Town Hall staff to a meeting to clear the air, but Town Hall staff did not attend the meeting. Stone wrote to Sonnier, "Because public money was used to fund the construction of this nice playground, it must be available for the entire public to use." Stone provided approximately $11,000 to fund the Conditional Use Permit.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A turn in a relationship upsets the amorous Arian, who is puzzled by Cupid's romantic antics. Be patient and considerate. The confusion soon will sort itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for traveling Taureans to take off for fun-filled jaunts to new places. And don't be surprised if Cupid tags along for what could be a very eventful trip.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You appear to be of two minds about continuing a relationship that seems to be riding roughshod over your emotions. A frank talk could help you decide one way or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping back from a relationship problem provides a new perspective on how to deal with it. Meanwhile, watch your words. Something said in anger now could backfire later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A changing situation makes the Big Cat uneasy. But hold on until things settle down around the 4th. Meanwhile, continue your good work on that still-unfinished project.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A decided improvement in a workplace situation results in an unexpected, but very welcome, added benefit for everyone. Personal relationships also improve.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters remain a bit unsettled but soon will ease into the kind of stability you appreciate. Meanwhile, an expanding social life offers a chance to make new friends.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Use an unexpected roadblock in your monetary dealings to reassess your financial plans and make changes, if necessary. It soon will be smooth sailing again.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects of love are strong for both single and paired Sagittarians. Professional dealings also thrive under the Sag's clever handling of difficult situations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set a realistic goal and follow it through to completion. Remember: You're more likely to impress the right people with one well-done job than with lots of jobs left undone.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You like to plan ahead. That's fine. But be prepared to make some changes because of an unsettled period that influences your aspects through the 4th.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brief phase of instability affects your usual work cycle. Use the time to catch up on chores around the house or office. Things settle down soon after the 4th.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love being the center of attention and probably would be a big success in show business.

Every day throughout the United States, newspapers publish thousands of public notices about events, conditions or actions that affect countless individuals, families, neighborhoods and businesses. Public notices cover many topics, including business matters, liquor licensing, public auctions and sales, estates, zoning, public meetings, bids to sell goods and services to the government, local government finances and state and local elections. Public notice is a fundamental component of our system of representative democracy, which depends upon the participation of educated, responsible citizens.

Steve Heller (right) joins Eduardo Santiago at the INK Book Gathering for the Idyllwild Author Series on Sunday afternoon. Heller talked about his writing and teaching life and discussed his book, "Lucky Kellerman," which he wrote in 1987. He is currently writing a follow-up to that book, called "Return of the Ghost Killer."

CREATURE CORNER

BY MIMI AND HOOTCH

Yes, I am looking at you! 'Cause I think I want to do my happy dance and jump right into your purse.

Need a couple lumps of sugar for your teacup? Well, Charlie Brown is a teacup Chihuahua and has all the sugar you need.

Snuggle him in your arms or in your purse, walk on the leash to the coffeeshop, and watch his magic as he wins everyone's heart. The best performance is at mealtime when he dances and twirls for his food, as he has practiced for so long to perfection.

Part of the Anza Gang Rescue, Charlie is good with other canines and felines. Come to ARF to visit him, but beware, he will dance his way right into your heart (and purse).

Looking for the perfect cat? The softest pure white fur, and sky blue eyes make Monty a joy to come home to.

His favorite pastime is snuggling in his cat tree and watching the world. Never a meower and litter box trained, you'll hardly know he's there.

He always welcomes the human hand for a neck rub, especially before meals. He is a lover of anything "fishy" in his bowl.

A bit of a loner, Monty is good with other cats, will tolerate the canine crowd, and even has shared his meal with kittens. Monty is 5 to 6 years old, and although his eyes show sadness for losing his human, he is forgiving once you touch him. Please give Monty a home so he can show you his love.

Lacy has paws outstretched ready for your attention. A beautiful female tux good with other cats, dogs and kids. Come to ARF to visit Lacy. She even likes to play catch!

We have several kittens at ARF and a border collie coming in on Tuesday.

ARF has many cats and dogs available for adoption or fostering. Go to www.arfidyllwild.weebly.com and click on Petfinder. All pets are spayed, neutered, and current on shots. ARF is open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sundays. Call (951) 659-1122 or email info@idyllwildarf.org for appointment on any other day.

Creature corner is sponsored this week by Anne and Barnaby Finch. To sponsor the column, call Shane Fender at the Town Crier, 659-2145.

PAST TENSE

65 years ago - 1947

Town Crier visited the Kretsingers: "In the front room, a rehearsal of the Mounted Music Makers was in process. Jean was strumming his guitar, Evie was at the piano, and little George was singing at the top of his voice. Down at Kretsinger Corners, everyone gets a BANG out of living."

55 years ago - 1957

Harry Armstrong of Pine Cove discovered two teenage girls defacing rocks. He summoned Deputy Charles Slaback, who stood by while they removed the marks.

50 years ago - 1962

The new junior college district serving Hemet Valley, Banning, Beaumont and San Jacinto got a name: Mt. San Jacinto Junior College.

45 years ago - 1967

Three 13-year-old YMCA campers missing overnight were located by helicopter on Deer Springs Trail. All were in excellent condition.

Fire chiefs Mike Riebner of Beaumont, Bill Hoeft of Hemet, Jim Johnson of Hemet and Dave Flake, Riverside County Fire Warden, meet with local officials to swap information over lunch at Welch's Carriage Inn in the photo published July 21, 1972.

40 years ago - 1972

County supervisors ordered the Road Department "back to the drawing board" to modify its proposal for the Fern Valley flood-control, road-widening project.

35 years ago - 1977

Pay increases that brought the Hemet Unified School District management in line with countywide averages were approved by the governing board. An additional 4 percent boost "for good measure" was added, according to Personnel Director Dr. Richard Thorsted.

30 years ago - 1982

Dan Gosnell was elected president of the Idyllwild Firefighters Association.

A petition signature drive was launched in Idyllwild for creation of a Hill school district.

25 years ago - 1987

County Service Area 36 Advisory Council required Town Hall Recreation to call a special public meeting because of disgruntled parents and participants of various programs.

15 years ago - 1997

The Idyllwild Cowboy Jubilee was a day-long event. Horse-drawn carriages and Native American dances were among the attractions during the event.

5 years ago - 2007

A Cadillac Escalade XT drove off North Circle Drive, jumped the curb, hit the deck and struck a large pine tree outside the Idyllwild Realty office.

1 year ago - 2011

A capacity crowd seeking answers on the county's assumption of recreation management in Idyllwild confronted the County Service Area 36 Advisory Committee at its monthly meeting. The packed meeting produced little satisfaction for attendees.

Adventures with the Town Crier

This winter, Scott Crawford (right) of Pine Cove traveled to Siwa, Egypt. He shared the Town Crier with his guide Kahil, while touring the “melted” (from a 1920s rainstorm) part of town. PHOTOS COURTESY OF SCOTT CRAWFORD

While on a ‘Slow Adventure’ hike along Half Moon Bay, these ladies needed two editions of the Town Crier to enjoy the inns before visiting San Francisco. Unless noted, all the adventurers are from Idyllwild. In the front are Janice Lyle (in red), Chris Maxson, Suzy Capparelli, Veda Roubideaux and Carol Murrel. Standing behind them are Pam Ford (Los Angeles), Sian Smith (Sydney, Australia), Sandy Froelich, Pam Goldwasser, and Rhonda Robinson (Indianapolis, Ind.).
