or 20 years, the Idyllwild HELP Center has been serving the poor, the homeless and the needy of this community. It has not always been easy, nor is it easy now, but its doors have always been open to provide food, heating, transportation, tutoring and other assistance to those residents in need.

In 1992, the doors opened on Pine Crest Avenue. Of course, just as much of the food and other supplies, which the center hands out, the property was a donation from Jack and Nancy Sarvela, two of the original

The Thrift Store opened on Aug. 31, 1995. Nearly 200 people toured the facility that day. A month later, the HELP Center held a fundraiser, including its now annual "Fashion Show."

Since those doors opened, Karen Patterson, HELP Center executive director, estimates more than 3,500 people have been assisted in some way.

In 2012, the HELP Center assisted more than 500 people, including families. This is down nearly 20 percent in the past two years.

he Idyllwild Community Fund has awarded nearly $15,000 to eleven different local organizations. A reception honoring the recipients will be 6 p.m., Thursday, Sept. 27 at the Rainbow Inn.

This year's grantees include familiar and oft recognized organizations such as the Mountain Communities Fire Safe Council's Woodies contingent as well as the art program for Idyllwild School — smARTS.

In addition, several new recipients received grants. The Idyllwild Area Historical Society was awarded $1,000 to begin developing a digital archive of the early years of the Idyllwild Town Crier.

"One of the things which drives our agenda is inquiries we get from residents, museums, researchers and writers. Newspapers are very helpful and nothing compares to the Town Crier," Bob Smith of the IAHS told the ICF board.

The first goal of the IAHS long-term project is to organize, digitize and post the first five years of the Town Crier online. Newsbank is helping with the project, Smith said. "It's good community collaboration to help those of us interested in history."

Another new recipient is the Youth Grantmakers Program. A contingent of Idyllwild Middle School students will be asked to review special grant applications target to their age group, according to ICF

Alcohol was a factor in a traffic collision Saturday at around 3 a.m. on Lower Pine Crest Avenue in Idyllwild.

Three passengers of a 2007 Subaru Forester were transported to local hospitals after the driver, Nathan Dejarnette, 21, of Idyllwild side-swiped a tree, causing him to lose control and careen down an embankment, running into a carport and hitting the Chevy El Camino parked inside.

California Highway Patrol Officer David Kling See Record, page 5 did not arrest Dejarnette for driving under the influence, as he passed a field sobriety test. Kling said the car was traveling at about 40 miles per hour. Kling said the passengers had all been drinking.

Ariel Torres, 20, of Idyllwild who was riding in the front passenger seat, was transported to Hemet Valley Regional Medical Center for treatment of broken bones and lacera-

David Rogelio, 29, of Ontario and Ansel Chang, 24, of San Fernando were transported to Riverside Regional Medical Center. Both men suffered lacerations and Chang was believed to have some broken bones.

Outside Idyllwild

By Bruce Watts

Where are they now? ...

During April, May and June, we saw the annual stampede of Pacific Crest Trail hikers come through Idyllwild. The PCTers, as I call them, were everywhere in town. You saw them at the post office, grocery store, restaurants, coffee shop, motels, campgrounds, library and walking (sometimes limping) up and down the roads in

When I worked at the shop, May was always the best month of the year as hikers were always in need of gear — no matter how well they plan their hike. I had as many as thirteen hikers outside the shop waiting for me

After the PCTers pass through town, most of us forget about them until next year. But many of them are still out there hiking as I write these words. Some have finished early, some are off the trail due to injury and some are still hiking the last couple hundred miles through the state of Washington.

A quick check of the latest entries at PCTA.org and trailjournals.com will give you some idea of what they have been doing in the last week or so. Many are struggling with injuries, freezing weather, hunger, gear failure, rain and just general fatigue and exhaustion but they are still pushing north to Manning Park.

appears over and over in their trail journals. Whether it is getting to town to get food, or people giving them food on the trail or the Snickers bar they ate for breakfast, food is an all-consuming subject.

At this point in their trek, they can no longer eat enough to maintain their body weight and they literally cannot get enough to eat.

The list of journal subjects also includes sore feet, cold mountain mornings, sprained (fill in the blank), dealing with rain and rain gear and keeping things dry, and every other imaginable problem that a thru hike entails.

But somewhere between 30 and 50 percent of the 900 brave souls that got their permits to hike the PCT this year will make it to the end.

One of the reasons that they will finish is they have pairs they still see each other at campsites at night and in towns. They have their own peer group who understands what they are going through. When one of them is in need, another hiker or trail angel will step up and try to

Golden yellow Ericameria parishii

So whether you think of the PCTers as brave and noble The quest for food is high on the list of needs that or simply the great unwashed hordes, you have to admire their fortitude and endurance.

> So good luck to all those PCTers that are still out on the trail. I hope you all finish and have lots of great memories of your thru hiking experience.

Ericameria parishii

Now that the butterfly and bee-attracting yellow flowering bush by the entrance to the transfer station has been identified, I find myself looking all over the mountain to find more specimens of this beautiful plant.

As luck would have it, I found another large bush on Fernleaf along with what looks like a smaller growing Ericameria species, with smaller and darker leaves and smaller flower heads.

Because of its golden yellow flower heads, bees and each other. Even though they are walking alone or in butterflies are always on or around the Ericamerias, it is one of the most photogenic of the local wildflowers.

Only in Idyllwild

On Saturday night, Sept. 15, upon returning home from having dinner at Café Aroma, I noticed the center stone of my wedding band (nearly a one-carat diamond) was missing. I immediately felt it was hopeless finding it, but we decided to look around. We retraced our steps of the evening, first searching our home, our car, where we park our cars, our street, the parking lot at Café Aroma, and then every step I had walked when at the restaurant and where we sat outside at the restaurant.

In our search of Café Aroma, it was just after closing hours, but the staff and patrons jumped right in to help with the search. We had flashlights, and all the time we were looking, in my mind, I knew it was hopeless, and I felt embarrassed that I was taking up everyone's time on a hopeless task, but we kept looking.

One of the restaurant's staff asked for my telephone number in case they found it. While I was giving her my telephone numbers and believing it was hopeless, I hear a patron shout over to me that the diamond was found.

I couldn't believe my ears, but sure enough, there it was. Rachel Welch found my diamond. I was so exhilarated that my diamond was found that I had to go around town finding people that night to tell them this amazing story.

After the vote, Board President Bill Sanborn introduced Kayrell to the audience. He thanked the directors for their confidence and said, "I'm anxious to move the district forward."

The board's decision was easily made, according to Sanborn, because "[Kayrell] well respected, well liked, and a real asset."

After interviewing the search firm's recommended candidates, Sanborn thought Kayrell was so impressive; if he turned down the offer, the board would readvertise the position.

INITIAL THOUGHTS

Idyllwild Fire needs money, but from where

For the past several years, the Idyllwild Fire District has engaged in deficit spending. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 2010, the loss was estimated to be more than $400,000. For the next year, the loss diminished.

Within 12 months, its net assets were a negative $57,000 compared to nearly $645,000 on June 30, 2010.

Part of the revision is because IFPD is acknowledging a long-term debt to CalPERS of about $450,000 — a new liability.

In 2004, the net assets were nearly $2 million. In perspective, Pine Cove Water District, which is smaller than IFPD, has net assets approaching $2.9 million.

IFPD is not alone in this quandary many local jurisdictions and even the state are suffering since the economy sank in 2009. Some, such as the cities of San Bernardino, Stockton and Mammoth Lakes, are in bankruptcy, a worse condition.

Yet our local fire department has been arguing that its situation is improving, despite the surprising CalPERS debt. Nevertheless, its checking account is less than $15,000 and without an advance of its December property taxes, local firefighters will miss an October paycheck.

New Fire Chief Patrick Reitz assured the district commission that the county would put the advance (IFPD disdains the term loan, although they do pay an interest charge until the funds are repaid) on the Sept. 25 Riverside County Board of Supervisor's agenda. County finance officials have assured Reitz that the money will be in Idyllwild's coffers within days.

I give this scenario a 99 percent probability of actually happening, but unless we should suddenly disbelieve all the warnings of potential southern serious earthquakes or the likelihood of another series of fall fires, there is some chance that this plan will be disrupted.

What's the contingency then?

The economy's condition is independent of the commission's actions. So we have no reason to blame them for the near depression, recession or diminished tax receipts.

But they do have fiduciary responsibility to the Idyllwild residents. One reason the deficit exists is the contract former commissions signed with the career firefighters. Perhaps there once was sufficient tax revenue to pay the salaries and benefits, but not today.

But the commission seems paralyzed, unable to take any actions. Yes, in February, they announced that the firefighters had voluntarily taken a seven percent pay cut. But this action raises two questions.

First, why was it voluntary? Shouldn't the commission have demanded it? Second, the seven percent cut was not net take home pay. The commission continued to provide a 3.1 percent increase and other safety the seven percent. Why obfuscate the action?

The new contract already will increase personnel expenses an additional $20,000 starting July 1, 2013. What's the source of money for those benefits?

The state is trying to reconcile its deficit and give local jurisdictions tools to help them alleviate the problem. None of us wants a bankrupt fire department. On Aug. 31, the legislature passed "pension reform" legislation.

One of the changes requires employees who pay into CalPERS to now pay the full employee share of the annual retirement cost. For years, IFPD employees paid nothing. Recently they agreed to pay two percent of the nine percent

The commission says it has no plans to raise this issue with the employees. But is it fair to taxpayers to continue to see our assets erode to cover budget deficits or fair to future net payments, which came close to negating employees to pay the CalPERS debt due current employees?

> The consequence of the federal deficit will fall on the shoulders of future generations, but the fire commission can rebalance this local injustice.

> At the last commission meeting, one of the firefighters asked the commission's plans for raising more revenue. The commission had no answer and Chief Reitz says he has a secret proposal which he'll share some day.

Measure G, a doubling of the district's parcel fee, failed only 13 months ago, so ask yourself where the new revenue is coming from?

And before you plan to use additional revenue for fire station refurbishments, which former Chief Walker frequently discussed, remember, beginning this year, government audits are suppose to identify the future costs of employee healthcare.

What's the new library's chain for?

EDITOR:

I really like the design of the new library by Fairway Market.

But can anyone tell me what the vertical heavy duty chain hanging from the front corner of the roof is for?

It's attached to the ground with a carabiner type clip and runs between the cement base on the ground and the front left corner of the roof.

Has Idyllwild gone to the dogs?

EDITOR:

One of the advantages of living in Idyllwild is air and enjoying the sound of nature. It is especially enjoyable dining al fresco during the warm summer evenings on the decks of our fine dining restaurants with the view of the mountains, the soft breeze through the pines, and the quiet laid-back atmosphere of a village.

I have always looked forward to evenings like this ... until recently. Three incidents, all occurring in one evening, have me anticipating future occurrences that may send me elsewhere to dine (or stay home).

I have animals and I love them. I'm not opposed to dogs on the deck and I actually find most dogs better behaved than their

Then there's the dog owner who has to have their dog sit in the chair that someone will occupy later on, instead of lying on the deck ... and wants the server to bring the dog a glass of water and place it on the table from which it can then drink.

ARF receives disaster planning grant

By Shiela Boynton IDYLLWILD ANIMAL RESCUE FRIENDS

Idvllwild Animal Rescue Friends was honored recently with a grant from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The funds will help ARF develop a disaster preparedness plan for resident pets.

Money received will also help defray the costs to train a certified PetTech instructor in CPR and first aid. After the 3-day course in early December, this fully-certified instructor will begin holding classes for groups, agencies and individual pet owners, enabling them to perform CPR and first aid on their own cats and dogs in an emergency.

As part of the plan, ARF has designated two first aid station locations: Sadie's Clinic at ARF House on Highway 243, and Mountain Pawlytechnic Canine Education School, 23400 Highway 243 in Pine Cove. In the event of a disaster on the Hill, trained ARF volunteers will be assigned to these first aid stations.

The disaster plan will include information on many other issues important to those with pets in case of an natural emergency. ARF will be working with Idyllwild Pharmacy to help residents build animal first

A list of hotels and motels in Hemet, Banning and Beaumont allowing pets to stay with their evacuated owners will be available.

A "GOT CHIP!?" campaign will urge all residents to microchip their dogs so they can be reunited with their humans. MDP and MCFSC will be helping with the community-wide See ARF, page 26

OFF THE LEASH

By Conor O'Farrell

The financial industry isn't a pickup game

Growing up, sports were my life. I ate, drank and breathed football and basket-

Every spare moment was spent on the field or the court, four nights a week at the gym and weekends were consummated with the games.

When it comes to the topic of regulation, sports and government share a similar role.

Due to the current recession, there's a lot of talk about regulation and the role government should play in controlling markets, specifically financial markets. At this point, it is common knowledge that lack of effective regulation and oversight of the financial services community, Wall Street, was a major contributing factor in the near fatal collapse of our economy.

If you don't know or believe this, then you've been either asleep or stoned. I'm going to continue assuming that you know this to be true; if you don't, the metaphor will be lost on you.

You see, every sport I know of has a referee or an umpire or a judge or whatever name is used for a person who oversees the game to insure that it is played fairly. There may be a couple exceptions to this but at the moment none come to mind, and if they did, they would be exceptions, not the rule.

So my question to you is, and I would like a response, if the referees were removed from the game, do you believe that the players would continue to abide and to play by See Off leash, page 26

Another point of view

Americans still dream

Editor's note: Marshall Smith is a reporter for the Town Crier. He is writing from Spain.

I have been coming to Spain since December 1981. I made my first trip here for the law office for which I worked.

I came as many as three or four times a year for an eight-year period. Then I made occasional visits to family friends in Madrid and Barcelona.

All of these trips and visits created in me a love the Spanish lifestyle.

Spaniards boast that they work to live, not live to work. Much time is spent in cafes and in often heated conversation with friends and family.

Life, if followed in the Spanish way, is a pleasant ritual centered around socializing on the street, as they say.

Everyone seems to have opinions about everything, many if not most of them laughingly deprecating of one thing or another.

Recently, while visiting friends south of Barcelona, I had a conversation with a 21-year-old son of a family friend. I have known Miguel for probably eight years. He is in his last year of university, tall, athletic, good looking and smart.

Since I expected him to be enthusiastic about how his life might soon unfold, I took him for a beer to a beachside cafe to hear about ful? his plans for the future, his possible career choices, and his dreams for himself and perhaps the family he might one day have.

The future in Spain is clouded by a very severe economic downturn. Everyone calls it the crisis.

Unemployment is around 25 percent and even higher among some demographics. Nevertheless, cafes, restaurants and shops seem to be about his classes in economics, his major. He takes many of them in English. I asked why English?

Did he plan to take graduate courses in London or in the U.S. or pursue some career in which English could be particularly help-

He took classes in English because they were offered, not because of how they might advance his career, he answered.

When pressed about his career, he was evasive, desultory and most certainly gloomy. I asked about his dreams for himself and for his future family. He laughed and said, "I'll be

That was the most I We began by talking could get out of him. What dreams and aspirations might he pass on to his son or daughter I asked? He laughed again saying that we Americans couldn't understand.

> We were a frontier people, who pushed boundaries and built the dreams they envisioned, I replied.

I shared with him that I had worked since I was 17 and had accomplished much of what I set out to do, starting from very humble means.

I told him that many of our best presidents had come from very humble beginnings. I shared that I encouraged my friends and family members to always believe in their dreams and not let anyone say other-

"Did you change the world?" Miguel asked, throwing down a gauntlet that surprised me.

I stopped and thought that over. "No," I said. "But I did make small and positive contributions to the lives of many people, and that is the world in small and even enough.'

We moved on to other things. Have a good life, I wished him when we parted, not knowing when or if I'd see him again. But I kept thinking of how hopeless he seemed at 21.

I thought about how, even now facing our own American crisis, most of us still believe we can change See Point of view, page 9 board member Trish Tuley.

'The County Community Fund has been doing this for several years with high schools and it's been a great success," she said. So the ICF is bringing the concept to the local community in an effort to develop and implement programs or activities for the pre-high school community.

The recipient of a third new grant is the Human Relations Council of the Greater Hemet San Jacinto Menifee. They received $100 to purchase books and films to promote tolerance with the Idyllwild community.

The Idyllwild HELP Center was again honored to receive a grant of nearly $2,800. The funds will be used for food vouchers for the Center's clientele. "Putting food in people's mouths is important for the community," said Colleen Meyer, client services administrator at the HELP Center.

The Fire Safe Council and the Mountain Disaster

Preparedness Group again received grants; both were larger than a year ago.

Most of the programs work and cooperate with other community groups, which David Pelham, ICF Chair, emphasized it one of its goals. "Involving your program with other community clients is important," he told the recipients.

Bronwyn Jones, ICF board member and former chair, explained that the funding for the grants is derived only from the interest and income of the Fund's endowment, currently about $300,000. The board plans to focus more on fund raising with a goal of creating a $500,000 fund and eventually $1 million to support the community.

"Every dollar you give to the fund is never touched," she said. "It goes to the community forever.'

The reception honoring all the awardees will be Thursday, Sept. 27 and is free to the public.

Pine Cove accepts aid from feds

By J.P. Crumrine EDITOR

The Pine Cove Water District board approved a resolution agreeing to the financial assistance — loan and grant — from the federal Rural Utilities Service.

Last month, the U.S. Department of Agriculture agency notified the water district that its loan request for $292,000 and a separate grant for $40,500 had both been approved.

PCWD expects the final paperwork to be signed and funds available in October.

The loan money must be used before the grant money is available. District General Manger Jerry Holldber said the loan funds would be used to purchase additional pipe (more than 11,000 feet of pipeline) and new vehicles.

In other financial business, the board accepted its 2011-12 audit, which the San Bernardino firm of Rogers, Anderson, Malody and Scott recently completed.

PCWD ended the fiscal vear with $2.9 million of net assets and revenues - water sales and property taxes exceeded cost by almost $8,000 last year.

However, the firm had one concern about internal controls regarding the segregation of duties for financial transactions. But Rogers Anderson also acknowledged that "the district does an excellent job of separating duties with its limited resources, and unless more personnel are hired, there may be no practical corrective action possible for this inherent weakness other than strong management oversight."

Holldber also acknowledged this problem and said he was providing the board with more information and increasing his financial re-

In water business, Holldber reported that August water production was only 3.1 million gallons. "That's got to be one of the lowest August amounts, maybe since I've been here," he noted.

It is the smallest amount produced since 2002. The second smallest was 3.4 million gallons last August and the greatest August water production was 5.0 million gallons in 2003.

Holldber attributed the production drop to the weather this year and the long-term decline in fulltime population. He estimated full-time customers are about 20 percent less than a several years ago.

"Even with thunderstorms, this was like a good winter month," Holldber

If production continues at the current pace, PCWD's total 2012 production will be about 31.4 million gallons, the lowest total annual amount in the past decade. Nevertheless, he is not worried about overall revenues at this point. The minimum bimonthly payment is nearly 85 percent of the water revenue, so the district's revenue loss is not proportional to water consumption decline.

The water level for monitoring well no. 10 still dropped two feet during August.

The commissioners did not respond to the part about new revenues, but Chief Reitz said "Yes, I'm pursuing new avenues for revenue."

Although he didn't discuss

Reyes also inquired about the status of refinancing the loans for the engines, Reitz responded, "Refinancing is a dead issue." The new loan would have been for a longer period, but at a higher rate.

Earlier in the meeting, the commission discussed the formats for future agenda and minutes of the meetings.

Trips, playground and gardens on CSA 36 plate

By J.P. Crumrine EDITOR

After nearly a quarter of the current fiscal year has passed, the Community Service Area 36 Advisory Committee is still waiting for budget reports. Community Service Area manager Michael Franklin told the Committee that a report would be prepared soon.

The delay was attributed to the end of the county's fiscal year on June 30 and preparing the budget documents for the board of supervisor's final approval of the county budget last week.

Interim Recreation Director Amy Righetti reported on participation in the summer program, the various senior day-trips, the summer-in-thepark movies and the soon to start kids soccer season.

A trip to Knott's Berry Farm or the Cove Water Park and nearly a dozen children availed themselves of these opportunities.

The after school program has about 15 to 20 children attending regularly, she said.

The 2012 soccer season has seen registration grow nearly 25 percent from a year ago, Righetti said. This year already 107 children have signed up compared to 85 in 2011. The session starts this week. Games are at Idyllwild

The cancellation of the proposed seniors' trip to tour the Midway Carrier Museum in San Diego generated some discussion. Franklin told the committee that this site and the October trip to the Stone Brewery in Escondido were being organized through the county recreation staff and all county senior programs were invited.

Committee Chair Bob

was available almost weekly Schraff asked if Idyllwild could plan something different and Righetti and Franklin said with time they could arrange other trips.

Committee Member Reba Coulter asked Righetti and Franklin if they had seen the list of trips, which the local Forest Folk group had submitted this spring.

"We submitted a two page list of places where we would like to go," she told the recreation leaders. "Midway was not on our list. Can we have Righetti and Franklin both encouraged Coulter to provide the list to them and they would both try to find ways to accommodate the trip wishes of the local group within and independently of the countywide plans.

"If the lineup doesn't match with the community wants, we'll readjust to support you," Franklin said.

No location has been decided for a community garden, but Franklin encouraged the committee to See CSA 36, page 19

IDYLLWILD WATER DISTRICT SEPTEMBER 2012 NEWSLETTER

IWD Mission Statement -

To provide reliable water & sewer service in a safe, cost-effective & environmentally sound manner in accordance with the community needs.

RIVERSIDE COUNTY OPEN-SPACE PARK DISTRICT — The Idyllwild Water District will attend a meeting this month with the Riverside County Open Space and Park District's Advisory Committee to continue negotiating approval of an area for IWD, providing us with a future 300,000gallon reservoir site. This will be the first reservoir in this zone and will provide additional water storage for the Tollgate water pressure zone customers. It will boost the fire suppression water supplies for all of the customers. In an emergency, when there is a So. Calif. Edison power blackout, the new addition will continue to provide water pressure by gravity. The estimated total cost for this proposed reservoir project will be $365,000.

NEW FINANCE OFFICER — IWD is happy to announce that Mr. Hosny Shouman became our new Chief Financial Officer in June 2012. He has worked in the accounting field for ten years. He was a Senior Internal Auditor for Riverside County prior to accepting the position with IWD. He also held the position of Intermediate Account-Auditor with the Orange County, CA Audit Division. He holds a bachelor of science degree with a major in accounting. He holds certificates as a Certified Fraud Examiner, Notary Public, and holds a tax license. He has completed several sections of CPA and CIA examinations and will finish his certification in the near future. He has profession affiliations with the Institute of Internal Auditors, Assn. of Certified Fraud Examiners. He and his wife live in Highland, CA. His wife works for Loma Linda Hospital in Redlands. Hosny loves accounting and finance. His hobbie is swimming, and he enjoys watching soccer and basketball.

The Grand Chancellor visits Idyllwild

By J.P. Crumrine EDITOR

Editor's note: On Saturday, Sept. 15, the Hospitaller Order of Saint Lazarus of Jerusalem held an investiture at the Queen of Angels Catholic Church in Idyllwild. Four Hill organizations were recognized and honored at the ceremony. Idyllwild Volunteer Fire Company 621, the Idyllwild smARTS program, the High Valley Mountain Disaster Team and the Queen of Angels Church all received awards.

Massimo (Max) J. Ellul, the Grand Chancellor -Chevalier of the Hospitaller Order of Saint Lazarus of Jerusalem, was in Idyllwild last week. On Friday, I had the opportunity to speak with Ellul about the Hospitaller Order of Saint Lazarus and how its investiture in Idyllwild related to its worldwide chivalric and philanthropic work.

Ellul is a Maltese businessman who owns a marketing consulting firm with international clients. Malta is an island nation in the Mediterranean Sea, south of the Italian island of Sicily. Its population is about 410,000, but nearly triple that number of its citizens live in the United States, United Kingdom and Australia.

Coming from an island nation, Ellul has understood the nature of community his whole life. "As an islander,

"We understand the adage 'No man is an island.' We are always finding ways to aid and assist each other."

As children grow up on the island, their character understands and imbues the concept of giving something back. Ellul believes it is part of the Maltese "raison d'etre."

Because of the island's longstanding history with medieval orders and education in England, he had a strong interest and affinity for medieval history. So he readily accepted the invitation to join the Hospitaller Order of Saint Lazarus in pitaller cooperates hand-inhand with local and national government authorities in order to further underline modern-day Hospitaller and philanthropic work. Ellul said the order has more than 14,000 members worldwide.

In the past five years, the order has seen tremendous growth, much greater than they expected, Ellul said. He attributes it to the growing interest in chivalric attitudes in the world.

In Uganda, they operate two orphanages; in Austria, a homeless shelter in Vienna; in the Slavic Republic they conduct numerous blood drives and in his homeland of Malta, they conduct and contribute to many international relief efforts.

The Supreme Grand Priory does not interfere with local programs," Ellul said. 'If money is collect in the U.S., they decide what to do with it. It's up to them."

The Grand Priory of the United States was officially recognized last year at the Mission Inn in Riverside. The Idyllwild investiture was its second, he said. "We're very careful who represents

'Beyond Therapy' an Idyllwild moment

By J.P. Crumrine Editor

"Beyond Therapy," Christopher Durang's 1981 play, will be Conor O'Farrell's next production for the benefit of the Idyllwild HELP Center.

The previous productions — "The Odd Couple" and "Murder at the Howard Johnson's" — were performed on Memorial Weekend, but, this year, late September is when the curtain rises. O'Farrell hopes the season will not affect attendance. The previous effort netted about $15,000 for the HELP Center, he said.

"Lawless" Showing Sept. 21-27

In 1931, the Bondurant brothers of Franklin County, Va., run a multipurpose backwoods establishment that hides their true business, bootlegging. Middle brother Forrest (Tom Hardy) is the brain of the operation; older Howard (Jason Clarke) is the brawn, and younger Jack (Shia LaBeouf), the lookout. Though the local police have taken bribes and left the brothers alone, a violent war erupts when a sadistic lawman (Guy Pearce) from Chicago arrives and tries to shut down the Bondurants operation.

Wales is new school resource specialist

By Marshall Smith Staff Reporter

Sarah Wales was born and raised and is still living in Temecula. But she is now Idyllwild School's new Resource Specialist. With an undergraduate degree in sociology from the University of California, San Diego, and teaching certification from Cal State University San Bernardino, Wales has always taught within the Hemet Unified School District system.

She comes to Idyllwild from Acacia Middle School in Hemet where she has taught for the last four years. She previously taught at McSweeny and Jacob Wiens Elementary Schools in Hemet.

As resource specialist for grades Kindergarten through 5, she instructs students with mild to moderate disabilities and conducts general interventions for the wider school population. Those interventions include instruction in reading programs, such as "Read Naturally" (www.readnaturally. com).

This program employs teacher modeling where a good reader models correct reading for the student, who reads along while listening to a fluent reader. Repeated reading helps strengthen understanding. The student practices reading of a story until students can read at a predetermined goal rate.

Progress monitoring is another method. This is where daily monitoring of student performance creates attention and feedback to improve achievement. Students graph their own progress, such as words read correctly, with teacher assistance.

Wales also provides any special help that students may require for other educational issues.

Having taught middle school at Acacia, Wales said she is happy to be back teaching younger children. See Wales, page 23

HELP Center and Thrift Store Newsletter

The HELP Center has a busy fall ahead. Here's what's happening:

- Sunday, Sept. 23, from 1-3 p.m., we are celebrating the HELP Center's 20th Anniversary. Everyone is invited! On the HELP Center site, we will have music, snacks, desserts, beverages and more. NO COST and all are invited. Please join us for this Celebration.
- Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28, 29 and 30, world famous actor CONOR O'FARRELL will be directing and presenting his 3rd annual play, benefitting the HELP Center. (The play is funded by the Mary Austin Scholarship Foundation.) ALL proceeds go to HELP Center services and programs. This year the play will be presented in the RUSTIC THEATRE and there will be both matinee and evening performances. Many more seats in the Rustic to accomodate the sell-out crowds.
- Thursday, Oct. 18, from 4-6:30 p.m., at the SILVER PINES LODGE (thank you Chris Singer), we are holding our first ever CHILI COOK OFF AND PIE EATING CONTEST fundraiser. Our local Fire Department guys have volunteered to be the judges. This is planned as a family event, so we hope lots of you will attend. We'll need the Cookers as well as the Pie Eaters AND many people to attend.

Bob Muir's great-grandchildren Lily, 4, and Lauden, 7, were a little somber just before the memorial service at the Idyllwild Nature Center Sunday.

A large live oak tree was the backdrop for the memorial service for Bob Muir on Sunday afternoon. The tree is estimated to be about 500 years old.

Marge Muir peeks from behind the dozens of photos of her husband Robert Muir during his memorial service.

Proposition 35 increases penalties for human traffickers

By Marshall Smith STAFF REPORTER

Little opposition has coalesced around Proposition 35, an initiative statute that increases penalties for human trafficking in California. From the middle of July through Sept. 13, support for Proposition 35 has hovered above 80 percent, according to survey conducted by the California Business Roundtable.

Proposition 35 defines more crimes related to the creation and distribution of obscene materials depicting minors as a form of human trafficking.

Under existing law, hu-as committing certain felony crimes such as prostitution or obtaining forced labor or services, with prison sentences ranging from five to eight years depending on the age of the victim. The initiative expands the definition of human trafficking to include actions with the materials even if the offender had no contact with the victim.

It also expands criminal penalties for covered offenses to include fines up to $1.5 million and sentences of 15 years to life, depending on the age of the victim and whether force was involved. The sentence for forced sex trafficking of a minor increases from man trafficking is defined eight years under current law their Internet access and and convictions result from lenged for its vague wording, to life under the initiative. Fines for sex trafficking of a minor increase from $100,000 to $1.5 million.

> The money from fines is required to be used to support services for victims of human trafficking. Seventy percent of funds would be allocated to public agencies and nonprofits that provide service to victims. The remaining 30 percent will go to law enforcement to be used for human trafficking prevention, witness protection and rescue operations.

> Those convicted of sex trafficking would be forced to register as sex offenders, provide information about online identities and activi-

In addition, Proposition 35 prevents the use of evidence that the victim of human trafficking engaged in sexual conduct from being used in court against the victim. Nor can a person be prosecuted for this conduct if they were a victim of human trafficking.

The nonpartisan Legislative Analyst's Office estimates one-time local government costs of up to a few million dollars on a statewide basis, with potential increases to state and local criminal justice costs as more human trafficking arrests, prosecutions funding for specific training for law enforcement in these

Many of the opposition's arguments center around hidden liability costs associated with enforcement and that fines will never be sufficient to cover those expenses. Thus another unfunded expense will be created.

The Erotic Services Providers Legal, Education and Research Project opposes the measure but no opposition funding has been listed with State. The measure is chalwhich could have the effect of casting a broad criminal net sweeping up those who engage or profit from consentual prostitution among adults.

A long list of law enforcement agencies, churches and nonprofits that serve the disadvantaged endorse the measure. A "yes" vote increases existing penalties, fines and offenses covered. A "no" vote keeps the less stringent laws in place.

A new playground is on the county's agenda, but the most recent idea was dropped when Franklin learned the equipment could not be insured for public use; but he is still exploring playground equipment for Town Hall. Howwill always be available for public use, even if the recreation program relocates.

"A reasonable price range based on other public play-CSA 36 funds," Franklin told the Committee.

Schraff stressed that the county wants to ensure that the playground is always ever, he has to ensure that it open to anyone; therefore separate front and rear gates may be necessary to allow public entrance but prevent access to the building.

Before the meeting ended, ground installations will be Franklin announced that $30,000 to $35,000 from during the fall, Terri Bowen, Senior CSA Project Manager and Recreation Supervisor, would assume the role of county intermediary for CSA 36. Franklin will still be involved with Town Hall maintenance issues. Both will report to Bill Brown, Riverside County CSA Operations Manager, who will remain involved with CSA 36.

Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Someone has some suggestions to offer regarding your new project. You might find them helpful. Remember to avoid speculation and to stick with just the facts, Lamb.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An old friend suddenly reappears. Whether this proves to be a boon or a bane in the Bovine's life depends on the reason for this surprising reappearance. Be cautious.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Vital information finally emerges, allowing you to make that important personal decision. You can now move your focus to an upcoming professional development.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might not like seeing so many on-the-job changes. But some of them could open new opportunities for the Moon Child's talents to shine to your best advantage.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An apparently solid-gold opportunity beckons the Lion. But check to see if all that dazzle isn't just a sprinkling of surface glitter. Check it out before making a commitment.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A close friend could offer advice on how to handle a difficult family matter. But in the end, the decision has to be made based on what is best for you and those you followed by, "Warning! You are in a protected area! Warning, you are in a protected area!"

Are you kidding me? Is that what we have to look forward to every five minutes during dinner?

I hope that Idyllwild isn't in danger of becoming just another town like so many across the nation where noise and pollution are common, and where people who seem to adopt the credo, "It's all about me!" act without consideration of others.

The creek

Thank you very much for your information about Strawberry Creek where it runs through Idyllwild Pines Camp.

It is good to know the rules regarding access to the creek and how one can walk along this lovely area. My family and others have done this for years and have always picked up any litter we have found, left the creek area untouched and not bothered anyone.

However, the words of Idyllwild Pines and Executive Director Martha Snyder accusing all citizens of Idyllwild of being potential vandals has made truly bad vibes over that entire

We won't go near it anymore — it is a dark, unfriendly and negative place. The people at Idyllwild Pines don't want to have anything to do with the folks of Idyllwild and apparently consider us second class citizens; the "unwashed."

It didn't used to be this way and it seems to have something to do with Executive Director Snyder.

I have even heard that the small amount of vandalism that occurred may have been Idyllwild Pines campers themselves.

And as a further show of how little they care for the folks of Idyllwild, they have very loud amplified speaking, music and screaming echoing up the canyon and disturbing our peace and quiet. Not friendly people.

Idyllwild Pines doesn't seem like part of the Idyllwild community. Even if we can go to a public access point and walk along the creek — we will always be made to feel unwelcome

Who needs it?

The condition of a fifth occupant, Timothy Neven, 23, of Montrose was not reported.

Several of the car's occupants were belligerent after the crash and were running up and down the street looking for help. One passenger tried to flee the scene on foot, but was chased down by a neighbor. They apparently broke into a vacant home at some point before medics arrived looking for

Before emergency personnel arrived, allegedly multiple passengers from the crash were on foot yelling and banging on doors up and down Pine Crest Avenue seeking help. One house was broken into after no one answered the door. The door and window were kicked in, they entered leaving a blood trail throughout the house. The renter of the apartment was not home.

"I like it with the younger children," she said.

Echoing other of teachers new to Idyllwild this year, Wales said she is amazed at the school's culture. "Here there is such an amazing PTA," she said. "You can see how it benefits the kids.

And the smARTS program even if the money isn't there [to provide arts education] the community provides it."

Wales said smaller classes at IS allow her to have more one on one contact with the students. "I'm already very happy here," she said.

REARS is fully staffed with volunteers. To join the program and help during these incidents, individuals have to take a one-day training class and normally eight hours of training or preparation during the year, she said.

When an emergency incident occurs, the county's Office of Emergency Services will notify Gutierrez and alert her that animals may be endangered or needing help. They work closely with the incident commander and OES throughout the emergency, said Gina Moran-McGough, emergency services coordinator.

For example, if the incident commander issues an evacuation order, as was done for the Buck Fire, REARS will arrive to aid any animals that could not be taken, such as the previously mentioned pig.

"They are being taken care of when you're not there," is how Gutierrez described REARS' involvement. "Our responsibility is to go to each house and feed and water the animals."

She also stressed that it often harder to relocate the animals to temporary shelter than help them survive at home.

When there is an evacuation, REARS and OES must find a location for an animal shelter because the Red Cross shelters are limited to humans only. This is also why Gutierrez recommends a microchip with ownership information embedded in each pet or animal. It will immensely improve REARS' ability to return and reunite the animals once the emergency has passed.

Public Notices Legals • Doing Business As

For questions about Public Notices call Sandy at the Town Crier (951) 659-2145 or E-mail: sandy@towncrier.com

Every day throughout the United States, newspapers publish thousands of public notices about events, conditions or actions that affect countless individuals, families, neighborhoods and businesses. Public notices cover many topics, including business matters, liquor licensing, public auctions and sales, estates, zoning, public meetings, bids to sell goods and services to the government, local government finances and state and local elections. Public notice is a fundamental component of our system of representative democracy, which depends upon the participation of educated, responsible citizens.

dissemination of this information.

Sadie's Clinic is sponsoring a speakers' series to educate and alert residents on disaster preparedness and other animal welfare issues.

ARF's email newsletter will include details of the plan over the next few months. To receive a newsletter, please contact janicemurasko@yahoo. com. Also, keep checking the website at www. arfidyllwild.weebly.com for information.

ARF wants the community to understand that it cannot be responsible for the care of your cats and dogs in an emergency. Assistance will be provided as described above, but the organization does not have the resources or facilities to take in animals.

We urge residents to make a Grab and Go evacuation plan that includes the needs of their pets. They will not be able to "fend for themselves" if left behind; they are part of your family and depend on you for their survival.

the rules? Do you think the game could maintain a spirit of sportsmanship and civility?

Or would it degrade into anarchy and chaos? Can any game be played fairly with oversight by a disinterested party?

Let's take it a step further. Professional sports are about money, lots of money. It is a capitalist endeavor. But in order for are a virus that destroy sothe game to make money, it has to be dynamic.

If the same two or three teams, most likely the ones with the most money, won the championship year after year, people would lose interest and stop watching. So to insure the unpredictable element of the game, professional sports came up with a system to try to level the playing field. It's called the draft.

If a team performs poorly during the year, next year that team gets first pick of the new recruits. Professional sports, in a sense, subsidize competition. It is in their best interest.

The game is exciting to watch; therefore, paying customers show up, at the field or in front of their TV sets, and the owners and players make money. It is, for the most part, a system that works, so long as the rules are enforced. The referees are there to make sure the game is played fairly and the draft keeps the game competitive. Sounds like a good system to me. So, why all this talk about continued deregulation of financial markets? Who is supposed to watch the game to make sure that it is played fairly? Do you trust the players to monitor themselves?

The role of government is to ensure the common good, not just the good of the few. And, if not government, then who? What other entity do we have to do this job?

Unregulated free markets cial equanimity and stability. Capitalism loves stability. Markets hate instability. Fair competition keeps the market dynamic.

When the game stops being played fairly the game and fans suffer. Government is supposed to be the referees, which is a vital part of their mission. The Republican Party, as it stands today, does not believe in the mission of government. They spend a good portion of their time deriding gov-

Why would you elect a person who doesn't believe in the mission of the company?

Today's Republican Party only wants government to regulate social issues, who should be allowed to marry or have an abortion, and leave business alone to run the game for themselves.

The game has been theirs for the past two decades and look at what they did to it. Let's bring the referees out of retirement. Let's make the game fair again.

Adopted: Both burrito babies! Abandoned in Anza, and left to fend for themselves, these young sisters are safe in the arms of humans that will never, ever leave them. Elsie was adopted with Chip our teacup Chihuahua, and Tawny found love in the arms of her human that will cherish her to the end. Paws up to you both.

Bo Peep is 11 weeks old, very playful, good with all other cats and has no fear. Even as small as she is, she will leap to your shoulders to cuddle and purr. Pepper is 4 months old, and ready to see the world. She is good with all four-leggeds, very playful, and looking for an energetic home.

Twiggy looks every day from the safety of her cat tree for just that perfect person. The one who will love her unconditionally as she purrs in your lap. She is 6 years old, declawed, and prefers to be the only four-legged in the house. Her human is gone, but Twiggy knows there has to be someone who will love her as he did. Favorite places to be: looking out the window, of course, as the birds fly by, eating anything that smells fishy, and in your lap.

Tammy is a young min/pin mix, docked tail, and about 3 to 4 years old. She is good with other dogs, friendly, and good on the leash. Lost and forgotten, she made her way to the ARF angels to find a new, safe home. Tammy is available for adoption.

ARF has many cats and dogs available for adoption or fostering. Go to www.arfidyllwild.weebly.com and click on Petfinder. All pets are spayed, neutered, and current on shots. ARF is open 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturdays and 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Sundays. Call (951) 659-1122 or email info@idyllwildarf.org for appointment on any other day.

Bill and Gillien Gianakos celebrated their first wedding anniversary (Sept. 10) in New York City. "We carried our trusty Town Crier wherever we went and nothing shouts New York more than a picture in front of Lady Liberty!" they wrote in an email. And nothing says Idyllwild more than the Town Crier, thanks and congratulations to Bill and Gillien.
