STAFF REPORTER

Wednesday, Nov. 6, was like any other day at work for Rudolph Nuñez, the senior groundskeeper at Living Free Animal Sanctuary for the past seven years. Nuñez oversees the approximately 160-acre sanctuary and was performing routine maintenance in an area near Johnson Valley where the sanctuary and Garner Valley Ranch meet, when he heard an unfamiliar sound.

"It didn't sound like the animals I'm accustomed to hearing," Nuñez explained. "Whatever it was sounded distressed." So Nuñez followed the sound and came upon three coyotes positioned in a circle about 30 feet from where he stood.

Nuñez looked down in the brush and spotted a calf. Nuñez chased off the coyotes and radioed the sanctuary office. "You're not going to believe this," he said. "There's a baby calf out here. Please send me some help."

Nuñez also suggested to the office staff that they call Garner Valley Ranch because he recalled seeing ranch hands loading up the cattle just a few days prior. When Living Free contacted the ranch, the staff at the ranch were relieved that the calf had been located.

"When we called Garner Valley Ranch, they knew that one of the cows had given birth, but they couldn't find the calf," said Sharon Maguire, Living Free board president. "They thought the calf was probably dead since it had been on its own a couple of nights. Ted Johnson [manager of Garner Valley Ranch along with his wife, Mary Elizabeth "Meg" Garner] was thrilled that we found him and he was safe."

Living Free employees Tony White, Edgar Santiago and Cowboy Ray helped Nuñez move the calf to safety and waited for the ranch staff to arrive.

"When Ted Johnson arrived, he was really grateful to me for rescuing the calf. He invited my family to come up to the ranch sometime. He also asked me what I thought we should name him," said Nuñez, "I said how about 'Lucky 7' since I found him in Area Seven."

But Johnson had other ideas. As he put the calf in the cab of his truck he turned to Nuñez and said, "I think we should name him Rudolph."

Season of need and giving

By JAY PENTRACK
STAFF REPORTER

With Thanksgiving less than a week away and Christmas little more than a month away, Colleen Meyer, client services administrator for the Idyllwild HELP Center, is optimistic that the 50-plus needy families in Idyllwild will have a bountiful holiday season thanks to the generosity of local residents.

"We need food," Meyer said. "Our pantry is pretty low and any food donations would be appreciated." The center also welcomes donations of fresh turkey and other meats, but storage can be a challenge due to storage constraints. Meyer suggests that fresh meat donors call ahead so they can make the necessary arrangements to deliver the meat directly to the family scheduled to receive it.

Family sponsorship is also an option. "We've had people who have asked to sponsor an entire Thanksgiving meal for a family and that is so wonderful. Even though the recipient is anonymous, you have no idea how much this means to needy families," said Meyer. See HELP, page 9

County grapples with potential budget disasters

By J.P. CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

After the first quarter of fiscal year 2013-14, the Riverside County financial condition continues to improve very slowly. However, several very dangerous issues are on the horizon before the fiscal year ends June 30, 2014.

The most egregious is the deteriorating finances of the County's Regional Medical Center in Moreno Valley.

Its current cash storage is already $86.1 million, according to County Executive Jay Orr. The center's projected operating deficit is more than $50 million.

Just last week, the Board of Supervisors approved an agreement with Huron Consulting Services to advise the hospital management on potential savings and efficiencies.

In a report submitted last month, Huron said it has identified several changes that would save millions.

For example, pharmaceutical discounts, which have not been implemented, could save $8 million to $10 million annually.

The county also has hired an interim hospital CEO to oversee needed changes to ensure the institution's survival and the assistance it provides the community.

The Sheriff Department's budget may also substantially degrade the county finances. At this point, the sheriff's budget projects a $39 million deficit. The preponderance of this shortfall is attributable to the sheriff's need to expand staffing. Earlier this year, the Board of Supervisors directed the sheriff to increase patrol staff in the unincorporated areas such as the Hill.

The board wants the sheriff's office staffing to return to one deputy per 1,000 residents. Just a year ago, because of budget reductions, the ratio had dropped to nearly three-quarters of a deputy per 1,000 residents.

The slowly expanding jail situation also mandates more deputies and this staff also is growing. Between the two initiatives, the sheriff's budget may need another $35.7 million, more than 90 percent of the possible underfunding.

The executive office has not increased the sheriff's budget allocation yet, since these estimates may ultimately be less. For example, last year, at mid-year, the staff projected a $10 million deficit in this budget. By the end of the fiscal year, a $3.7 million savings was achieved because the rate of new staffing did not meet projections.

"We have an agreement with the sheriff that as they need money to pursue and to implement policy changes you made, we will provide the money," County Chief Finance Officer Ed Corser told the board last week. "Otherwise, we might have to unnecessarily cut other departments."

Also contributing to this shortfall is the county's agreement with labor unions. In return for changes in pension, particularly for new employees, salaries have increased.

While Orr plans to have a mid-year budget review available in February, he is already planning for the 2014-15 budget.

"Achieving structural balance within cautious revenue assumptions is essential to laying a sound foundation for the county's future," Orr said in his report to the board. "Consequently, non-public safety departments are expected to absorb current and future labor-cost increases."

State's revenues are ahead of forecasts

California's economic recovery continued to bolster revenues in October for the fiscal year July 1, 2013 through June 30, 2014.

For the four months since July 1, tax receipts have run ahead of projections while disbursements have been generally in line with estimates.

"State revenues are more than $600 million ahead of projections following a second straight month of strong collections," said State Controller John Chiang in a press release Nov. 8.

"Importantly, because higher-than-expected payroll withholdings and estimated payments are driving the good news, it signals that Californians are beginning to earn more, work more, and the Great Recession is becoming a faint image in the rear view mirror ..."

October revenues exceeded the June budget estimates by $510 million or 10.7 percent. Personal income taxes were $439 million or 11.8 percent, also greater than initial projections.

Income taxes are about two-thirds of the state's total revenue.

Higher total income, driven by job growth, has supported the tax base, while capital gains resulting from this year's sharp rise in stock prices have provided a special boost.

Technology companies, which favor California, have been in the forefront.

October saw both the effects of last year's income gains and this year's expected increases.

Payments linked to the filing of final returns for 2012 exceeded estimates, while refunds were lower. Reflecting higher anticipations for 2013 earnings and tax obligations, both estimated taxes and tax withholding were ahead of October's forecasts.

More jobs, higher stock prices, and rising home values drove consumer spending. Consequently, sales tax receipts were $53.2 million, or 7.4 percent ahead of budget estimates.

Of the three major revenue sources, only corporate taxes missed estimates during the month, with a shortfall in tax receipts of $16 million, or 8.9 percent.

Through Oct. 31, total General Fund receipts have surpassed budget forecasts by $632 million, or 2.5 percent.

Personal income tax receipts have led that outperformance.

On the disbursement side, outlays were less than expected in October, including $625 million linked to state-mandated educational reform (Common Core), along with other education bills.

These funds will be paid in November instead of October.

Obituary Lori Alexander

Lori Alexander, 64, teacher, pianist and composer, died peacefully Wednesday, Nov. 6, 2013, after a brave battle with cancer. She was at home in Santa Monica, surrounded by those who loved her.

Lori, whose parents were Jannette Alexander and Howard Alexander, both deceased, was born Nov. 13, 1948. She is survived by her husband William Waddell, stepson Paul Waddell and stepmother Connie Alexander, all of Los Angeles; her brother Mark Alexander, sister-in-law Meg Alexander, niece Janine Alexander, all of Healdsburg; and her cousin Allan Abrams of Seattle.

As a young graduate of USC, Lori lived in Los Angeles where she composed for piano, worked in television and the movie industry, and ran a thriving piano studio. She also directed a nonprofit piano program for underserved students.

Around 1993, she "retired" her teaching studio to return to Idyllwild, where she had been a student at ISOMATA 20 years earlier. It was in Idyllwild that she was introduced to her husband, William. It was in Idyllwild, with the support of musical friends, that she fully developed her compositional talents and heard her pieces performed by the Idyllwild Arts Orchestra under the baton of Ransom Wilson and the University of Redlands Symphonic Band, and where a commission project for the San Diego Chamber Orchestra was initiated. Her compositions reflect detailed preparation and score study, a relentless search for new ways to express texture and timbre, as well as displaying Lori's signature humor.

In Idyllwild, she returned to teaching selected students and loved her time with these young people. She supported and served on the board of MUSICA! to make music training available to many others. Lori brought her rationality and thoroughness to solving all of life's challenges and, with that same diligence, encouraged her friends to realize their own dreams.

She loved her family deeply and often expressed her appreciation to those around her for the balance they contributed to her life. She will be sorely missed.

Private services are pending. "Lori Stories: Remembering a Wonderful Friend and Musician," a celebration of her life and music, is planned for Saturday, Dec 14, at Café Aroma, time to be determined. Donations can be made in her name to MUSICA! at P.O.Box 63, Mountain Center, CA 92561.

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW THE HILL?

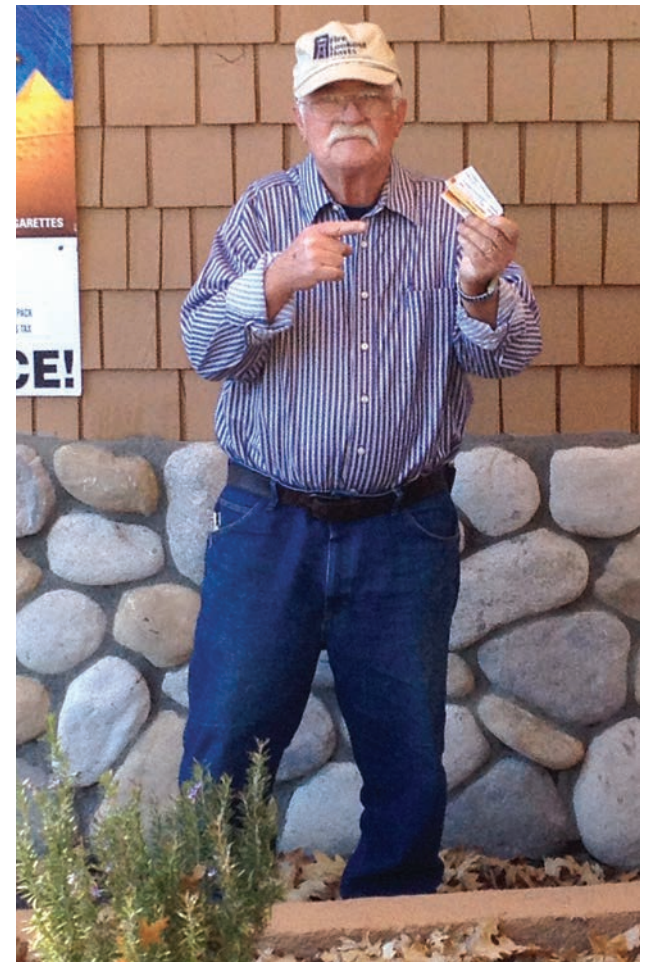

By JACK CLARK
CONTEST JUDGE

This week you are again challenged to identify the particular spot depicted in this Hill photograph. It might be the exterior of a building or surrounding grounds of a commercial, governmental or nonprofit premises, or a public place in Idyllwild, Pine Cove, Fern Valley or Mountain Center.

The prize is tickets to the Rustic Theatre, your picture in the Town Crier, and life membership in the No. 1 Hillbilly Detective Agency. If there is no winner during a week, the ticket prizes will accumulate.

Open to all ages. It doesn't matter how you submit your entry, as long as it's in writing, delivered by noon Monday (or Tuesday if the Town Crier office is not open Monday) to the Town Crier, attn: Jack, and you convince the judge that you found the exact spot. Just saying something like, "The wall around _____ restaurant" is not enough. You must describe the actual spot by pacing off or some other specific description.

Taking your own photograph of the spot would be ideal, but is not necessary to win as long as you persuade the judge that you have found the exact spot depicted in the contest photo. The decision of the judge is final. If there is no winner, clues will be given and the weekly prizes will accumulate. This is not a race. If there is more than one person with a correct answer, a drawing will determine the winner, so keep your answer to yourself. Check out this week's new photo.

Ten persons correctly identified the deer-sighting garden at Pine Cove Market on the third photograph that appeared in last week's paper. Their names were printed on identically-sized paper squares that were shaken up in my hat. Dolores Sizer then reached up over her head, stirred them around and picked one: Congratulations Al Toering (above). He wins the accumulated six tickets to the Rustic Theatre. Congratulations, also, to the other nine photo detectives who correctly identified the photo: Pat Birdsong, Sara Clayton, Dawn Miller, Kathy Muir, Annamarie Padula, Laura Slattery, Yvonne Smith, Maria Thompson and Glen Warren. Keep on playing, all; you must be a winner one day.

OUT LOUD

The 'wolf' map ...

June was not just an adjustment for us but one for our customers, as well.

Even now, in mid-November, locals still walk into the office almost daily and say they didn't know we had moved or they had not been in our new quarters. Nearly everyone agrees that the office, though small compared to the last two, exudes charm, warmth and comfort.

In general, we like it better, too. And opening not just a newspaper and publishing office but a visitors center more than doubled our foot traffic. (As an aside, one recent Wednesday we helped more tourists than we do on a normal weekend.)

Despite that we keep our doors open seven days a week now (except a couple of holidays), any business with doors, phones and employees serves as a visitors center in a tourist town. Even Jack has stepped in at the front desk to answer the multitudes of questions ranging from hiking to eating to lodging to things to do.

Last weekend, he experienced two particularly poignant encounters with tourists. A woman asked for things to do that weekend. He suggested she look at the Arts and Entertainment calendar in the TC for ideas, and opened it to that section while he saw her reach for what he assumed was 75 cents from her husband to buy the paper. Instead, she leaned over Jack's shoulder with a cell phone and shot a photo of the page. We are still howling over that one.

A man stopped by for information and in passing, mentioned the dead trees he drove past in Mountain Center. He voiced concern about the destruction the bark beetles had caused in that area. Jack not only informed him about the Mountain Fire of July but showed him what has become known as the "wolf" map.

During the evacuation, Jack built a map of the fire from yarn. The outline looks like a wolf's head about to snap down on Idyllwild. We still keep it up. Come by to take a look.

Teaching beyond typical clichés

EDITOR:

In last week's article on the Common Core State Standard, it was stated that "In the former instructional models, the teacher stood before the class, like Socrates, and was the keeper of knowledge."

Socrates might take offense.

The Socratic Method (named, not surprisingly, after Socrates), does not involve a "keeper of knowledge" standing before students and dispensing that knowledge.

Instead, the Socratic Method involves "inquiry and discussion between individuals, based on asking and answering questions to stimulate critical thinking and to illuminate ideas" (Wikipedia).

Maybe Socrates was onto something. After all, he was mentor to Plato, as Plato was mentor to Aristotle — some pretty smart guys.

Yes, they all believed the Sun went around the Earth, but I suspect that one day people will look back in a similar way on Albert Einstein, Roger Penrose and Stephen Hawking.

I love clichés. They are like the carpool lane: Quick, efficient, but they never take you anywhere new.

Last week's article states, "The [CCSS] focus becomes similar to the cliché parable of teaching someone to fish versus giving them the fish."

We need educators who think beyond cliché.

How about substituting this less-clichéd parable?

Teacher shows students how to rig a rod, bait a hook and cast. Lets students do it a few times. Lets them catch some fish. Lets them toss a few on the grill. (Thus far, students have been trained, not educated).

Next day, teacher takes away the fishing gear and says, "OK, I taught you how to fish, but today you don't eat until you figure out a better way to fish."

We'd soon have a boatload of fish.

And now we get to the good stuff, because at this point it would be appropriate to have students discuss whether or not catching so many fish is ethically responsible. (Try scoring that one on a standardized test.)

Teacher might even go off on a tangent not covered in the "How to Fish" textbook and suggest that students explore alternate ways of feeding themselves. Hmm.

What would happen if we planted some seeds? Wow, that was cool. Who'd have thought? But wait, what if we genetically modified those seeds before we planted them?

Don't like that parable? Wonderful. But don't debate the issue. Instead, form a Socratic circle where the goal is not to prove one argument or another but, rather, to work together toward a better parable.

Kudos to middle-school students

EDITOR:

I wish to applaud Carmen Pratt and Evan Biley, students of Idyllwild Middle School, for their well-constructed letters published in last week's Town Crier. Their thoughtful approach in presenting the survey results gave readers, like myself, a fantastic snapshot at what the youth of Idyllwild so desperately need and want.

I am thrilled to read that the survey results indicated that youth are seeking more visual art programs, in addition to identifying opportunities within our community to volunteer their talents.

As the Art Alliance of Idyllwild president, I am inspired by the verbal call for more art. I am receiving encouragement, not only from our youth, but our community as a whole.

The great news is that 2014, because of key collaboration efforts with local businesses and other art programs, is gearing up to bring more exposure of the arts to Idyllwild. For instance, while still in the infancy stage, AAI is creating an Artist Series that will focus on education and be open to all ages.

Building on the notion that art inspiration is fed by interaction, we are also going to offer a number of social gatherings aimed to bring the community together. These ideas plus many more will be presented during our first-annual gathering on Jan. 24, 2014.

Designed to be the catalyst for an exciting year in the arts, the gathering is open to the community. Details will be posted in the near future on our website at www.artinidyllwild.org and here in the Town Crier.

As I see it, based on Carmen and Evan's informative contributions last week, there is no doubt that the youth of Idyllwild are indeed the roots of Idyllwild's art community — visual, theatrical, musical, etc. In fact, since education is one of AAI's missions, it would be my pleasure to meet with representatives of the youth to discuss how AAI can both offer more opportunities for exposure to the arts and capture ways to volunteer their amazing talents. As I see it, this is a collaboration that none of us should ignore.

Bravo to the Idyllwild students, teachers and parents who led the survey process. We appreciate you sharing the results.

On behalf of AAI, we look forward to seeing great things happening in 2014.

GARY KUSCHER
ART ALLIANCE OF
IDYLLWILD PRESIDENT

Editor's note: As part of the Common Core standards being taught at Idyllwild School, teacher George Compagniott had his eighth-grade students write letters to the editor. This is the second week Town Crier is printing a few of these.

More community recreation needed

EDITOR:

Recently, I've noticed how much Idyllwild needs youth recreation. This community needs sports, art and volunteering activities. Idyllwild has an opportunity to solve this problem with the soon-to-be Idyllwild Community Center (mentioned in volume 68, number 39 of the Town Crier). [Dave Butterfield] described it as "a place for kids to call their own." Having read this, I know the community center will be for everyone.

"In 20, 30 or 50 years in the future you will not be able to imagine Idyllwild without the community center," [said Architect Jim March]. This quote makes me confident in the community center.

Our eighth-grade class at Idyllwild School created surveys to find out the youth community's needs. The people who filled out the surveys were the youth and their parents. The activities wanted most were sports, volunteering activities and school field trips. Survey takers want these activities at Idyllwild School. They would like to have these events in the morning and the afternoon, or at 3 to 4 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays.

The survey results showed that there is not enough youth activity because there are not enough things to do. Statistics showed the best way to fund these projects would be through fundraisers. More evidence from survey: nine out of 12 people prefer sports rather than art or technology; 10 out of 12 people believe there are not enough extra-curricular activities; and nine out of 11 people think Idyllwild School doesn't have enough field trips. In conclusion, Idyllwild needs more field trips, after-school programs and extra-curricular activities.

The goal I am trying to display is to get more youth recreational activities I Idyllwild. Proof that the community also approves is our survey data. Most people who took the survey wanted sports and volunteering activities in the community and Idyllwild School needs more field trips. Right now in Idyllwild, we have a great opportunity — the Idyllwild Community Center, the perfect place for youth recreation to occur, and there also could be later additions for youth activities.

Another motivation is the amount of productivity in Idyllwild. Not as often now do you hear of youth going to a community event. With less activity equals boredom and laziness. There needs to be more community involvement. This will promote socialization within the community. This community has recreation tasks and new opportunities to make Idyllwild a place for future youth recreation.

Teen center needs youth activities

EDITOR:

I have found through data collected from a survey given to the public by my eighth-grade class that our community lacks youth activities. In volume 68, number 39 of the Town Crier, there was an article on plans for a community center. I believe this will be great for the youth. There are three building phases in this community center project. Phase one is the Butterfield Family Center, phase two is a recreation center and phase three is an indoor pool. When we had a smaller population, Idyllwild embraced a project similar — the construction of Town Hall in 1946. Janice Lyle said, "This will be an amazing asset built in our lifetime." With this in mind, I believe this community center will fix our problem of not having enough youth programs.

Our Idyllwild Middle School eighth-graders created a survey to assess the community's youth needs. From the survey, we learned that people want programs to occupy the youth's time. These programs would work best from 4 to 5 p.m. weekdays and weekends. From our data we concluded fundraising would be the way to provide for these programs. These times, places and ways of funding are what the survey participants chose. The main community needs of Idyllwild were volunteering, sports, drama and musical arts. The majority of the youth are interested in volunteering. Youth want sports most and desire drama/musicals more than visual arts. "How often do you go to activities in Idyllwild?" the survey asked. About 92 percent of people answered only "sometimes."

If we add specific activities that the community wants, then the data will show that the survey participants mostly answered "always."

My goal is to get more activities available to the youth of Idyllwild. There are a variety of reasons why youth need these programs. First, it builds friendships that make youth feel loved, needed, self-confident and concerned about those around them. Second, they could participate in these activities for the good of the community. The data shows volunteering would happen if available. Lastly, when students don't have quality activities to do they can get into drugs and burglary, and not excel in school. If we add activities and support youth programs, we will build caring friendships, encourage community awareness and avoid juvenile crime.

DON'T BE SCAMMED

Editor's note: Because scams are becoming so prevalent and sophisticated, the Town Crier is starting this column to warn readers of what to look out for.

The Internal Revenue Service is warning consumers about a phone scam targeting taxpayers, including recent immigrants, throughout the country.

Victims are told they owe money to the IRS and it must be paid promptly through a pre-loaded debit card or wire transfer. If the victim refuses to cooperate, they are then threatened with arrest, deportation or suspension of a business or driver's license. In many cases, the caller becomes hostile and insulting.

"This scam has hit taxpayers in nearly every state in the country. We want to educate taxpayers so they can help protect themselves. Rest assured, we do not and will not ask for credit card numbers over the phone, nor request a pre-paid debit card or wire transfer," said IRS Acting Commissioner Danny Werfel. "If someone unexpectedly calls claiming to be from the IRS and threatens police arrest, deportation or license revocation if you don't pay immediately, that is a sign that it really isn't the IRS calling," Werfel noted that the first IRS contact with taxpayers on a tax issue is likely to occur via mail.

Other characteristics of this scam include:

- Scammers use fake names and IRS badge numbers. They generally use common names and surnames to identify themselves.
- Scammers may be able to recite the last four digits of a victim's Social Security Number.
- Scammers spoof the IRS toll-free number on caller ID to make it appear that it's the IRS calling.
- Scammers sometimes send bogus IRS emails to some victims to support their bogus calls.
- Victims hear background noise of other calls being conducted to mimic a call site.
- After threatening victims with jail time or driver's license revocation, scammers hang up and others soon call back pretending to be from the local police or DMV, and the caller ID supports their claim.

If you get a phone call from someone claiming to be from the IRS, here's what you should do:

If you know you owe taxes or you think you might owe taxes, call the IRS at 1800-829-1040. IRS employees at that line can help you with a payment issue, if there really is such an issue.

If you know you don't owe taxes or have no reason to think that you owe any taxes (for example, you've never received a bill or the caller made some bogus threats as

Health site upgrading

By JAY PENTRACK
STAFF REPORTER

On Monday, Nov. 11, officials at Covered California announced that the coveredca.com website will be offline beginning at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16. The site is expected to be back online at 6 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 19. Officials will be adding a new small-business marketplace to the site during the shutdown.

"Even though Covered California is doing relatively well ... there [are] still upgrades to do," said Anthony Wright, Health Access executive director. Plans to shut down the site will not be the subject of a press release or other public statement because Wright and exchange board members felt it could "needlessly alarm folks."

Small-business owners attempting to use the Covered California website have found it a frustrating experience. The small business health options program (SHOP) section on the website is not completely functional and while browsing the companies that provide coverage is functional, SHOP Health Insurance Plans is not; advising that an "update is coming soon."

Officials at Covered California announced that 179,562 applications were started through Oct. 26, but the state has declined to release the number of completed applications and the breakdown of small-business applications. Those figures will not be released until Nov. 14.

"It's not our preference to have the system down a day or two, but that's what it takes," said Wright.

Jay Pentrack can be reached at jay@towncrier.com.

For the Christmas holiday, the center has "angel trees" at Fairway Market, BBVA Compass Bank and the Idyllwild Library. The wish of a needy child is printed on a hanging decoration on each tree. It is the center's hope that community members will select a "wish" and fulfill it by purchasing the specific gift written on the decoration. The tag and gift should be delivered to the HELP Center office.

"We have between 60 and 70 kids that have made wishes; and many of the children whose wish is fulfilled will write a 'thank you' note to the donor. It is anonymous, but if you give, you'll know how much your gift is appreciated," said Meyer. "The thank-you notes will be put back on the trees for everyone to see; the notes are really touching."

The center is again participating in the One Warm Coat program with Burlington Coat Factory in Murrieta, a project in its seventh year on the Hill.

The program started in 1992 with a Thanksgiving weekend coat drive at one location in San Francisco. Since then, the organization has welcomed thousands of groups across North America who joined their efforts with the same goal of collecting coats to give to those in need, free of charge. The program, volunteers and agency friends have given more than 4 million coats to those in need.

The Center welcomes donations of food, money and/or time. To donate, visit www.idyllwildhelpcenter.org/donate.html; stop by the HELP Center office at 26330 Highway 243; or call 951-659-2110.

Community Center is first Speaker Series topic

BY JAY PENTRACK
STAFF REPORTER

The Idyllwild Community Center is presenting the Speaker Series premiere at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, at the Rainbow Inn at 54420 N. Circle Dr., with "ICC...Past, Present and Future."

Speakers Bob Smith of the Idyllwild Area Historical Society will present the past with a historical overview of the ICC property; Robert Priefer, ICC advocate and designer, will address the present with an introduction to current opportunities for community use of the site; and Jim Marsh, ICC architect, will end with the future, a visual unveiling of the building project complete with flyovers and architectural renderings. A wine reception begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by the presentation from 6 to 7 p.m. Admission is free.

Smith is a local author and IAHHS board member, docent and researcher. Smith's book, "Idyllwild and the High San JacintoS," published by Arcadia Publishing, captures Idyllwild's history in photographs and narrative.

Smith's interest in local history and historical research stems from the discovery of old family papers belonging to his grandparents, Frank and Mabel Moote, who were early Idyllwild property owners and developers.

Priefer, has been an Idyllwild resident since 1974. He is a local builder and designer, and began his ICC association with the design of the master plan and concept for the project, all as a volunteer. Priefer was chosen by Town Crier readers as the recipient of the 2013 Ernie Maxwell Community Spirit Award.

Marsh is a Hemet-based architect selected as the architect for the ICC project.

ICC takes over sponsorship of the Speaker Series previously presented by the Idyllwild Community Recreation Center which has been dissolved and become the Programs and Activities Committee. The San Jacinto Mountain Community Center

PAC and the Building Campaign Committee all are involved in the season premiere of the series.

The website is being revised to reflect the activities of the SJMCC and its committees. It will be unveiled in January 2014.

Future series speakers are:

- Dec. 19: to be determined.
- Jan. 16: Art Alliance of Idyllwild, Shanna Robb, "Community Art and the Idyllwild Experience."

Bird of the Year contest heats up

Voting continues for Audubon California's 2013 Bird of the Year, which recognizes a California bird species of conservation interest.

This year also brings the addition of two new categories: Comeback Kid and Cutest Fluffy Fluff.

More than 10,000 votes have been submitted. The public is encouraged to cast their votes online on Audubon California's website at ca.audubon.org through Friday, Dec. 6, and people may vote as many times as they wish.

Audubon California established the contest four years ago to highlight the state's birds and the conservation challenges many of them face.

The Yellow-billed Magpie, the Barn Owl, the California Condor and the Sandhill Crane have all previously held the title of Bird of the Year.

"Birds are the one form of wildlife people see every day," said Brigid McCormack, Audubon California's managing director. "Our hope is to allow the public to celebrate their favorite species and become involved in our conservation efforts to protect all California birds."

Although the public may vote for any bird, Audubon California has nominated six species in particular: Burrowing Owl, Golden Eagle, Black-necked Stilt, Loggerhead Shrike, Brown Pelican or Western Yellow-billed Cuckoo.

"What's special about Audubon is our strong network of chapters and volunteers working to protect our most vulnerable birds," said McCormack. "Every bird on this list is supported by an Audubon conservation effort."

Annual Garner Valley Faire

The annual Garner Valley Mountain Art and Craft Faire is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 16, at the Garner Valley Common, 61-600 Devil's Ladder Road.

The faire is an opportunity for Christmas shopping. Follow the signs on Highway 74 in Garner Valley.

Psychologist wins subscription

Dr. Barbara Czeskik, a child, adolescent and adult psychologist from Encinitas, was the Town Crier's October winner of a free annual subscription.

Czeskik dropped her business card in the fish bowl on Dolores Sizer's desk at the Town Crier and her card was drawn.

Idyllwild featured in San Diego

Travel writer Aimee Cebulski recently visited Idyllwild for the first time and wrote a feature story about the town that appeared in the recent Ranch and Coast Magazine, a lifestyle magazine out of Rancho Santa Fe. The story appears from pages 70 to 72.

May Valley Trails Project back on track

BY JAY PENTRACK
STAFF REPORTER

The International Mountain Bicycling Association, Idyllwild Cycling and the U.S. Forest Service will work together to move the May Valley trails project forward after the Mountain Fire and a government shut-down stalled progress.

"For the immediate future, the Emergency Closure Order that encompasses the May Valley area is being reviewed and evaluated for possible adjustments. For the longer term, the USFS has pledged to complete the National Environmental Policy Act process by Sept. 30, 2014. That process will include input from interested parties, including but not limited to, the Idyllwild Cycling membership and local trail advocates, along with design suggestions from IMBA Trail Solutions, which will field a staffer in the area during 2014 to redesign some of the trails," according to the May Valley, California, Trail Plan Update posted by Patrick Kell, IMBA southwest regional director, on Nov. 6, on the IMBA website,

According to Kell, Idyllwild Cycling contacted IMBA in February 2012. IMBA met with Idyllwild Cycling and the USFS at the SBNF office in San Bernardino in March 2012. The parties discussed trail access issues in May Valley. "We then continued to have monthly (or so) meetings in Idyllwild until October 2012, at which stage the USFS told us that Riverside County had allocated funds toward the planning and review process in May Valley. I also attended the 2012 Spring Challenge race in May Valley and got to meet a lot of the local folk there," said Kell in an email to the Town Crier.

In July 2012, Idyllwild Cycling became an IMBA chapter club. The focus of IMBA and Idyllwild Cycling was to create a designated trail system in the May Valley area.

IMBA then appealed the USFS decision to restrict motorized and non-motorized vehicle travel to National Forest System roads and trails and limited areas designated for vehicle use. A settlement agreement was reached whereby the USFS would resolve unclassified (unauthorized) non-system routes over time. A travel analysis process was conducted in the fall of 2012 and included input from forest resource specialists and special interest groups. TAP was the basis for the proposed May Valley Non-Motorized Trails Project and the resulting Scoping Document.

According to the Scoping Document, the actions proposed involve adding non-motorized trail improvements to the National Forest System in the May Valley area, maintaining and managing the improvements, and restoring unauthorized trails that are proposed for closure and abolishment. The actions proposed, it states, are dependent on partnerships for implementation. The Scoping Document outlines the plan in detail and includes maps and tables of proposed actions. A downloadable PDF of the Scoping Document is available online at http://a123.g.akamai.net/7/123/11558/abc123/forestservic.download.akamai.com/11558/www/nepa/24565_FSPLT3_1421876.pdf.

Then in May 2013, David A. Austin, acting district ranger, issued a letter to interested individuals, organizations and agencies seeking public comment for the May Valley Non-Motorized Trail Project which involved adding, maintaining and managing improvements along with restoring unauthorized trails proposed for closure and abolishment.

But then came July's Mountain Fire, burning 27,531 acres and ravaging the May Valley area resulting in the closure of all hiking and mountain biking trails in the area. With USFS resources taxed, the May Valley Trails project was put on hold. Talks were set to resume when the federal government shut down and stalled progress once again.

Now that the shutdown is over, talks are resuming. District Ranger Arturo Delgado, San Jacinto Ranger District, said, "Plans for the May Valley project are being coordinated with IMBA and are moving forward. We hope to have a draft of the environmental assessment completed and out for review by next spring or summer."

Recreation fee advisors sought

The Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Forest Service are seeking nominations for key positions on the Pacific Southwest Region California Recreation Resource Advisory Committee, an 11-member group, through Dec. 8.

Five people are sought to represent winter non-motorized recreation, such as snowshoeing, cross country, downhill skiing and snowboarding; summer motorized recreation, such as motorcycles, boaters and off-highway vehicles; and summer non-motorized recreation, such as backpacking, horseback riding, mountain biking, canoeing and rafting.

Three people are sought to represent non-motorized outfitters and guides and local environmental groups.

Three people are sought to represent Indian tribes; and local government.

The term for these positions begins March 2014 when the current three-year term appointments expire. Current members who have only served one term may reapply. Terms for the current appointed alternates also expire March 2014 and they may apply for a position. Alternates may be selected from the applications received. Alternates do not take a member's place in their absence; they are appointed to fill a vacancy should the member find it necessary to leave the RRAC.

RRAC makes recommendations on recreation fees for federal lands within the state. This includes implementing or eliminating fees for BLM and USFS recreation sites and services, expanding or limiting the recreation fee program, and fee level changes.

RRACs help gather public opinion about recreation fees and programs.

To obtain a nomination packet, visit www.fs.fed.us/passes-permits/rrac; call Frances Enkoji at the USFS at 707-562-8846 or e-mail her at R5rrac@fs.fed.us; or call Jane Arteaga at BLM at 916-978-4654 or e-mail her at jarteaga@blm.gov.

Submit packet to Frances Enkoji, USDA Forest Service, 1323 Club Drive, Vallejo, CA 94592. Nomination packets must be received by Dec. 8, 2013.

For more information about recreation fees, visit www.fs.fed.us/passes-permits/about-rec-fees.shtml.

Recreation fee changes considered

The U.S. Forest Service seeks public comments on proposed changes to Recreation Fee Areas on the Cleveland National Forest. The forest is proposing to eliminate or substantially reduce the size of fee areas in Corral Canyon, Holy Jim, Mt. Laguna, Ortega, Tenaja and Wildomar.

These proposed changes result in more than 30,000 acres becoming free to the public. Comments should be submitted by Jan. 3, 2014.

The proposed changes will be presented to a citizen's advisory committee, called the California Recreation Resource Advisory Committee (R-RAC). Committee members represent a broad array of recreation interest groups. The public is welcome to attend and comment at all R-RAC meetings. The next R-RAC meeting is expected to be held in the winter of 2014. More information about the R-RAC, including meeting dates and locations, can be found at www.fs.usda.gov/main/r5/recreation/racs. If adopted the proposals for the Cleveland recreation fee areas would be implemented in the winter of 2014.

For more information about this fee proposal, contact Jacob Rodriguez at 951-736-1811 or at jfrodriquez@fs.fed.us. Submit comments to Cleveland National Forest, Trabuco Ranger District, 1147 East Sixth Street, Corona, CA 92879 or by email at jfrodriquez@fs.fed.us.

Senator Emmerson resigns

By J.P. CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

State Sen. Bill Emmerson (R-23) has tendered his resignation effective Dec. 1, admitting to losing passion for the job. Emmerson had previously represented the Hill in the state Senate until last November's elections implemented the 2010 re-districting.

Idyllwild and other Hill communities are now within the 28th Senate District, but elections for even-numbered districts will be November 2014.

Nevertheless, since his election to represent the new 23rd district, Emmerson said he would continue to consider the Hill as his constituents until the new senator is chosen. Years ago the former dentist had a practice in Idyllwild.

In his statement, he said, "But it's time for me to move on. I have always felt that one had to be passionate about their work. In these past few months, my passion has waned and my constituents deserve a senator with the level of commitment that I once had."

He also stressed that his health was fine and did not affect this decision.

The Hill is not the only area without Senate representation until 2014. Nearly four million Californians are in the same situation, called "deferrals." Consequently, the California Senate Rules Committee took action last January to assign the unrepresented areas or deferrals to current senators, which is why Emmerson continued to represent the Hill until a new senator was elected in November 2014.

Emmerson serves as vice chair of the Senate's Budget and Fiscal Review Committee and the Business, Professions and Economic Development Committee. He was also appointed to the Senate Rules Committee, Human Services Committee, Senate Governance and Finance Committee,

Salvage logging ignores wildfire benefits

By J.P. CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

As part of its efforts to ensure counties with a large portion of public lands receive payments equivalent to the loss of property taxes, the House of Representatives has passed a bill that would increase timber logging efforts on many national forests.

While logging is in a long-term decline in America, the causes are varied. Certainly heightened environmental sensitivity, as well as specific laws such as the National Environmental Protection, Endangered Species and Wilderness acts, have reduced some logging. (All were originally enacted in the 10 years between 1964 and 1973.) But economic issues are generally even more powerful.

Last month, the House passed H.R. 1526, which not only requires the Secretary of Agriculture to designate lands within every national forest as eligible for timber harvest but also mitigates environmental protections such as applying NEPA.

Although the Obama Administration opposed the bill, during the House Natural Resources Committee hearings, little formal opposition formed. But since its September passage, more and more scientists and organizations are speaking out against several of these sections.

On Oct. 30, 250 scientists (including Dr. Jennifer Gee, director of the University of California's James Reserve, north of Pine Cove) signed a letter to the Senate objecting to the section enabling easier logging on areas burned by wildfires.

The letter encouraged recognizing the importance of the burned areas to the natural rejuvenation of the forest and its wildlife inhabitants.

"Though it may seem at first glance that a post-fire landscape is a catastrophe ecologically, numerous scientific studies tell us that even in patches where forest fires burned most intensely, the resulting post-fire community is one of the most ecologically important and biodiverse habitat types in western conifer forests," the letter reads. "Post-fire conditions serve as a refuge for rare and imperiled wildlife that depend upon the unique habitat features created by intense fire. ... This post-fire habitat, known as 'complex early seral forest,' is quite simply some of the best wildlife habitat in forests and is an essential stage of natural forest processes. Moreover, it is the least protected of all forest habitat types and is often as rare, or rarer, than old-growth forest, due to damaging forest practices encouraged by post-fire logging policies."

Complex early seral forests "occur when most of the live trees in a stand are killed, leaving behind an area of dead trees (called snags) and a carpet of downed logs, flowers, shrubs, and small sapling" according to the Wild Nature Institute.

Trying to revive a diminishing industry, House Natural Resource Chair Doc Hastings (R-WA) argued, "Last year, 9.3 million acres of national forests burned in wildfires. As comparison, only 200,000 acres were harvested by the U.S. Forest Service. This means that 44 times more acres burned compared to those acres that were responsibly harvested.

"The bill requires responsible timber production on at least half of the Forest Service's commercial timber lands — areas that were specifically identified by the Forest Service for timber harvest," he said.

The administration has already indicated that President Barack Obama's senior advisors would recommend he veto the bill. Among the reasons, are "Title I would negatively impact forest resources and the Department of Agriculture's current statutory obligations to manage forest lands by requiring [the department] to sell no less than 50 percent of the sustained yield from the bill's newly created Forest Reserve Revenue Areas."

Another reason is the bill "would also accelerate commercial grazing and timber harvests without appropriate environmental review and public involvement, and would impede compliance with NEPA and Endangered Species Act (ESA) requirements."

Both the Los Angeles Times and the New York Times editorial boards have recently spoken against these provisions.

St. Hugh of Lincoln is honored

This Sunday, St. Hugh's Episcopal Church in Idyllwild honors St. Hugh of Lincoln, the church's patron. St. Hugh was born in France in 1140. King Henry II of England invited him to Somerset and soon after, he became the bishop of Lincoln.

He had a special love for the outcast and poor, reaching out to those afflicted with leprosy. His love of animals led to an attachment to a swan (the Swan of Stowe) who became his life-long companion and body guard.

St. Hugh died in London in 1200. St. Hugh of Lincoln Church invites the Idyllwild community to a celebration of the Feast of St. Hugh Sunday, Nov. 17. Morning prayer begins at 10 a.m. with a potluck lunch to follow.

St. Hugh's is an Anglican House of Prayer where open-minded individuals are invited to discover for themselves the significance of Jesus Christ in their lives. The church is located at 25525 Tahquitz Drive.

Seven steps for earthquake safety

The Earthquake Country Alliance has prepared seven steps for people to take before, during and after an earthquake.

Before: Step 1: Secure your space by identifying hazards and securing movable items.

Step 2: Plan to be safe by creating a disaster plan and deciding how you will communicate in an emergency.

Step 3: Organize disaster supplies in convenient locations.

Step 4: Minimize financial hardship by organizing important documents, strengthening your property and considering insurance.

During: Step 5: Drop, cover and hold on when the earth shakes.

Step 6: Improve safety after earthquakes by evacuating if necessary, helping the injured, and preventing further injuries or damage.

After: Step 7: Restore daily life by reconnecting with others, repairing damage and rebuilding community.

(951) 659-2145 or E-mail: Dolores@towncrier.com

Every day throughout the United States, newspapers publish thousands of public notices about events, conditions or actions that affect countless individuals, families, neighborhoods and businesses. Public notices cover many topics, including business matters, liquor licensing, public auctions and sales, estates, zoning, public meetings, bids to sell goods and services to the government, local government finances and state and local elections. Public notice is a fundamental component of our system of representative democracy, which depends upon the participation of educated, responsible citizens.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A project benefits from your organizational skills that get it up and running. Your success leaves a highly favorable impression. Don’t be surprised if you get some positive feedback soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Spend time on practical matters through the end of the week. Then begin shifting your focus to more-artistic pursuits. Resist being overly self-critical. Just allow yourself to feel free to create.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Restarting those creative projects you had set aside for a while will help provide a much-needed soothing balance to your hectic life. Besides, it will be like meeting old friends again.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans could make it tough to keep a commitment. But stay with it. You’ll get an A-plus for making the effort to do what’s right and not taking the easy way out by running off.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion’s enthusiasm for a workplace policy review is admirable. But be sure you know who is really behind the resistance to change before pointing your finger at the wrong person.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You can expect to have to do a lot of work through midweek. Devote the rest of the week to checking your holiday plans in case some need to be adjusted to accommodate changes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to avoid signing on the dotted line in the early part of the week. You need time to study issues that weren’t fully explored. Later in the week might be more favorable for decision-making.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A new development could snarl travel schedules or other holiday-linked projects. Some flexibility might be called for to deal with the problems before they get too far out of hand.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Relatives seek your advice on a matter you’d rather not be involved in. If so, use that sage Sagittarian tact to decline the “offer,” so that no one’s feelings are needlessly hurt.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A shift in planning direction might help you speed up your progress toward achieving that long-planned goal. Trusted colleagues are ready to offer some valuable support.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected demand for settlement of an old loan could create some pre-holiday anxiety. But you might not really owe it. Check your records thoroughly before remitting payment.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) It’s a good time to get into the social swim and enjoy some well-earned fun and games with those closest to you before you have to resume more serious activities next week.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your ability to sense the needs of others makes you a wise counselor for those seeking help with their problems.

LEGAL NOTICE

STRAWBERRY AND WEST RIDGE FUEL-BREAK MAINTENANCE PROJECTS
USDA FOREST SERVICE
SAN BERNARDINO NATIONAL FOREST SERVICE

SAN JACINTO RANGER DISTRICT

On November 8, 2013, District Ranger Arturo Delgado decided to maintain fuel reductions on the West Ridge and Strawberry Fuelbreaks on approximately 166 acres of National Forest Lands.

A copy of the Decision Memo is available for public review on the Forest website http://www.fs.fed.us/nepa/nepa_project_exp.php?project=38893 and http://www.fs.fed.us/nepa/nepa_project_exp.php?project=38870. Copies can also be obtained from the San Jacinto Ranger Station, located at 54270 Pinecrest Rd., Idyllwild, CA 92549 on Monday, Tuesday, and Friday between 8:30am and 4:30 pm. If you have any questions or would like a copy of the Decision Memo sent to you, you may contact Kayanna Warren, District Forester, at (909) 382-2944 or klwarren@fs.fed.us.

This decision is subject to appeal pursuant to 36 CFR 215. To initiate an appeal, written notice of appeal must be postmarked within 45 days of the publication date of the legal notice of this decision in the Idyllwild Town Crier. Attachments received after the 45 day appeal period will not be considered. The publication date in the Idyllwild Town Crier is the exclusive means for calculating the time to file an appeal. It is the appellant's responsibility to meet the requirements of 36 CFR 215.14.

Copies of the notice to appeal must be filed with the Forest Supervisor; Strawberry and West Ridge Fuelbreak Maintenance Appeal; San Bernardino National Forest; 602 S. Tippecanoe Ave.; San Bernardino, CA 92408. Appeals may be submitted in person at the address above during normal business hours of 8:00 am to 4:00 pm Monday through Friday, excluding holidays. Electronic appeals must be submitted in a format such as an email message, plain text (.txt), rich text format (.rtf) or word (.doc) to: appeals-pacific@southwest-san-bernardino@fs.fed.us.

If no appeals are filed within the 45 day appeal period, implementation of the decision may occur on, but not before, five business days from the close of the appeal filing period. When appeals are filed under 36 CFR 215, implementation may occur on, but not before, the 15th business day following the date of the last appeal disposition.

LOCAL
OWNERS...

Did you know?

- You are required to file a DBA (Doing Business As), also called an FBN (Fictitious Business Name), statement with the county when you start a business.
- Your DBA expires after 5 years, and you need to refile.

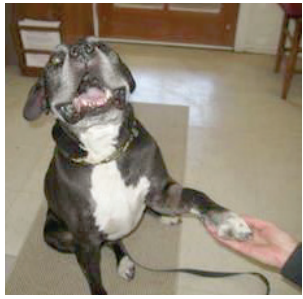

The Town Crier can file your DBA for you, saving you from the paperwork hassle and the time and gas it would take to go to the County Recorder's Office.

CREATURE CORNER

BY MIMI AND HOOTCH

His name is H.D. — Harley Dog. And this dog loves to ride. High five is one of his faves, as is catching the ball or Frisbee®, or just some good ole laptime. Cause Harley thinks he is part Chihuahua. Such a good boy. Come to ARF and visit Harley but be sure to bring a bone. Burying bones is another of his favorite things to do. He's ready to be in his forever home. We know he will find just the right human. Harley prefers to be the only canine.

Boomer gives a high five to the camera, loving attention as much as his mom. He is a young teen, and continues to keep the cattery lively, playful and full of laughs. He is great with other felines, actually very inquisitive of the canine crowd, and loves to investigate any room other than the cattery.

Tommy, Whiskers and Lachi (below) enjoying the outdoor cattery. This is Tommy's fave hangout, Whiskers enjoys a quiet nap, and Lachi is very playful.

We have several cats who have already chosen their best fur buddy to be adopted with. Sadie and Carly (below), the tux identical twins, would love to be together forever. Pepper, a young black-and-white female, can often be seen cuddled closely with Tommy, our large gray tabby. Their favorite past time is in the outdoor cattery keeping up with all creatures that fly. ARF has many cats and dogs available for adoption or fostering. Go to www.arfidyllwild.weebly.com and click on Petfinder. All pets are spayed, neutered and current on shots. ARF is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sundays.

Creature corner is sponsored by Peggy in memory of Lucy this week. To sponsor the column, call Lisa Streeter at the Town Crier, 951-659-2145.
