Quilters donate to community

CAREY POWERS
 NEWS INTERN

The Mountain Quilters of Idyllwild have long been known for their beneficence and community service. Undeniably, Mountain Quilters is more than just a club. The group creates beautiful quilts and gift them to be auctioned for the benefit of various organizations and events in town. Recently, the quilters have started yet another wave of donations.

These donations have been added to the Mountain Quilters' long list of charitable acts. Once a month, five to 10 members visit Idyllwild School to teach quilting to their "Junior Quilters" in the third through eighth grades. In the past, members have donated quilts to the HELP Center to be put into holiday baskets at Christmastime. Over the years, a total of 114 quilts have, with homemade warmth, supplied the less fortunate, the elderly, and other members of the community. Off the Hill, the guild performs even more generous deeds, donating quilts to an organization called Our House, a residential treatment center for women and their dependent children, to the California Family Life Center, and to the "wounded warriors" — servicemen recovering from war injuries — in this country. "We've done a lot of philanthropic work," said Penny Bottomly of the guild.

This year, the quilters donated two quilts to community events and plan to donate two more in the future. Perhaps the most well-known quilt, the lemon lily quilt, was made by guild member Annamarie Padula and was auctioned off at the Lemon Lily Festival (LLF), raising $2,000 for its first celebration.

Fire volunteer decision contained

Establishment of the Riverside County Reserve Volunteer Firefighter program has been deferred until November. At its Sept. 14 meeting, the County Board of Supervisors agreed to defer action for 60 days.

Although lawyers for the Riverside County Volunteer Firefighters Association (VFA) asked for a 120-day delay, the board agreed that the shorter period would force the County Fire Department and VFA to continue talking and negotiating earnestly.

Benjamin Rosenbaum, an attorney with Tyler and Monk of Murrieta who represent VFA, spoke in favor of the longer postponement. He argued that the county and VFA essentially had an employment contract, arising from the 1920 creation of the Riverside County Fire Department. This agreement necessitates negotiation between the Riverside County Fire Department (RCFD) and VFA.

Second District Supervisor John Tavaglione told his colleagues that he and Supervisor John Benoit (Fifth District) had met with RCFD Fire Chief John Hawkins, his management team, VFA and even Assemblyman Kevin Jefferies (R-Murrieta), who has been

Planning for Winterfest

BY MARSHALL SMITH
 STAFF REPORTER

Working with Marge Muir, longtime Tree Lighting organizer, the new Idyllwild Chamber of Commerce board and the Idyllwild Business Roundtable (IBRT) are planning to expand the Thanksgiving weekend Tree Lighting Ceremony into a six-weekend event called "Winterfest." The new event will span both time and place as it extends throughout the village and bridges

Thanksgiving to the New Year.

Central to the concept is the plan to dress Idyllwild in lights for the holiday season and transform it into a "Magical Mountain Village." The holiday lighting will be spurred on by a decorating contest challenge for inns, shops, restaurants, businesses and churches — a challenge to make the town twinkle and become, much like Pasadena and Altadena's Christmas Tree Lane, a holiday destination See Winterfest, page 22

Power outage affects more than 1,000 homes

BY BETH NOTTLEY
STAFF REPORTER

A power outage disrupted electrical service for just over an hour to 1,086 homes in the Pine Cove, Stone Creek and Allendale neighborhoods Monday. The outage affected areas south of Round Robin Drive, north of Sunrise Drive, west of Foster Lake Road and east of Deer Path Road.

According to Southern California Edison spokesperson Gil Alexander, crews were immediately dispatched to the area, but found no equipment failure or other apparent cause for the outage. According to Alexander, "the system de-energized to protect the grid while it tested itself to see if the problem would continue."

Alexander speculated that a tree branch may have hit a power line, which then caused the entire electrical power grid to shut down.

"It's kind of like when your circuit breaker trips at home," he said.

Beth Nottley can be reached at beth@towncrier.com.

Bugs

One thing about living in the middle of a forest is that you have to deal with lots of insects and spiders. There is really no way to avoid them. They live in our homes, yards and on the trails we hike. Unlike some areas in the city, which seem to be devoid of almost all life other than human beings, the natural world hosts creatures of all kinds.

Some of the bugs are simply annoying: the ants cleaning the pet food bowl or gnats flying in your eyes and up your nose when you are hiking. But some actually attack humans, such as deerflies, mosquitoes, yellow jackets and ticks. When you are in nature and the bugs are swarming all over, you have to protect yourself.

Luckily most of the biting insects seem to have special niches. Some, such as deerflies, have a season. Some are dependent on standing water to breed, e.g., mosquitoes. Spiders seem to hang around throughout the year but ants almost always disappear around the time of the first frost.

Deerflies seem to be strongest in June. I am not sure that any insect repellent spray will keep a biting deerfly from going after you. You would probably need the industrial strength Repel 100, which is 100 percent Deet. Deet is the active ingredient and 100 percent is the strongest you can get. Repel 100 is so strong that they do not recommend that you use it on children or spray it on polypropylene clothing.

In springtime when mosquitoes are at their worst, I also recommend the Repel 100. If you are going to hike in the Sierras or Alaska, you would need either Repel 100 or mosquito-proof clothing, perhaps both. Luckily the mosquitoes are usually only bad for about a month or so in Idyllwild.

If you don't want to use harsh chemicals for protection, natural options are available. Lemon Eucalyptus, a plant-based bug repellent, does just fine for anything but the worst infestations.

Other methods for bug relief are head nets, protective clothing and clothing that is treated with bug repellent. ExOfficio makes all manner of insect shield clothing including pants, shirts, hats, socks and bandanas. The clothing with the manufacturer's applied repellent can be washed more than 70 times before it wears off.

Yellow jackets are one major nuisance that probably can not be handled with any of the above methods. When I worked at Sweet Revenge just down the street from the shop, we had outdoor seating in front of the restaurant. The yellow jackets got so bad that they were crawling all over customer's lunch plates. There was nothing we could do but put out some traps that had to be emptied every day as they filled with bees.

So why am I mentioning insect repellents in October? Well, after our recent rains and the return of mid-70 degree weather, I am seeing another round of bugs. I hope we will soon have a hard freeze and, then, be able to say goodbye to nuisance bugs until spring 2011. There is nothing like hiking out on a crisp fall day and suddenly noticing that all bugs are gone. It won't be long now.

Mountain Community Patrol seeks members

The Mountain Community Patrol is recruiting new members to help in its crime prevention and community safety efforts on the Hill. The Patrol provides many services to the community including crowd and parking control at civic events such as the 4th of July and Halloween parades, the Summer Concert Series, the Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony; they patrol town on foot and by car to lower local crime; perform business property checks, observe and report suspicious situations to the Sheriff's Department and remove graffiti from the town and surrounding areas. The Patrol provides its members with a complete training course including first aid and CPR. To apply to become a member, call (951) 659-4904.

Deergrass, deer muhly or (Muhlenbergia rigens) is one of the easiest native grasses to grow in sunny or shady areas. With a regular winter of snow and rains, it quickly develops a 1- to 2-foot mound of blue green foliage; then it produces 3- to 4-foot plumes (inflorescences) in spring. Deergrass will normally grow to mature size within one or two seasons. During dry months, the foliage turns brown and may go drought dormant. It provides good slope coverage and is effective in mass plantings, along dry streambeds or driveways. California Indians have used it for making baskets. Despite the name, it is deer resistant. ONLY IN IDYLLWILD

I stopped by the Idyllwild Area Historical Society on Monday [Sept. 20] to see what all of the activity was about. There were about seven volunteer members of the Garden Club hauling and raking tons of gravel and placing stone paths throughout what will become our Village Garden. Among them was Daniel Suiffet, a passionate member of the Garden Club who is, shall we say, at an age when many men would rather sit in the shade than do manual labor in the hot sun. After three or so hours of hard work, he was asked why he didn't leave such efforts to the younger members. His comment was: "Because when I drive by in the future, I will know I helped to create this for the enjoyment of others." Only in Idyllwild.

Fall planting

BY HAROLD VOORHEIS
IDYLLWILD GARDEN CLUB

spring soil, making root growth easier.

Garden experts all seem to agree — the fall season is one of the best times for planting shrubs, trees and perennials, including natives. By taking advantage of fall planting about six weeks before the first hard frost, not only will your plants thrive, but they'll also require a lot less work from you.

So here goes! Seven reasons why you should plant in the fall:

- 80% of a plant's root growth occurs in late summer and fall, so plants establish better.
- Milder temperatures and more dependable rainfall help plants acclimatize.
- Fall soil is warmer and more conditioned than might otherwise attack young, vulnerable plants lessen with cool weather.

• Less water is required as plants go dormant for the winter.

• Plants bloom more profusely the following spring.

• Plants with an established root system better withstand heat and wind the following summer.

So procrastinators, take heart. The best time to plant many flowering perennials may be right now. Just remember, wet the hole down well before planting. If planting natives, do not amend the soil or use fertilizers. Try to anticipate Santa Ana conditions by watering before the winds arrive.

INITIAL THOUGHTS

Idyll time wondering mind ...

I have a collection of miscellaneous thoughts for you today.

First, a reminder that those who are not registered to vote in the Nov. 2 election have until Monday, Oct. 18 to register. If you are registered, you have until Oct. 26 to request a mail ballot.

This is a modern voting convenience. Vote at home or at a friend's home rather than trudging off to the polls on Nov. 2. You can leisurely read about the propositions, sip some caffeine and change your mind about "yes" or "no" without someone behind you huffing and sighing.

As of Tuesday morning, Oct. 12, the Riverside County Registrar had mailed 367,996 ballots. Already, 1,032 ballots have been returned.

But if you enjoy the social aspects of voting, the arguments about candidates, old times with weed or how the tax structure should be amended to include the VAT (value added tax), then Pine Cove residents can trek over to the water district office, say "Hi" to Stitch, and cast a ballot. Idyllwild residents are now limited to just one polling place — Town Hall. Say "Hi" to anyone you recognize.

Fire Prevention Week ended Sunday, but I have a message from Riverside County Fire Mountain Battalion Chief Dan Johnson.

"Recently we have had several structure fires on the mountain and within the San Jacinto Valley; all have been accidental human-caused fires and not arson. We investigate all fires and these have all been found to be accidental.

"Fires have been caused by such things as a candle falling over and igniting flammable items on the floor, causing a quick-burning fire within the home, barely allowing the occupant time to escape.

"We had a malfunctioning barbecue too close to a house. The fire leapt through a window causing the entire front room and contents to burn.

"Another blaze was caused when a heating furnace was not properly turned off. Nearby items ignited when the thermostat started the heater and nobody was home."

According to Johnson, one alarming thing is the delay receiving 9-1-1 calls for structure fires on the mountain. He said, "The quiet mountain communities don't have the busy traffic and night life that allows for quickly spotting a fire and making a 9-1-1 call, such as a busy city community may have. We're all aware of daytime wildland fire smoke and it's easy to spot; however, most of the residential fires have been well-established prior to receiving a call. [This delay] provides little opportunity to reduce the damage or even save the home, in most cases after arriving only three to five minutes later!

"So the communities need to remain vigilant for any signs of fire night and day. It could be the difference of a few minutes that may save a life or a home."

Speaking of being vigilant, how about that Italian adventurer — Chris Columbus, founder of the Buckeye home?

Monday, Oct. 11 was Columbus Day. I didn't get to wish Signor Ferro, "Happy Columbus Day," so "Happy Columbus Day, Frank." But doesn't that raise an important international relations question?

Why is there Columbus Day, St. Patrick's Day, Oktoberfest and no corresponding Belgian Bash? Or do you suppose the faux-French celebrate Bastille Day running around like chickens with their heads cut off?

Speaking of ghoulish moments, be cognizant of the changes to the annual Halloween festivities. This year on Sunday, Oct. 31, the carnival will be on Ridgeview, not Park Lane. That runs from the front of The Gastrognome to the Shell Station, not the 200 feet between The Fort and Jo'An's.

Finally, kudos to the Art Alliance of Idyllwild for hosting another wonderful Art Walk and Wine Tasting. More than a thousand wine goblets were sold and several bus loads of visitors created a busy and successful Saturday.

Heart of the jazz festival

EDITOR:

For your information, Marshall Hawkins is, and has been, the heart of the Jazz Festival for over 10 years.

I was amazed to note in the Town Crier article of several weeks ago — [Sept. 30 issue, "Lytle assumes jazz mantle"], about the new person appointed to try to fill Marshall's multi-faceted position — that nothing at all was said about Marshall's outstanding and amazing contributions to the school, the Jazz Festival and the students.

So, that's what this letter is trying to say. The Jazz Festival profits are donated to a scholarship fund for students of Idyllwild Arts (IA). As Marshall (a teacher at Idyllwild Arts) has demonstrated, the students have graduated with successful skills, as shown by the stellar performances of several alumni at this year's Jazz Festival.

Marshall's Seahawk Modern Jazz Orchestra (MOJO), which has performed at the Jazz Festival several years in a row in the past, is composed of many IA alumni.

Let's hope we will even have a Jazz Festival next year. The attendance along with the economy was noticeably down this year, and there were more police on horseback and less attendees.

And, let's hope if there is a festival next year, that the new person taking Marshall's position does as good a job as he did.

Tuesday nights at Café Aroma are where you can catch sight and sound of Marshall playing in a jazz trio. He is the unsung hero of the Idyllwild Arts Jazz Festival.

Kudos to you, Marshall, for excellent and amazing service, always beyond the call of duty.

Editor's note: Marsha Lytle is the new chairperson of the Jazz Committee for the Associates of Idyllwild Arts Foundation, which organizes the Jazz in the Pines Festival. Marshall Hawkins remains the festival's director of music.

Facts and truth about hemp

EDITOR:

Hemp goes back hundreds of years. From ancient Egypt to the birth of the United States, hemp has served several uses and purposes.

The Bill of Rights and the U.S. Constitution were written on hemp paper. The first U.S. flag was made from hemp.

But views of hemp's value changed. In 1937, the harvesting of hemp was deemed illegal. In 1941, Japan stopped all hemp shipments into the U.S. as the states suddenly changed their views on hemp. During WWII the U.S. government encouraged farmers to grow hemp because the Navy needed rope.

Hemp is one of the most versatile and valuable resources. It provides raw material for over 50,000 products, more than any other plant can provide. The stems produce fabric, fuel, paper and other commercial materials.

The hemp is dried and broken into two parts: thread-like fibers and "hurd" (pulp). The fiber strands, which are spun into thread, make up the world's strongest rope and high-quality textiles of all types. These fabrics make up everything from clothing, sails, to fine linens.

The "hurd," which is 77 percent cellulose, is used to make paper, non-toxic paints and sealants, industrialized Preparing for the winter hike ...

Summer is behind us except for a few lingering warm days. Are you ready for the winter adventures in the high country? Summer hikes and overnights are great, but winter hiking and overnights can be spectacular if you are outfitted correctly.

Winter outfitting uses most of your summer gear but needs to be supplemented with gear to meet the rigors of cold weather camping on snow. Winter equipment includes four-season tents, cold weather clothing, extra sets of clothes, snow shoes, crampons and an ice ax.

Most importantly, you need an awareness of the weather and what the forecast is for your trip. You don't want surprises in the high country during the winter.

Winters are often a busy time for Riverside Mountain Rescue Unit because people travel to the high country ill-prepared.

Last winter on a search, Les Walker and I, we were above the Willow Creek drainage when we decided to cut down through the drainage to our next search area. Les took off first through the snow and ice to the bottom of the drainage. The drainage was flowing heavily from the ongoing snowmelt that occurs during the winter.

Following Les into the drainage with a wide birth between us, I slipped and took off feet first on my back down the hillside. My nylon, winter overpants served as a lubricant and I sped down the hill toward the water. My ice ax was stowed in my pack so I could not use it to perform a technique called self-arrest.

I was helpless to slow or stop myself. The creek rushed up to meet me. During the winter, Willow Creek can be 4 to 5 feet deep in sections and moves quickly on its path across the mountain to the desert.

Still building up speed as I slid toward the creek, I knew the ending would not be pretty. My feet hit the water first and I plunged in up to my chest. WOW, the water was cold!

I was stuck and Les gave me a hand out of the creek. I immediately stripped, used an absorbent backpacking towel to dry off and changed my clothes and socks. My boots were wet, but as long as I kept moving my feet stayed warm and I was fine.

The Sheriff's helicopter eventually found the lost hikers near Carumba on the east side of the high country. Les and I logged in over 12 miles that day with our full winter packs.

Winter gear includes crampons for ice travel, snow shoes for fresh snow travel, an ice ax for self-arrest on steep hill or mountain side, four-season tents and sleeping bags, waterproof boots, GPS and compass (the trails disappear in the winter under snow), a waterproof map, and other assorted clothing articles.

We have shops on the Hill that can help you with the necessary gear to enjoy your winter trips to the high country.

Underground leaks still studied

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

Since 2000, the Riverside County Environmental Health Department (DEH) has been monitoring the underground migration of petrochemicals, which escaped from an underground storage tank at the local Shell station. After a remediation effort in 2007, the levels of most chemicals are now virtually non-detectable.

However, one particular chemical — methyl-tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) — has persisted in the subsurface soils although its volume has significantly declined. In the past two years, DEH has begun investigating whether the MTBE persistence is due to a second potential leak spreading from the Chevron station on the opposite side of Highway 243 and slightly north of the Shell location.

The 2010 third quarter groundwater monitoring report still detects MTBE in several monitoring wells, but also identifies some unexpected values. Since the June measurements, groundwater levels in the area near the monitoring wells have fallen more than a foot.

Reported MTBE values have continued to decline in all monitoring wells. MTBE volumes at well nos. 13 and 15, which are closest to the Chevron station, fell from 5,470 micrograms per liter (µg/L) and 10,600 µg/L respectively in March to 90.8 and 791 µg/L six months later in mid-September.

Since June 2009, no MTBE was detectable at monitoring well no. 1, which is on the Shell site. No MTBE was detected in four of the six monitoring wells on the Idyllwild Community Center site. But at wells no. 5 and 7, closest to the Shell station, the MTBE results were 4.12 µg/L and 853 µg/L. Well no. 5's reading was essentially the same as its 3.24 µg/L March reading. The well 7 recording was less than half of the March value, significantly lower than historic results and the lowest recorded yet.

DEH will continue to monitor the Shell site. In an Oct. 4 letter, DEH also affirmed its commitment to assess the possibility of the underground plume originating at the Chevron site.

In addition, Robert C. Manning, head of RM Environmental, the engineering firm performing the sampling, continues to recommend repeating the soil vapor extraction (SVE) process (applying a vacuum underground to pull the volatile hydrocarbons out of the subsoil). This process would help remove some of the remaining volatile hydrocarbons, such as benzene and toluene, that are still present in some of the well areas.

A similar SVE is still planned to occur this fall at the Pine Cove underground tank clean-up site (at the gasoline station).

A recent DEH letter to Pine Cove property owner Howard Friedman, approved the plan submitted in May. DEH specified that samples must be tested for several volatile petrochemicals and the groundwater levels should be monitored so that the SVE process can begin at the optimum time.

Volunteer

a volunteer for years and speaks for them in Sacramento.

"Every member of the board knows the value of volunteers," Tavaglione said.

RCFD is proposing to transform the volunteer program into a reserve program similar to the law enforcement reserve program. This will require a greater commitment of time from volunteers for the necessary training.

"Personally, I think it is a mistake," said Bruce Cannole, VFA treasurer and a member of the Garner Valley Station 53 volunteer company. "The [volunteer] system has been around for 50 years. It simply needs updating. For all practical purposes, this eliminates the volunteer companies."

However, based on changes to the volunteer program in Orange County, VFA is concerned that RCFD's proposal is simply a stalking horse, which will eventually eliminate the volunteer program completely. In 2009, Orange County remodeled its volunteer program. Last month, media reports indicated that the county was considering scrapping the entire volunteer program.

A reserve program with the emphasis on training will be seen as a potential recruiting tool for younger people seeking careers in firefighting and emergency medical service. The added time commitment will be a burden on older volunteers, according to Pine Cove volunteer company member Wayne Clark.

When asked if he thought the proposal would help, he replied, "I don't think the reasons will be bad for the program. But it will help the younger members, working on way up. It will do more."

Third District Supervisor Jeff Stone recognized the value that volunteers bring to the community. He was concerned about the time it takes for volunteers to get to the station when they might go directly to the incident. He used Pine Cove (Station 23) as an example of the use of volunteers.

"I like to serve," Clark stated. "It's one of the greatest feelings."

County seeks library rehab team

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

On Monday, Oct. 4, the County of Riverside's Economic Development Agency (EDA) announced a Request for Qualifications (RFQ), the preliminary step in selecting a team of consultants to design and execute a complete make-over of the Coronet building in Strawberry Plaza that, when finished, will provide Idyllwild a new, green and state-of-the-art library. When completed in the first quarter of 2011, the new 4,000-square-foot facility will replace the existing 1,000-square-foot Gordon Plaza library that was completed in 1996.

According to Third District Supervisor Jeff Stone's Chief of Staff Verne Lauritzen, the new facility will be designed to reflect Idyllwild's architectural heritage and alpine village ambiance. According to the RFQ, put out by EDA Regional Manager Natalia Brown, "The purpose of the project is to upgrade the current building.

The final design shall incorporate as much of the following major elements, such as office space, remodeling, logical layout, increased book capacity, conference/community room availability, landscaping and aesthetic appeal."

The project is to be funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Community Development Block Grant and therefore is subject to Federal procurement, contracting, Section 3 Affirmative Action requirements, equal opportunity requirements, recordkeeping and other federal regulations.

Part of the RFQ requires the selected consulting team to pay California prevailing wage for all project work, prepare monthly status reports, and meet regularly with "selected community leaders" to incorporate community input into the library design plans. When EDA recommends a firm to the Board of Supervisors and that recommendation appears on the

Other County Fire Department news

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

Besides the possible pending changes to the county volunteer firefighter program, several other issues have recently been on the Board of Supervisors' agenda.

CAL FIRE contract costs

During the County's budget preparation process, the cost of the contract with CAL FIRE was raised. Board Chair Marion Ashley wrote to Del Walters, CAL FIRE chief, (who resigned over the weekend) requesting a review and reduction in costs to the county. In August, the county sent its thoughts to CAL FIRE.

Last month, CAL FIRE sent a formal response stating that the contract costs would be reduced $2.2 million. The largest savings resulted from changes to the retirement contributions from firefighters.

Walters appeared at the Sept. 28 board meeting to answer any remaining questions from the supervisors, who graciously accepted CAL FIRE's cooperation.

"It was an open, constructive dialogue," Walters said. "We have offered relief for Riverside County." He also said the changes benefiting Riverside County will be passed along to other contract counties.

He added that CAL FIRE would not wait until next summer to review the costs for next fiscal year.

"This is a very reasonable first step between the county and CAL FIRE," said John Benoit, Fifth District Supervisor. "We have a very effective contractual relationship."

Hemet-Ryan airport

Before Walters departed, Third District Supervisor Jeff Stone asked about the funding to enlarge Hemet-Ryan Airport. In 2006, CAL FIRE reversed its plans to close the airport and committed to expanding the runway to accommodate larger and more modern firefighting air resources. The estimated cost approached $23 million.

"I can't give a specific date [for construction to begin], but it is very high on our radar," he replied. "It is extremely important to us because of recent changes in layout."

Stone suggested that perhaps the county could help with the initial funding if the state promised to repay the money when the appropriations were available.

Rob Field of the Riverside County Economic Development Agency said that the staff had already begun to explore options of that nature.

"We wouldn't characterize it as a loan," he explained. But there are other ways for doing things, such as build and lease back. But we are willing to work with the state."

While Stone has not heard any new information from Walters since the September session, he did confirm that, when CAL FIRE acquires night flying helicopters, two would be stationed at Hemet-Ryan.

Pinyon Fire Station 30

At the same Board meeting, the supervisors authorized an expansion of the Pinyon Fire station (30). Community Service Area 60 — Pinyon Flat — is providing $234,000 to expand and improve the living quarters for its local volunteers. Though the station can accommodate three firefighters, more are often stationed there and alternative arrangements must be made during the fire season. The expansion will increase the size of the sleeping quarters, add a disability compliant restroom and enlarge the kitchen and dining areas.

Propositions 24, 25 and 26 explained

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Proposition 24: Corporate tax breaks vs. schools

Proposition 24, titled "Repeal Corporate Tax Loopholes," seems a battle between the California Teachers' Association and many mega California corporations including Disney Studios — a rift between educators and CEOs. They're fighting over whether California corporations should keep tax breaks enacted in fiscal year 2008-09 totaling $1.3 to 1.7 billion annually or should have them cancelled in order to reduce state budget deficits and possibly restore some educational funding cuts.

The two sides' arguments can be distilled into this question: Will repealing the tax breaks (authored by the Democrat-controlled Legislature in a 2008/2009 budget compromise to get Republican votes) protect public school and health care program funding from future California budget cuts (the "yes" argument), or will doing so prevent businesses from expanding, hiring or setting up shop in California (the "no" argument)?

Slugging through the competing think tank reports is difficult. Even academics disagree on the consequences. A Rose Institute report from Claremont McKenna College economics professor Joshua Rosett concludes that passage would kill jobs and make California less competitive with other states. On the other hand, a University of Iowa study from economist Peter Fisher, professor of urban and regional planning, concludes that passage would generate more than a billion dollars annually for state coffers in times of budget crises and would have only a marginal effect on large corporations' bottom lines.

The following are the readily discernable facts. Existing tax code changes permitted state corporations, including multinationals, to shift operating losses to prior tax years (and get refunds of taxes paid in the prior two years) and to extend the periods (from 10 to 20 years) through which losses can be carried forward to future tax years. Corporations could choose to have their California income determined by either a formula that considers only the business' sales in California relative to its national sales or by a single sales factor combining the business' sales, property, and payroll in California. The measure would allow shifting of tax credits to other entities in the corporation's related businesses. Proposition 24 would repeal those corporate options, estimated to save corporations $1.3 to 1.7 billion annually in taxes.

The teachers' association's pro-24 argument flounders a bit since there is no guarantee written into Proposition 24 that any corporate tax money returned to the general fund would actually be used for education funding. The "job killer" argument of Proposition 24 opponents also lacks supporting facts inasmuch as California Employment Development Department (EDD) figures show huge job losses in the period after the breaks were approved. That was the beginning of the recession. There is no empirical evidence to support the "job growth" resulting from the 2008-09 corporate tax breaks.

The California Legislative Analyst's estimate of net state and local government fiscal impact projects increased state revenues of about $1.3 billion each year by 2012-2013 from higher taxes paid by some businesses with less increased in 2010/11 and 2011/12.

Supporters include the California Teachers' Association, the League of Women Voters and the California Democratic Party. Major "pro" donors are the California Teachers Association, America's Families First, and the National Education Association. Opponents include the California Taxpayers' Association and the California Small Business Alliance. Donors for the "no" position include Genetech, General Electric, Cisco Systems, CBS, Time Warner, Walt Disney, Viacom, FOX group, AmGen, QualComm, Hewlett-Packard and Johnson & Johnson.

Proposition 25: Title says it all

The complete title of Proposition 25 is "Changes Legislative Vote Requirement to Pass Budget and Budget-Related Legislation from Two-Thirds to a Simple Majority. Retains Two-Thirds Vote Requirement for Taxes." The title is intended to allay voter concerns that the measure will somehow affect or weaken the two-thirds-vote requirement for raising taxes. Opponents argue that it may be misleading.

The initiative changes the size of the majority needed to pass the annual budget and spending bills related to the budget from two-thirds to a simple majority. Forty-seven other states require only a simple majority to pass a budget. The measure also states that if the Legislature fails to pass a budget bill by June 15, as required by the state Constitution, all members of the Legislature will permanently forfeit any salary and reimbursement for expenses for each day until it passes a bill, whether the Legislature is in regular or special session. The initiative states, in Section 3.2, "This measure will not change Proposition 13's property tax limitations in any way and will not change the two-thirds requirement for the Legislature to raise taxes."

The fuel behind the measure is the legislative failure to pass a timely budget 17 times in the past 20 years. Last year, California had to issue $450,000 in IOU's to state employees, small businesses and others who do business with the state, costing taxpayers $8 million in interest payments. Supporters argue the budget delays are unconscionable and are the result of Legislators holding out for pet pork projects and having no incentives to compromise and execute a timely budget.

Opponents, including outgoing Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger, argue that passage gives control of the process to the majority in the state Legislature. But although the current control rests with Democrats, that could change in the future. Opponents also argue the measure allows the majority to authorize spending increases as part of the budget bill, and imply that those increases are in effect "taxes" (increased spending would require increased revenues, hence new taxes), but the measure clearly makes no change to the two-thirds requirement for state tax increases. Opponents, undeterred by the bill's specific language retaining Proposition 13's limitations, also claim that passage of Proposition 25 would lead to overturning 13.

Opponents include the California Chamber of Commerce (CCOC), Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association, Small Business Action Committee (SMAC), and California Taxpayers' Association. Donors against include: CCOC, SMAC, Chevron and American Beverage Association.

Supporters include the California Federation of Teachers (CFT), California Teachers Association (CTA) California Nurses Association and the League of Women Voters. Donors in support include: CFT, CTA and the AFL-CIO.

Proposition 26: Fee or taxes?

Proposition 26, with the long ballot title — "Requires that Certain State and Local Fees be Approved by Two-Thirds Vote. Fees Include Those that Address Adverse Impacts on Society or the Environment Caused by the Fee-Payer's Business" — is an attempt by many large companies that make products negatively affecting the environment or the health of California citizens to redefine as "taxes" regulatory and mitigating fees assessed to them.

New taxes or increases require a two-thirds vote of the Legislature or of voters in local jurisdictions. Fees are currently passed by a simple majority in the Legislature and local jurisdictions. As a result, the unintended consequence would likely place additional burdens on taxpayers to fund future needs.

Supporters of Proposition 26 argue that by allowing legislators to pass state budgets by majority vote rather than the current two-thirds vote, the Democrat-controlled legislature will, by increasing spending, in effect be increasing taxes.

Opponents see the measure as a dodge by corporate polluters and the alcohol and beverage industry to avoid paying for the negative health consequences to the public that is a direct consequence of their activities. Currently, the state imposes various types of industry-specific regulatory fees, such as: fees on oil manufacturers to pay for local oil collecting programs, recycling and inspections of used-oil recycling facilities; fees on chemical companies to help cover costs of public agency responses to chemical accidents; and surcharges on hazardous materials fees

Pertussis danger and flu shots

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

Only 5,272 confirmed cases of pertussis, the official name for whooping cough (see sidebar for symptoms), have been reported in California since January. It may not seem like a large number of cases, but fewer than 1,000 cases occurred during all of 2009. This is the largest outbreak in 60 years, according to the California Department of Public Health (CDPH). Pertussis is a cyclical occurrence and the last peak occurred in 2005.

Nearly 5 percent (235 cases) of the active cases have occurred in Riverside County. In 2009, fewer than 100 had occurred in the same period. While the number of confirmed cases in Riverside County is the ninth highest in California, the incidence rate (cases per 100,000 people) is significantly lower than many counties with fewer case totals. Through Thursday, Oct. 7, no pertussis deaths have been recorded in Riverside County.

Barbara Coleman, Riverside County director of disease control, urges parents and adults to get shots for pertussis. Current incident rates are highest for infants and children between 7 and 9 years old. The majority of the adolescent cases are occurring in 10- and 11-year-old children.

"Even people who have had a TDAP vaccine [tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis] should have booster shots," said Coleman.

CDPH recommends that all Californians older than 10 receive a booster shot against pertussis. Beginning next year, all students entering seventh through twelfth grades will need proof of a TDAP booster shot before starting school.

Besides pertussis, local health officials are encouraging residents to get an annual flu shot. This year, the H1N1 vaccine will be included in the flu shot so patients will not have to go for two different shots.

Riverside County is offering flu vaccine free to all ages at its family care centers. Shots will be available at those public health clinics 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, according to Coleman. (See sidebar for nearby locations.)

Third District Supervisor Jeff Stone plans to attend several flu shot clinics throughout his district, including Idyllwild. He is qualified to administer the shots and has offered to schedule clinics in the districts of his board colleagues.

The annual Idyllwild HELP Center Health Fair is scheduled for Nov. 6 and free flu shots will be available, according to Dr. Richard Goldberg.

Officially, the H1N1 epidemic passed with only a minor scourge. Hospitalization and deaths were higher than 2009, but the final levels were much lower than the early season predictions.

This year, the pertussis

Pertussis symptoms

According to the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, pertussis can cause serious illness in infants, children and adults. The disease starts like the common cold, with runny nose or congestion, sneezing, and occasionally a mild cough or fever. After one or two weeks, severe coughing begins.

Infants and children with the disease cough violently and rapidly, over and over, until the air in the lungs is gone, forcing them to inhale with a gasping and loud "whooping" sound.

Pertussis is most severe for babies; more than half of infants less than 1 year of age who get the disease must be hospitalized. About one in five infants with pertussis get pneumonia (lung infection). In rare cases (1 in 100), pertussis can be deadly, especially in infants.

Pertussis is usually spread by means of coughing or sneezing while in close contact with others.

danger is present. Coleman urged residents not to dismiss the concern. The disease is cyclical and a vaccine now can be useful prevention for years.

The best way to prevent pertussis is by vaccination. The TDAP vaccine is a safe and effective combination vaccine that protects children against three diseases: diphtheria, tetanus, and pertussis. For maximum protection against pertussis, children need five TDAP shots. The first three shots are given at 2, 4, and 6 months of age. The fourth shot is given between 15 and 18 months of age, and a fifth shot is given when a child enters school, at 4-6 years old. Parents can also help protect infants by keeping them away as much as possible from anyone who has cold symptoms or is coughing.

Vaccine protection can fade with time. Boosters are available for adolescents and adults. Preteens going to the doctor for their regular check-up at age 11 or 12 years should get a dose of TDAP. Adults who didn't get TDAP as a youngster should get one dose of TDAP.

The Perils of reporting on Pertussis

By JENNA HUNT
CORRESPONDENT

In my career as a journalist, I've covered everything from the politics, the arts to medicine, but it is my work in medical reporting that has caused me the most stress and concern.

I developed a bad case of medical student's disease or syndrome also known as hypochondriasis. This condition frequently affects medical students who perceive themselves or others to be experiencing the symptoms of the disease(s) they are studying.

While working at a daily newspaper in North Carolina for four years, I reported on every type of disease, infection or ailment as well as innovative surgeries. At first the hypochondriasis was mild and then it became such a humorous problem that the doctors I interviewed, my editors and fellow reporters would joke with me about having medical student's syndrome.

It has been many years since I have reported on flu outbreaks, diseases from flood waters after hurricanes, and pertussis (aka whooping cough). Recently, J.P., editor of the Town Crier, assigned me a simple medical story on the increasing reports of pertussis in Riverside County.

During my research, the medical student's disease returned in the days that followed: The cough that I thought was a developing cold worsened and my nose started running like a waterfall, and did not get better after a couple weeks.

I read that the symptoms for pertussis were very similar to my own cough and runny nose which later develops into a severe cough. While my cough was not quite severe, at times I would start coughing and couldn't stop without a glass of water. I was on a recent interview for the Town Crier and this very thing happened and the water fixed it. An infection with pertussis can last months and must be treated with antibiotics to help prevent the spread of the infection to others.

If I ever was vaccinated for pertussis, I'm not protected now and my cough and runny nose persisted. I feared I had contracted pertussis.

I find peace in the fact that I don't have the additional symptoms of vomiting, a red or blue face, the "whoop" sound when I cough continuously, problems breathing, extreme tiredness or sweating spells. I simply have the ongoing cough, a runny nose and if it doesn't go away naturally in a few weeks, I will make an appointment to get tested. After all, I have to take into consideration that it could be just a case of medical school student syndrome, but in my situation medical reporter's syndrome.

'My India' — One man's journey to find a village

By Beth Nottley
Staff Reporter

Etan Doronne opens the Idyllwild Community Recreation Council (ICRC) 2010-2011 Speaker's Series. Doronne will share his experiences from a yearlong, solitary backpacking journey through rural India.

Doronne now travels the United States presenting his story, "My India: Where Every Village is Home." He was so affected by the villagers' "generosity, kindness and willingness to share with an outsider" that he was moved to introduce others to their way of life and possibly to encourage people to travel through India the way he did, with no set plan and very little money.

"The whole point of my presentation is to inspire people to find their own way through India," Doronne said.

Doronne said that although some of the villages he visited had never had a foreign visitor, he was welcomed at every one of them. "I was treated like a long-awaited guest," he said. "I was invited to eat at their [villagers] homes and they shared everything they had with me," he said.

Doronne said the culture he found throughout rural India sharply contrasts with American and other Western cultures that are focused on making money, often at the price of personal integrity. He observes that Americans usually keep to themselves and are wary of strangers. He also said that violence and crime is almost unheard of in rural India. "Part of their cultural values is never to harm another person," he said.

He was also impressed by how many of the rural villages were self-sustaining, with residents building homes and growing food for their community. He said that he only saw true poverty in the cities. "The village people don't consider themselves poor,"

Halloween: same date, new place

By J.P. Crumrine
Editor

The traditional Idyllwild Pumpkin Carnival and Parade continues again this year with some minor changes. Both events will be Sunday, Oct. 31.

The parade will start at 4:15 p.m. at Fern Valley Corners and proceed down N. Circle Dr. But this year, the carnival will be located on Ridgeview Drive from its intersection with Village Center Drive to Highway 243.

This change will permit safer and more convenient access to "Ghost Town," which is located on the Idyllwild Community Center property this year. Closing Ridgeview will allow children and parents direct access to the recent addition to the Idyllwild Halloween tradition, according to Kari Arnson, coordinator of the annual event for the Idyllwild School Parent Teacher Association (PTA).

For the benefit of parents and friends who do not plan to shadow the Halloween Parade to the carnival or need adult refreshments during the event, Arnson said the Tea Company plans to remain open until 9 p.m.

The carnival will again offer the bouncing house, a coin toss and the cake walk among several games and booths. Monetary or baked good donations for the cake walk can be dropped at Idyllwild School on Thursday or Friday, Oct. 28 or 29. Arnson advises potential benefactors that baked goods must be wrapped and commercially prepared or store-bought.

Volunteers are needed to help with the set-up and take-down of the carnival. During the parade, several local non-profit groups have volunteered to operate the facilities so that parents can observe the parade. Individuals interested in helping may call Arnson at (951) 760-1558.

Proceeds from the carnival will benefit the PTA and the school's Booster Club.

Completion of archive center to be celebrated

By Beth Nottley
Staff Reporter

The Idyllwild Area Historical Society (IAHS) is hosting a celebration of two landmark accomplishments on Saturday, Oct. 23. This month marks the Society's 10th anniversary and coincides with the completion of the new archive and research center.

The new center, located in back of the IAHS museum, is a 735-square-foot, climate-controlled building that is specifically designed for the long-term preservation of collected documents, photographs and artifacts. IAHS's collection now approaches 7,500 items and is growing rapidly.

Since the IAHS museum, housed in a cabin built in 1930, opened in October 2003, IAHS Vice President, Treasurer and historical researcher Bob Smith said IAHS members have been working toward making the dream of having an archive come true.

"The collection was soon too extensive to be kept in the old garage and shed that had been remodeled to provide storage space and room for archivists to work," Smith said. Members offered temporary space in homes and garages but it became apparent that a real archival facility was needed, he added.

The society received about $32,000 in grants from Third District County Supervisor Jeff Stone and his predecessor Jim Venable. When public funding sources dried up, IAHS members dug in and with careful financial planning and generous donations from the community, raised the rest of the money needed to build the $160,000 facility. Smith stated, "We've [the IAHS] been squirreling away funds over the years, beyond that it was all private donations that has made this dream a reality."

Many locals have contributed to this new local landmark. Architect Jim Marsh donated his services, not only designing the facility but also overseeing the county permitting process. Griner Construction built the facility. Outside, cedar shingles cover thick, noncombustible wallboard. The clean lines and simple beauty of the facility is augmented by the foundation, built by local contractor Charlie Clayton, made of river rocks from the San Jacinto River.

A practical but important aspect of the facility is a handicapped-accessible restroom for museum visitors. "The restroom will allow us to handle groups, like schoolkids and senior citizens," Smith said.

The entire community is invited to the celebration from 3 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 23. Founding President Sheila Meyer and other key founders will be on hand to share and reminisce with attendees. During the ceremony, the building's name will be announced and a plaque sculpted by local artist Dore Capitani will be unveiled. Inset into the artwork that depicts Tahquitz Rock will be the names of all the donors to the facility.

"This is a shining moment for the Historical Society," said IAHS Board President Carolyn Levitsky. "The planning has been going on for years; we dreamed big and worked hard and our members have made it [the new center] possible."

Beth Nottley can be reached at beth@towncrier.com.

The Idyllwild Area Historical Society (IAHS) will dedicate its new archival and research facility, located behind the IAHS museum on North Circle Drive, on Saturday, Oct. 23. The name of the building will be revealed at the event.

'Only in Idyllwild' stories sought

The Town Crier's well of Only in Idyllwild stories has run dry. Readers are invited to submit stories about things that could have only happened here. E-mail them to beth@towncrier.com or drop them by the Town Crier office.

COLONEL BO'S LOVE AFFAIR

They say Idyllwild is a 'Craft Community.' Most everyone is an artist of some sort. We come here to live and "Do Our Thing" in peace and beauty — away from the noise and hate and speed of the world. Two of my friends draw and paint. Adrian acts. I write stories. Diana makes movies. Penny and Ann Marie quilt. Jenny and Jerome write songs. It's a strange but beautiful life — far away from and rather above Main Street. It allows us to feel like and act like artists, poets. The other day Penny kissed me goodbye and took off for a week at the National Senior Olympics at St. George, Utah. She's a world-class volleyball setter. I held her a moment; then she was gone. I didn't realize that we have a deep, mystic affection. She's sixty; I ninety. But once she was gone, I sat down— immediately alone. Then the room was filled with Andy Williams singing "I Won't Last a Day Without You." She had put on the CD as a farewell. I cried. Linda & Lauren have this stuff all over in their B's MOUNTAIN of BOOKS. Go visit and relax — read and feel; laugh and cry.

Idyllwild 2011: Film Fest plans

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Steve Savage, Idyllwild's resident film director and Idyllwild 2011 Independent Festival of Cinema (Idyllwild 2011) director, said preparations are well underway for a second iteration of the January event.

"Festival submissions are beginning to come in," said Savage. "Already we've received six features, 20 shorts and eight documentaries. The bulk of submissions will come in late October and throughout November, up until the Wednesday, Dec. 1 deadline." Savage asks for volunteers to screen and rate submissions. If interested, contact him at savage@lunatopia.com or (951) 537-4230.

"Any local who volunteers 15 hours to the festival, prior to or during the festival run, will receive an all access pass," he said. "We'll start calling for volunteers on Friday, Oct. 15." Festival submissions come in the form of DVDs so local film buffs with a DVD player and time to screen films and fill out festival rating sheets can put their festival hours in prior to January.

"Our festival goal is to present 50 features, 20 documentaries and however many shorts we can schedule," said Savage. Scheduling will be made easier because the number of venues has doubled from two to four.

During the festival week of Monday Jan. 10 through Saturday Jan. 15, Idyllwild 2011 will present films at the Rustic Theatre, the Caine Learning Center, Rainbow Inn and the Silver Pines Lodge. The Caine, Rainbow and Silver Pines venues will all feature 70-inch screens and quality sound systems, said Savage.

"Silver Pines will be our 'Kid Galahad Grindhouse Lounge,' screening our super-gore/cartoon violence pics, and there are a lot of those films out there," he laughed. "Chris Singer [Silver Pines owner] has been amazing — incredibly helpful and always asking 'what do you need?'" Savage said that Singer's other property, Creekstone Inn, will be set up as a media studio during the festival. "Sara Dillon, Palm Springs Edge TV, will host a daily media studio at Creekstone for interviewing celebrities," he said. "And we'll have two additional video journalists roaming town talking to festival attendees and people on the street."

Other planned additions for Idyllwild 2011 are several large tents behind the Rustic that will offer beer, beverages and food for attendees strapped for dining time between screenings. A complaint last year was that there were too few readily accessible restaurants open at the times festival attendees needed them to be open. Savage is hoping that local restaurants can have booths in the tents. "We had to turn down Starbucks as a sponsor," said Savage. "That hurt, because of the money they have, but it would have gone against our local image, and we have good coffee providers in town."

Other changes, based on attendee input, will be to minimize any scheduling changes, and if such changes were to occur, to have a large bulletin board outside the Rustic, advertising any changes hours before. Also, the festival program will offer synopses of each scheduled film. Last year, it did not and festival goers complained they did not have enough information to make choices of which films to attend. The festival website, which will also carry film synopses, will have a daily podcast streaming event highlights for each festival day.

"The Rotary has been very helpful and cooperative," said Savage, noting that the 12' by 4' Idyllwild 2011 banner should be up by Halloween. Festival signage should begin to decorate the town soon after.

And finally, Will Wallace, last year's festival featured actor/director, will return this year as Idyllwild 2011 chairman.

We'll publish more updates as the dates for Idyllwild 2011 approach.

Business improvement districts becoming the norm

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Local shop owner Judy Begin notes with dismay the recent spate of letters to the editor questioning the need for an Idyllwild Business Improvement District (BID). Two signatories, Hill part-timers with full-time residences in Omaha and San Diego who question the efficacy of an Idyllwild BID, live in cities with BIDs and thriving commercial sectors. In fact, San Diego has one of the largest BIDs in the state. Writers refer to Idyllwild as their "part-time paradise," ostensibly wishing to define and preserve their idea of paradise as one with fewer tourists and more peace and quiet.

"What they don't realize," said Begin, "is that business owners are residents, too, and we employ residents." Begin notes that some letter writers have characterized Idyllwild shop owners as "predatory." "It's as if we hide in the bushes and grab unsuspecting tourists and hold them till they buy something." She points out that BID assessments are often used for town improvement, including landscaping, lighting, and sanitation. "These folks don't understand that it just won't all go to tourism, but to improve the town," she noted.

She points out, as do other local business people, that should Idyllwild lose its commercial core, part-timers might have their peace and quiet, but Idyllwild full-time residents would lose essential services.

Doug Yagaloff, business owner and BID proponent, explains that Idyllwild, by definition, is a tourist town. It has no industry and is dependent on tourists visiting and locals buying locally. And for an economically healthy town core to survive, it must provide services, shops and restaurants that visitors and locals enjoy frequenting. Most tourist towns, including Palm Springs, Carlsbad, Laguna Beach, San Diego and New York City, add a percentage to all overnight stays to fund business improvement districts and help underwrite town or city services. If you check your hotel bill in any of these cities, you will find add-on assessments to fund services that benefit tourists and locals, he stressed.

Chamber President and now full-time resident Mimi Lamp observes, "When I was a part-timer, we would go to dinner, a movie and do a little shopping. Now that we live here, we shop for food at the grocery store, grab a movie at the video store or theater, buy a lunch or dinner at a restaurant, get a haircut, See BID, page 30

"If you're caught contracting (verbally or in writing, by bid or hourly) without a license, you will likely have to go in front of a judge to answer to misdemeanor charges, which carry a potential sentence of up to six months in jail and/or a $500 fine, and a potential administrative fine of $200 to $15,000. If you get caught again, the penalties get stiffer. You could face a mandatory 90-day jail sentence as well as a fine of 20 percent of the contract price of the work performed, or a $4,500 fine."

Monumental considerations

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The Idyllwild Chamber of Commerce Board under President Mimi Lamp is determined to do what previous boards could not do — resolve the nearly three-year impasse over the Idyllwild Tree Monument Chamber commission to local carver David Roy. A recent meeting at the home of Jay and Steve Johnson may help resolve the community squabble over the sculpture finish and location.

At its August 2010 meeting, the Chamber and Roy agreed to explore how and when the still unfinished carving could be moved to the Village Center Drive location. A committee of two, Mike Pearson of Pearson's Wood Service and Brent Miller of the Idyllwild Business Roundtable, agreed to explore the logistical issues, discuss them with Roy and report back to the Chamber Board.

In Brent Miller's conversations with Roy, it became clear that although Roy was resigned to moving his piece, which he calls "Harmony," to another location, he has strong reservations about the suitability of the Village Center site. "There is too much direct sunlight," said Roy, concerned that his carving's longevity would be endangered. As a result, Miller, with the Chamber's knowledge, explored with Roy and others, alternative locations for "Harmony."

Miller's explorations identified three additional possibilities, each providing the shade and public prominence sought by Roy. One was on a different area on the current site owned by Jay Johnson. The Nature Center (the county has expressed interest) was another and the third was the possibility of a private person purchasing the sculpture (reimbursing the Chamber for its outlay) and situating it at a church-owned campground.

At a Friday Oct. 8 meeting at Johnson's home, board members met with Roy and the Johnson, brothers, to discuss whether these options, including placing "Harmony" on a section of the Johnson property, might better serve "Harmony's" longevity and ultimately the community and donors.

"We inherited this project," said Lamp as the meeting began. "We're trying to continue with the spirit of the competition [that awarded Roy the carving commission] and complete the project as intended. We'd need to hear some compelling arguments to move it to somewhere else." The current board feels bound by the contract even though previous boards had argued that it is no longer binding and should be renegotiated if the Chamber were to continue having responsibility for the Monument.

The Johnson brothers offered, should the town and the Chamber agree, to dedicate a portion of their property as Harmony's home and voluntarily construct a stone foundation for it.

"We have RV parking there," said Jay. "It would be a good Kodak moment spot. We have no problem with that and donating a little bit of money to build the base. We want to support the town." Johnson stressed that his offer is there if this is what the town wants.

Quilters

in their efforts to celebrate the lemon lily and to educate locals and visitors," said Doug Yagaloff, owner of Mountain Harvest Market and a principal LLF organizer. "We would encourage a similar project next year."

Jazz in the Pines was the second beneficiary of a quilt for auction. This one raised $2,000 at the Patron's Dinner. The funds went directly for Idyllwild Arts Academy scholarships. Along with four other quilters, Bottomly discovered the pattern used for the quilt while browsing a quilt show in San Luis Obispo, and immediately thought of the Idyllwild Jazz Fest; the pattern was more artistic than traditional, she explained. The quilt will be displayed, along with many others, at the Quilt Show from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Oct. 16 and 17 at the Idyllwild School Gym.

Referring to the speed at which the quilt donations became popular, Padula said, "It just took off and snowballed." Future gift quilts include one for Living Free Animal Sanctuary's 30th anniversary and a second quilt for the Tree Lighting Ceremony this holiday season. "It's for a good cause," said member Deanna Collins, "and it's positive for any group in town to earn money."

Living Free will be celebrating 30 years of rescuing, rehabilitating, and fostering cats and dogs facing euthanasia by having an autumn-themed day of arts, crafts, vendors, a silent auction and raffle prizes, including the auctioning of a beautiful quilt with each block made by a different quilter. The anniversary celebration will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 16. Tickets for the quilt raffle are $2 each, $3 for 5, and $7 for 10.

For the 50th Anniversary of the Tree Lighting Ceremony, which includes sing-alongs, cookie decorating, visits with Santa Claus, and a reading of "The Night Before Christmas," a Christmas quilt will be auctioned to raise money for the regalia tree's new lights. Until the holidays, the quilt will remain in the lobby of BBVA Compass Bank. Tickets for the quilt are $1 each or 6 for $5.

Enthusiastic and bighearted, many mountain quilters are in varying ways enthused with the particular creativity quilting instills and perpetuates in them. The pleasure of creation along with the multitudinous acts of goodwill interestingly bridges the gulf between the arts and community service.

Steele takes fourth at Chattanooga

By JACK CLARK
PROFESSIONAL GOLF CORRESPONDENT

This past weekend, Brendan Steele finished fourth in the Chattanooga Classic. Playing at the Black Creek Club in Chattanooga, Tenn., Steele posted a 17-under-par (67-68-70-66) total 271 and earned $24,000 in prize money for his best finish of his Nationwide Tour career. This was his third top-10 and his 11th top-20 finish of this year.

He also rose to 26th on the Nationwide Tour money list. He is less than $3,800 behind the player in 25th position in "The 25." This select group, the 25 highest tour earners, will graduate to the PGA Tour next year.

Although Steele will miss this week's tournament in Miami due to a personal commitment, he will still have two tournaments remaining in which to capture a top-25 position.

The Idyllwild native played well last week and had drives averaging nearly 314 yards, which found the fairway almost 80 percent of the time. He reached greens in regulation on more than 80 percent of the holes. When his approach did find a greenside bunker, he managed to get up and down 80 percent of the time. Along the way, he posted two eagles and 20 birdies against only five bogies and one double.

Steele now has earned $164,032 in official prize money this year, already closing in on double his previous best season total. County adopts plan to adjust supervisor districts

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

The national decennial census occurred this past spring. The resulting population figures will engender entertaining political discussions from the end of the Nov. 2 election through the 2012 primary season.

Redistricting will change the boundaries for federal, state and local, elected officials. Federal congressional districts will be reapportioned, although California is not expected to lose or add to its 53 seats. State assembly and senate districts also will be recalibrated.

Locally, Riverside County's five supervisorial districts will be transformed. This process may have a direct effect on the Hill.

The Third District, home to Idyllwild, will be changed the most. Assuming registered voters are a surrogate for total population, we can get a peek at the extent of the transformation.

Current estimates indicate more than 216,000 registered voters or more than 25 percent of the county's total registration reside in the Third District. Based on current figures, and an intention to balance numbers of voters by district, each district should have about 166,000 registered voters. Each of the other four districts is slightly shy of that figure.

Several times, Third District Supervisor Jeff Stone has said he wants and plans to keep Idyllwild in his district in order to complete several of the projects he has initiated since his election in 2005. This includes expansion of Hemet Ryan air attack base, the local historic district and a new Idyllwild library.

For next spring, the county has planned public workshops about the redistricting process. During this period, a county redistricting committee will formulate alternative plans and accept plans from the public. By late summer, a preferred plan will be submitted to the board that will hold public hearings on the proposals before adopting new boundaries for the county's supervisor districts.

New Forest Supervisor

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

On Friday, Forest Service Regional Forester Randy Moore announced Jody Noiron as the new Forest Supervisor for the San Bernardino National Forest.

For the past 10 years, Noiron has been the Forest Supervisor of the Angeles National Forest. She replaces Jeanne Wade Evans, who was elevated to deputy regional forester for state and private forestry in the Pacific Southwest Region.

"Jody brings a wealth of natural resource experience and strong leadership skills to the new position, having served as the Angeles Forest Supervisor since 2000," Moore said in a press release. "The San Bernardino is one of the most heavily visited and complex national forests in our nation. With Jeanne Wade Evans' recent move to the Region ... we're pleased to have another strong Forest Supervisor who brings a wealth of experience in natural resource and land management."

Noiron's transfer (she was unavailable for an interview) will raise many questions. One of California's most devastating fires — the August and September 2009 Station Fire — occurred in the Angeles National Forest. Since its control a year ago, the Forest Service's management and conduct during the fire has come under intense scrutiny. Investigations started with an internal Forest Service review and are continuing under the General Accounting Office. Congressman Adam Schiff, (D Pasadena) has held several hearings about the fire and the use of air attack.

Even before the Station Fire, Noiron's reputation had been blemished when the Forest Service experienced firefighter attrition several years ago. Trained and experienced Forest Service firefighters were leaving for higher pay positions in CAL FIRE and local fire departments. While all of the southern California forests lost staff, Noiron's management style seemed to antagonize the ground troops, according to several discussions on the frequently read firefighting "They Said" blog.

Although it is a privately organized site supporting federal firefighters, it attracts comments from throughout the region and nation. On Friday, three writers expressed sarcastic praise about Noiron's transfer to the San Bernardino National Forest, including apologies to local federal firefighters.

Previously, Noiron has held the position of deputy regional forester for resources as well as deputy forest supervisor for the Plumas National Forest. She began her career in 1983 as an engineer on the Jefferson National Forest in Virginia and has gained experience in a variety of other positions in the agency at both the local and national level.

Children's books sought for school library

Karen Visel, Idyllwild School librarian, said she welcomes donations of children's books to be used in the school library and for children to check out to read at home.

Donations of books in good condition can be made at the Idyllwild School office.

Healthy Lifestyle class offered

Brenda Scherlis, nurse practitioner for the Idyllwild Health Center, will lead a Healthy Lifestyle class, which will meet every Tuesday at the Silver Pines Lodge located at 25955 Cedar Street.

There will be an optional weigh-in at 6 p.m., followed by a healthy lifestyle talk by Scherlis at 6:30 p.m. There is no charge to attend the class, but donations will be accepted.

National Monument anniversary

The Santa Rosa and San Jacinto Mountains National Monument is comprised of approximately 280,000 acres supported by the Bureau of Land Management, Forest Service, Friends of the Desert Mountains, and the Agua Caliente Band of Cahuilla Indians. Congresswoman Bono Mack, one of the key advocates and supporters of the creation of the Santa Rosa and San Jacinto Mountains National Monument, will attend the Monument's 10th Anniversary Celebration on Monday, Oct. 18. Bono Mack introduced the legislation that created the National Monument in October 2000, and has since been an avid supporter. Held at the National Monument Visitor Center on Highway 74, and presented by the Friends of the Desert Mountains, Southern California Edison, and Palm Springs Life, a Kick-Off Event will launch the celebration of 10 years of conservation, preservation, education, and community outreach at 10 a.m. Monday, Oct. 18.

Haunted Ghost Town seeks volunteers

The Idyllwild Ghost Town committee is looking for people to join its design team for the Ghost Town and Enchanted Forest. Design teams members must willing and able to work on their ideas and projects to completion.

A construction team is also needed, as well as donations of old lumber, window frames, and doors. Any Western props would also be appreciated.

Since the Ghost Town is moving to the Idyllwild Community Center site, the committee said a lot more work is needed on the exterior, and that several more scenes will be added. Also, new this year, will be an Enchanted Forest Trail for the young ones.

The committee also urgently needs a place to keep an 8' x 40' storage container.

If you can help with any of these things, call Kat Wilson at (951) 659-3228.

Propositions

to clean up toxic waste sites and promote pollution prevention. Local and municipal governments also impose their own fees, like those on alcohol retailers that go to code enforcement. Proposition 26 would make passage of similar regulatory fees more difficult.

Jean Ross, of the California Budget Project (CPB), states that Proposition 26 is designed to overturn a unanimous 1997 California Supreme Court decision that upheld imposing a fee on Sinclair Paint to defray costs of services for children at risk of poisoning from lead-based paint as a "fee" not a "tax."

The California Legislative Analyst's Office estimates future state and local government revenues could be diminished by billions annually. Thus, the burden for paying for these regulatory services would be shifted to the general taxpayer rather than the beneficiary or culprit of the health-affecting actions.

Other than the California Chamber of Commerce (CCOC), oil and alcoholic beverage companies, there are few supporters for Proposition 26. Donors supporting include: CCOC, Chevron, American Beverage Association and the Small Business Action Committee.

Opponents count League of Women Voters, Sierra Club, American Lung Association, California Nurses Association, Physicians for Social Responsibility, Natural Resources Defense Council, California League of Conservation Voters, California Professional Firefighters, CDF Firefighters, California Statewide Law Enforcement Association, California Federation of Teachers (CFT) and the California Teacher Association (CTA). Leading opposing donors include: the California School Employees Association and CDF and California Professional Firefighters, and the CFT.

Winterfest

of fun, fantasy and festivity for the Christmas season.

Altadena's Christmas Tree Lane is a .7-mile stretch of Santa Rosa Avenue that has been lighted for the holidays since 1920. It is now part of the U.S. National Register of Historic Places and designated a California Historic Landmark. Organizers hope Idyllwild will become the alpine equivalent.

Julie Johnson, Winterfest coordinator and Chamber director, notes that Idyllwild business people have already volunteered to organize and contribute to expand this event: local inns will have a one-evening open house for locals and tourists to see their decorations and sample holiday goodies; restaurants will host a "soup walk" on a particular day/evening; new bakery Honeybuns and Joe will present gingerbread decorating; Jo'An's will host a Christmas caroling karaoke for adults, families and children; smARTS will present a children's holiday art display; Earth N' Fire will host an ornament painting evening; Friends of the Idyllwild Library will present children's holiday storytelling; the Cave will drop a midnight pine cone on New Year's Eve; and the County Parks and Nature Center will have snow play areas.

The piece de resistance, in the organizers view, will be Santa progressing down a darkened North Circle from Fern Valley Corners on the traditional Idyllwild Fire Department truck. Just as the tree lighting ceremony commences, holiday lights of shops, restaurants and churches will be coordinated to come on as Santa passes, culminating in a brightly lit town from Fern Valley Corners to the town center, just as the tree lighting ceremony commences.

Johnson said more events would be added as the holiday planning continues to unfold. And, she notes, all this is being done without a budget, using just the goodwill and spirit of the town.

fabrication material, construction materials, biodegradable plastics, and so much more. The hemp plant pulp is a source for biomass fuel to make natural gas, charcoal, methanol, gasoline, and even electricity.

The seeds are of great nutritional protein value. The leaf is of great medicinal value for relieving stress and treating illnesses from glaucoma to nausea in cancer patients. The root also plays a significant role in invigorating the soil in which it is grown.

One acre of hemp can replace five acres of cotton used for the same materials, which is substantial when we note that cotton [growers] use over 50 percent of all pesticides applied in the United States.

Actually, [pesticides success rate] only kills 3 percent of the intended insects. The rest runs off into our ground water and is embedded in our clothing.

One acre of hemp can replace four acres of trees used for paper, and hemp has only a three-month growing season. Hemp can add over a trillion dollars to the U.S. economy and at the same time provide us with plenty of independent economic stability.

This is why legalization is so critical. Please share this very important information with all those who aren't privy to the truth and facts about hemp. Getting to the polls and voting "yes" [on Proposition 19] to legalize marijuana can be the first baby step toward our future recovery. There really is a bigger picture at stake here.

Town Crier biased?

EDITOR:

It was both ironic and enlightening to see Diane Noble's eloquent letter condemning anti-Semitic vandalism and calling for local religious leaders to speak to this issue placed side-by-side with Chris Fisher's Mr. Funny Guy cartoon, with its obvious stereotypical portrayal of the Amish as a group whose beliefs and lifestyle open them up to ridicule. (Sept. 30, Town Crier)

I have no idea if the Town Crier purposely chose to juxtapose this cartoon and letter or if it was serendipity. Either way, it does serve to graphically point out we all have a problem; not respecting the beliefs and lifestyles of others.

Those little jokes that speed over the Internet all tend to belittle someone's religion or ethnicity, but we all tend to punch the forward key, helping to spread the problem. It is sometimes hard not to see the humor in the other guy's beliefs or lifestyle, but as Diane Noble said, we all need to love others as ourselves. In print or in cyberspace, what may be funny to us might just be perceived as hateful to others.

Local pros and cons of Proposition 19

EDITOR:

While it is just about a capital crime to smoke cigarettes in California, we are going to vote to legalize marijuana. [Proposition 19 on the Nov. 2 ballot would legalize the use of marijuana.]

One good thing is at least you won't have people coming up here and throwing their marijuana butts out the car windows.

Another good thing is everyone that comes up here is going to be hungry. If they pass the law like they want to in New York [limiting the use of food stamps], you won't be able to buy Cokes with your food stamps and that will be a bummer.

At least one good thing is we already have all the signs and stickers that say something about the mountain being "High."

If they come into the stores or restaurants, they won't care how much it costs because they have to eat or they think the food's the greatest thing they have ever seen.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be growing impatient with a situation that seems to resist efforts to resolve it. But staying with it raises the odds that you'll find a way to a successful resolution.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Travel and kinship are strong in the Bovine's aspect this week. This would be a good time to combine the two and take a trip to see family members for a pre-holiday get-together.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A colleague could make a request you're not comfortable with. If so, say so. Better to disappoint someone by sticking with your principles than disappoint yourself if you don't.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Moon Child's ability to adapt to life's ebbs and flows helps you deal with the changes that you might confront at work or at home, or both. Things settle down by the week's end.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good week for Leos and Leonas to get some long-outstanding business matters resolved. Then go ahead and plan a fun-filled family getaway weekend with the mate and the cubs.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A possible workplace change seems promising. If you decide to look into it, try not to form an opinion on just a small part of the picture: Wait for the full image to develop.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A newcomer helps keep things moving. There might be some bumpy moments along the way, but at least you're heading in the right direction. You win praise for your choices.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You could be pleasantly surprised by how a decision about one thing opens up an unexpected new option. Also, assistance on a project could come from a surprising source.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) With more information to work with, you might now be able to start the process that could lead to a major change. Reserve the weekend for family and friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) This could be a good time to begin gathering information that will help you turn that long-held idea into something substantive. A personal matter might need extra attention.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) That new challenge might carry some surprises. But you should be able to handle them using what you already know. That new supporter should be there to lend assistance.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Someone might be trying to disguise his or her true motives. But the perceptive and perspicacious Pisces should have little or no problem finding the truth in all that foggy rhetoric.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can always rely on your people skills to help you find solutions to problems others often give up on.

Monument

Lamp asked if the Village Center site would have to be re-engineered to accommodate Roy's carving. Board member Moulton expressed confidence that it would not but Roy opined that it would need additional structural support, which he said he would construct.

The meeting also revealed concerns about how "Harmony" would survive the move to the Village Center site, with Roy again expressing confidence that it could be moved. Roy also opined that the best of both worlds would be for Jonathan LaBenne, who carved the original monument, to return to carve for the Village Center site, stating that LaBenne's piece, because of its proposed height, would be seen all over town and Roy's would be "anticlimactic" at that spot. Roy said it would be better for his to remain on the Johnson property as a town gateway monument.

The meeting concluded with an agreement that Roy would create two renderings, one for the Village Center site, and one for the Johnson site (which affords more room, said Roy, to complete the piece as intended). He will submit both renderings at the next Chamber meeting, Oct. 18 and the Chamber will make a decision by Oct. 22. "I'd like the opinion of the town on this," said Roy. "I want the town to rally around the monument [and the best site for it]."

he said. "They take care of each other."

Interestingly, he sees similarities between the values expressed by the people he got to know in India and those he's met in Idyllwild. "I have had the honor of meeting people who are happy because they create happiness in others, people who care about others and spread compassion and understanding," Doronne said.

The people of Idyllwild, like the people he met in rural India, compose "a real life community that demonstrates real life to me," he noted.

Doronne's presentation from 6 to 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 20 at the Creekstone Inn, will include many photographs from his journey. A wine and cheese reception will precede his talk at 5:30 p.m. Doronne said that he will stay after the presentation so that program attendees can ask questions and sip his homemade chai tea.

There is no charge to attend the reception and presentation, which is being funded by a grant from the Mary Austin Foundation.

BID

employ the plumber, get our chimney swept, get tools and hardware supplies at the lumber store, buy propane and water, internet and cable, employ the glass man for the window damage, and the list goes on. Imagine losing our businesses due to lack of customers, whether they are residents or tourists. The town would dry up and no longer be a desirable location for anyone but a few hermits."

Some who question the BID concept for Idyllwild posit that customers will lose "buying power" from installation of a BID since, as one writer notes, "all income comes from customers," and if businesses use that income to promote their businesses, customers will pay more. But if there are more customers, then prices could be steady or even less.

BIDs are funded by a number of assessment modalities: percentage add-ons to overnight lodging stays; charging business owners a multiple of their county business license, with that money going to fund BID promotion (destination tourism marketing) and certain town services that are currently and are not likely to be funded by the county; determining gross revenues for each town business and then determining an equitable assessment based on those revenues. Representatives from the Temecula BID stressed that whatever modality is chosen, it should be "fair" — fair to assessed businesses and ultimately fair to end consumers. Assessments are not a tax and as such require no vote of the public, and they apply only to businesses within the district.

Yagaloff and other BID proponents stress that those who want to preserve the "peace and quiet" and eliminate or decrease tourism ignore what the town is and has always been — a tourist town. "As businesses, we are constantly asked to donate to this event or that cause, and most of us never say no, even in a weak economy," said Spruce Moose owner Bryan Tallent.

Garden Club is going to be when everyone will want to join.

People always talk about "Idyllwild Time." We will have to add a few extra days to the week.

One bad thing I see is every store in town will have the same pipes and roach clips — you know how that goes.

Another drawback will be the fire department every summer writing violations for people who don't keep their plants seven feet from the tops of their roofs.

CREATURE CORNER

BY MIMI AND HOOTCH

October is Adopt A Dog Month. Please adopt from a shelter. Give them a second chance to be loved.

Dingo and Divot, Pomeranian brothers, would like to stay together for the rest of their lives. Seven years old and always having the other at its side, they are the perfect "purse dogs." Do you have a place in your heart for double the love at half the adoption fee?

Maddie May is our mastiff/golden mix looking for an energetic owner. Although very obedient, she will require a strong hand for the walk, as she is big and strong. A gentle heart and attention is all that is required in return for the lifetime of love that this cuddly teddy bear is willing to give.

Found in Fern Valley are two lab mixes. Please call to identify. Reunited in Fern Valley is Rosie the beagle. Adopted this week was Valentino, the young kitten.

In the cattery, Beth Ann and Polly are both available for adoption. Ringo is the teenager at ARF. He is developing his own personality of playfulness. He is ready now to be on his own with a loving forever family.

Mrs. Magu is a 4-year-old female that loves the gentle touch of a loving hand. She is good with kids, other cats and dogs. ARF has several cats and dogs available for adoption or fostering. Go to www.idyllwildarf.org and click on petfinders. All pets are current on shots and are spayed or neutered.

ARF is open on Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call for appointment on any other day (951) 659 1122. We are located a half block off North Circle Drive at Cedar St., P.O. Box 719, Idyllwild, CA. 92549. E-mail us at arf@greencafe.com or info@idyllwildarf.org.

Creature corner is sponsored this week in memory of the beloved "Cotton." To sponsor the column, call Shane Fender at the Town Crier, 659-2145.
