Grace Moore is grand marshal

By MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Longtime Idyllwild resident Grace Moore is this year's Fourth of July Parade grand marshal. Idyllwild Rotary Club, parade organizer, made the announcement which came as a surprise to Moore who said she didn't know why they would pick her. "It's fantastic," she said when reached by telephone in Oregon. "I was quite surprised."

Fire commission to study parcel fee increase

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

In a surprising turn to those who attended the June 11 Idyllwild Fire Protection District's commission meeting, President Jeannine Charles-Stigall withdrew from its agenda the items requesting Commissioner Dr. Charles "Chip" Schelly's resignation and the censure resolution.

Without explanation, Stigall said those and the vote on whether Schelly should remain vice-president would not be addressed at the June 11 meeting.

When asked if the items were permanently withdrawn, Stigall said, "No, they are tabled." When asked if the items would be on the agenda of the next meeting or what would trigger their re-appearance, Stigall replied, "I'm not at liberty to discuss this other than I decided to table the items."

Despite the absence of these topics, the commission still had a full meeting, especially related to future financial issues. Although it took no action, the commission did discuss possibly raising the $65 parcel fees on Idyllwild property owners and a draft 2013-14 fiscal budget.

While Stigall asked if the additional revenues could be earmarked for needed capital projects, Idyllwild Fire Chief Patrick Reitz felt salaries were an important issue and should also be addressed.

Increasing fees was discussed but no vote was taken. The board did not know when the issue could be brought before the district's voters. In August 2011, Measure G, which would have doubled the parcel fee to $130 from the current $65, drew less than 40 percent of voter support.

At the meeting, Commission candidate Nancy Layton spoke in favor of a parcel fee increase.

The parcel fee discussion was separate from the proposed budget, which did not assume any parcel fee increase. The draft budget totaled $1,668,000, only $10,000 more than the current 2012-13 budget. While the commission expects to have a nearly $30,000 deficit this year, the proposed 2013-14 budget would end with a $17,000 surplus.

In other financial matters, the commission had to reconsider and lower its proposed ambulance fees for 2013-14. The fee

Clarks to make changes to newspaper

By J.P. CRUMRINE

On June 28, Becky and Jack Clark become the new owners of the Idyllwild Town Crier. Following in the footsteps of the Town Crier's founder, Ernie Maxwell, the Clarks are bringing a local, family-owned paper back to Idyllwild.

For the past 19 years, Tindle Newspapers Ltd., a private British company, has owned the Town Crier. Maxwell and his wife, Betty, published the first edition of the Town Crier in November 1946.

Becky, who retired as editor and publisher of the Town Crier in November 2009, returns to her previous post. But this time, a U.S. corporation, which she and husband Jack own, will own the newspaper.

"This is my dream. I missed it," she said. "This business has challenges I missed. I don't think I ever wanted to leave."

During her unofficial sabbatical, Clark stayed involved in the newspaper business, serving as president and board member of the California Press Association. As she has traveled and seen many other local papers, the Town Crier "is more vibrant than similar community newspapers. And it has to be to keep

OUTSIDE IDYLLWILD

By BRUCE WATTS

Wildflower report, June 2013, part 3 ...

This week saw trips down to the Grotto on Strawberry Creek, hunting giant dandelions on and off Tollgate Road, a trip up to Humber Park, yet another visit to the meadow on South Circle and Tahquitz, and two trips down to the Hub (behind Idyllwild Arts).

Last year I found Hooker's evening primroses (Oenothera elata) all over the mountain but I have yet to find any plants with flowers at all this season. This plant closely resembles the lemon lily in both size, shape and color, and is quite impressive when you spot it growing along a stream or next to Lake Fulmor.

I decided to revisit a spot where the evening primroses were abundant last year on the upper stream side of the Grotto. I did not find any plants in bloom but did hit the jackpot when it came to Western azaleas (rhododendron occidentale). As I've said before, you locate the azaleas with your nose before you actually see them. All of Strawberry Creek was awash in the perfume of Idyllwild's most wonderfully fragrant wildflower.

The azaleas were just about to peak and I took way too many photos of them, including full bushes, closeups of the flower buds, flowers with bees and even last year's seed pods that were still on some of the bushes.

I also found cattails, Creek monkey flowers, American speedwell, Streambank lotus, Cleveland's horkelia, columbine, Broad-leaved lotus plants with seed pods, Panicked bulrush, yarrow and large patches of invasive sweet peas.

After getting a report of wild onion flowers down by the Hub, Les Walker and I made a trip to find and photograph them. After a few false starts we finally found them growing in a wet spot under a grove of oak trees. I counted 19 purple-flowered Allium peninsulare var. peninsulare plants in bloom.

We also found Baby blue eyes, Blue curls, Blue Flax, bush poppies, California and Kennedy's buckwheats, morning glory, and golden ear-drops. The golden ear-drops were particularly striking with their 3- to 4-foot flower spikes topped with yellow flowers. I also got a nice photo of a Checkered White Butterfly.

A giant dandelion is awaiting a strong wind.

The next day I got out early and went to check out the giant dandelions that I believe are an Agoseris species but I have yet to identify. I only found one flower but there were about a dozen of the 4- to 6-inch white, puffy seed balls.

While I waited for the sun to come over a tree and light the giant dandelions I spent my time wandering around the vacant lot and seeing what else I could find. As often happens after you find something, you begin to see and recognize it in other places as well. In this case I found three more wild onion plants and the next day, on my way back from the Hub, I found more of the giant dandelions right on Tollgate.

TODAY'S HEALTH ISSUES

By ALBERTO MANETTA, M.D.

Bon Voyage ...

Many of us are contemplating either taking a vacation or traveling to see friends and relatives during the summer. Most of us can go through these trips with no problem. However, it is wise to remember a few basic safety tips to make vacationing safer and more pleasant.

Before you travel

If you have a serious medical condition, become familiar with the health-care delivery centers in the area where you will be vacationing. Check that the center you select will accept your health insurance.

Make a list of all prescription medications you are taking and carefully calculate what you will need when away from home. Bring a couple more for extra days; you never know when you will be stranded overnight in an unfamiliar area. It is far easier to bring your own meds than have to purchase them when away.

Medications should not be placed in checked luggage. They should always be in your carry-on luggage. If you are carrying narcotics, it is wise to have the original doctor's prescriptions with you.

I'm sure most readers are familiar with the controversy between state and federal laws in the medical use of marijuana. The medical use of marijuana is only legal in California and a handful of states. It is not advisable to carry marijuana when flying out of California. Even in marijuana-friendly states, required documentation varies from place to place.

Getting there

Flying is now a very common mode of transportation and extremely safe but can also offer challenges. Modern aircraft fly at 30,000 to 40,000 feet of altitude. The cabins must be pressurized to provide enough oxygen to passengers and crew.

However, cabins are not pressurized to the equivalent of sea-level altitude. In-cabin pressure is comparable to an altitude of 6,000 to 8,000 feet. People with severe respiratory or cardiac problems may encounter some difficulties. When in doubt it is best to discuss your travel plans with your physician.

Flying at great altitudes also makes the air in the cabin relatively dry. As result we must compensate by drinking plenty of non-alcoholic fluids to prevent dehydration.

Blood clots in the legs (Deep Vein Thrombosis), although not a very common problem, have been reported after prolonged flights. This is caused by being in a sitting, cramped position for long periods of time with little opportunity for the blood to circulate freely in the legs. Toe, feet and leg exercises while sitting are always helpful. Also, as much as possible, take short walks in the cabin and change positions on the seat. If you have a propensity for swelling legs or blood clots, consider discussing using "compression stockings" with your doctor.

While you are there

I have traveled extensively, especially through the Middle and Far East, and have gotten sick only twice: once in Ireland and the other in Las Vegas. That is because I let my guard down.; I did not think I could get sick there.

International traveling may be as easy as going to New York City or very complicated, depending on the destination. The Centers for Disease Control has a website dedicated to travel (<http://wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel/>) with lots of excellent information.

It is very important when you visit some parts of the world to be current in your vaccinations. The CDC recommends you be up-to-date on your routine vaccines, including measles-mumps-rubella vaccine, diphtheria-pertussis-tetanus vaccine, chickenpox vaccine and the yearly flu shot. It is also wise to have another dose of polio depending on where you're going. The same applies to other vaccines, like yellow fever, hepatitis A and B, rabies and typhoid.

Another issue that comes up very often is prophylaxis against malaria. Malaria is endemic in many parts of the world and it is important to get a prescription for prophylaxis medication.

Disaster relief workers are particularly vulnerable to this condition since they don't often have the opportunity to have adequate protection against the mosquitoes. For instance, everybody whom I knew working in Haiti (after the earthquake) was taking prophylaxis meds against malaria.

Travelers' diarrhea is the most common condition affecting people traveling. It is hard to get accurate statistics of this condition's occurrence but 20 to 50 percent of

PC Water OKs budget; Esnard assumes presidency

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

The Pine Cove Water District Board of Directors unanimously adopted its 2013-14 budget at last Wednesday's meeting with an 8.5 percent increase. The total budget is $825,000, up from the current year's budget of $760,000.

General Manger Jerry Holldber told the board he was projecting income would remain stable at $760,000; consequently, the $65,000 increase would be funded from carryover funds and $25,000 from restricted reserves. Total reserves, including restricted, exceed $200,000.

Riverside County's estimate of improving property sales and accompanying property tax growth in 2013-14 may mitigate the level of reserves needed.

The largest budget increase is $33,000, the first of three annual payments, to fund the district's "Other Post-employment Benefits" (such as health care). The proposal to fund the plan was approved at the May meeting.

This month the board approved the CAL PERS

(retirement plan) agreement and incorporated the initial payment in its budget for fiscal year 2013-14.

Other increases include initial payments on the U.S. Department of Agriculture loan for equipment. Having bought nearly 2 miles of pipeline, Holldber will begin replacing old mainline pipes next year. This will be the focus of the infrastructure and construction budget. Funding for drilling new wells and well upgrades was reduced since mainline replacement funding grew 80 percent.

Salaries and benefits increase about $22,000 for a 3.5 percent salary increase and the addition of two part-time employees.

In other board business, Mike Esnard, former board vice-president, chaired his first meeting as new president, following the death of President Tom McCullough. At the meeting, the board, with Director Robert Hewitt absent, elected Director Lou Padula vice-president and Hewitt as the new secretary-treasurer, succeeding Padula.

Allan Morphett unexpectedly dies

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

Between Thursday evening and Friday morning, Idyllwild Water District President Allan Morphett passed away in his home.

Morphett, born March 1944, was 69. He had been an Idyllwild resident for many years. In May 2012, his wife, Maggie, passed away after a long bout with cancer.

In 2003, he was elected to the IWD board and has served as president since December 2005.

The authors include Louisa May Alcott, Maya Angelou, Pearl Buck, Emily Dickinson, Edna Ferber, Helen Hunt Jackson, Harper Lee, Toni Morrison, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Ida Tarbell, Alice Walker, Edith Wharton, Julia Peterkin and MFK Fisher.

Engard is a native Virginian who presented her first professional lecture at age 9. She lectured through the University of California, Riverside, Extension's Sher Lifelong Learning Institute.

All ages are welcome and refreshments will be served. Donations are accepted.

To fill McCullough's vacancy, the board announced that residents interested in serving on the board may submit an application or resume to the district office by July 3. An appointment will be made at the July 10 meeting.

In water business, Holldber reported May consumption was 2.7 million gallons, about 5 percent less than May 2012. For the first five months of 2013, consumption is about 3.8 percent ahead of last year's usage.

Groundwater level of the district's static well remained unchanged from May, but groundwater levels of PCWD's other wells varied from up 5 feet to down 5 feet, according to Holldber.

He also said the district's Dutch Flats treatment facility, which provides aeration, and iron and manganese removal, was treating about 1 million gallons monthly. "It's working like a textbook; everything we expected, it's doing," he told the board.

J.P. Crumrine can be reached at jp@towncrier.com.

Strange but true

Before the 1976 film "Star Wars" was released, the studio, Twentieth Century Fox, conducted some marketing research on the movie. The results? It was concluded that robots would turn off most viewers, and that under no circumstances should the word "war" be used in the title. Obviously, filmmaker George Lucas ignored the advice.

Rotary announces new officers

NANCY LAYTON

Idyllwild Rotary hosted its annual "In & Out" dinner Friday, June 14, at the Rainbow Inn where 2013-14 officers were announced. Danny Richardson will become president, Rick Foster is president-elect for 2014-15, Chuck Weismart will be vice-president, Trisha Clark remains secretary, and Bob Lippert continues as treasurer.

In addition to announcing the officers for the coming year, outgoing President Steve Espinosa presented Bob Lippert with the award for Rotarian of the Year. Espinosa gave Rotarians and their guests a summary of the club's charitable activities this year. More than $5,000 was sent to the Rotary Foundation, which supports many valuable projects around the world.

Locally, Rotarians donated to the Idyllwild Library, $5,000 to the Idyllwild Scholarship Fund, $5,000 to the Idyllwild Community Center project, $1,000 to the summer concerts, and $1,000 to outstanding students attending Idyllwild School.

Other recipients included the Neighborhood Watch program, Twin Pines Ranch, WNKI radio station, the Mary Austin Scholarship Fund, the Idyllwild Fire Volunteer Company, the Youth Sports program and Riverside Mountain Rescue (RMRU). Third-graders at several schools in the area received dictionaries.

up with the multiplicity of views and many entities that run the town."

Looking forward to Independence Day in less than two weeks, Clark said, "The Town Crier may become a free paper only on the Hill. This would serve the community, increase circulation and serve the advertisers."

Also, the new Town Crier office on North Circle Drive will be a visitor center, open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. To enhance this role and maintain the relationship, which the defunct Idyllwild Chamber of Commerce had with visitors, the Chamber has agreed to transfer its phone number, 951-659-3259, to the paper.

"The Town Crier is our local newspaper," said Clark. "And the community always felt some ownership with the paper. We're very open to suggestions for re-design of the paper going forward."

"I'm just glad Idyllwild continues to have a real newspaper locally. And I'm glad Becky is at the helm," Jack said.

The Town Crier office will continue to sell Luther Weare's "Essence of Idyllwild," and will reprint "Trees of the San Jacintos," which has been out of print for many years.

and founding and running the charitable Gracie's Thrift Store at the Idyllwild Community Presbyterian Church, are reasons for the honor.

Moore was born in Metropolis, Ill. in 1923 and married husband George in 1942. After the World War II, they moved to Phoenix, then in 1952 to Torrance where Moore worked for Bank of America until 1978.

Moore remembers coming to Idyllwild in the early 1960s to visit a friend, Phil Hodges of Hodges Electric. "Idyllwild was smaller then," she remembered. "We'd come here to visit and play in the snow with our children. You couldn't get a cracker to eat after 5 in the afternoon; everything closed up."

But it was beautiful and a place that the family returned to regularly. The Moores bought a home here in 1979. "I've been here ever since," she said. "I do not plan on leaving here and I have loved every minute of it." With grandchildren and family in tow, Moore said she is looking forward to the Fourth of July celebration and to serving as grand marshal. "It's quite an honor," she said.

1984 or the erosion of trusting government ...

I remember back when 1984 rolled around, how for a brief moment everyone was asking the question, "Was George Orwell right?"

Are we entering the era when Big Brother is a reality, not just a whimsical notion conjured up in the imaginative mind of an English writer? It was a time before the Internet, before the age of a technological explosion when breaches of privacy become commonplace in our everyday lives. Could we have even imagined how quickly our world was about to change?

Yet here we are. Companies monitor our every purchase and our government tracks every phone call and keystroke. Perhaps Orwell was merely wrong about the year.

Today a debate is raging over whether Edward Snowden, a National Security Agency contractor, who leaked information about an NSA program that collects and stores data from every phone call we make, is a whistleblower or a traitor, a hero or a villain.

As the story develops, I'm sure each of us will decide which camp we fall into. At the moment I'm leaning toward the hero camp. When I ask myself why I'm leaning in that direction, I have to admit that at the root of it I have a deep mistrust of our government.

I find it more than interesting that government officials and a good portion of the mainstream media are so quick to label him a traitor. It almost seems that they are orchestrating a media blitz to sway and manipulate public opinion and divert our attention away from the program onto the messenger.

I deeply feel that our leaders over years have squandered the public trust. This public trust of which I speak is essential to the survival of a stable and robust democracy. I can't say whether we have ever had it to begin with but in my lifetime I've witnessed enough breaches of this trust to arrive at my present position.

I've lived through Watergate, Iran-Contra, Panama, the repeal of Glass-Steagall, the WMD rationale for the Iraq invasion, the escalation of a worldwide war on terrorism and the creation of drone technology as a way to fight war. Now we have this intrusion into our privacy and President Obama is asking us to trust them that none of this information will be used against Americans.

So why didn't the government come forward with information before Snowden blew the whistle? President Bush began this program and President Obama made it legal, but all this was kept under the radar.

Who's to say that a future administration won't find some justification to use this program against its own citizens? Truth be told, we have no guarantees.

These suspicions arise when our leaders systemically chip away at our trust and goodwill. We are rapidly approaching a time when only the powerful have secrets and the common citizen's private affairs are splayed open for government scrutiny.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein has called for Snowden's prosecution and still not one corporate head has been brought to trial over their roles in the collapse of our financial

LOLA'S KITCHEN

By DOLORES SIZER

Grilling corn on the cob ...

One of the first things I learned in grade school was that corn was a staple of Native Americans. I love Native American cuisine.

My husband and I would journey down to Fantasy Casino when they had a pow-wow with several nations attending. Each nation had their own style of tribal dress designating their affiliation.

A huge open ring in the center of all the booths facilitated the dancers, all clothed in brilliant colors, their head gear a beautiful array of magnificent feathers.

The most memorable of the food booths offered fry bread loaded with avocado, corn and tomato, as well as meat, but my memory of what kind eludes me. Yet it was so good.

Now back to corn. I have tried the following recipes. Depending on what is being served as a main course, both are good recipes.

If you are grilling beef tenderloin steaks with teriyaki sauce then the grilled corn with hoisin orange butter sauce would be a good side dish.

If your main course is grilled chicken or carne asada, I suggest the grilled corn on the cob with thyme and roasted red pepper butter.

For a nice presentation, I pull the husks back, get rid of the loose husks and clean off the corn silk. If you prefer, tie the husks back with kitchen string while grilling. The husks should be going in the opposite direction from the cob.

Husks should be hanging off the edge of the grill. Be attentive, corn burns easily.

Usually I grill corn right before the meat goes on. After you grill it, keep it warm in a low temperature oven until ready to serve or serve at room temperature. Enjoy.

Grilled corn with hoisin-orange butter

Makes six servings

4 tbsp. butter, room temperature
1 tbsp. hoisin sauce*
2-1/2 tsp. finely grated orange peel
3/4 tsp. chili-garlic sauce*
6 ears of white corn, husked, rinsed
chopped fresh cilantro

Prepare barbecue to a medium-high heat.

Mix first four ingredients in a small bowl to blend. Season with salt and pepper.

Grill corn until beginning to soften, turning occasionally. After five minutes, brush all over with hoisin butter and continue to grill until corn is tender, brushing occasionally with hoisin butter, about five minutes longer.

Transfer to platter, brush with more hoisin butter, sprinkle with cilantro; serve.

* Available in the Asian food section of many supermarkets or at Asian markets.

From Bon Appetit.

Grilled corn on the cob with thyme and roasted red pepper butter

Makes eight servings

4 oz. (1/2 cup) unsalted butter, softened to room temperature
2 roasted red peppers from jar, drained well, patted dry, and finely chopped (1/2 to 2/3 cup)
1 large shallot, minced (1/4 cup)
1-1/2 tbsp. sherry vinegar
1 tbsp. chopped fresh thyme
2 tsp. kosher salt
1/2 tsp. freshly ground black pepper, more as needed
8 ears sweet white corn, shucked
2 tbsp. olive oil

Put the butter, red peppers, shallot, vinegar, two teaspoons of the thyme, one teaspoon of the salt, and the black pepper in a food processor and pulse until blended. It's fine if it's still slightly chunky and looks a little separated.

Transfer to a large piece of plastic wrap and roll tightly, twisting the ends so the bundle assumes a sausage shape. Store in refrigerator for up to one week.

When you're ready to grill the corn, slice the butter into 1/3-inch-thick rounds.

Heat gas grill to medium or prepare a low charcoal fire.

If desired, cut each ear of corn in half. Toss the corn with the oil, the remaining one teaspoon salt and a few grinds of black pepper. Put the ears on the grill and, if using gas, reduce the heat to medium low. Cover and grill corn, turning every couple of minutes until browned all over and tender ... about 15 minutes.

Transfer to platter, top with about half of the butter and the remaining one teaspoon thyme.

Serve, placing the remaining butter on the side.

modern travelers may be affected by diarrhea. The most common cases are travelers to developing and underdeveloped countries. The most common cause of TD is contamination of food or water with bacteria. The most common source of bacteria is fecal contamination of water or food.

The CDC does not recommend using prophylactic antibiotics to prevent TD. Bismuth subsalicylate tablets (Pepto-Bismol) have been used with significant success in preventing TD.

The best course of action for people considering traveling to developing countries is to, once again, access the CDC website dedicated to travelers. Large medical centers usually have international medical offices that can advise you appropriately, and even prescribe vaccines and medications if required.

If you want to prevent the unpleasantness of TD you must be very disciplined. Never eat anything that is not piping hot. Forget the chips and salsa that may have been at room temperature for days. Drink only carbonated beverages. If you open the bottle and the content is flat, return it. Do not add ice to the glass because you have no assurance that the water used to make the ice is safe. Eat only fruit you can peel. Pass on the decorative trays of fruit all neatly cut up.

Under no circumstances eat from street vendors. A good friend of mine, during a particularly hot day in Cairo, had a small amount of something similar to Italian Ice bought from a street vendor. She spent the rest of the trip in bed. It is not easy to be disciplined but it is easier than spending most of your vacation in the bathroom.

Cruises

Cruises simplify things in many areas, but you may also have surprises. Usually, a qualified physician is aboard, which is reassuring, but health-care facilities vary from line to line and ship to ship. We have become familiar through newspapers with people stranded at sea for several days. For healthy people that may be an inconvenience and sometimes an adventure but for somebody with a medical condition it may be a serious problem. A ship with no power has no air conditioning. Passengers, depending on the latitude where they are traveling, may be exposed to very high temperatures.

Of course, well known to anyone reading a newspaper or watching television, diarrhea is another problem affecting cruise ships. Versus what is seen in the typical TD, which is caused by bacteria, the typical cruise ship-related diarrhea, although not exclusively, is most of the time caused by viruses. These viruses can be contagious, affecting the entire ship in a very short period of time.

Depending on your propensity to sea-sickness and the area and season where you will be travelling you may need medications. It is always best to start the meds before you board the ship.

In summary, enjoy your travels. Traveling is one of the most rewarding activities, but plan ahead and seek more information whenever necessary. Discuss your travel plans with your family physician if you have a serious medical condition or you are planning to go to remote areas. Bon voyage.

If you have a suggestion for a future topic for Dr. Manetta to address, send an email to itc@towncrier.com.

Cell phones, texting not worth it

Riverside County Sheriff's Department lists several facts about distracted driving:

- 80 percent of vehicle crashes involve some sort of driver inattention.
- Up to 6,000 people nationwide are killed in crashes where driver distractions are involved.
- Talking on a cell phone or texting is the number one source of driver distractions.
- Texting takes your eyes off the road for an average of five seconds, far enough to travel the length of a football field at 55 mph. Most crashes happen with fewer than three seconds reaction time.
- A ticket for $159 for texting or talking on a cell phone is a major distraction to your wallet.

Strange but true

In an average year, there will be about 700 tornadoes in the United States.

County offers caregiving classes

Men and women who leave the workplace to care for a loved one, such as a spouse or parent, may receive help through Riverside.

Riverside County Office on Aging is offering classes to family caregivers. The "Care Pathways" program provides a series of weekly workshops designed to offer information and support to family caregivers who face challenges managing their caregiving responsibilities for a friend or loved one aged 60 or older. Many baby boomers have attended the series of classes and benefited from information on dementia care, managing medications, grief and loss, and stress management.

The next series of "Care Pathways" classes begins in July throughout Riverside County. Day, evening and Spanish-speaking classes are offered. This series of 12 workshops will cover subjects such as living with dementia, preventing caregiver burnout, managing medications, talking to the doctor, understanding legal issues, stress prevention, relief, communicating in challenging situations and more.

To register for the workshops, call the Riverside County Office on Aging at (951) 867-3800 or (800) 510-2020. Home care can be arranged for the care recipient. Request respite assistance at the time of registration.

Lemon Lily Festival forges ahead

By SALLY HEDBERG
CORRESPONDENT

The Lemon Lily Steering Committee met Wednesday, June 5, as plans for the fourth Lemon Lily Festival firm up. The festival will be the weekend of July 13 and 14 at the Nature Center.

In Dave Stith's absence, Sue Nash gave an update on the Lemon Lily plants, which should be blooming during the festival. The lilies are being propagated in greenhouses and gardens throughout the area. Plans are to plant some bulbs in the demonstration garden at the Nature Center, according to Nash.

Anna Marie Padula has created a Lemon Lily quilt for the raffle this year. She designed the pattern from artist Colin Smith's prize-winning poster from last year. Scott Fisher and others have taken the quilt to the Balloon and Wine Festival in Temecula and will be taking it to the Lavender Festival in Beaumont. The quilt will soon be on display at the Post Office where tickets for the raffle may be purchased. More than 400 raffle tickets have already been sold.

Again this year, 10 artists have been selected to paint banners, which will be hung on the light poles in town to advertise the festival. Later they will be auctioned at an event not yet determined.

The bluegrass music in the center of town is shaping up. Several of last year's favorite acts are retuning. Jamie Olsen will be performing Alison Krause songs on Sunday.

New acts this year include Aunt Sandii (Castleberry), who will kick off Saturday, and the Webb family band from Joshua Tree with 8-year-old Forrest burning up the bass. Doug Austin also returns as emcee.

The committee, spearheaded by Bryan Tallent, has been meeting monthly since last year's event. In March, members started meeting biweekly and now they meet at 10 a.m. every Wednesday at the Nature Center.

Tallent remarked, "It has taken us four years to really get organized into committees. And we still need to find a way to get more people from the community involved." Many volunteers are needed and a volunteer orientation occurs a week before the festival so folk know more about their roles.

If interested, contact Bryan Tallent at SpruceMooseGifts@msn.com or call 951-659-5556. The festival's website is lem-lilyfestival.com.

Scott Fisher throws Lemon Lily T-shirts to the Junior Naturalist participants at Hurkey Creek to advertise the Lemon Lily Festival on July 13 and 14 at the Idyllwild Nature Center. Eighteen children attended the Junior Naturalist Program, which is part of an outreach program from the Nature Center.

Endangered frogs released at James Reserve

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

The effort to re-establish the endangered mountain yellow-legged frog in its native habitat took a large step forward last week. On Wednesday and Thursday, about 100 "sub-adult" frogs were released in Indian Creek on the James San Jacinto Mountains Reserve, near Lake Fulmor.

The sub-adults, or froglets, are slightly smaller than a full adult, which measures about 2 inches long. But the lead researchers, Adam Backlin, an ecologist with the U.S. Geological Survey Western Ecological Research Center, and Frank Santana, research coordinator for San Diego Zoo's Institute for Conservation Research, were optimistic that the adult-stage frogs would have a higher probability of surviving and establishing a new population on the Hill than the tadpoles released in previous years.

"I love this moment," said Dr. Jennifer Gee, James Reserve director. "We've waited so long for the actual release."

The mountain yellow-legged frog was native to most creeks in the Southern California mountains, according to Backlin. "They were the top predator in their creek habitat," Backlin said. But when the adults were removed, "the invertebrate aquatic predator population [insects] expanded and may have preyed on the tadpoles before they metamorphosed into adult frogs."

Until this week, no adult frogs had been observed in the areas where tadpoles had been released. However, Ben Landis, science communicator for the U.S.G.S. Western Ecological Research Center, reported, "The team found two very small mountain yellow-legged frogs in the stream — smaller than the froglets released that day."

"Due to their very small size, the team thinks these two may in fact have been individuals that metamorphosed from tadpoles released by the team in November 2010 (this species is known to grow very slowly). And they may have been attracted to the site when they smelled the new batch of frogs," he said but stressed that this still has to be confirmed.

Frank Santana, research coordinator for San Diego Zoo's Institute for Conservation Research, releases a mountain yellow-legged frog in Indian Creek at the James Reserve Wednesday, June 12.

This frog species is a good one to re-introduce into native habitat, Backlin explained. "They produce a lot of offspring and will be easier to establish than a mammalian species."

Of the 100 frogs released last week, more than a quarter will wear radio transmitters so scientists can track their movements within the habitat. While the transmitters' range is 50 meters, scientists do not anticipate that the frogs move very far from their release points in the creek. The transmitters' life is about 30 days, so every four weeks these will be replaced with new equipment.

The froglets set free at the James Reserve were raised at the San Diego Zoo Institute for Conservation Research. In addition to the sub-adults, one adult female with transmitter was also released. As adults, the frogs' life span is about six to eight years.

Scientists believe a fungus on the frog's skin may have contributed to the calamitous decline in the natural population during the 1990s. Consequently, the frogs released last week were bathed in a bacterial solution to help prevent the possible chytrid fungal infection. The bacteria were found on one of the existing populations on the Hill, according to Santana.

The research team hopes to release more tadpoles later this year. Team members represent a variety of federal, state and local agencies all striving to restore this species to its natural habitat.

Many members of the local media attended and reported the release of the mountain yellow-legged frogs.

In 2002, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service listed the mountain yellow-legged frog in Southern California as endangered. By 2003, its population was less than 200. Efforts to boost the species' population have included captive breeding, reintroducing captive offspring to historic habitat, and scientific research into the causes of the species' decline.

The James Reserve is part of the University of California's Natural Reserve System.

Throw the Goat performs locally, PIE served first

By J.P. CRUMRINE
EDITOR

Over the years, Idyllwild has become the home for many musicians and also spawned a major jazz festival. Now musicians born and raised on the sounds of the Hill are creating and performing their own music. Casey Abrams and Chris Thile may be the most well know now, but several other homegrown groups are building reputations and gaining fans.

This week, two local groups — Throw the Goat and PIE — and a third, CPA, a Hemet band led by Idyllwild native Paul Teel, will perform at the Rustic Theatre beginning at 10 p.m. Friday, June 21.

Just two years old, Throw the Goat is about to embark on a tour in the United Kingdom beginning July 4. The group has several concerts scheduled, including one in Edinburgh, Scotland.

"It's really exciting. We've done everything we can do now but to wake up 8,000 miles away," said Michael Schnalzer, bass and lead singer.

But the group's journey actually started in Pine Cove. Schnalzer and rhythm guitarist Johnny Wilson grew up on the Hill and both have been members of other groups. Joining them were Brian Parnell, who has lived on the Hill for nearly 10 years, on lead guitar and vocals, and Tim Olivier, who has lived in Pine Cove for six years, on drums.

Throw the Goat began one night when Schnalzer and Olivier were playing together. A bass and drums needed a guitarist and so they decided to form a group. Fortunately, both Wilson and Parnell were available and the quartet has evolved into a popular heavy rock band with parts of other genres.

Schnalzer has always loved music and the idea of performing, but he was 21 before getting his first bass. He's been playing ever since.

Kurt Cobain of grunge band Nirvana was Wilson's inspiration. "He was having so much fun, I wanted to do that," he said. One of Wilson's teachers was Joey Latimer, formerly of Idyllwild.

"No matter how far I try to get away, I always come back to music," Wilson said.

Parnell, who grew up with a musician father, picked up a guitar at age 5, played the saxophone some and eventually ended up in Idyllwild, although he is an Ontario native.

The idea of a UK tour began as joke, according to Schnalzer. Olivier and his wife were planning a second honeymoon, so the others decided to go along, in the form of a tour.

With the help of a publicist, the band has booked four concerts and will be paired with a local UK group as they travel through England.

While its musical goals are still evolving and growing, the group acknowledges its roots on the Hill. Its first album release is titled, "Black Mountain." The group's current music is "more complex" than what's on the album, Wilson said.

The concert will offer new songs, "not Black Mountain 2," Parnell said, stressing the evolution of their sound.

All of the rehearsal, the writing and music occurs while each band member holds a full-time, non-musical job. Rehearsals are usually twice a week at a residence in Pine Cove.

"Amazing to me, for better or worse, Idyllwild spawned the band," Schnalzer said proudly. "Probably, three of us have been in different places in the world trying to figure it out, but we've always been lured back home, to the roots we have here."

Friends and family attend their performances and visit rehearsals. "It's a big part of why we're about to go to the UK," said Parnell.

"We couldn't go without Idyllwild," Wilson added.

PIE

And the other homegrown group is PIE, but a much younger vintage. Izaiah and Stefan Carman and Seth Clowers are ages 11 and 12. Their vision of a musical group grew from an evening of playing "GreenDay: Rock Band," a video game.

But their talent isn't imaginary. They have been an opening band for Throw the Goat several times.

"We like [Throw the Goat]," Izaiah said. "We're inspired by them."

PIE begins playing at 9 p.m.

So Friday, Idyllwild's native musicians perform at the Rustic Theatre. Tickets for the concert featuring Throw the Goat with CPA and Pie are $12 in advance of the June 21 show and $15 at the door.

A June weekend of New Orleans sounds

By J.P. CRUMRINE

Carman, local saxophone and bass musician, usually goes to the New Orleans Jazz and Heritage Festival. "This year I wasn't able to go, so I decided to bring the music here," he explained.

Friday night, the Gumbo Brothers will play. The group belts out rock and soul, which also have their origins in New Orleans music, just as traditional jazz does, Carman said. "This group is like a party dance band. Everyone, hopefully everybody, will be out of their seats and driving the waitresses crazy," he expects.

The Gumbo Brothers' style is similar to the Neville Brothers, the first family of New Orleans funk. While the Gumbo Brothers haven't performed in Idyllwild before, Carman is sure that after Friday, they will gladly return, just as every group he has brought here feels.

Saturday evening, Washboard Joey and the Muddy Boots will bring traditional jazz. And consistent with the improvisation of jazz, the group has never played together before.

Individual members have been together but as not in this collective rendition. But they are all long-time musicians who have played the New Orleans genre for years. Many were members of Disneyland's Side Street Strutters.

And those familiar with the previous Spring Jazz Fests will recognize Washboard. Trombonist Joey Sellers has played many times in Idyllwild, often playing avant-garde music with Carman. He put this group together just to play again in Idyllwild and for Carman.

While the Gumbo Brothers' music originates from the 1940s New Orleans era, Muddy Boots' roots goes back to the 1920s and early Louie Armstrong, Carman said.

Sunday evening the restaurant's deck will be pulsating with the sounds from the Euphoria Brass Band, led by Drew Miller, DJ at KSDS Jazz 88.3 FM. They are a San Diego band playing in the style of the New Orleans marching bands. This is "swing" before jazz.

"There's no way you can't dance with these guys," Carman promised.

Besides the three evening sessions, Carman has lined up a fourth group for Sunday afternoon. Nathan Rivera's The Black Resonators have played here before and their style reflects Django Reinhardt.

While the style is actually European gypsy jazz, Reinhardt's roots also grew from New Orleans, Carman said.

The Resonators travel to New Orleans several times each year to perform. But this weekend, Carman fortuitously saw that they would be in Temecula Sunday evening and invited them to come to Idyllwild to warm up.

The bands will be performing two shows at Cafe Aroma, from 6 p.m. to 7:15 p.m. and from 7:45 p.m. to 9 p.m. There is no cover charge.

Table reservation seating (for meals only) will be at either 5:30 p.m. or 7:30 p.m.

Those at the early seating who want to stay for the second show need to pay an extra $30 and buy two drinks each to keep the table. However this is subject to availability unless informed in advance.

J.P. Crumrine can be reached at jp@towncrier.com.

Strange but true

If you're planning a trip to the United Kingdom this summer, you might want to add a side trip to Llanfair in Wales. The town's Welsh name is Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwl'lllantsiliogogoch, which means, roughly, "Saint Mary's Church in a hollow of white hazel, close to a whirlpool and Saint Tysilo's Church and near a red cave." The sign at the railway station that has the town's name is 20 feet long.

Dixieland combo swings Fourth

By MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Ken Dahleen opens season 14 of the Idyllwild Summer Concert series with a Dixieland combo in the Fourth of July Parade and his Big Band Staff on the concert stage that night at the Idyllwild Community Center. "It's the first time we've opened the series on the Fourth of July," said Dahleen.

His Dixieland six, the Musikats, will ride on a parade float enlivening the festivities with some sassy New Orleans-style swing. The Musikats feature Dahleen on clarinet, Keith Droste on keyboard, Jack Poster on trumpet, Bill Tole on trombone, Jeff Stover on bass and Andy Fraga on drums.

Then as the evening begins to cool, Dahleen's Big Band Staff hits the concert stage at 6:30 p.m. to pay musical tribute to the big band era. "There'll be a patriotic component to the first half of the concert," said Dahleen. "I'm bringing in Troy Clarke, a Frank Sinatra-like singer, for some jazz and some good ole "blue eyes," a program sure to please the many dancers that attend the ISC series.

Begun in 2000 with four concerts, the series has expanded to the current format of eight concerts. The 2013 series offers a wide variety of music, including Motown, zydeco, classical, rock and roll, and jazz.

Diana Wagman next at authors series

By MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Diana Wagman, the next author at Eduardo Santiago's Idyllwild Author Series, explores how an unexpected event in an ordinary day can alter a city's landscape and the course of a woman's life.

In her fourth novel, "The Care and Feeding of Exotic Pets," Wagman's central character, Winnie, is a 38-year-old woman who, after a divorce, feels her life is over. Her celebrity game show host ex-husband has moved on to a younger yoga instructor and a posh Beverly Hills house.

Winnie holds down a meaningless job while raising a 16-year-old daughter. In the course of running errands, Winnie is kidnapped and held hostage by Oren, in an overheated house in Altadena that is also home to Oren's pet and obsession, a sexually frustrated 8-foot giant iguana.

"I wanted to see how an ordinary day can be forever changed by an unexpected event," said Wagman of the novel, which reviewers have called a hostage thriller. Wagman sees the story also as one of individuals with conflicted needs who change through unexpected interactions.

"I was more interested in Winnie's character," she said. "It's a story of relationships, mothers and daughters, Winnie and Oren," said Wagman. She admitted, with kidnapping as a central premise, that she had set herself a difficult task as a writer. "I wanted readers to like the kidnapper." The kidnapper's motives are pivotal in how the story plays out as it does, Wagman explained.

Her books have been cited for their sharp and authentic dialogue. Part of that, she explained, comes from having written many screenplays prior to writing novels. "Dialogue is a strength of mine," she said. "I'm a huge eavesdropper. I go to Starbucks and listen to conversations." It's a way, she explained, to get the rhythm and flow of how people speak.

When Wagman wrote screenplays, people said they read like novels. "I didn't know any screenwriters who were happy. I knew novelists who were," she said. "So I decided to write a novel just for the joy of it." And that has proven a successful pivot for her.

Of her writing process, Wagman starts with a character who wants something. "And I also always know my ending. It's usually an image," she said. "I write to that." Asked if she always wrote at the same time of day or only in one place, she laughed and said she didn't begin writing novels until after she had had children. "I didn't have the luxury of a specific time and place," she said. "I'd write with an orange crayon in the laundry room if that was what was available."

Like other authors in this year's series, Wagman is fascinated with and writes about the darker side of characters. "I like to go to those extreme places, where anyone, under certain circumstances, could do something dark and unexpected."

Author Diana Wagman carries Iggy the Iguana, who is a character in her book, on her shoulder.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Before you adventurous Arians charge right into those new projects, take a little time to learn where you'll be going so you can avoid getting lost before you get there.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your time is devoted to career demands through much of the week. But Venus, who rules your sign, might be planning how (and with whom) you'll spend your weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Don't be put off by the surprising turn in the way your project is developing. You've invested enough time in it to know how to make all the necessary adjustments.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The work week goes smoothly for the most part. But a weekend visit to a place in your past could hold surprises for your future, especially where romance is involved.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A sudden attack of shyness for the usually loquacious Lion could be a sign that deep down you're not sure enough about what (or whom) you had planned to talk up in public.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Deal with that job-related problem on-site — that is, at the workplace. Avoid taking it home, where it can spoil those important personal plans you've made.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to let those favorable comments about your business dealings be known to those in a position to be helpful. Don't hide your light; let it shine.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Avoid added pressure to finish a project on deadline by steering clear of distractions. To put it somewhat poetically: Time for fun — when your tasks are done.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might be uneasy about an offer from a longtime colleague. But before you reject it, study it. You might be surprised at what it actually contains.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Deal firmly with a difficult family matter. It's your strength they need right now. You can show your emotions when the situation begins to ease up.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A recent dispute with some co-workers might not have been completely resolved. But other colleagues will be only too happy to offer support of your actions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Let go of that Piscean pride long enough to allow someone to help you with a surprising development. That could make it easier for you to adjust to the change.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your willingness to open up to possibilities is why people like you are often among our most popular political leaders.

Parcel fee

schedule approved at the May 28 meeting increased all the rates, including the ambulance fee, 5 percent.

However, Reitz told the board that the 2012 contract with Riverside County had been misinterpreted. Five percent is the maximum increase, after applying a formula using medical care cost price indices.

The county's Emergency Services Agency returned the adopted fee schedule and limited the increase to 4.2 percent.

Following a closed session, Stigall announced that the commission directed Reitz to negotiate with SBA Towers for the sale of a cell tower lease on the parcel located behind the station at the corner of Johnson and Maranatha. Reitz estimated that the lease sale might generate more than $200,000 for the district's coffers.

The current lease is with SBA for 65 years. The district earns about $1150 monthly; however, SBA can terminate with 30 days notice.

Because of the rapidly changing configuration of the cellular industry, the district was willing to review the offer. Reitz said, "The tower currently holds a Nextel/Sprint antenna. We know that Nextel has been absorbed by Sprint and that Sprint may become part of either Verizon or AT&T in the not too distant future. Couple all that with changing technology."

In an effort to save money, the commission authorized the chief to send a letter to CAL FIRE requesting it to either conduct all fire abatement inspections within the district or reimburse IFPD for its cost of inspections. However, when asked, Reitz did not know actual inspection costs.

He did report that IFPD has made 1,310 inspections this year, all residential, and nearly two-thirds passed. The preponderance of failed properties complied with defensible space regulations before the final inspection.

With respect to the inspections and the recently imposed State Fire Prevention Fee, Stigall said, "We pay fees and [CAL FIRE] doesn't do anything for us. So it's appropriate to hand off the abatement process to them."

The request for a proposal for a financial consultant, which was discussed at the May 14 meeting, has been sent to several potential bidders, Reitz reported.

Dahleen notes the series is one of the fastest-growing concert series in Riverside County.

Popular headliners returning this summer are Sherry Williams with her elegant brand of jazz vocals, City Beat, the rock and roll cop band, and Lisa Haley with her sizzling blue fiddle and foot-stomping Cajun music.

Each year Dahleen and the ISCS board begin this series with faith that sponsorships and donations will cover the more than $20,000 summer budget. This year the challenge is greater.

"We're considerably behind where we were last year at this time," said Dahleen. Sponsors and donors should contact Dahleen at (951) 659-2229. "This is a community event put on by the community for the community," he said.

Strange but true

You might be surprised to learn that the cowboy hat was not as widespread in the Old West as might be assumed from watching old movies. The most popular headwear on the frontier was the bowler hat. The bowler had the advantage of stability; it wouldn't blow off in high winds. It was worn by Bat Masterson, Billy the Kid, Black Bart and Butch Cassidy.
