Community Center board may manage local recreation

By JP CRUMRINE NEWS EDITOR

The future of recreation in Idyllwild may rest with the San Jacinto Mountain Community Center board.

While this group is in the midst of guiding the construction of an amphitheater and eventually a community center at Butterfield Commons on Strawberry Creek, managing the complete local recreation program also may become its responsibility as early as January.

Everyone involved has stressed that they want what will best serve the community's recreation needs. And the general consensus seems to be greater local control and involvement, which a board of local residents can provide.

Since 2011, when the Idyllwild Community Recreation Council managed the local recreation program, the county — either through its Economic Development Agency, which oversees the many Community Service Areas, or the county's Regional Park and Open-Space District — has been responsible for delivering the recreation program, whether youth or adult sports, or other activities, on the Hill.

Janice Lyle, SJMCC board president, has had some preliminary meetings with Supv. Chuck Washington's office and officials from EDA about SJMCC assuming control of the recreation program. However, nothing has been signed and the talks have been preliminary, she stressed. "But at this point, SJMCC, EDA and the supervisor's office are all in agreement about the future direction of recreation; but nothing is complete yet."

The Idyllwild recreation program, which officially is under the aegis of CSA 36, is the last CSA recreation program that the Open-Space District is managing, according to See Recreation, page 24

County may become electric utility for unincorporated areas

By JP CRUMRINE NEWS EDITOR

Sometime in the future, your electric provider may be Riverside County rather than Southern California Edison.

At its Aug. 23 meeting, the Board of Supervisors authorized the county executive to pursue investigating the possibility of establishing a community-choice aggregation program.

In 2002, the state authorized local governments to procure or develop electrical power for themselves, or their residents and businesses. In the 14 years since the law (Assembly Bill 117) was enacted, only four CCAs have been established and are active in the state.

A CCA purchases electricity from an existing investor-owner utility, such as SCE. The power is delivered over existing electrical lines, which the utility owns. All electricity billing, meter reading and customer service continues to be the responsibility of the utility, according to the memorandum to the board from Deputy County Executive Officer Brian Nestande.

The preliminary estimate is that Riverside County could aggregate the purchase of enough electricity to save county ratepayers about 9 percent annually. The total See Utility, page 24

Five crashes on Hill highways last week

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

From Wednesday, Aug. 31, through Monday, Sept. 5, five crashes occurred on Hill highways, with several occurring over the long Labor Day weekend.

At 4:07 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 31, Joshua Yates, 35, of Menifee, was driving his white 2008 Honda Civic west on Marian View Drive in Idyllwild when he made a left turn onto Highway 243 and collided with a blue 2000 Jeep Wrangler driven by Mark Seavey, 55, of Hemet. Seavey swerved to try to avoid the collision but the vehicles crashed in the intersection. Damage to Yates' vehicle was moderate and it was towed to Idyllwild Garage. Seavey was able to drive his Jeep away from the incident. Neither driver was injured nor were other vehicles involved.

At 10:55 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 1, Alastair Robertson, 58, of Mission Viejo, was driving his 2017 blue Subaru Outback westbound on Highway 74, 1 mile east of Scenic Drive in Pinyon, when he crossed the double-yellow line in attempting to pass a 2004 blue Jeep Grand Cherokee towing a red trailer driven by Kevin Quinn, 57, of Palm Desert. When Robertson pulled into the opposing lane of traffic, his vehicle collided head-on with a 2016 black Jeep Compass driven by Aviv Olson, a 25-year-old woman from Cloverdale. The collision of Robertson's vehicle head-on with Olson's also caused Quinn's vehicle to crash. No other persons or vehicles were involved. All who were involved were transported by ambulance to Eisenhower Medical Center complaining of abrasions and non life-threatening injuries.

Darren Meyer, California Highway Patrol public information officer, said there was no evidence of alcohol as a causative factor in the incident.

At 12:50 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 3, Grant Caudel, 61, of Hemet, was driving his 1990 silver Dodge Ram westbound on Highway 74, just west of McCall Park Road in Mountain Center, when he turned to the right and ran into the mountain. With Caudel in the vehicle was Alfred Light, 61, also of Hemet. Light complained of pain but did not request transport. Caudel was arrested for driving under the influence.

At 2:15 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 3, Ronald Kimmerlee, 53, of Cathedral City, was driving his white 2001 Chevy Silverado southbound on Highway 243, 1 mile south of Black Mountain Trail, when he rear-ended a 2014 gray Honda Accord driven by Victor Beltran, 61, of Riverside. According to the CHP report, Beltran was slowing his vehicle at the time of the collision. There were no injuries or other persons or vehicles involved in the incident.

Kimmerlee was arrested for driving under the influence, with alcohol cited as a causative factor.

At 1 p.m. Monday, Sept. 5, a 1998 white Dodge Ram registered to an Idyllwild owner was being driven west on Tahquitz View Drive in Idyllwild, when the unidentified driver made an unsafe turning movement causing the vehicle to sideswipe a white van registered to the American Red Cross that was parked on Tahquitz View Drive. An investigation is ongoing, according to the CHP. Anyone with information may call the CHP Banning Pass station at 1-951-769-2000.

Hiker transported for minor injuries

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Early Monday evening, first responders, including Cal Fire Station 23 (Pine Cove), Idyllwild Fire Department and American Medical Response, were alerted to an injured hiker near Tahquitz Rock.

Firefighters hiked to the injured woman and helped her to the AMR ambulance at Humber Park, which transported her to a local hospital for treatment of moderate to minor injuries, according to the Riverside County Fire Department press release.

She was a member of a party of five hikers, said Cal Fire Capt. Mark Gilmore.

Arson suspect incompetent for trial

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Riverside County Superior Court Judge Mark Mandio has suspended the arson prosecution of Traci Farley, 52, of Pinyon. She was charged with 13 counts of arson in June.

Based on his review of two separate doctors' reports and evaluations, the judge decided that Farley is not competent to stand trial. On Wednesday, Aug. 31, he referred the situation to the county's mental health agency for a recommendation on Farley's placement.

The case will return to the court on Sept. 14.

Farley is still in custody, without bail.

When Farley was arrested, John Hall, District Attorney public information specialist, wrote, "She is charged with 13 separate small arson fires all lit on or around the same day. All started at different spots relatively close to each other, near her house. As charged, we believe the evidence shows 12 of the fires were brush/forest land and one of the fires was a neighbor's fence."

HUSD bus service from Idyllwild School to Hamilton High

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The Hemet Unified School District Transportation Department began providing bus service this school year for Idyllwild students attending Hamilton High School in Anza.

Prior to this year, parents of Idyllwild students who wished to attend Hamilton had to provide transportation.

According to Leonella Leash, Hamilton High office manager, one middle school and seven Idyllwild high school students make the daily trip to Hamilton. A special "extra-curricular activity" bus returns students who stay after regular school hours for sports or other after-school activities.

Hamilton is the only public high school on the Hill. Enrollment in 2014-15 was 326 for grades nine through 12 compared to 2,300 at Hemet High School, the primary destination of Idyllwild/Pine Cove students.

Parent reviews of Hamilton often mention smaller class sizes and a tight-knit relationship with the community as reasons their children enjoy attending. Marshall Smith can be reached at marshall@towncrier.com.

Crime statistics reveal mixed trends

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

While violent crimes in Riverside County's unincorporated areas fell 3.9 percent in the first six months of 2016 compared to 2015, homicides doubled from five to 10. Overall, in the first six months of 2016, both violent and property crimes are up in all of the county. (Besides the unincorporated areas, the whole county includes cities such as San Jacinto, where the RC Sheriff's Department also provides police services).

This is a continuation of a trend from 2014 to 2015.

In the unincorporated areas, the biggest percentage increase was homicides. In all of 2015, 12 homicides occurred in the unincorporated areas.

Robberies increased from 77 to 94 (or 22 percent), which is consistent with the 19-percent growth in robberies during 2015.

While larceny thefts grew nearly 10 percent during this period, vehicle thefts fell 1.5 percent. The largest decrease in reported crimes was a 12.6-percent decline in aggravated assaults in the unincorporated areas. During 2015, these crimes grew 25 percent. Within the whole county, aggravated assaults increased 11.4 percent.

Reported burglaries fell 6.2 percent within the unincorporated areas and 5.4 percent within the whole county.

Vehicle thefts also have fallen in the first half of the year. From January to June, the number of vehicle thefts is 653, 1.5 percent fewer than last year, which grew more than 40 percent during the whole year.

Hemet Station Capt. Joe Borja said the crime pattern on the Hill is consistent with the trends throughout the unincorporated areas.

Patrol staffing in the county's unincorporated areas is set through discretionary funding established each year by the Riverside County Board of Supervisors, while in contrast, the sheriff's contract city partners (city councils and city managers) each establish their own patrol staffing levels for their respective cities.

The supervisors have set the ratio of sworn staff at 1.04 per 1,000 population, according to the department's press release.

The Sheriff's Department serves as the contract policing agency partner for 17 of the county's 28 cities. Altogether, the sheriff is responsible for policing nearly 1.4 million residents of the county's population of more than 2.3 million. Annually, Sheriff's Department dispatchers receive more than 1.6 million phone calls from the public and dispatch nearly 900,000 calls for service, with nearly one-third being in-progress calls for service, the department reported.

The county is the fourth most populous of California's 58 counties, and the 10th most populous county in the nation.

Post-Prop 47 drug and property crime jail bookings from all agencies within the county made a sharp decline in the first six months of 2015. Those booking numbers are now increasing in 2016 to pre-Prop 47 levels. Prop 47, passed by voters last November, was the Reduced Penalties for Some Crimes Initiative.

Also, federal court-ordered early releases from the jail system in the county that decreased in 2015, are now reversing course and increasing in numbers during 2016, according to the Sheriff's Department.

What do these Idyllwild Water District customers have in common?

They're sucking up most of the water in Idyllwild, preventing other customers from getting water meters and keeping IWD in Water Emergency Stage 2.

That's got to be the answer.

Because, in order to get a bill for $1,000, they would need to use 4,600 cubic feet or 34,000 gallons of water a month.

Do you know about the Drip Calculator? Yes, the U.S. Geological Survey has one at <http://water.usgs.gov/edu/activity-drip.html>.

I calculated these figures: Let's assume each of the five people above has one home and three faucets. Each of those three faucets is dripping at the rate of 120 drips a minute. That's a lot of dripping going on in these five homes.

According to the Drip Calculator, they each would waste 12,497 gallons. But wait — that's not per month; that's per year.

So these five must be real water hounds — maybe selling off their water to bottling companies like Paul Black did years ago; or building lakes in their backyards; or brewing a whole lot more beer than Don Put; or irrigating lots of pot farms.

I mean, geez, that's about 200,000 gallons of water that just disappeared. That's the equivalent of 62 percent of the district's water loss in May.

And that's just those five. What about the others who haven't spoken up?

Removing tongue out of cheek, don't you think if someone was using 34,000-plus gallons in just one month the district would be more concerned about whether their equipment was faulty?

-BECKY CLARK, EDITOR

Nancy is not alone with IWD issue

EDITOR:

I read Nancy Pearlman's letter about how her water bill somehow went from $28 to $1,400, and how the Idyllwild Water District seemed totally unresponsive.

My water bill went from $28 to $1,200. This is a weekend home and during the month in question, no one was in the home and no water should have been used at all.

IWD's first explanation was that it was a leak near the meter and their responsibility. That was later changed to "a toilet may have been running" and I was told I had to pay the entire amount, which I did over a matter of months.

I'm wondering if Nancy and I are alone, or are there others having similar spikes. It seems like these types of things never happened prior to the new meters being installed.

It would be great to know if these are isolated examples, or if perhaps their new system is leaking bad data.

EDITOR:

Regarding Dr. Jim Gates, Jeff Smith looked at the license database and didn't see Dr. Gates' name. That is because he is retired.

I don't have the Aug. 4 paper to see if he used present tense instead of past tense, but Jeff attacks Dr. Gates stating it is a character flaw.

I think it is sad that Jeff didn't contact Dr. Gates to ask why he stated he was licensed. Dr. Gates has moved off the Hill now and people with Jeff's attitude will discourage him and others from returning to live here.

People need to inquire or talk to the person when they have a question instead of blasting them in the newspaper or social media.

A HEALTHY IDYLLWILD

By Callie Wight

Nothing in this article is meant to be medical advice. Please consult your own healthcare provider for any questions or issues concerning your own health status.

Women's Healthy Heart Month is not until next February; but really, why wait?

If you read no further, please at least click on this link promoting Living Guidelines for Women. Here is the best news: Recent medical research shows us that it is truly never too late and that even small, incremental changes do make a healthy difference at all ages.

Wow! That is great news. But what is the key?

It's simple. Staying active. I think life on the Hill can make staying active both easy and a bit more difficult. So, we may need to be strategic here.

Let's break it down. Walking, even short brisk walks for as little as 10 minutes throughout the day, can provide enough physical activity to keep your heart in shape. The goal you are working toward is to get 30 to 40 minutes of exercise three to four times per week.

Remember, you don't have to hit that 30 to 40 minutes all at once. It's a goal you work toward gradually, especially if you have not been very active for a while.

Here is one tip to gradually increase your strength and stamina: Start modest and do just a bit more each day. Even if you start with five minutes of concerted activity per day, you are already making advances in your health status.

Think of that! If you're going from sedentary to active, medical research shows us that adding a mere five to 10 minutes of activity daily does indeed improve cardiovascular fitness.

Think of it like the 12-step adage ... "one day at a time." In our case of increasing activity, maybe we can think of it as five minutes at a time; then six minutes at a time; then seven and eight, and so on.

Note: Activity does not necessarily mean exercise, per se. I think of exercise as something you don special clothes to do, such as walking shoes, yoga tights, basketball sneakers. Activity can be as simple as staying on your feet longer than usual and moving about your house and yard.

On the other hand, when improving your long-term cardiovascular "fitness," it is recommended by medical experts to achieve and sustain a mild increase in heart rate for the duration of your exercise and/or activity.

Believe it or not, you can increase heart rate by simply lifting your arms above your heart and back down, repeatedly. Again, start slow if you're new to this.

But, please do check with your healthcare provider before doing any activity that increases heart rate, especially in our rarefied mountain air.

French Canadian Creton ...

In my last column, I asked all of you for a favorite recipe. Below is a submission from my wonderful friend Marilyn.

Marilyn is one of the crown jewels of Idyllwild. She is a wonderful musician, actor, teacher, active member of the community, and amazing mother and grandmother. Along with many other things, she is also a most talented and comfortable member of all those who enjoy the love of food and the labor of its careful preparation.

I have had the pleasure of her gastronomic skills over many years now, and it is my pleasure to let her write in this column:

How about a French Canadian ground pork paté called Creton? When I first encountered this traditional favorite of Maria Poirier, who was born in the 1870s in Victoriaville, Quebec, it was spread on warm, crusty French bread. After just one bite, I pleaded for the recipe, delivered in Patois French, but I've now translated it for you all.

Whenever I make it now, I am transported back to the rural Quebec of long ago, when families fresh from Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve jumped into horse-drawn sleighs, burrowed under buffalo rugs and plowed through the fresh snow toward the host farm for Reveillons feasting.

Fiddle music, singing and dancing and, of course, Creton, lovingly presented in little "pots au feu" garnished with a glossy bay leaf atop, nestled among home-baked baguettes. It was hearty, it was spicy and it was a beloved traditional offering.

Now get ready for a long, slow cooking and a chance for your kitchen to radiate the redolent promise of home-made paté. Your 2- to 3-quart saucepan with the hefty bottom will be on the stove for at least three hours.

In this lucky pot, you will put the following ingredients:

- 2 lbs. ground pork loin (Your butcher will be horrified when you present him with that lovely pork loin roast asking him to grind it up, but smile and help him to understand "fabulous.")

- 2 good-sized yellow chopped onions;
- 2 cups chicken broth
- 1 tbsps. Herbes de Provence
- 1 tsp. allspice mixed with 1/2 tsp. ground cloves (adjust to your taste preference)
- 2 bay leaves

Cook first three ingredients together until meat is no longer pink, but stop before you brown it. Reduce the heat, add the seasonings and allow the mix to "burble" along for three hours uncovered.

Occasionally mash down the mix but don't let it become dry. You can add more broth or water.

The final product should be somewhat gelatinous. Check for salt to taste. Remove the bay leaves.

Refrigerate in small containers with a lid or cover with plastic. Lastly, after overnight, remove the layer of fat and top with a bay leaf. Cover and keep refrigerated.

Bon appetit from the kitchen of Marilyn O'Connor Beauchesne.

Steele has tough time at Deutsche Bank

BY JACK CLARK
PRO GOLF CORRESPONDENT

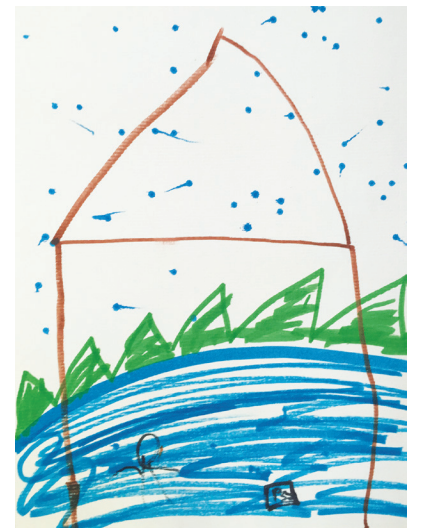

Brendan Steele had a rough Deutsche Bank Championship last week, posting a 6-over-par 70-71-74-75 — 290. The Idyllwild native's driving was off; he found only 55 percent of the fairways. He hit only 68 percent of the greens in regulation and gave away strokes to the field putting as well.

Brendan picked up a mere four FedExCup points and dropped from 46th to 54th place on that list. He likely will need at least a top-four finish in this week's BMW Championship to earn enough points to advance to the Tour Championship two weeks from now.

Brendan tees off Thursday in the $8.5 million BMW Championship on the Crooked Stick Golf Club Course in Carmel, Indiana, at 7:14 a.m. PDT. Friday he plays at 9:20 a.m. PDT.

It rained three days and then again and again and again. It's my mom my dad and my grandma my brother and my sister in the house. Everything is lost at our house even our TV. The green is the mold. Jazz and the Associates of Idyllwild Arts

A history of dedication, support and eating a hat

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

The Associates of Idyllwild Arts Foundation have raised scholarship money for Summer Program students and, later, Academy students from 1968 until the present. From then until now, they have raised just under $2.2 million.

In 1993, three organizers — Barbara Wood, Lin Carlson and Marshall Hawkins — conceived the biggest project yet to raise scholarship money. They staged a jazz festival, Jazz in the Pines, on campus with an ambitious goal of raising $10,000 for the first year with their new project. “We thought we could do anything,” said Wood. Prior to the idea of a jazz festival, the Associates had raised money with cocktail and dinner parties, and silent auctions, averaging annual totals of from $10,000 to $15,000.

In addition to raising scholarship funds, Associates did anything they could to advance the school’s needs — helping with “mailings, student registration, raking pine needles, shoveling snow, painting, repairs and many other tasks. [They] held weekly meetings and organized cultural events for the community.” (Associates online history) They also established an endowment fund in 1988, now totaling more than $300,000, from which interest income goes directly to scholarships for Idyllwild Arts Academy and the Summer Program.

Nevertheless, some were dubious that a jazz festival was a good fit for Idyllwild. Where would enough people who love jazz come from? And would they trek all the way up the mountain to Idyllwild? Bill Lowman, IAF president and Idyllwild Arts headmaster at the time, thought a jazz festival would not succeed. “It’ll never work,” he contended. “And if it does, I’ll eat my hat.”

Jazz in the Pines launched in 1994 as a one-day event. “We raised $30,000 the first year for scholarships,” said Wood. “We weren’t surprised.” And good sport that he was, Lowman ate his hat, or at least a portion of it.

For the next 20 years through 2014, the Associates grew and managed Jazz in the Pines — booking acts, creating venues, including the iconic, immediately popular French Quarter, staging a Patrons Dinner, organizing parking and transportation and, in the early years, doing it all from scratch, with an intoxicating and inviting homespun ambience.

“That first year, when we started, the school and the community were not in sync,” noted Wood. “Our goal was to incorporate the town with the school, bringing in local groups as volunteers, including the Community Patrol, the Rotary, Rotary Anns and the Quilters. We tried to tap everybody. With the music, Marshall Hawkins, Bob Boss and John Harris played back-up for everybody. We actually cooked the Patrons Dinner on barbecues outside of Rush Hall in 1995, the first year it was offered. Seventy-five people attended. Every year we tried to make more money so that the money would stay on campus.”

Wood noted that the problem with attracting major sponsors, at the beginning and even now, is that the campus and the numbers of attendees are too small. “We tried to get major sponsors, but it just did not pencil out,” said Wood.

But still the amounts raised for scholarships stayed strong until the economic downturn. “One year, we got close to $70,000,” said Wood. “I think that’s the first year Anne Finch ran it.”

Mary Jo Shinkle remembered the thrill of launching the French Quarter in the early 1990s. “We turned it into a small paradise with truckloads of plants and flowers from my son Bill’s nursery in Hemet, the Tranquil Heart Vineyard,” she said. “We covered support poles with green crepe paper making them look like trees. One year, Lynnda Hart brought in two men who painted a New Orleans mural. We spent weeks, if not months, putting it together.”

But each year something was added that raised attendance and enthusiasm for the festival. The growth See Jazz, page 24

Dueling plastic bag propositions 65 and 67

What happens if both pass?

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Both propositions 65 and 67 deal with the subject of plastic bags but in opposing ways. If both pass, depending on which proposition receives the highest number of votes, both measures could either coexist or one could render the other moot.

Prop 65, called the Environmental Fee Protection Act, proposes to redirect money from 10-cent fees charged by grocers for recycled paper bags to an environmental fund. The measure is funded primarily by out-of-state plastic bag manufacturers and is opposed by in-state environmentalists.

Prop 67, called the Plastic Ban Veto Referendum, ratifies legislation passed in 2014 to ban plastic bags statewide. It contains no language to direct fees to environmental causes and yet is supported by environmentalists.

Prop 65 can only go into effect if there is a statewide plastic bag ban that passage of Prop 67 would enact. The propositions are dueling and oddly intertwined.

If both pass, the one getting the higher number of total votes affects the way in which paper bag fees charged by grocers would be dispersed. Confused? Here are the specifics.

Prop 67 is relatively clear-cut. It seeks to make permanent a ban on the use of plastic bags in designated stores enacted by the California Legislature in 2014 as SB 270. The legislation was signed by Gov. Jerry Brown but held in abeyance pending voter ratification on the November 2016 ballot.

If passed by voters, Prop 67 would ratify SB 270, and prohibit large grocery stores and pharmacies from providing single-use plastic carryout bags. The ban would apply the following year to small grocery stores, convenience stores and liquor stores.

Smaller single-use plastic bags for meat, bread, produce, bulk food and perishable items would still be permitted.

Passage of Prop 67 would also mandate the stores (defined by annual sales of $2 million or more, and square footage of 10,000 square feet or more) to charge a minimum of 10 cents for recycled, compostable and reusable grocery bags. Bag purchase exemptions for lower-income state residents (those who pay with a payment card or voucher from the California Special Supplemental Food Program for women, infants and children) are part of the proposition's text. Grocers would retain revenues from paper-bag sales to offset their costs to purchase.

Passage of Prop 67 would also provide in-state, plastic-bag manufacturers (not out-of-state companies) $2 million for the purpose of transitioning to manufacture of thicker, multi-use recycled plastic bags that meet state standards for recycled bags.

If passed, Prop 67 violators, defined as "persons or entities who knew or should have known" of the law's provisions to ban plastic bags, would be fined at the rate of $1,000 a day for first violation, $2,000 for second, and $5,000 for third or subsequent violations.

Supporters of Prop 67, including many environmental groups, argue that those funding the fight against 67 are large, out-of-state plastic-bag manufacturers who have no vested interest in protecting California's environment and simply wish to continue sales of plastic bags to state businesses. They note that Prop 65 is a "disingenuous end run" around Prop 67's plastic-bag ban and recommend that the surest way to protect the environment is to ban plastic bags statewide.

Supporters further contend passage of Prop 67 would reduce litter, protect oceans and wildlife, reduce statewide litter cleanup costs, and add impetus to the ongoing effort by cities and counties statewide to phase out plastic bags.

The same organizations and manufacturers who oppose Prop 67 (large, plastic-bag manufacturers) are the ones supporting Prop 65's passage.

They argue that a statewide paper-bag ban will cost California consumers "more money" since they will have to pay 10¢ per recycled paper bag at checkout. They neglect to note that consumers in jurisdictions with existing plastic-bag bans can choose to carry their own reusable bags when they go shopping to avoid anymore bag charges. They also don't acknowledge that for their legislation to be applicable, a statewide paper-bag ban must be in effect.

Opponents also argue that grocers would get to keep revenue from recycled paper-bag sales (under the provisions of Prop 67) and that bag-sale revenues should be redirected to an environmental fund that would better serve state consumers' interests.

Prop 65 proposes to redirect revenue from grocer fees for recycled paper bags (10 cent minimum) to a new state environmental fund administered by the state Wildlife Conservation Board. Its provisions depend entirely on passage of Prop 67 and a statewide ban of plastic bags being in effect. If no statewide ban (Prop 67) is in effect, then Prop 65 is moot.

If both pass, then for Prop 65 to succeed in diverting grocer fees to a new environmental fund, it would have to receive more total votes than Prop 67.

Diverted fees would then go to the new state fund to be used to support grants for programs and projects related to drought mitigation; recycling; clean drinking water supplies; state, regional and local parks; beach cleanup; litter removal; and wildlife habitat restoration.

If Prop 67 gets more total votes, then grocers would retain fees (minimum 10 cents per recyclable bag), and the provisions of Prop 65 would be moot.

Opponents of 65 say the proposed redirect of grocer revenues from paper-bag sales is "payback" to grocers who changed sides in the plastic-bag war and now support the ban saying it's what their consumers want.

Top financial contributors to Prop 65 include Hilex Poly Co. LLC (South Carolina), Formosa Plastics (New Jersey), Superbag Corp. (Texas) and Advance Polybag Inc. (Nevada).

Top financial contributors to Prop 67 include Albertsons Safeway, California Grocers Association and Californians Against Waste. Founded in 1977, CAW is a non-profit environmental research and advocacy organization that identifies, develops, promotes and monitors policy solutions to pollution and conservation problems posing a threat to public health and the environment.

A partial list of Prop 67 supporters includes California Coastal Coalition, California Labor Federation, California League of Conservation Voters, Heal the Bay, Natural Resources Defense Council and the Sierra Club of California.

A partial list of Prop 65 supporters includes American Forest and Paper Association, American Progressive Bag Alliance, California Manufacturers and Technology Association and the Association of California Cities - Orange County.

Prop 67 supporters have raised nearly $2 million. Opponents have raised just over $5 million.

Prop 67 supporters, including many of the state's major newspapers' editorial boards (Los Angeles Times, Sacramento Bee, San Jose Mercury News and San Francisco Chronicle) recommend voting "yes" on 67 and "no" on 65 to avoid confusion over interpretation and outcome.

Major cities with existing plastic bag bans include Berkeley, Beverly Hills, Oakland, Sacramento, San Diego, San Jose, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Long Beach.

Sponsor the Art Walk

The Art Alliance of Idyllwild, in partnership with the Associates of Idyllwild Arts Foundation, are offering businesses and individuals the opportunity to reach all 1,200 attendees to this year's Oct. 8 Art Walk and Wine Tasting. With the goal of increasing year-round business to Idyllwild as a whole, all attendees this year will receive a gift bag with sponsor information.

There are five different sponsorship levels with associated premiums that increase with each level. Sponsorship starts for as little as $50. For more information, visit artinidyllwild.org or call 951-692-6135. Deadline is Sept. 25.

Radio club seeks help

The Mile High Radio Club is trying to improve WNKI 1610 AM station, Idyllwild emergency radio station, in the near future. WNKI has received some grant funding and MHRC has raised a fair amount of funds recently, too.

A condition of the grants is that MHRC record and document any form of improvements. It is asking for help from the community to tune into 1610 AM in and around the Idyllwild area.

Of most interest is the capability of WNKI to be heard on car radios north of Pine Cove, and east and west of Mountain Center. Providing field reports would be the best by describing the signal quality, time of day or night, and, more specifically, the locations, street and cross street as to when the signal was lost.

Idyllwild Brewpub plans 'green' operations, but no green beer

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The opening of the Idyllwild Brewpub is still in the future. But when its taps do pour many special-craft brews, residents should enjoy the local libations as well as be proud of the effort to build one of the most technologically advanced and environmentally considerate businesses on the Hill.

From providing the purest water available to its brews to applying state-of-the-art cleaning and recycling processes to the product that remains after the beer is kegged, the Brewpub will represent a true 21st century entity.

In the beginning of the pub's construction and of the beer brewing, Don Put, head brewer of the Brewpub, will use pure mountain water drawn from the pub's own well.

The volume of water the Brewpub will consume is about 0.3 percent of the Idyllwild Water District's average water production this year. Put estimates that the maximum monthly use will be about 20,000 gallons, which is less than the largest water consumers in IWD now.

"The well is sufficient to serve whatever the restaurant and the pub need," Put said. No treatment of the well water is necessary. Put will use the same testing protocols as IWD, which is every three months he will conduct a bacterial panel. "We are basically our own water company," he said.

Water is a vital ingredient of the pub's product. "Beer styles are a direct result of the water that brewers have access to," Put stressed. "Idyllwild water is like a blank canvas for brewers."

The output from the pub will exit through modern wastewater treatment equipment intended to protect the local environment and water table. "We want clean brewery effluent," Frank Ferro, local restaurateur, said.

"Our goal is not to send any wastewater to IWD unless we have to do that," Put emphasized. "Ideally, we will treat it on site for use for irrigation."

In March, when IWD and the Brewpub signed a memorandum of understanding, General Manager Tom Lynch concurred: "In many respects, the pre-treated material that will be released will be beneficial to the wastewater treatment process at the plant."

The MOU will regulate the Brewpub's discharge of effluent into IWD's wastewater collection system. The MOU specifies several key points, including that the Brewpub's discharge will be retreated.

Also, any discharge will occur between Monday and Friday, excluding weekends, which are already IWD's peak wastewater surge periods. The weekly total is limited to 2,000 gallons and no more than 400 gallons in one day without prior permission. Any discharge will occur after 8 p.m., which places less demand on the IWD facility.

The MOU was a product of negotiations between the Brewpub, the district and IWD's wastewater consultant, Wyatt Troxel, whose report a year ago verified how the Brewpub's discharge would help IWD's waste-treatment system.

The beer waste will travel through a receiving tank, aerobic digesters, then a settling tank, and move through both an ozone and ultraviolet cleansing processes. This water will be clean enough to be dispersed around the pub for irrigation to protect and enhance the vegetation.

Put has been working with state and county health officials to establish criterion for the wastewater. Biological oxygen demand, chemical oxygen demand, nitrogen content and total dissolved solids will be closely monitored.

"We expect they will hold us to the same limits as IWD," Put stressed. The only breweries with this type of reclamation technology are some of the largest in the state, such as Stone Brewery in Escondido and Sierra Nevada in Chico, he added.

The spent grain, a brewing product, will become cattle feed available to several farms and ranches in Anza.

The spent yeast is planned to become compost to be used on site. Ferro added, "If there is enough, we can share with the community."

In addition to their concern about safe and clean water in and out of the pub, energy is another concern. To minimize the pub's demand from the electric grid, solar panels have been installed on the roof. These are capable of supplying between 75 and 80 percent of the facility's electricity.

Finally, the lighting will be LEED compliant, too.

"Everything will be green," Put declared. Except the beer.

Robert Hewitt aims to serve the community

BY MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Robert Hewitt, full-time Pine Cove resident with wife Janice Murasko since 2010, continues to serve Idyllwild with the same steadiness that characterized his 35 years of service with the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

Hewitt is president of the Pine Cove Water District Board of Directors, sits on the County Service Area 38 board, is search and rescue director for Animal Rescue Friends of Idyllwild and has recently started an archery school on his Pine Cove property.

Hewitt began to learn traditional archery in 1995 and opened his High Country Traditional Archery School in 2014. Teaching steadiness and radiating calm, Hewitt has already taught more than 400 students. "We've had a lot of archers in our family," he observed. "I've done a lot of tournament shooting. I don't hunt, but I love the skill of hunting. Killing animals is not something I ever do."

It was as a firefighter that Hewitt honed his calm and steady demeanor. It is a physical and emotional conditioning that served him well in often dangerous fire combat situations.

He began his firefighting career in 1976 when hired by the U.S. Forest Service, Angeles National Forest Oak Grove Hotshots. He joined Los Angeles County Fire in 1978 and retired as battalion fire chief in 2013. During his LA County fire service, Hewitt, a proud Scots descendant, served as first bagpiper for LA County Fire Department.

Those who know Hewitt experience his calm demeanor and ready smile. There is an ease about him that puts others, including animals, at ease. And that is a good thing. Hewitt and wife Janice are key members of ARF, Animal Rescue Friends of Idyllwild — Murasko as director, and Hewitt as handyman and head of animal search and rescue. Murasko and Hewitt were honored in 2016 for their ARF volunteer service with the Ernie Maxwell Community Spirit Award, given annually by the Idyllwild Town Crier.

Hewitt said he and Janice became aware of ARF when he played bagpipe one weekend at Oakwood Village where ARF was then headquartered. "We had bought a weekend home in 2001," said Hewitt, "and got our first dog, Lucy, at ARF. We started by making donations and then, when we were full-time, we started volunteering."

Becoming aware of how many pets get separated from their owners, Hewitt took classes on tracking and organized the ARF tracking service two years ago. The need was huge to find missing pets and reunite them with their owners. "We have found and reunited so many pets with their owners; about 75- to 80-percent success rate," said Hewitt. "There is a real satisfaction in doing that. It makes me feel good."

Hewitt said reuniting lost pets with owners is assisted if the animal is well behaved, has an up-to-date collar and tag with a phone number, and is micro-chipped. "ARF provides micro-chipping on weekends," he noted. "The first thing I do when I retrieve a dog is to scan it for a chip."

Hewitt advised pet owners to be vigilant about their pet's safety. "Animals get stolen all the time," he said. "If a pet is taken to a vet or animal hospital, they always scan the dog to determine if it is stolen. Someone has to speak for the animals."

Home tour is Sept. 17

Five homes — historic to spectacular

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The 16th-annual Idyllwild Home Tour is only a week away. On Saturday, Sept. 17, the opportunity to visit and walk through several old (1930s and 1940s) Idyllwild residences, and a few new and very special homes will be available.

Five extraordinary homes will open their doors from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to benefit the Idyllwild Area Historical Society. Charlotte Groty, Home Tour chairperson, said, "Nancy Killingsworth has an uncanny ability to find the homes. She walks or drives by, and approaches the owners and is able to put them at ease with opening their doors to hundreds of strangers."

Attendance at the tour has been trending upward for several years. The 2015 tour attracted more than 650 participants, the largest number ever, according to Groty. Last year, she even received a call from a potential attendee who lived in San Francisco and was interested in visiting the town for the tour.

The 2016 tour will offer different, but still unique and special abodes. "This is a chance for people to really see Idyllwild, beyond North Circle Drive," Groty said. "All are unique. People come and love to see vintage, and that is what Idyllwild is known for."

Two of the five homes will be close together. Both have been with the same family for decades. The smaller, about 450 to 500 square feet, was built in the early 1930s. The larger cabin, built in 1948, is about twice that size.

The older home has incurred only one change since it was originally built. The roof has been partially replaced after a tree fell through it. The newer home still has its original stove and almost all the furniture, and the bathroom fixtures are original. The owner describes the kitchen as "a one-butt kitchen," Groty said.

Another house or "cabin" from the late 1940s is also on the tour. But it was renovated, to add a second bedroom, in the 1950s. "Original paneling is throughout the house and the copper paneling in the kitchen, too," she said.

A second 1930s home, but 2,000 square feet, also is on the tour. "The owners just love their home. It is their own distinct personality," Groty said. "You just walk in, sit down and just enjoy it."

But first, Groty visited and toured the "fabulous" tree house in back. This accommodates six to eight adults and children, too.

The fifth house was built in 2012, a three-story 4,600-square-foot log home. "It's very large, but very open," she stressed. "The owners live here full-time."

The living room ceiling is 26 feet high with soaring windows and the house includes its own home theater.

"Another unique feature is the kitchen microwave," Groty mentioned. "It's in a drawer you pull out."

This event is IAHS's principal fundraiser, supplying more than one-third of its annual operating budget. For more information about the tour, call 951-201-1400 or 951-808-3632.

Music will be provided at the museum during the tour, and appetizers and other refreshments also are available there, according to Groty, who has been an IAHS docent for 10 years.

Tour hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tickets are $20 and available now at the IAHS museum on North Circle Drive or by mail. On Sept. 17, they will be available at a booth in the center of town near the Idyllwild Inn.

Last week in "The Days of Our Nine Lives," the ARF cats met two new ARF dogs and two new adult cats.

Grace

Grace: Hi, I'm Grace. Heard you talking about me. I'm so glad to be here, but sad because my forever mom can no longer care for me, King Kitty and Girlie.

Leia: We're sorry. We all hope you all will be happy here.

Leia

Bobbie: So, King Kitty is the new office cat, I hear.

King Kitty: (Peering through the cattery window) Yes, I'm the office cat now, so I know everything that's going on. For instance, we have kittens!

King Kitty

Bobbie: Noooo! Say it ain't so!

Annie Oakley: It's so! I'm Annie, and here's my sister Calamity Jane.

Annie Oakley

Calamity Jane: Hi! I know you're all wondering how we got here.

Annie Oakley: I'll tell! A nice lady in Garner Valley found us in a ditch, and we're so glad she did!

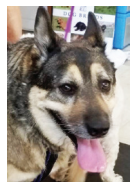

Calamity

Girlie: Wow. And I thought my story was sad. At least I had a forever mom 'til she got sick.

Leia: Hey, Traveler! How are your burned paws doing?

Traveler: I am so much better, thank you. I think I'm ready to join a forever family. I'd love one with a playful pup to be my friend.

Girlie

Girlie: And I'd like a family who is kind of quiet, where I won't be alone too much.

King Kitty: My perfect forever family wouldn't have any other cats.

Grace: My perfect forever family would just want to give me lots and lots of love.

Leia: I think the perfect forever families for any of us would be ones that want to love us, care for us, and make us real, true members of the family.

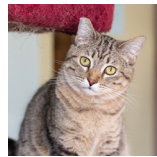

Bobbie: Amen.

Will ARF be busy with visitors this weekend? Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "The Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Hwy 243 on Saturdays 10-4 and Sundays 10-2, or by appointment M-F by calling 951-659-1122.

Wildcats in Labor Day Invitational ice hockey tournament

BY BRIAN SMITH
CONTRIBUTOR

The tournament kicked off Friday evening in Riverside with the Wildcats facing off against the St. John Bosco High School Junior Varsity team. Idyllwild's own Adam Smith of the Wildcats scored the tournament's first goal about midway through the first period. But Bosco eventually lit up the scoreboard, making the final score 9-2.

Saturday, the Wildcats played the Capistrano Coyotes JVs, who shut out the Wildcats 7-0.

Sunday, the Wildcats played two games, facing off first with the Lady Wildcats. The Wildcats' Max Nordhausen scored 4 goals to beat the Lady Wildcats 4-1.

In the final game Sunday night, the Wildcats faced off against the Corona-Norco Jr. Stingrays. In a see-saw contest, the Stingrays defeated the Wildcats 3-1.

Although the Wildcats played extremely well, the much-larger 18-and-under high school teams turned out to be too much for the 14-and-under Wildcats to handle.

The Wildcats next play a pre-season exhibition game on Sunday, Sept. 11, against the Lady Ducks. The game will be played at The Rinks, 5555 W. McFadden Ave., Huntington Beach.

Adam still needs help paying for this season. Remember, Wildcats Hockey is a nonprofit organization, and all donations and sponsorships are tax-deductible.

Editor's note: Brian Smith is Adam's father. The Town Crier has further information for anyone interested in helping Adam.

Deer undergoing maintenance

The Art Alliance of Idyllwild will be temporarily removing some of the deer sculptures around Idyllwild and Pine Cove for maintenance.

A public art project that was installed in September 2013, the deer have been clear coated once a year, but all will receive additional touches by the artists. Maintenance begins this week and be completed prior to the Oct. 8 Art Walk and Wine Tasting.

Last week AAI removed one fawn at the Idyllwild Area Historical Museum, both deer at BBVA Compass Bank and a doe with fawn in Pine Cove.

Art Walk tickets now for sale

Tickets for the Art Alliance of Idyllwild's Art Walk and Wine Tasting on Saturday, Oct. 8, are now available for purchase at the Idyllwild Town Crier, or online at art-idyllwild.org.

A Newer Science

Ecology is the study of relationships among living things and their environment. While there was talk of ecology in the 1800s, it did not become an actual science until the 1900s.

Scientists who study ecology are called ecologists. They look at many things from where plants and animals live to how they depend upon each other to survive.

Ecologists have their own area of interest. Some study certain animal groups, while others study certain areas of the earth.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS
 California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."
 This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspapers', and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

HOROSCOPES

September 2016 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
Don't hold back, Aries. Give 100%, and you will deliver. A loved one refuses to cooperate. Perhaps they don't need to. Mischievous is brewing at home.

April 20 – May 20
It's in the bag. Stop worrying about it, Taurus. A friend comes clean, and you have the information you need to proceed. A health crisis ends.

May 21 – June 21
What will happen this week at work is anyone's guess. You did your best, Gemini. Take comfort in that. Complaints crop up at home.

June 22 – July 22
It takes two to tango, Cancer, so why are you shouldering all of the responsibility? Divvy up the blame and the deeds dished out. A note is received.

July 23 – August 22
Stop moping, Leo. What's done is done. You have more important matters to attend to, at work and at home. A new recipe becomes a family favorite.

August 23 – September 22
Someone close sure could use some help. Lend them your ear, Virgo, and your advice should they want it. Vacation planning gets underway.

September 23 – October 22
Money may be tight, but that doesn't give you an excuse not to have some fun. Look around you, Libra. There is a lot to see and do for little to nothing.

October 23 – November 21
Scorpio could use a break, and a friend has got that covered. Take them up on their invite. Stronger expectations at work are no reason to panic.

November 22 – December 21
News travels fast, Sagittarius. Go ahead and make an official announcement, but don't be surprised if people already know. A change in venue boosts interest in an event.

December 22 – January 19
A friend hits it big and is high on the hog. Congratulate them, but don't go overboard, Capricorn. Success can be fleeting. A memo gives the green light.

January 20 – February 18
The rules are spelled out clearly. Follow them to the letter, Aquarius. Someone is waiting in the wings. A phone call clears up a mystery at home.

February 19 – March 20
Hold your horses, Pisces. All will be revealed in good time. Mistakes of the past clarify the actions of the present. You know what needs to be done, so do it.

Community Center amphitheater groundbreaking delayed

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The playground and pickleball courts at the Butterfield Commons on Strawberry Creek will remain open and available to the public at least until early November.

Despite plans to begin groundbreaking for the amphitheater (a band shell) this month, the San Jacinto Mountain Community Center board is still working with the Riverside County Planning Department to complete the final studies and review before scheduling a public hearing on the project's plans.

The board hopes that will occur in October and construction of the amphitheater, driveway and parking areas will begin shortly afterward. The intent is still to complete the work before June 2017.

Satisfying the county's needs for approval to proceed, the SJMCC had to furnish reports on archaeological findings, traffic control plans for events, a tree analysis and exemption report, environmental and biological site assessments, an acoustical study, a greenhouse gas analysis, a photometric study, and air- and water-quality reports.

The 5-acre site was a gift to the SJMCC from Loie and Dave Butterfield in 2008. The Butterfields subsequently pledged $2 million toward developing the site and the amphitheater.

Recreation

Kyla Brown, parks and recreation bureau chief.

Brown also confirmed the preliminary talks and the possibility of a private nonprofit agency assuming the management role. She stressed that it is management of the local recreation program being discussed. The Open-Space District would continue to manage its facilities at the Idyllwild Nature Center and Hurkey Creek Park.

With the Open-Space

District looking for a successor, a member of Washington's staff confirmed that they are looking at all options and "want what's best for the community."

All the entities concurred that it is premature to discuss the future role of Town Hall, but Washington has supported its contribution to local history and local thespians, and would like to see that continue if possible.

Utility

savings would be about $7.75 million, and shared between residential and commercial customers.

The county's consultant estimated that the average single domestic user could save about $54.50 annually. According to the report, "the average usage per account in Riverside County's domestic accounts is among the highest in the SCE territory," which increases the potential savings.

These estimates were based solely on electric usage in the unincorporated areas, and do not include power consumed in any of the cities or areas where a municipal or other public agency is already providing service. Electric customers can choose to opt out of the CCA.

Rather than managing the CCA itself, the board approved a request for proposal from potential contractors to plan and implement the entity. This also will provide the board with specific rate information and potential city participants. The preliminary study did not include administrative costs, which the response to the RFP will provide.

With the plan and a board ordinance authorizing the establishment of a CCA, the county can seek California Public Utility Commission approval, Nestande told the board last month. The board sees the lower electric rates as an incentive for new businesses to locate here.

The board unanimously approved issuing the RFP. During the discussion, Supervisor Marion Ashley (5th District) said, "This is a great thing we're doing and will really save the people of the unincorporated areas a lot of money."

The year 1996 cemented the current three venues, the Holmes Amphitheatre Main Stage, Stephens Hall for straight-ahead jazz and the French Quarter featuring food, drink and dancing. In 1998, the festival expanded to two days. In 1999, a national headliner appeared with guitarist Lee Ritenour.

In 2002, matching national trends, the festival moved toward more commercial jazz with rhythm-and-blues sax man Ernie Watts and smooth jazz pianist David Benoit. 2005 saw a big jump in attendance with Big Bad Voodoo Daddy drawing a younger crowd and smooth jazz pianist Brian Culbertson headlining.

The economic downturn began to affect attendance in 2012 and 2013. In 2014, Marshall Hawkins returned as programmer and began featuring more of the school's rising star alumni and returned programming to a broader mix of jazz genres.

At various times throughout its growth, Associates' chairs put their personal stamp on the programming and the bottom line. In 2011, jazz aficionada Marsha Lytle, working with KJazz programmer and personality Bubba Jackson, imported many new acts, making the festival a showcase for new talent Denise Donatelli, Gregory Porter and Oreo Divaz, and raising total contributed scholarship dollars to around $80,000. "Historically, what I can say is that every year we tried to improve on what had been done the year before and see more profits for the school," said Lytle.

In 2015, Idyllwild Arts took over management of Jazz in the Pines, and formed a Jazz in the Pines Committee composed of Idyllwild Arts employees, Associates and volunteers. In 2016, the 18-member committee included John Newman, IAF director of business operations, who serves as festival chair; Marshall Hawkins as musical director; with Associates Anne Erickson and Pam Associates and volunteers continue to direct key operations, including Green Room, parking, French Quarter, golf carts and communications. "The committee is about 50 percent Associates and volunteers and 50 percent Idyllwild staff," Newman said. He emphasized that all revenues go to scholarships as they did when the Associates ran the festival. "No IA staff members are paid separately, it's all part of their school job responsibilities."

Newman said reviews for the mix of jazz genres over the last two years have been very positive, noting a jazz brew that spanned different generations, styles and cultures. "That is exactly what we intended," said Newman, proud of the cooperation of school personnel, Associates and volunteers in producing a successful event.

Although final figures have not yet been reconciled, Newman anticipates having $60,000 in scholarship money from this year's festival. He noted there were about 160 fewer tickets sold this year, but a price increase for tickets grossed an online increase of $13,000.

Idyllwild Arts students whom scholarships will assist this year number 306 and are from 32 countries. Thirty are day students, with families who live in Idyllwild. Sixty percent of the student body last year and this year receive some form of scholarship aid. Newman noted total annual financial aid support for the Academy and Summer Program is about $8 million.
