Pape and Smith found guilty of Pinyon murders

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Defendants Robert Pape, 30, and Cristin Smith, 29, have been found guilty of murder. After 10 days of deliberations, and nearly 12 years after the crimes, a Riverside County jury returned guilty verdicts for both men.

The jury found both guilty of first-degree murders in the deaths of Jon Hayward and Vicki Friedli. Pape alone was found guilty of the second-degree murder of Becky Friedli, Vicki's daughter.

Riverside County Superior Court Judge Bernard Schwartz scheduled Pape's and Smith's sentencing hearing for Aug. 10. Pape and Smith each face life in prison without the possibility of parole, according to the news release from the District Attorney's office.

"Justice in this case, in particular for the family and friends of Jon Hayward, Vicki Friedli, and Vicki's daughter Becky, has been a long time coming," District Attorney Mike Hestrin said in the release. "It is clear that jurors were meticulous in their examination of the evidence in this complicated multiple defendant case, and we are pleased with their verdicts. We hope the verdicts help in the healing process to those who knew the victims and to the Coachella Valley community as a whole."

The murders occurred on Sept. 17, 2006, in Pinyon Pines. Becky's body was found burning in a wheelbarrow outside the house. The other bodies were found inside the burning home. An affidavit from the DA's Office stated that Hayward died from a 12-gauge shotgun wound to the chest. Vicki's death was caused from a wound to the head, possibly from a Glock handgun. Pape was Becky's former boyfriend.

In June 2016, Hestrin announced that both Pape and Smith had been arrested again and charged with three counts of murder, with a special circumstance allegation of committing multiple murders. This action came after an extensive review of the case and new evidence, including testimony from a confidential informant.

Power shut downs to avoid wildfires, damage, to increase

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

In December 2017, the unexpected electrical power outage throughout the Hill during the extreme wind storm may have been a necessary safety step; but the California Public Utilities Commission is taking a more active role in future "de-energizing" incidents.

While many Northern California residents wish Pacific Gas and Electric would have been more proactive de-energizing power lines last year before the wildfires, the CPUC wants to try to ensure customers have more time to prepare for these emergencies.

In a proposed rule making, issued May 30, the CPUC is proposing that the "investor owned utilities," such as Southern California Edison, comply with customer-notification requirements before shutting off power. The commission will consider this proposal at its July 12 meeting.

The CPUC acknowledges that de-energizing during dangerous conditions is a safety action and probably prevents more wildfires.

Many primary candidates eliminated, many races continue to November

Incumbency still popular

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Generally, the best overall conclusion from last week's primary election is incumbency remains a powerful vote magnet. Even party registration is a weaker indicator of election results in Riverside County.

Although the Democratic Party has more registered voters in Riverside County than the Republican Party, the two top Republican gubernatorial candidates — John Cox and Travis Allen — easily out-poll the top three Democratic candidates — Gavin Newsom, Antonio Villaraigosa and John Chiang.

In Riverside County, Cox was the leading vote getter in the governor's primary with nearly 78,000 votes. Newsom, who led statewide, garnered 51,900 votes here, which was fewer than a quarter of the votes cast for a gubernatorial candidate.

Results in local races, from the federal House of Representatives to county, generally favored the incumbents, although the summer and fall campaign might sway voters toward some challengers, several of whom have expressed confidence in the next five months.

Congressman Dr. Raul Ruiz easily dominated the vote for the District 36 seat. He had nearly 55 percent of the total. Kimberlin Brown Pelzer easily outpaced her Republican colleagues, but failed to gain even half of Ruiz's total.

Pelzer expressed her gratitude for being in the top two and her excitement for the rest of the campaign. She was surprised his vote total wasn't higher since she had addressed it personally during the primary.

Similarly, in the race for the state

Senate District 28 seat, incumbent Jeff Stone, a Republican, easily outdistanced his two Democratic challengers. Stone has 56.2 percent of the vote counted. Joy Silver, with 34.7 percent, will continue the challenge against Stone until the November election.

Stone reflected that the primary was an interim report card from voters. He emphasized that 75 percent of his staff time is devoted to helping constituents with a variety of problems.

"We want to make a difference in a life," he stated.

He does expect the fall election to be different from the 2014 race. Then, his opponent was Bonnie Garcia, a fellow Republican. "We only had about 15 percent difference, but this year, I suspect we [Joy Silver, a Democrat] are in disagreement on 85 percent of the issues and only agree on 15 percent."

In the race for Assembly District 71 (a portion in Riverside and San Diego counties), incumbent Republican Randy Voepel was the leading vote getter although he didn't receive 50 percent. In fact, Riverside County voters preferred his Republican challenger Larry Wilske, but San Diego voters clearly prefer Voepel, who finished first overall with 44 percent of the vote.

He will face Democratic challenger James Elia in November, who finished second with 32 percent of the total.

Hidden Lake Bluecurls' recovery complete

Removed from endangered and threatened status

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The Hidden Lake Bluecurls will officially be removed from the federal list of Endangered and Threatened Species on July 2.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has determined that the threats to the plant's continued existence no longer exist or have been mitigated.

The Bluecurl, whose whose official name is Trichostema austromontanum subsp. compactum, is native to Hidden Lake in the San Jacinto Mountains and its habitat is about 2 acres in total, adjacent to the lake.

It was originally listed as threatened in September 1998. Hikers and equestrians visiting the lake area or passing it were trampling the flowers.

Since then, the California Department of Parks and Recreation has taken action to limit hikers and visitors to the plants' habitat near Hidden Lake. This includes changing the route of the trail near the lake.

FWS has reviewed the Bluecurls' status several times since its listing and decided that the current population is stable, subject to weather and uncontrollable disasters such as wildfires.

In January 2017, FWS issued a notice of its intent to remove the Bluecurls from the ETS list and solicited comments about this proposal. FWS also drafted and included a post-delisting management plan for review with this notice.

After reviewing the comments, FWS made minor changes and is still confident that the Hidden Lake Bluecurls will continue to survive in their current habitat, and known and controllable threats have been addressed. But the plants' condition will be monitored even after its removal from the list.

The Federal Register notice stated, "In conclusion, we find that the currently existing regulatory mechanisms described above are adequate, and they will remain adequate to protect T. a. ssp. compactum and its habitat across its range now and in the future."

JP Crumrine can be reached at jp@towncrier.com.

A Hidden Lake Bluecurl grows to about 4 inches tall, with short stem segments between elliptic leaves, and blue flowers with a five-lobed corolla. Its fruit consists of four smooth, basally-joined nutlets.

Hemet Unified schools' SAFE program expands next year

By HOLLY PARSONS
STAFF REPORTER

Due to consistently low attendance, Town Hall recently cancelled the primary-school, after-care program for the coming year.

Idyllwild Community Center Program Director Bob Lewis and ICC Recreation Committee Chair Pete Caparelli assure Idyllwild parents that the afterschool Kinder Program will continue in the fall in its current format.

Scott Payne, coordinator of Hemet Unified School District, advises, "Our SAFE program is poised to absorb kids formerly attending the Idyllwild Town Hall's afterschool program." He further advised of the following program details: "The Hemet Unified School District afterschool programs are available by virtue of an ASES grant, [After School Education and Safety]. The terms of this grant provide three key elements which form a curriculum and require three key stipulations of parents."

The first element of the curriculum called Clubs offers fun with educational components, for example, cooking classes that require perfecting measuring techniques, dance that integrates musical knowledge and metering, or sports that teach rules of the game, sportsmanship and scoring. The second required component is Academic Enrichment in the form of tutoring and homework completion with availability of the computer lab or Google laptops enabling students to participate in readers' theater. The third element is Snacks.

Each club runs six weeks and finishes with a concluding event. For example, last year, the drama club performed a play at the school and attended a field trip to see "Beauty and the Beast" in Temecula. Each club's focus is dependent on the skills of each respective instructor.

The program is no charge to families; the three stipulations that are part of the grant's funding requirements require parents to attend an orientation, agree to children's daily attendance from 3 p.m. with pickup at 6 p.m. Kids whose families agree and attend orientation are given registration priority.

Parents who register for an earlier pickup or don't attend orientation are wait-listed. In Idyllwild, SAFE is funded for 80 kids with a ratio of one instructor per 20 children, and program space, as of this issue, is still available.

Payne would like parents to realize daily attendance provides program continuity for participating kids. On sports days and three times during each six-week period, kids can be picked up by parents early for any reason. This provision enables doctors' appointments or provides flexibility for personal reasons.

Payne added, "Hemet Unified schools also has pilot programs in place with the ultimate goal of offering meals for students attending all schools in their districts. When the program phases into Idyllwild, it will also be offered to non-students 18 years or younger if they arrive during the specified times."

Refer to the Hemet Unified School District webpage for details of the phased rollout of this program and SAFE program registration.

This summer before school restarts, ICC is offering its summer camp. It begins Monday, June 11, and will continue through early August. The camp operates Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and provides arts and crafts, sports and field trips. The cost is $15 per day or $60 per week.

Supervisors seek to reduce false alarms for fire, sheriff

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Without discussion, the Riverside County Board of Supervisors has given county staff 90 days to develop a false-alarm ordinance.

Supervisors Kevin Jeffries (1st District) and Manuel Perez (4th District) asked the concurrence of their colleagues to pursue this action.

In the proposal, the supervisors wrote, "One of the largest unnecessary uses of sheriff and fire resources is responding to false alarms."

In 2016, the Sheriff's Department "had 15,172 alarm calls in the unincorporated areas, of which only 37 were determined to be legitimate." Of the remainder, responses to nearly 13,500 were made but no written report was found to be necessary. Just within the unincorporated areas of Riverside County, the fire department responded to more than 2,600 false alarms in 2017, including the department's contract cities, which had increased false alarm responses to more than 11,700.

This is not the first attempt to reduce the time consumed responding to false alarms. A 1996 ordinance was repealed in 1997 after alarm companies filed litigation. The ordinance billed alarm companies $5 for all alarms and then imposed fines on individuals for false alarms.

In 2012, the board requested a new ordinance, but none was ever developed and brought to the board for approval.

The two supervisors want an ordinance that will decrease the number of false alarms and encourage alarm companies to improve their systems to improve the verification of the alarm before alerting first responders.

Terry Shirley is Local Review Board's newest member

By Holly Parsons
Staff Reporter

Imperial Valley native Terry Shirley has cherished memories of childhood visits to his aunt and uncle's cabin near Strawberry Creek. His fondest memory is of riding a horse into town. Shirley attended San Diego State University, majoring in political science and minoring in business. Professionally, he excelled at Internet marketing in San Diego in the early years of e-commerce.

The Shirleys became full-time residents in October 2017 and embraced a piece of history with their home choice. Macktecklewood is a street in Idyllwild named for three historic families who remained friends for 50 years. When the Shirleys met Saunders Meadow Home Owners Association Historian Connie Pillsbury, "we learned her grandfather Ellwood Jones was one of three original families. The families spent summers hiking and fishing while staying in meager accommodation on the meadow," said Shirley.

In 1950, the U.S. Forest Service notified the group that the Saunders Meadow tract was for sale with a stipulation that each of the original fishing shacks built in 1924 required a minimum upgrade investment of $2,000. These early families bought in, invited friends to invest, built the original water system, and together, developed the area with a golf course, tennis courts and a recreation center. The area behind Astro Camp was home to the original golf course.

"It was Pillsbury who encouraged me to become active with the [Idyllwild Historic Preservation District]," Shirley continued. "My interest in Idyllwild's local history originated in my childhood and my interest in community stems from my volunteer work in San Diego where I was involved with parks and various programs at San Diego State University.

"I find it easier and more gratifying to get things done on a community level versus city, state or national levels because communities have a great impact on quality of life, and community funding has the ability to generate great-

Business ADA compliance Who's responsibility?

By JACK CLARK
CONTRIBUTOR

So, you own a business on the Hill that is open to the public. Or you own a business building. Maybe both. Who is responsible for compliance with the Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990?

Idyllwild was recently visited by David Kelly, a privately employed certified access specialist — an ADA compliance expert. Kelly, a landlord of several properties here in Idyllwild, spoke at the Idyllwild Library on June 6 regarding the ADA and its effect on business owners and landlords who own business buildings. The Town Crier followed up with an interview.

First, assuming the business owner and building owner are two different persons, which is responsible for ADA compliance? Kelly gave a graphic rule of thumb. "If you could pick up a building like it was a doll house and turn it upside down and shake it, things that would fall out are the responsibility of the tenant; everything that is attached to the building is that of the landlord."

Kelly emphasized that ADA compliance is required regarding buildings open to the public that were built on or after Jan. 26, 1992. But earlier-built buildings open to the public must also comply when renovations are done. For example, if the owner of a pre-1992 building were to spend $10,000 renovating the front of the building, another 20 percent ($2,000) would have to be expended toward ADA compliance. If the renovation expense exceeds about $161,000, the entire building would need to be made ADA compliant.

He advises that, if a bathroom cannot be readily maintained in an ADA compliant condition, a sign should be posted indicating that it is not available to the general public.

Kelly's first presentation at Idyllwild Library was in the evening, so he and the library are planning a second presentation on an upcoming Saturday. The TC will advise as to the date and time of that event once they become determined.

School district budget grows

Parental role in developing priorities grows, too

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Last week, June 5, the Hemet Unified School District held public hearings for its proposed 2018-19 budget, which begins July 1, and its 2018-19 Local Control and Accountability Plan.

The proposed budget for next fiscal year is $290.6 million, which is $10.2 million more than the current year. However, it will still need to dip into reserves in order to balance the budget.

For this year, HUSD needed about $10.1 million from reserves but in 2018-19, the help from reserves will fall to $1.6 million as revenues, especially state funding, increases.

About $47.8 million of the total is restricted for special education; preschool; afterschool; Titles I, II and III; and debt. About 80 percent of the total is allocated for salaries and benefits. This includes a 1-percent increase effective July 1 and a 2-percent increase on Jan. 1, 2019.

Assistant Superintendent for Business Services Vince Christakos emphasized to the board that the retirement contributions for both the teachers and non-credentialed employees have risen and will continue to rise for the next four years.

Nearly $221.3 million of the 2018-19 revenues will come from the state based on the Local Control Funding Formula. Within that total, $51.2 million is allocated according to the LCAP.

Dr. Alex Ballard, HUSD's director for assessment and accountability, presented the LCAP to the board and public and emphasized that the 2018-19 LCAP reflects a "dramatic realignment of goals and a reinvigoration of conviction of parents and staff."

This year, the plan has three main goals and objectives subsumed within the goals. Surveys of parents and stakeholders, both closed and open-ended, and many meetings contributed to its development, according to Ballard.

The first goal is "Teaching and Learning," which is funded with $16.8 million. This includes funds for the college and career program, English-learner support and several other objectives.

The second goal is the "Multi-tiered Systems of Support," which allocates $18.6 million among five objectives. These embrace literacy initiatives, early intervention, services to support at-risk students and a few others.

The third goal is "Culture and Climate," which is allocated $15.9 million. It is directed at encouraging and improving both student and parent engagement with school activities and studies. One of the indicators to measure the success of these objectives is a reduction in the chronic absenteeism.

One of the major changes with the LCAP this year, according to Alex Sponheim, HUSD's public information officer, is "New services supporting at-risk youth, supporting social and emotional and behavioral support of students, as well as the 'braiding' of federal title funds to demonstrate an increased level of fiscal transparency that exceeds the expectations set by the California Department of Education."

She also added that Idyllwild parents' and staff input helped the district assign a full-time counselor to all outlying schools, including Idyllwild, and to continue financial support for struggling students.

OUT LOUD

It happened that late Thursday afternoon last week, a visitor appeared in the office to speak with me. I would say it was a pleasant surprise but most people show up without appointments so “surprise” may not be the appropriate word — probably pleasant “diversion from the mundane chores of budgets and management” fits the bill.

Kevin Brennan, California Fish and Wildlife biologist for our area and others, popped by to talk about wildlife and other things that interest us.

I always find his visits a delight. He maintains a home here and off the Hill with his wife Deborah, a journalist I highly respect whom I came to know through a knitting group we once belonged to on the Hill.

He came up after a report of a mountain lion in the Darryl Road area. He said most of these reports turn up to be false — bobcats, two squirrels on a rock, etc. — but he checks out the report anyway.

When he came by my office, he had just scouted around the area finding no tracks or evidence of any kind of a lion and then got back into his truck. Another case of mistaken identify.

Sitting inside, making notes on his clipboard, he glanced up in his rearview mirror to see the lion walking along the road behind his truck. A big smile appeared on his face. This man loves his job.

Recently, Frank Baele sent me photos of an encounter he had with a bear. The bear destroyed some of his bird feeders and caused a great deal of noise one night in late May. Frank went out, met the bear face-to-face, and beat on some pots and pans to scare him off. It worked.

His outside cam took some great black-and-white photos of the bear. A few days before Kevin stopped by, at Frank's request, I forwarded them to Kevin, who confirmed this was the Banning Rite Aid bear who appeared last year about the same time on the Hill.

That led me to ask some questions about the coincidence of bear sightings about the same time this year.

Here are some brief facts I learned: Bears rely on grass for nutrition in the spring. Around May 1 is when F&W gets calls about bear sightings because that's when the grasses are turning brown and the bears are moving into residential areas seeking nutrition.

They find it in bird seed. They find it in garbage left outside. Right now, the fact that they are a nuisance to people like Frank is just a smoke alarm, Kevin said. But if we as a community don't start bear-proofing our yards, the smoke alarm will turn into a fire alarm.

Then the bears may become aggressive. He pointed out that the Transfer Station is open five days a week so there's little excuse for keeping garbage stored outside to attract bears.

Kevin plans to give more talks on the Hill about the black bears who are not native to these mountains. The grizzlies were but they've been long gone from California for decades.

In 1933, 33 black bears (22 male, 11 female) were introduced into the San Gabriel and San Bernardino (not San Jacinto) mountains. The mortality rate on relocating bears is high. Kevin estimates maybe three survived and the bears we're seeing probably descended from them. DNA testing may occur in the future to confirm or deny this.

Is this prime black bear country, though? Kevin says probably not. Why? Because the soil isn't rich enough to support the abundance of grasses they need. We have too much granite.

Some areas of the San Bernardino Mountains do have rich soil to support these grasses.

But, he observed, if we ever see a mother bear and her cubs, then we most likely have an established bear population.

I asked if we should be concerned about the mother bear of that yearling spotted in Pine Cove recently and he said no. A yearling is no longer considered a baby bear. That guy or gal is on its own.

Let's just be grateful for the few bears we do have and not create a problem for them by leaving out our garbage. It's nice to have such a diversity of wildlife.

Another another thing; if you see a young wild thing alone, leave it be. Read the story on page A5 to find out why.

Is this creative financing?

EDITOR:

I am not an accountant. I do not speak their language. Trying to understand more, I turned to Google and YouTube. Do some research for yourself and perhaps you will feel as I do.

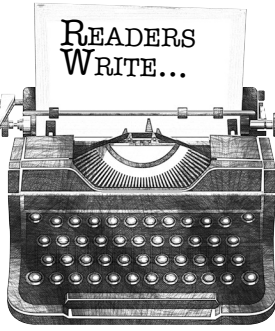

Our local water districts are governmental agencies and as such, are required to follow rules and regulations that private businesses do not, such as the Brown Act.

I requested a copy of the Pine Cove Water District's Comprehensive Annual Financial Report and was told the information could be found on its website. What is provided there is the 2017 Annual Audit and not the CAFR, as required by the Governmental Accounting Standards Board. I could not find any mention of a CAFR. However, I did find mention of a report dated Sept. 29, 2017, from its accounting firm, which has not been added to the website.

The increases we will see will far outweigh the yearly inflation rate and actual operating costs. Looking at the pie chart on PCWD's website, you will find the following:

- 53% of PCWD's operating expenses are Administrative and General
- 15% Transmission and Distribution
- 1% Water Treatment
- 5% Source of Supply
- 8% pumping
- 18% Depreciation

What jumps out at you? In my opinion Administrative and General costs are way out of line, but as I said, I am not an accountant.

I am not happy with subsidizing area business and other entities with lower rates. If anyone deserves subsidizing, it should be those on low and/or fixed incomes.

Why must I pay more for my water, propane, electricity, etc., than a business? Why am I paying for someone to operate a business I have no interest in?

If we all paid equally for our usage, there would not be a need for anyone to pay more at this time.

Soon, those of you in Fern Valley and Idyllwild Water districts will be paying more as well.

Google or Youtube “CAFR” “Rim of the World School District” as a start.

Creative financing amazes and worries me. I need more than someone telling me to trust them and their accountants.

Seeking the right new owners

Membership renewals approaching

By JACK CLARK
CO-PUBLISHER AND GENERAL COUNSEL

Yes, the Town Crier is for sale. But, no, we're not in a hurry.

We are committed to finding the right publishers who will continue a real newspaper for our Hill — a paper that will carry on as a community watchdog publishing the bad with the good. A newspaper that warns of danger, advises of opportunity, challenges authority, praises accomplishment, investigates irregularity, marvels at art, exposes abuse, celebrates life and publishes its readers' letters. If a publication doesn't do all those things, it's not a newspaper.

Most importantly, the Town Crier must continue as a watchdog that will monitor and report on the doings of the nine public boards we have up here on the Hill.

We know it won't be easy to find such a publisher or publishers, but we're not planning to go anywhere until we find the right person or people to carry on.

Only nine more weeks until the one-year anniversary of our Town Crier Membership Model. That's when the moment of truth will begin, i.e., when it's time to begin renewing the earliest Memberships. If the Town Crier is to be ongoing, the Membership model has to be ongoing, too. When prospective new publishers see that the Membership model continues to work into a second year, they will be much more comfortable with acquiring our community's newspaper and keeping it serving our Hill — including our part-time residents and our readers who just plain love visiting our community.

So please plan on renewing your Membership when it comes up.

And also please plan to attend our weekly news meetings, open to the public, Wednesdays at 8:30 a.m. at the Town Crier office. That's when we decide on news stories for the upcoming week.

Seeking EMax award nominees

For the eighth consecutive year, the Idyllwild Town Crier is requesting nominations for the annual Ernie Maxwell Community Spirit Award. Bring your nomination to the Town Crier office at 54405 N. Circle Dr., mail it to P.O. Box 157, Idyllwild, CA 92549, or send by email to becky@towncrier.com by Friday, Aug. 31.

The honor is given to an individual or group who represents EMax's spirit of community and volunteerism. Prior awardees took actions that created a spark sufficient to bring others into the fray just as Maxwell did with his activities involving the environment.

The nomination information should provide the reason why the individual or group has been nominated. They should have demonstrated a tangible, perhaps physical, effect on the community. The Ernie Maxwell Scenic Trail is an example of accomplishment.

How long has your nominee been active in the community?

Provide a description of their volunteer contributions and accomplishments for the community.

And finally, can you show how these efforts have been adopted or expanded by the community?

The five previous awardees were the Mountain Communities Fire Safe Council in 2011, Dawn Sonnier in 2012, Robert Priefer in 2013, Annamarie Padula in 2014, Wendy Read in 2015, Janice Murasko/Robert Hewitt in 2016 and Jay Mulder in 2017. A plaque in the Town Crier office lists the awardees' names.

Later, you will have an opportunity to vote for the top three 2018 nominees. Group noting, e.g. collecting a list of signatures at a meeting, is not permitted. Votes must be on original, not copies of, ballots available in the Town Crier.

Zachary Lattin of Idyllwild, a senior receiving a Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering, was named to the spring 2018 Dean's List at LeTourneau University in Longview, Texas. The Dean's List recognizes students who have achieved a GPA between 3.50 and 3.99 for the semester.

“LeTourneau University is the premier comprehensive Christian polytechnic institution in the country,” stated University President Dr. Dale A. Lunsford. “Our students are among our nation's best. I'm especially impressed with these honor roll students, and I expect them to have a significant impact on our future.”

LETU offers more than 140 undergraduate and graduate degree programs across a range of disciplines and delivery models at LETU's residential campus in Longview, Texas, hybrid options at centers in the Dallas and Houston areas and fully online programs ...

Idyllwild native band Throw the Goat took home Best Punk Band in the Coachella Valley Music Awards May 31 and June 3.

Lead vocalist and bass Michael Schnalzer, lead guitar and back-up vocalist Brian Parnell and drums Troy Whitford make up the group that has a growing fan base and has toured outside of the U.S.

CDFW Reminds the public to leave young wildlife alone

Spring and early summer is the peak time for much of California's wildlife to bear their young. With this in mind, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife is asking well-intentioned members of the public to leave young wildlife alone.

It may be hard to resist scooping up a young wild animal who looks vulnerable and abandoned, but intervention may cause more harm than good. Young animals removed from their natural environment typically do not survive. Those who do make it may not develop the skills necessary to survive on their own in natural habitat. When this happens, the only alternative is a life of captivity in artificial conditions.

"It is a common mistake to believe a young animal, especially a fawn, has been abandoned when found alone," said Nicole Carion, CDFW's statewide wildlife rehabilitation coordinator. "But even if the mother has not been observed in the area for a long period of time, chances are she is off foraging, or is nearby, waiting for you to leave."

Such behavior is common across many species. A female mountain lion may spend as much as 50 percent of her time away from her kittens.

Fledglings, or young partially feathered birds, found alone and hopping along the ground in the spring or summer, are actually trying to learn to fly. Though it is tempting to pick them up, what they really need is space and time to master flying. The best course of action is not to draw attention to them, advises Carion. You can help by keeping pets away until the bird has left the area.

If a young animal is in distress, or you are unsure, contact a wildlife rehabilitation facility and speak to personnel for advice.

Most wildlife rehabilitators are only allowed to possess small mammals and birds. Although some wildlife rehabilitators are allowed to accept fawns, injured or sick adult deer should be reported directly to CDFW for public safety reasons. Injured, orphaned or sick bears, elk, bighorn sheep, pronghorn antelope, wild pigs or mountain lions should also be reported to CDFW directly.

Anyone who removes a young animal from the wild is required to notify CDFW or take the animal to a state and federally permitted wildlife rehabilitator within 48 hours. These animals may need specialized care and feeding that is best done by trained wildlife care specialists.

It is important to note that wild animals — even young ones — can cause serious injury with their sharp claws, hooves and teeth, especially when injured and scared. They may also carry ticks, fleas and lice, and can transmit diseases to humans, including rabies and tularemia.

Metallic balloon safety is worth the weight

BY PAUL NETTER
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDISON SPOKESMAN

With graduations galore in June, Southern California Edison and Alin Party Supply urge secured balloons amid record power outages and potential safety hazards.

In his profession, Ivan Medina doesn't have a weight problem. And that's music to the ears of Southern California Edison.

That's because Medina, senior assistant manager at Alin Party Supply, and his team make sure every metallic balloon that leaves their doors is properly attached to a weight, as required by state law.

The reason that is important is the reason Medina, Paul Jeske, SCE's director of Corporate Health and Safety, and Scott Brown, an SCE troubleman turned fire management officer, spoke last week at Medina's store in Lakewood about the power outages and safety hazards created by released balloons.

Released intentionally or not, the balloons cause hundreds of power outages yearly for SCE — in fact, a record-high 1,094 last year that affected 1.4 million customers. And no other month, with its celebration of graduations leading the way, is usually worse than June.

"Free-floating metallic balloons that are released outdoors continue to be a problem and challenge for Southern California Edison," said Jeske, noting that SCE experienced a one-month, all-time high of 191 outages last June. "Think about that; that's six a day. This is a very important issue for us and these are very preventable outages."

Weights — the best prevention — are paramount for Medina, and his store won't sell a balloon without one. Nor should any balloon seller. And he recommends extra weights to customers buying bunches.

In a store adorned predominantly with colorful graduation balloons of all sizes, Medina also recommended air-filled balloons, saying, "They are actually great. They do not require helium, meaning they will not float."

Which is fine with Brown, who removed many metallic balloons from power lines during his nearly 14 years as an SCE troubleman. He cited a specific incident involving the flame-retardant SCE shirt he was wearing at the party store as an example of the hazards. While removing balloons from power lines once, the balloons caught fire and burning debris from them fell on his clothes.

"If I were wearing a cotton or polyester shirt, I probably would have suffered some significant burns, so they're very, very dangerous not only to the public but our employees as well," said Brown.

Brown also reiterated the safety and economic impact of

More Southern California Edison customers may qualify for financial assistance to help pay their utility bills through an assortment of income-qualified programs that offer bill discounts and free energy-efficiency products and services, SCE announced last week.

Effective June 1, income guidelines for 2018-19 income-qualified programs — California Alternate Rates for Energy, Family Electric Rate Assistance and Energy Savings Assistance — have been updated and may increase the number of SCE customers eligible for financial support. These programs aid low-income customers facing economic hardships or who need help paying their utility bill, particularly those on limited incomes or who participate in at least one of 10 government public-assistance programs.

"We're here to support our customers and help those eligible for CARE and FERA income-qualified programs lower their monthly bill and electricity usage," said Jill Anderson, SCE vice president for Customer Programs and Services. "The recent income guideline changes will help SCE serve even more eligible customers who qualify for these and other programs."

The CARE program provides SCE's income-qualified customers a discount of about 30 percent on monthly electric bills. More than 1.2 million SCE customers are already enrolled in this program.

The FERA program gives a 12-percent discount on monthly electric bills to qualified households of three or more.

Under the Energy Savings Assistance program, customers may qualify for a free, new, energy-efficient replacement refrigerator, light bulbs or other energy-saving appliances, or energy-conservation services that can help them save money on their SCE electric bill.

Sudden power outage confronts Hill Monday morning

By JP Crumrine
News Editor

About 8:15 a.m. Monday, June 11, the power went out from Azelea Trails in the north to Anza. About 30 minutes later, power was restored to Idyllwild.

Later that morning, Southern California Edison was still troubleshooting its system to determine the cause, according to Susan Cox in the SCE corporate communications office. At that time, she had no estimate of when power would be fully restored.

SCE said 7,758 customers were affected. This was only two months since the last major outage.

Anza Electric Cooperative did alert its customers shortly before the outage darkened the Hill with the following message, "System-wide power outage due to Edison issue. No ETA on power restoration yet. We'll keep you posted."

County budget looks similar; deficit falling

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Although the total Riverside County budget exceeds $5.5 billion, the Board of Supervisors has direct and authoritative control over less than 20 percent.

For fiscal year 2018-19, which begins in less than a month, the “discretionary” portion of spending will be $799.5 million.

Regardless of whether one looks at the total county budget, the general funds expenditures or the “discretionary” funding, public protection, sheriff, fire, district attorney, public defenders, probation and some healthcare programs are consistently where most of the spending is directed.

Public protection will receive $1.7 billion of total appropriations in 2018-19, a proposed increase of $41 million. From the $3.3-billion general fund, $1.4 billion, nearly 44 percent, goes to public protection. The proposed discretionary budget of $800 million includes $617 million, slightly more than 75 percent for public protection.

Although County Executive Officer George Johnson is telling the supervisors that much greater use and emphasis has been placed on performance and key indicators, the areas driving future growth remain the same.

“Provisions of past labor agreements and steeply rising pension obligations continue to increase costs for salaries and benefits across departments,” he wrote in the 2018-2019 budget submission.

And the county will continue to grapple with how much new funding will be allocated to the Sheriff’s Department to begin operations at the new John J. Benoit Detention Center versus how much the sheriff will have to reassign or re-direct internal resources.

“Over these past few months, the sheriff’s staff worked closely with CEO staff on our needs for this upcoming budget year, including the needed additional funding for the required new positions to be hired for the phased-in opening of the new John Benoit Detention Center when construction is completed,” Sheriff Stan Sniff wrote to the Town Crier. “Our budget, along with the additional CEO recommendations that are being forwarded to the board for approval, are appropriate and provides us with a reasonably balanced budget this next year, and allows us to hire needed new positions ...”

Other issues that will affect expenditure growth include the healthcare settlement for jail inmate services and the county’s increasing insurance costs for liability and worker’s compensation.

Johnson estimates, when fiscal year 2020-21 arrives, the county’s “structural deficit” will be overcome. But until then, reserves will continue to supplement the difference between revenues and costs.

In fiscal year 2018-19, this difference is projected to approach $19 million, with revenues at $781 million and a 4-percent increase, and costs will be close to $800 million.

Forest chief says agency applying new tools to help with fire threats

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Wildfire risk and forest health were the topics that Interim Chief of the U.S. Forest Service Victoria Christiansen testified about at a House of Representatives Natural Resources Committee hearing last week.

She told members of the Federal Lands Subcommittee, “Early predictions indicate that 2018 will likely be another challenging wildfire year. According to the forecast released by the National Interagency Fire Center on June 1, 2018, significant portions of the western United States are predicted to have above-average potential for significant wildfire activity between now and the end of September.”

California is among the states likely to suffer more acreage burned during wildfires.

Committee members almost unanimously questioned Christiansen about what actions the USFS was taking to reduce the risk of catastrophic fire encompassing its lands.

“In 2017, we saw a small part of the true mortality crisis afflicting our public lands,” said Subcommittee Chair Tom McClintock (R-CA). “The density on the land is three to four times what the forest can sustain. This damages its resiliency to drought, diseases and, ultimately, catastrophic fires.

“This crisis was not created overnight and won’t be solved overnight,” he added.

Christiansen reported that the USFS is making progress to increase work on the ground to improve forest conditions. New language in the 2018 Omnibus appropriations act for Good Neighbor Authority has helped in this area. The USFS is now collaborating on more than 150 agreements in 34 states.

Also, McClintock, Christiansen and other members of the subcommittee praised Congress’ bipartisan resolution to eliminate the USFS’ practice of using funds from other programs, such as recreation, to supplement fire-suppression costs.

“Fire borrowing was using prevention funds to fight fires ... the more spent on fighting fires, the less spent on prevention, and the less spent on prevention, the more fires to have to fight,” McClintock said.

Christiansen discussed other steps the agency has taken to prevent or to address the fire damage. The USFS has reviewed its internal policies and is beginning to make changes that will shorten the time to make decisions on forest resiliency, she added. The USFS’ nine regions were to submit revised two-year plans for implementing these authorities, such as categorical exclusions for wildfire resilience projects, to Washington by June 8.

Also, there has been and will be greater use of categorical exclusions for treatment of badly burned areas after fires.

“Our focus to streamline planning over the past eight months has decreased the time necessary to authorize projects, reduced costs by nearly $30 million and resulted in more shovel-ready work,” Christiansen stated. “But we know there is more to do.”

Demonstrating her intention to do more, she shared that the USFS has treated 36 percent more acreage this year and timber-harvest levels have increased 13 percent.

The 2018 timber-harvest target is the highest in 20 years, according to Christiansen. The current goal is 3.4 million board-feet sold and 4-million-board-feet is the goal in two years.

Committee members expressed concern that timber harvests were removing fewer fuel threats more slowly than new forest growth, resulting in increasing accumulation of dead and dying fuels posing major fire threats. Committee members noted that nine of the largest fires have occurred since 2008.

While Christiansen agreed, she noted that many factors increase the threat of fires. Extended droughts, less active forest management, the proximity of many more residences to forests and others all create a complex situation for fire managers.

However, we are looking for a regular business sponsor, which will get its bold-faced published name as well as an acknowledgment and thank you in this column weekly — all for a gift certificate for your business in the amount of $15 per week.

OK, this week’s photo shouldn’t be too hard, but it may be a little tricky. Where is this one?

CREATURE CORNER

By JANICE MURASKO

Last week in “Days of Our Nine Lives,” ARF family members wondered why they hadn’t yet found their forever homes.

Panther: Wow. I think things have stagnated.

Indigo: I agree. No adoptions in the last couple of weeks. What’s up with that?

Panther: I don’t know. You and I are so friendly, warming up to any human who wants to give us some attention. We’d both be great greeters in a forever home.

Freda: As would I!

Jax: Zoe and I would be great greeters, too.

Zoe: We really like humans ... and cats ... and dogs. Can’t people see what perfect pets we are?

Topsy: (entering office) Excuse me. Uh, I’m one of the seven kittens awaiting a forever home.

Mr. Gray: Well, hello, Topsy. Aren’t you adorable!?!?

Jax: Hi, Topsy! You are really cute. Are the other kittens as cute as you?

Topsy: Heck, yeah! We are so playful and friendly. And we visited with a couple of very large dogs this last weekend. They were great! I think we all like dogs.

Zoe: Wow! The kittens like dogs, and we ARF dogs like kittens and cats. Why haven’t we been adopted?

Jax: I’m so confused. I just don’t understand.

Topsy: All of us kittens use the litter box. Are you dogs house trained?

Freda: You bet we are. And I use a doggy door!

Jax: I must confess, I’d really like to be adopted together with Zoe, but it’s not a requirement.

Sadie: And I bet some of those kittens would love to be adopted with a kitten littermate.

Zoe: They play together so much, it could be a good idea.

Sadie: But solo kittens do well, too.

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of “Days of Our Nine Lives” each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Hwy. 243 on Saturdays 10-4 and Sundays 10-2, or by appointment M-F by calling 951-659-1122.

Bird owners: be aware of Newcastle disease

Riverside County residents with backyard chickens, and people with other birds, should take steps to protect the animals from virulent Newcastle disease, county agricultural officials urged last week.

The disease has not been identified in Riverside County but recent outbreaks in Southern California demonstrate the need for precautions.

“This disease is so virulent it could significantly affect the poultry industry nationwide if it reaches commercial flocks,” said Riverside County Agricultural Commissioner Ruben Arroyo. “To avoid the risk of spreading the disease, Riverside County inspectors will defer to federal inspectors at production facilities.”

Arroyo pointed out that it is very rare for people to contract the disease, even those working directly with flocks. That risk can be easily eliminated if the person wears protective gear.

In just one day, exposure to virulent Newcastle disease can infect every bird in a single location, and cause serious illness or death within an entire flock. Residents are urged to protect their birds through a practice known as biosecurity:

- Restrict traffic onto and off of your property.
- Disinfect shoes, clothes, hands, egg trays or flats, crates, vehicles, and tires.
- Avoid visits to other poultry farms or bird owners. If you visit, be sure to change clothes, and clean your hands and shoes before entering your own bird area.
- Wash hands and scrub boots before and after entering a poultry area.
- Isolate any birds returning from shows for 30 days before placing them with the rest of the flock.

In addition to those steps, bird owners should report sick birds or unusual bird deaths through California’s Sick Bird Hotline at 1-866-922-BIRD(2473).

Dr. Allan Drusys, Riverside County’s chief veterinarian, recommended that bird owners shelter their flocks in place until the situation is completely controlled.

“In short, bird owners should not be buying new birds or trading their birds until this matter is fully resolved,” Drusys said. Epidemiologists recommend a stop-movement initiative as well.

San Bernardino and Los Angeles counties have reported confirmed cases in backyard flocks but not in commercial poultry operations. The highly contagious viral disease affects the respiratory, nervous and digestive systems of birds. Poultry and other birds can die without ever showing symptoms, and the disease can strike regardless of whether or not birds have been vaccinated.

Indicators of the disease include sudden death and increased death-loss in the flock, sneezing, gasping for air, nasal discharge, coughing, greenish diarrhea, reduced activity, tremors, drooping wings, twisting of the head and neck, circling, complete stiffness, and swelling around the eyes and neck.

No human cases of Newcastle disease have ever occurred from eating poultry products, which are safe to eat if thoroughly cooked. In rare instances, people working directly with sick birds can become infected. Symptoms usually are mild and limited to conjunctivitis. People can easily prevent infection by wearing protective equipment, such as gloves, goggles, face masks, boots and disposable coveralls.

Shut downs

The proposal “requires that utilities meet with the local communities that may be impacted by a future de-energization event before putting the practice in effect in a particular area, and requires customer notifications prior to a de-energization event, if feasible.”

The CPUC should be notified as soon as practicable and within 30 minutes after power is restored.

If the commission adopts the rule, electric providers will be required to hold workshops with state, local and tribal governments, and representatives of local communities to discuss their de-energization policies and procedures.

In addition to the CPUC attention to this issue, State Sen. Bill Dodd proposed legislation (Senate Bill 901) also addressing this type of event. The bill, which the Senate has passed, requires utilities to develop wildfire plans.

The plans would explain the conditions, such as weather and fire threats, when shutting power off may be necessary and prudent. These wildfire plans should also describe the procedures for alerting and informing customers of the impending de-energizing.

“De-energizing a power line may create an inconvenience to the utility customer,” Dodd said in the press release after SB 901 passed the Senate. “But without these protocols in place, the alternative may lead to the unthinkable such as that which we experienced in the North Bay last October.”

The CPUC and the Legislature’s actions are not designed to deter these types of safety actions. Everyone acknowledges, while inconvenient and possibly dangerous for some citizens, greater danger can be avoided.

After the December event on the Hill, Idyllwild Fire Chief Patrick Reitz confirmed the perspective of local firefighters: “It was my understanding that Edison made the decision for the safety of all and the fire danger. ... but it was the right decision to make for all the right reasons. As inconvenient as it was, it was the right decision.” The number of customers without power on the Hill was 3,117, according to SCE.

Further, twice in December 2017, San Diego Gas and Electric shut down circuits due to fire threat, high winds, limited ability for air resources to assist fire suppression and other conditions. The CPUC review concurred with SDGE’s decision and the proposed rule making essentially expands these procedures to other utilities.

A Bee Canyon fire controlled and out

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Saturday evening, a small fire (about two-thirds of an acre) started near the Bee Canyon Recreation Shooting Area, according to Zachary Behrens, public information officer for the San Bernardino National Forest.

The fire was extinguished and did not spread. The U.S. Forest Service attack included Vista Grande Hotshots, eight engines, Helicopter 534 (from Heap's Peak) and two water tenders. They were assisted by Cal Fire/Riverside County Fire.

Behrens said no cause has been determined yet. JP Crumrine can be reached at jp@towncrier.com.

Balloons

adrift balloons, adding, "They cause outages, traffic signals are impacted, elevators are impacted, businesses are really impacted. So, it is very important that we keep a good handle on metallic balloons, keep them indoors and keep them tethered."

Keeping them safely tied to a weight is part of SCE's continued "Stay Aware. Stay Safe." campaign. SCE also supports state Assembly bill 2450. The bill, which has passed the Assembly and is now in the state Senate, would require in-state metallic balloon manufacturers to have a printed statement on balloons warning consumers about the dangerous risk of fire if the balloons come in contact with power lines.

And, if you see balloons in power lines, call 911 or SCE at 1-800-611-1911 to report the problem.

Though the warnings are serious, Jeske stressed that safety and nothing else is the top priority in his secure-is-safe message regarding metallic balloons.

"We're not anti-balloon, we're not party poopers," said Jeske, noting that he has three metallic balloons from Mother's Day and his wife's birthday on his kitchen table. "All we want is for folks to understand what the risks are and to be responsible."

Metallic Balloons Safety Tips

- Metallic balloons should always be tied to a weight.
- Stores and vendors should sell only properly weighted balloons.
- Balloon owners should never remove the weight
- Balloons should never be released outdoors.
- Do not try to retrieve balloons tangled in power lines or electrical equipment.
- Puncture balloons before disposing of them.

Paul Jeske, SCE's director of Corporate Health and Safety, and Scott Brown, a former SCE troubleman and current fire management officer, discuss the potential hazards and ways to prevent the all-time high 1,094 balloon outages SCE experienced last year.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE FOR CHANGE OF NAME

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF RIVERSIDE, 4050 Main St, Riverside, CA 92501. Branch name:

SINDY CERVANTES FOR SYDNEY CERVANTES TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS:

1. Petitioner: SINDY CERVANTES/CARLOS CERVANTES filed a petition with this court for a decree changing names as follows:

Turnout for 2018 primary exceeds past patterns

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The voter turnout for last week's statewide primary election has been described as in terms of low and "no wave," and as high and competitive. At least in Riverside County, while the early results may have seemed below expectations, the final results will indicate that voters were more involved and must care about the results more than in past primaries.

As of Friday evening, June 8, about 231,500 ballots have been counted. That represents 23.5 percent of the registered voters in the county. However, Registrar of Voters Rebecca Spencer also reported that about 86,000 ballots remain to be counted. This raises the number of voters to 32.3 percent of registration.

While that is only one-third of voters, primaries seldom attract the turnout of regular elections. For example, 75 percent of registered voters cast ballots in the 2016 presidential election.

The average turnout for the past three gubernatorial primaries has been 26.7 percent. For the past three presidential primaries, the average turnout was 31.9 percent, but that was raised substantially by the 44.3 percent in 2016.

So, the 2018 turnout in Riverside County already exceeds the 2014 vote of 22.3 percent and when the remaining ballots are counted, it should exceed the average turnout for all primaries in the past 10 years.

Statewide, as of Monday morning, June 11, the turnout was 26 percent, with about 2.5 million ballots remaining to be counted. This could raise the final turnout to 39 percent.

No county with registered voters exceeding 500,000 had a turnout rate greater than 30 percent. San Francisco County, with 482,000 voters, was the largest county with turnout greater than 40 percent.

The registrar has not released any precinct data yet, so there is no way to identify which areas of the county had higher or lower turnout.

Candidates

seemed to be beneficial. District Attorney Michael Hestrin doubled the vote his challenger Lara Gressley received to win the election and avoid a fall campaign.

And Treasurer Jon Christensen received more than 80 percent of the vote in his race again Hakan Jackson.

In the sheriff's race, incumbent Stan Sniff finished second, but the leader, Lt. Chad Bianco, did not get 50 percent of the vote, so they will continue to campaign into November.

Bianco, with 71,932 votes, led the four-person field. Sniff got 67,238 (33 percent) of the votes counted. However, Bianco and the other two challengers — former Hemet Chief Dave Brown and county deputy Miguel Garcia — collective received two-thirds of the vote.

"Voters are looking for a change," Bianco said. "The employees are speaking out. Going into the campaign, my message is being heard. [Dave] Brown and I had a very similar position, just favored a different person for sheriff."

Ready for a tough campaign, Sniff said, "I look forward to a vigorous runoff campaign this fall, focused on the very significant differences in experience and approach between my opponent and myself."

"I also think that the nearly one million dollars to date spent by challengers on negative and deceptive ads had an impact, but believe that voters are also concerned by the influence of the single special-interest group pouring massive resources into the campaign of my opponent.

"Voters want both independence, experience and a record of success in their sheriff, and that is what I will be offering them ...," Sniff promised.

In the race for the three supervisors' seats, only one had an incumbent running. Fourth District Supervisor Manual Perez, who was appointed after John Benoit died, defeated his one challenger, Jan Harnik.

The other two races had five and six candidates, respectively, because the incumbents, John Tavaglione (2nd District) and Marion Ashley (Fifth District), had announced their retirements from the board.

Finally, Deputy District Attorney Tim Hollenhorst was elected to the vacant judgeship with nearly three-quarters of the vote over Shaffer Cormell.

Of the five propositions on the ballot, only 70, the greenhouse gas reserve fund, was defeated. Proposition 68, the natural resources bond measure, passed with 56 percent of the vote and the other three all received more than 75 percent in favor.

Riverside County voters opposed both 68 and 79 while overwhelmingly supporting the other three.

Getting money back into pockets

The Federal Trade Commission sues scammers and shuts down their operations. In many cases, it gets refunds for people. Between July 1, 2016, and June 30, 2017, FTC cases resulted in more than $6.4 billion in refunds.

An FTC report explains how it monitored direct refund programs, including the FTC's settlement with Volkswagen, which resulted in over $6 billion in refunds during the time period covered by the report.

Getting a refund check is nice, but it's even better to avoid losing money in the first place by learning how to spot scams and fraud. Visit FTC's scam alerts page at www.consumer.ftc.gov/scam-alerts to learn more. And if you do lose money, tell the FTC what happened at ftc.gov/complaint. Be sure to include your contact information. If you're eligible for a refund in the future, the FTC would like to be able to locate you. You also can check recent refund cases at www.ftc.gov/enforcement/cases-proceedings/refunds.

The FTC will never ask you to pay to get a refund. If someone asks you to deposit a check and send money back to them, that's also a sure sign of a scam.

'I remember Ernie' stories needed

The Idyllwild Town Crier, in conjunction with the Idyllwild Area Historical Society, is asking for written stories from folk about their memories of Ernie Maxwell to be published in the Town Crier and, possibly, at an event at the Courtyard Gallery in the fall. (The event was postponed from June.)

Email your stories and a photograph of yourself to becky@towncrier.com.

Benefit for Loma Linda

This Sunday, 25 percent of all sales at Idylogy will be donated to the Loma Linda University Children's Hospital Foundation. Also, bring new stuffed toy animals, coloring books and crayons to be donated to the children, too.

Live music that day includes Ghosts of Kelso (classic rock) from 1 to 4 p.m. and Chris Doshier (contemporary and country) from 6 to 9 p.m.

Cooking around the world

In celebration of the Idyllwild Library's Summer Reading Program "Reading Takes You Everywhere," basic skills in Japanese food preparation will be featured from 10:30 a.m. to noon Wednesday, June 13, at the library. This is a free family event. Every week, learn how to make a dish from a different country with India being featured on June 20.

Temple offers film festival

A free Jewish Film Festival, sponsored by Temple Har Shalom of Idyllwild, is at 6 p.m. the second Wednesdays of June and July.

The series is an outgrowth of interest from members of the community who attended the Judaism 101 sessions led by Rabbi Malka Drucker. All showings will be at the Community Church, 54400 North Circle.

"Paper Clips," a project that began as a high school lesson about prejudice and became known as a miracle, will be shown June 13.

"Paper Clips" was nominated for 12 News & Documentary Emmy® awards in 2006.

When students at a rural Tennessee high school were struggling to grasp the concept of 6 million Holocaust victims, they decided to collect 6 million paper clips to better understand the extent of this crime against humanity. The film details how the students met Holocaust survivors from around the world and how the experience transformed them and their community.

Everyone is encouraged to sign up. The theme "Reading Takes You Everywhere" will take readers around the world with quite a few exciting activities that celebrate locations and countries. Stop by and pick up a printed calendar of events.

The whole family is welcome to this free event, which celebrates the summer reading program.

Each Children's Storytime from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Monday will take you to a different country with songs and crafts. Next Monday's country is Antarctica. Bring your "World Passport" (issued at the library) and get it stamped every time you come to an event.

Temporary outage planned for Electronic Benefits Transfer

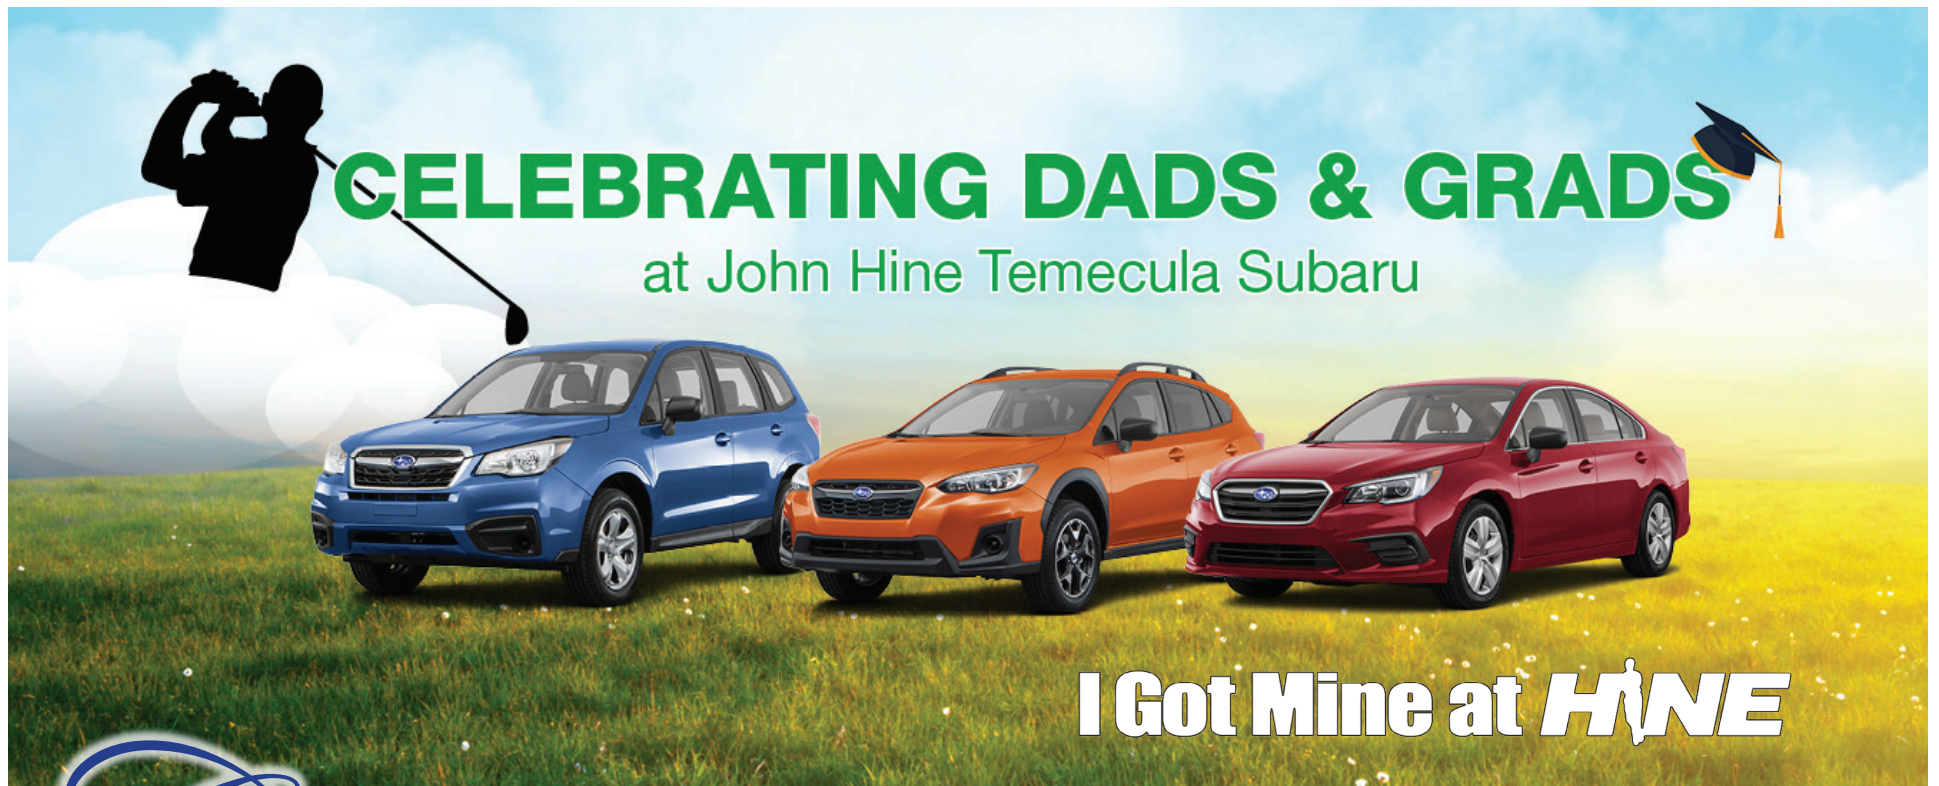

California cardholders who receive CalFresh and CalWORKs benefits on Electronic Benefits Transfer cards should be aware of a temporary service outage at the end of June. The service outage will occur statewide.

The EBT system will be out of service from 11 p.m. Saturday, June 23, to 11 p.m. Sunday, June 24, due to an EBT system update. During this 24-hour period, you will not be able to use any EBT benefits (food or cash).

In Riverside County, the Department of Public Social Services Self Sufficiency Division oversees the program. DPSS Assistant Director Sayori Baldwin urged customers to plan ahead for shopping needs and for getting cash. "We recognize how important these benefits are to our customers and want to ensure that we get the word out so that we can minimize the impact to them," said Baldwin.

The EBT customer services telephone number listed on the back of each EBT card (1-877-328-9677) will not be available during that 24-hour period. Also, you will not be able to use the EBT client website from 10 p.m. Friday, June 22, until 11 p.m., Sunday, June 24.

A.C. Fulmor's grandchildren honor his legacy

By HOLLY PARSONS
STAFF REPORTER

Reams could be written about the principle architect of Pines to Palms and Banning to Idyllwild highways 74 and 243. Urban trekkers spin up scenic mountain passes, navigate banking contours, climb upwards of 4,000 feet to emerge safely in a pristine alpine forest community. Mountain residents rely on the highways' designs and everyone's wise driving habits, to regularly traverse steadily-increasing altitudes to carry on the business of life in the lively worlds below, returning home safely.

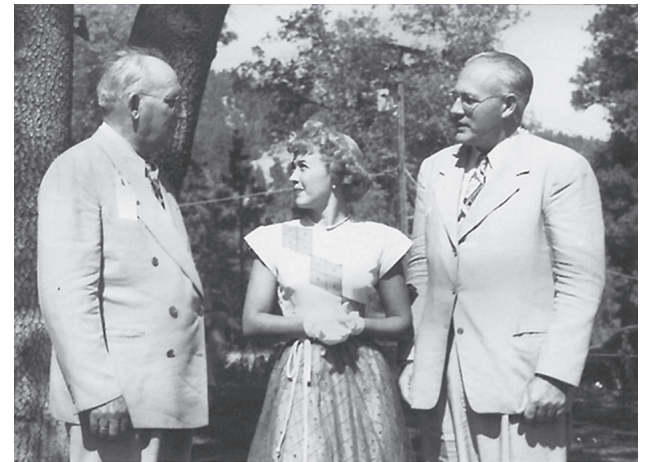

Lake Fulmor is another direct descendent of A.C. Fulmor's creative eye. Elegant by any standard, the lake's reflections seem to recognize each pilgrim in its fragile body of water; decades pass and still families return — case in point, the recent Fulmor family reunion.

Alexander Choate Fulmor began his career as a Riverside County surveyor in 1916. By 1932, he surveyed and supervised construction of the Ortega Highway. Fulmor subsequently opened his own engineering firm in Riverside, Fulmor and Davison. Early Idyllwild settler Claudius Emerson hired the firm to survey the entire sector he owned surrounding Tollgate. A portion of Fulmor's payment was a lot located on Country Club Drive, which served as a family getaway until about 1952.

By 1933 "the road builder," as Fulmor was known, began design and supervising the building of what would come to be known as highways 74 and 243. The project would prove life-altering for early residents. But by early 1940s, funding was withdrawn due to war expenses and construction stalled. Construction resumed in 1946.

According to Hollis Fulmor, a granddaughter and Idyllwild resident, "Grandpa, while surveying, hired two American Indian trackers to help determine the highway's eventual route prior to construction of Highway 74. The trackers showed him the trails native residents took to the desert. Grandpa wanted to follow the land's natural contours and avoid blasting as much as possible, a sentiment that stemmed from an abiding respect for both the land and local tribes."

One of Fulmor's visions for Highway 243 included repositioning the old road to create a shorter route, and creating a lake in a small canyon adjoining the highway as a recreational area for visitors and residents. The Riverside County Board of Supervisors approved the lake project and then named it after Fulmor in recognition of his services.

Fulmor's crews engineered a small dam on Indian Creek, sometimes referred to as Hall Creek, which also supported the highway. The design allowed Indian Creek to continue its journey after forming one of Southern California's most endearing lakes. Fulmor Lake was dedicated in 1950; Jane Powell, an exceptional dancer and actress during Hollywood's golden age, cut the ribbon.

The lake is managed by California Fish and Game and is stocked with rainbow trout spring, summer and fall. An Adventure Pass is no longer required to visit the lake, which takes about 30 minutes to walk around. The half-moon-shaped deck is an ideal place for viewing or fishing; the stone work and picnic sites were installed more recently.

"Granddad was very unassuming and spoke little of his work," said Hollis. "But community service was very important for him and my father followed in his footsteps. Grandpa was also an amateur botanist, always pointing out the names of trees and bushes, making sure we took note of the natural environment."

"He and our grandmother Ruby were adored by the family for the humble elegance in their characters. They lived as pinnacles of integrity, setting a great example for us all because of their high scholastic standards as well," recalls Hollis. "The entire family is grateful for their role in our lives."

New deer join Idyllwild Deer Herd

In 2013, the Art Alliance of Idyllwild made public-art history in Idyllwild by spearheading a project to place 22 painted deer around town. Artists volunteered their time and talent, and individuals and local businesses sponsored the deer. One of the original herd was stolen and replaced, but another was damaged beyond repair due to an automobile crash.

This year, 28 new deer and one coyote will be added to the existing herd. AAI President Donna Elliot commented, "Our initial order was for only 13 new deer but interest grew from both artists wishing to paint a deer and sponsors wishing to support the project. We increased the order four times to add a total of 28 new deer and one coyote. For a town our size, it is just possible that we have more public art per person than anywhere else."

The majority of artists are local, but some have stepped up to the challenge from the desert cities of La Quinta, Palm Springs, Palm Desert, San Jacinto and Temecula. Such was the appeal of making a lasting contribution to the town of Idyllwild, already known as an art destination.

made some designs harder to execute than others. The "herd" is made up of bucks, does and fawns. One of the new deer will honor the golden retriever mayors of Idyllwild, while others capture the natural beauty that is part of Idyllwild's main attraction. More quirky themes include Steam-punk, the Mad Hatter, Fantasy and a Princess Fawn with a jeweled crown.

The newly dedicated Idypark will host a family of deer to include a buck, a doe and a fawn. Other public locations include Idyllwild School and the Help Center. The destroyed deer at Idyllwild Inn will be replaced with "Americana" — a buck that pays tribute to our armed services.

A "Herd Gathering" takes place from noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 16, at the Courtyard Gallery. It is the only time the entire new herd will be together before being installed at their respective locations.

Idyllwild residents help make dreams come true in Haiti

BY DEBRA VARNADO
CORRESPONDENT

Institut Edeline in Croix-des-Bouquets, (Beudet) Haiti, is built of concrete and lots of rebar to fortify it against the destructive earthquakes and hurricanes that menace the Caribbean island.

The 200 students of the K-6th grade school sit on benches at long wooden tables to study math, science, social studies, French and Creole. Asked what their favorite subjects are, many of them say: "Math, science, grammar and writing."

Outside, water is pumped from a well so the children use flush toilets and have fresh water to drink. Like the fencing around some schools in the U.S., a concrete wall surrounds the Institut to improve safety and security.

The kids jump rope and play soccer on dirt and gravel, while trying very hard to keep their uniforms sparkling clean. Usually, each child owns just one.

The Institut is where children like Dachna, Chagui, Gerardson, Lens and Midjine learn to raise chickens and aspire to become mechanics, teachers, engineers, policemen and doctors. The first class of sixth graders will graduate next June.

Edeline Felizor has never seen the schoolhouse that bears her name, but she thanks God the children are being fed — in mind and body.

"My dream has always been to help children," the nurse-teacher said. "I want to do that through a school that will give hope to the poorest children in Haiti."

The school serves children orphaned by the magnitude-7.0 earthquake that struck Haiti Jan. 12, 2010, killing an estimated 100,000 to 316,000 people, and injuring and displacing hundreds of thousands more.

The temblor, one of the country's worst natural disasters, toppled the teacher's college in the capital city, Port-au-Prince, where Felizor had been teaching on the third floor, trapping her in the rubble and debris of the collapsed building.

There she drifted in and out of consciousness, unable to move — and suffering from a broken neck, and several fractured vertebrae and ribs. Awake, she sang gospel songs, and prayed to comfort herself and other victims who cried out in pain. Some would eventually die.

The community of Croix-des-Bouquets, with a population about half the size of Idyllwild's, was devastated. Many children survived, but lost their homes and the safety net of moms and dads, aunties and uncles, and neighbors and churches that played a role in looking after them.

Now living in San Diego, Felizor visited Idyllwild Library May 21 to talk about the school and the trauma of being buried alive, rescued and reunited with her family days after the initial quake. "God ... granted me life after the earthquake and it ... [is] even more important that I serve Him and my people," Felizor said.

After being dug from the wreckage, and placed nearby exposed to aftershocks and without medical care, Felizor eventually received X-rays from the only functioning machine in Port-au-Prince. Later, she was transferred to the U.S. Navy helicopter base and to the USNS Comfort hospital ship.

Aboard the Comfort, she underwent an operation requiring four screws to fuse her spinal column with her skull. There she met Oceanside resident Byron Shewman, who was in Haiti serving as a translator for medical staff. Later in San Diego, she met Physical Therapist Stephanie Hoffman.

"One of the doctors told Byron, 'If you can sign off on her medical costs, I'll give you a humanitarian visa, because she won't survive a day back in Port-au-Prince,'" Hoffman said.

Shewman sponsored Felizor and her sister Isemene to come to San Diego on humanitarian parole visas. Dr. Lee Rice and Hoffman provided medical services free-of-charge.

The sisters lived with Hoffman for three months after arriving in the U.S., and then moved in with Shewman where they have been ever since. Felizor had to relearn how to walk and now does so independently.

Thousands of miles away from the chaos and destruction, Felizor, Shewman and Hoffman co-founded Institut Edeline in 2011.

"Croix-des-Bouquets was all we could bite off," Hoffman said, "our attempt to improve that community, to give the people a voice, hope and an optimistic view that education will make a difference."

At Idyllwild Library where she spoke recently, Felizor responded to a question about her native language by delivering a mini-lesson in how to say simple expressions in Haitian Creole.

The "30-something" fluent English and French speaker smiled as she fielded questions from Hill residents about her "formal education, the jobs available in Haiti, how families eat, if they have gardens, how they get food.

"We don't even have a copy machine in the community," Felizor said. "The teachers tell me when the students come to school they are happy because they are eating."

Hoffman added, "We serve two meals a day, which is unheard of at a school, and we don't charge.

"Half of Haiti's children do not attend school. Sixty percent will abandon school before the sixth grade. Street vendors earn money selling harvested corn, or water frozen in plastic baggies.

"If they're lucky and have been educated at the collegiate level, they do industry work, or become nurses and teachers.

"We're hoping to raise $15,000 to build a library and computer lab, and another $5,000 to furnish and stock with computers," Hoffman added.

Idyllwild Branch Library Manager Shannon Ng will advise the school on the library project.

Before the evening was over, there appeared to be quite a bit of interest in donating to the school.

Operating under Shewman's nonprofit umbrella organization, Youth Without Borders, the board hopes to make the school self-sustaining, "with the intent of sending ... children into healthy professions to restore economic hope and stability in the region."

Idyllwild resident and board member Kate Sirkin visited the school in January. "Shewman put up some of the money for it. Through fundraisers with Stephanie in La Jolla, we bought a 1-acre property. The Oliver McMillan Group in San Diego has been responsible for the school's construction and expansion ..."

"And the school's accredited. Almost three-quarters of the private schools in Haiti are not, and families must pay out-of-pocket at both private and public schools," Hoffman said.

"We're trying to get a better plan for sixth graders. The school is funded at '50 grand' a year — which is not 'an arm and a leg.' One hundred percent is raised through talks at schools and libraries, and having dinners around town.

"The board doesn't want to go through the government — we're in for the long haul. If each kid is sponsored at $300 a year, that pays for it.

"We don't look for the big check writer, but for the 'Kate sponsors a few kids.' That sponsorship has paid the expenses. All donations go directly to the school."

Having hosted several fundraisers in Idyllwild for the school, Sirkin considers Felizor "a true inspiration in my life.

"We also have an active guild of women here — 'Dress a Girl.' They sew and send 300 dresses each year to the girls. Many have never had a new one."

Felizor communicates daily with the school's staff, but soon she and Isemene will see them face-to-face. Their humanitarian visas run out June 2019. "I'm looking forward to meeting the students and teachers at the Institut," Felizor said.

To contribute, visit www.projectedeline.com or call 1-858-454-5545.

Peak Dancers artists Elliot and Jenkins inspire next generation

By HOLLY PARSONS
STAFF REPORTER

Idyllwild working artists Donna Elliot and Neil Jenkins bring a unique purview to life. Both global travelers, mountain climbers and ardent hikers, this dynamic duo now direct their broad-spectrum imagination and focus to include multi-medium art. Elliot is originally from St. Louis, and Jenkins hails from Wales. They originally settled in Idyllwild to be close to one of their favorite climbing destinations.

A lot of their life is about adventures and their art is no different. They met in the UK and both ended up in Singapore. Jenkins returned to the UK, then they ended up together in Hong Kong. Looking for the new and challenging has defined their relationship, and they hope that never changes.

"We might be considered unlikely artists," muses Jenkins. "While sitting in our Bohemian house in Hong Kong, we decided to stop working and go full-time climbing. But we knew we couldn't climb every day, so I said to Donna, 'I think I'll become an artist!'" To which she replied, "Don't you need talent for that?"

"In the beginning, art was just used to fill the time when I couldn't climb," said Jenkins, who added, "It taught me more colorful or varied ways to express myself, and the artistic population of Idyllwild has had a profound effect as a metaphor for the kaleidoscope of life. I've also learned that I don't really appreciate how hard something is to do until I try to do it myself, then the difficulty becomes obvious to me."

How has becoming artists changed him? Jenkins responds, "My background was in math, military ballistics and the similar field of life insurance marketing, so professionally, I was far away from the arts. One thing I notice is I see colors better, and one time when we were climbing the Pennine mountain range which runs up the spine of England, I could see in the distance smoke hanging low above tall chimney stacks and I said to Donna, 'Oh look, there's an inversion layer.' So, Donna immediately quotes something from Charles Dickens' 'Hard Times.' 'It was a town of machinery and tall chimneys, out of which interminable serpents of smoke trailed themselves forever and ever, and never got uncoiled."

"Today," states Jenkins, "I would have seen the serpents."

Elliot's vivid eye also noticed a change in Jenkins. "As an art lover from an early age, when we got together and toured galleries, Neil kind of acknowledged the art while breezing through," she said. "Now he stops, studies details, observes techniques and brush strokes, and truly appreciates art."

Elliot's background, while decidedly more creative, dovetails with Jenkins in several ways. "I've always been somewhat creative from an early age — making art, photography, writing, creating posters. When I began creating art after retirement to sell, it takes one to a whole different level. Joining the Art Alliance challenged me to up my game, and competitions pushed the envelope. I started designing mixed-media greeting cards, mixed-media art — alcohol ink paintings led to textile art followed by digital art."

How has art changed her? "My jobs had been office based, and I used the outdoors to provide balance," said Elliot. "When I retired, I was mostly outdoors for my life focus and art offered the balance. The photos I was taking became more texture-based versus landscape-based. My quest for quality meant I always strove to learn from the best, appreciating other artists' developing journey. I use writing as a creative outlet. Reading the classics and award-winning novels for decades gave me a feel for what good writing looks like and informed my own creative writing journey."

When Peak Dancers first began selling their art in 2015, they were completely unaware of what a professional stall should look like. What resulted was implausibly makeshift. The Lilac Festival was their first foray into showing their work and they employed very basic displays which included garden trellises.

What has becoming an artist taught them? Jenkins replied, "Nobody's perfect, not even me. The great thing about art is there is a medium that fits whatever extreme of mood I'm in and everything in between. If I was in any school now, I would've been diagnosed as ADHD; I was precocious and healthily energetic. I phoned my sister today and neither of us could get a word in edgewise; it's a family thing. Dad was the artist with lots of man caves — he did acrylic painting, glass engraving, marketry. He could turn his hand to anything; Mom was the math whiz."

Elliot shared when asked about her climbing history, "I first began climbing in Idyllwild in the early '70s with the hot shot climbers, then we moved onto Yosemite and the Sierra Nevadas. I was 18 when I first backpacked through and climbed the Grand Canyon, and it became a solo annual spiritual retreat that I still seek out. Even as a working adult in the UK, I would come alone to Idyllwild first and climb San Jacinto and follow that with a three- to five-day camping trip in the Grand Canyon. The exquisite beauty of remote locations gave me an inner strength and peace I would take back into my life each year. The grandeur provided a perspective on the insignificance of so much of life's standard fare."

Regarding involvement with smARTS, Jenkins confessed, "I've never done anything as worthwhile and rewarding as the teaching we do with young children. I'm not a volunteer by nature but I come out of the smARTS sessions more exhausted than I am after I've climbed a mountain, and the smile on my face is immovable."

"I think the joy of teaching in the smARTS program lies in the transaction. We bring in the media and the concept, and the kids introduce us to an unforeseen world filled with joy. Because there are no rules outside of the basic physics of the medium, and because no inhibitions exist, they knock the socks off conventional approaches."

"Artistry can't be taught and we can't teach imagination, but they don't need that. They're already artists with creative imaginations. What we do for one hour a week is set them free and in so doing set ourselves free. The children light up for smARTS and carry us into their unlimited imagination. With no inhibitions they help one another, together entering the effervescent world of color."

Peak Dancers Art is available monthly at Art in the Park fairs, Higher Grounds Gallery, La Casita Restaurant and Art Alliance of Idyllwild events. For frequently updated images of their most recent work, check out Peakdancers.com or Peakdancersart Facebook page.

Chess club at the library

The Idyllwild Chess Club meets from 1 to 5 p.m. every Thursday at the Idyllwild Library.

Also, the group meets from 1 to 4 p.m. the first and fourth Wednesdays of every month for free lessons for those interested in learning to play chess or improving their skills. The Wednesday afternoon schedule was selected to encourage school-age children to participate. Bring a chess set if you have one. The next Wednesday session is June 27.

Free uke lessons at Royal Pines

Chris Johnson will offer free ukulele classes at the Royal Pines Trailer Park clubhouse at 11 a.m. Tuesdays. The event is open to the public.

Freedom from smoking clinic

The Hemet Unified School District is sponsoring a clinic to help attendees quit smoking at the Idyllwild Yoga Studio, 54445 North Circle Drive.

For questions about this free clinic, contact Valerie Velez at 951-765-5100, ext. 3509, or vvelez@heme-tusd.org.

New Medicare cards are arriving

The U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services is mailing new Medicare cards to protect the safety and security of people with Medicare benefits. The cards no longer contain a person's Social Security number, but rather a unique, randomly assigned Medicare number that protects the identities of people with Medicare, reduces fraud, and offers better safeguards of important health and financial information.

CMS has begun mailing the new Medicare cards to people who currently have Medicare benefits in California. As soon as people receive their new Medicare card, they should destroy their old Medicare card and keep their new Medicare number confidential.

People with Medicare and their caregivers can visit medicare.gov/newcard to find out when new Medicare cards will be mailed to their area. They can also sign up for email notifications about the new card mailing and check the status in their state.

Walk a dog for ARF

Animal Rescue Friends of Idyllwild is seeking a few kind-hearted individuals to donate only one hour on a Saturday or Sunday to walk dogs for adoption in town. The dogs have "adopt me" leashes so people out and about know they are looking for forever homes.

This is an easy way for community members to help a nonprofit while getting a little exercise and building some good karma. If interested, call ARF at 951-659-1122.

Mahjong Club at library

Open to anyone interested in the game, the Mahjong Club meets from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. Tuesdays at the Idyllwild Library.

HOROSCOPES

June 2018 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
Count to 10 if you must, but don't lose your temper, despite that person's (you know who!) efforts to goad you into reacting. Your restraint will pay off in a big way.

April 20 – May 20
This week finds you in a sociable mood, ready and eager to enjoy the company of family and friends. It's also a good time to seek out and renew old friendships.

May 21 – June 21
Patience is called for as you await a decision about that project you're eager to launch. Meanwhile, try to set aside more time to share with that special person in your life.

June 22 – July 22
Avoid becoming involved in a workplace dispute early in the week by insisting both sides submit their stands to a neutral arbitrator. Things begin to cool off by Thursday.

July 23 – August 22
It promises to be a busy but productive week for the Big Cat. The pace slows by Friday, allowing you to catch up on matters you put aside but that now need your attention.

August 23 – September 22
A suddenly disruptive family situation is best handled with a cool, calm and collected response. Wait until things settle to let off all that pent-up emotional steam.

September 23 – October 22
Your practical side dominates the week as you reassess your finances to make some sensible adjustments in what you plan to spend and what you expect to save.

October 23 – November 21
An unexpected meeting with a former colleague opens some interesting possibilities. But you need to press for full disclosure before making a decision.

November 22 – December 21
A recent flurry of activity eases by midweek, giving you time to readjust your disrupted schedule and make new plans for a weekend getaway.

December 22 – January 19
You're usually the one who gives advice. But now it's time to open yourself up to counsel from friends who have your best interests at heart.

January 20 – February 18
You might find resistance to your call for a full inquiry into a workplace problem. But by week's end even the most rigid naysayers begin to come around.

February 19 – March 20
A recurring problem surfaces once again. Maybe it's time you used your creative talents to help you find a new approach to resolving it once and for all.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentations to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

Cal Fire suspends burn permits

Due to potential for wildfire, Cal Fire/Riverside County Fire Chief Daniel L. Talbot is suspending burning by permit and other uses of open fire in all State Responsibility Area lands within the county.

The restrictions went into effect Monday, May 14, 2018, and apply until further notice:

- Use of campfires is restricted to within established campfire facilities located in established campgrounds open to the public.
- Cooking fires with a valid permit are permissible when no alternate means of cooking is available and requires an on-site inspection prior to the issuance of a permit.
- Warming fires are permissible and require an on-site inspection prior to issuing a permit when weather conditions exist to justify the request.

State rangers or other authorized agents of the Department of Forestry and Fire Protection may issue restricted temporary burning permits whenever it can be shown that burning or use of open fire is essential for reasons of public health, safety or welfare.

"The Guide for Charities"

California Attorney General Xavier Becerra has released "The Guide for Charities" to give charities the tools they need to comply with laws. The guide seeks to promote best practices to help directors and officers of charities better understand their responsibilities.

Baseball

Mike Holato of Town Hall gave this report on Youth Baseball playoffs:

Minors

Monday, June 4, the Red Sox defeated the A's 11-3 behind players of the game Rodger Gonzalez and Jackson Taylor, and some team outstanding defensive plays. Tayr White and Caden Meyer earned game balls for their outstanding play.

Blue Jays defeated the Braves 10-4 behind great defense and 3 double plays. Aiden Pritchett and Ethan Caster earned game balls for their play, but their defense was the difference. Ethan Castro earned another game ball for his outstanding hitting, and he also earned a game ball for the Braves.

Wednesday, June 6, the Braves defeated the A's 8-1 to win the consolation game. Silas Zimmerman for the Braves played great defense to earn a game ball, and Chase Zimmerman earned a game ball for his hitting for the Braves. Ruby Adams and Brynnley Meyer earned game balls for the A's.

The Blue Jays won the Minor League Championship with a close hard-fought victory over the Red Sox 13-8. Aiden Pritchett and Miles Seachrest continued their outstanding play and walked away with game balls for the Blue Jays. Jackson Taylor and Hailey Oliver also continued their excellent play and earned game balls for the Red Sox.

Majors

Tuesday, June 5, the Dodgers defeated the Red Sox behind POG Finn Carpenter's complete game shutout and a key hit from another POG Josslyn Nowell. Sterling Contreras and Maison Sanchez were POGs for the Red Sox.

The Giants defeated the Blue Jays 3-1 behind POG Christian Gonzalez's complete game-pitching effort. Blue Jays POG Dane Mock pitched a complete game and scored the only run for the Blue Jays.

Thursday, June 7, the Red Sox and Blue Jays played to a 3-3 tie in the consolation game. POG Dane's pitching and Brian Alderete's hitting led the Blue Jays to an early 3-0 lead. Red Sox Preston Pino's 3-run home run tied the game. That's the way the game ended. Preston and Lizzy Flores earned game balls for the Red Sox.

The Dodgers defeated the Giants to win the Majors Championship 4-3 behind Dominic Esparza's pitching and Finn's hitting and pitching. Both earned game balls for the Dodgers. Giants game balls went to Ayden Hyland and Christian.

Appreciation goes to the parents and Idyllwild community for their support in the Town Hall Youth Baseball Program. It was a huge success and special appreciation goes to the sponsors: Pino Tree Service, Town Real Estate, Golden Nugget, Ridgeline Roofing, Idyllwild Shell, Idyllwild Automotive, Mountain Mechanical, Earth 'N' Fire, American Legion and Muirs Mountain Realty. And to Matt Kramer, Idyllwild School principal, for use of the facility for all Town Hall sports.

Dr. Roxanne Yahner was the keynote speaker at the Idyllwild Rotary Club's Wednesday, June 6, meeting. She accepts the Rotary mug from President Roland Gaebert in appreciation for her attendance and presentation. Yahner practices functional medicine, including acupuncture and psychotherapy. For years, her work was in Los Angeles before relocating to Idyllwild.
