Cannabis activities, from growing to selling, will likely become legal in Riverside County in 2019. Despite opposition, the Board of Supervisors narrowly approved a revision to its current land-use ordinance, which would permit cannabis business throughout the unincorporated area of the county.

The vote was 3-2. Supervisors John Tavaglione (2nd District) and Marion Ashley (4th District) opposed the changes. Some details, such as whether

Cal Fire and others settle Mountain Fire lawsuit

By JACK CLARK
CORRESPONDENT

The California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (Cal Fire) has settled its state-court lawsuit against Tarek Al-Shawaff and his local employees, James and Donna Nowlin. The settlement was entered into and the lawsuit then dismissed as to those parties on Sept. 4, 2018.

Although the Town Crier requested information from Ross Hirsch, deputy attorney general in the California Attorney General's Office, which represented Cal Fire in the lawsuit, no information was received from that office by press time.

However, attorney Shawn Caine, who with his partner represented five individuals — Lon and Susan Paul, Martin Prevosto, Alisia Fisher and Doug McKeller — who also sustained damages as a result of the fire, told the Town Crier that Cal Fire settled its claim for a total of "$1.7 or 1.8 million." Caine said his five individual clients settled for an aggregate of $3 million. Caine further indicated that the defendant had only "limited insurance coverage."

The Town Crier will follow up with further more-definitive information as to the Cal Fire settlement when it hears back from the California Attorney General's Office, which actually represents Cal Fire.

Three complaints brought by insurance companies and insurance-related plaintiffs also were settled.

The state-court lawsuits brought by Lawrence Goda and Diana Amore, who are representing themselves in pro per, are still active and currently set for jury trial on Dec. 21, 2018.

The federal-court lawsuit brought by the United States of America (for the U.S. Forest Service) against these same defendants for similar damages regarding federal lands remains pending in U.S. District Court in Los Angeles.

Rancher seeks to rebuild; stymied by bureaucratic glitch

By DEBRA VARNADO
CORRESPONDENT

Last Saturday, Allan Tiso stood on his ranch talking to Team Rubicon USA volunteers who had arrived bright and early to help clear his property of the wreckage left behind by the Cranston Wildfire.

First, they cleaned around the burned tractor and put piles of metal in the dumpster. Then they took down the charred posts, and raked out the ash and debris from several barns, including a carriage barn at the main house.

Later that afternoon, they tackled the gatehouse, what had been ranch-hand Michael Kumpe's living quarters. Concrete piers, a blackened water heater and a bathtub were all that was left. The "Asbestos-Danger-Warning" signs that the county had posted were gone, so it was safe for the volunteers to enter. The kitchen stove and a microwave lay in a jumble nearby. The volunteers cleaned around those large bulky items as they couldn't move them without heavy equipment.

"We were in the middle of rehabbing the gatehouse — now all is lost," Kumpe said, "but the county did help us with the asbestos problem." Of the work performed, Tiso said Riverside County and Team Rubicon were very helpful.

In late-July to early-August, before its containment, the Cranston Fire burned along Idyllwild's West Ridge, and Saunders Meadow and McCall Park roads, destroying forest land and property, and eventually spreading to Idyllwild's South Ridge, overlooking Apple Canyon, Hurkey Creek and Tiso's 160-acre spread in Mountain Center.

Tiso, his wife Heidi and their five sons — all avid nature- and outdoor-lovers — fled the ranch with their prized animals in tow:

Kunekune pigs, horses, goats and chickens. They now live in temporary quarters “next door where we can keep an eye on things and maintain a presence on the ranch.” The Tisos lost seven buildings and a couple of other structures. All of their fencing burned and they have no electricity on the property — months after the blaze.

“We lost more than $100,000 in private power poles, a dozen that run from the Edison poles to our house, but we can’t get any power ... Those poles need to be replaced since they were burned,” Tiso said. “The work will be expensive and needs to wait until the risk of debris flow has passed. Fleming Ranch is a very dangerous place when it rains right now.”

“But, there is an inexplicable bureaucratic glitch at Edison. They have sent out two inspectors that have said that we are fine for immediate re-energizing our shop. Then, after they got back to Edison, a supervisor has said that we need to do ‘X, Y or Z,’ and that they will not re-energize. We have two meters on the property, one for the house and one for the shop. We only want the shop energized. There was no damage to the shop or its power panel so we are frustrated by Edison’s behavior.”

“We haven’t had any problems with the county debris clearance program, rebuilding, or insurance payments, except the process is slow, but that is the way it goes. As far as I understand, they did not take insurance funds earmarked for re-building; they only took funds that were available for cleanup. If the insurance did not have cleanup funds, they did the work anyway. It was a way to save a little taxpayer money — seemed like a fair approach to me.”

Under the county’s voluntary fire debris cleanup program, the county has budgeted $237,000 to cover the cost of inspections, testing and removal of asbestos on Cranston Fire-burned properties. The program provides for reduced cost dumpsters for use on the affected properties. The county also will inspect and remove household hazardous debris from burned properties, including such items as batteries (solar lights), paints, wood stain and automotive batteries. Homeowners also can opt out of the county’s debris program, but must adhere to requirements set by the county.

Tiso, a former Idyllwild resident and past director of AstroCamp, said his family has lived on the ranch a little over three years. “We love it out here. Folks in Idyllwild are rightfully excited and happy their community got saved by the firefighters. I think that’s awesome, but on this side of the ridge ... the [Hurkey Creek] watershed was completely burned. There’s not a tree left in it.”

“Ancient oaks — hundreds, maybe a thousand years old — and Native American petroglyphs were lost. They’re all gone now. There was a good amount of Cahuilla Indian activity on this property and you could still see signs of that. So, maybe there’s some archeological losses.”

“Although it is wonderful that Idyllwild was saved, I am deeply saddened by the loss of our local beautiful forest and some parts of our ranch, and I think I understand why it happened. Our main house is fine. The fire came through all 160 acres, but it did not decimate us. You see some green trees there because we did a lot of fire prevention ... a lot of clearing in our area, enough so the damage was minimized, whereas on the South Ridge itself, there was none. It is public land.”

“Right there on the other side of the ridge, that’s Tahquitz Peak. We can see the fire lookout tower up at the high point and South Ridge Trail comes right up through there. They’ve got some pretty major damage.”

Kumpe said he has “lived up here off-and-on most of my life. I have seen fires before, but not this badly neglected ... it was like we were nobody; they were all waiting on Apple Canyon. This area did not receive firefighters’ attention in the beginning. I guess they weren’t aware that there were residents back here. There is the Tiso family and 15 more houses toward Apple Canyon.”

“This is true,” Tiso said, “and we are disappointed, but I understand that it was a matter of priorities and very limited resources. Idyllwild was in very grave danger and the limited firefighting resources had to be diverted ... especially the air tankers. And there is the issue with dropping ‘Phos-Chek’ in watersheds ... there are a lot of creeks in this area. I think that ground crews are a less likely to be deployed in areas that don’t have air tanker support.”

Team Rubicon USA, an all-volunteer force of military veterans, is helping Tiso clean up his property. Cody Frazier coordinates the Temecula Valley District for the 501(c)(3) non-profit, non-government organization. “The volunteers are not affiliated with the County of Riverside and everything we are doing is with homeowners’ consent. No one is getting paid for this. It’s all community service work. Our funding comes from individual donors, corporations, foundations, trusts and businesses. We don’t accept any public grants or government funding.”

Last Saturday, seven of his “gray-shirts” got busy filling a dumpster. “We don’t haul the debris off. We have them bring a roll-off and we do the heavy lifting. We load it all up for them and the county comes and picks it up. We do a little bit of tree work, too, but can only go so big. We partner with the Forest Service to get certified and can only go a certain thickness — only up to 24 inches. We can fell, and ‘buck and limb’ them into manageable pieces for the homeowner if they want to use it for firework. We can put it in a nice pile or throw it in a dumpster.”

Team Rubicon also will sift through debris, looking for pictures, coins or mementos, and if they find any, will give them back to the homeowners. They clean up the property to allow them to rebuild. Team Rubicon came to the Hill, did site surveys, looked at about eight properties and found three that were within the scope of work it could handle. “We have cleaned up two properties and expect to do one more on the Hill during the Nov. 3 weekend,” said Frazier.

According to Frazier, his organization partnered with Idyllwild resident Julie Morgan as the local point of contact. “We had her go around and talk to the homeowners. Restaurateur Paul White and a number of other restaurant owners donated meals. We are working with trying to get tied into the county emergency management division with Riverside County District 1 Supervisor Kevin Jeffries.”

IFPD 2017-18 audit completed and accepted

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Financial topics dominated the latest Idyllwild Fire Protection District’s commission meeting. At the Oct. 23 meeting, the commission received and accepted its 2017-18 audit and Assistant Chief Mark LaMont presented the first-quarter results for 2018-19, the current fiscal year.

Chris Brown, senior partner in Fedak and Brown LLP of Riverside, presented the audit’s results. He quickly told the commission, “The audit concluded with an unmodified clean opinion. In our opinion, the financial statements present fairly the financial position of the fire department ... we did not identify any material weaknesses.”

From the accountants’ perspective, IFPD’s net position is a negative $1.8 million. This is entirely the result of recent changes, which the accounting profession have implemented, to have government agencies fully account for their long-term pension and other post-employment benefits.

IFPD has a pension liability of $2.3 million and its other post-employment benefits result in another $450,000 liability. These liabilities indicate what will eventually be paid out to employees when they retire. These are not debts due today, Brown stressed.

Pension and post-employment benefit liabilities are quite common among public agencies. This is neither unique nor troubling for IFPD, Fire Chief Patrick Reitz stressed to the commission. CalPers manages IFPD’s pension benefits.

Brown also noted that IFPD’s net position has improved from last year and actual cash available, including reserves, is about $600,000.

In terms of the actual budget, revenues exceeded expenditures by $97,000 in FY 2017-18. However, this was about $110,000 less than the 2016-17 surplus.

Last year, revenue declined slightly, while expenses increased $95,000. The management report emphasized that the reimbursable funding (mutual aid) from other agencies, when IFPD sends crews to other fires, was a critical component of its revenues, which helps the department.

Both Reitz and LaMont emphasized how important going to these fires is to the crews’ effectiveness. “It’s great training and we get reimbursed,” LaMont said. This fire season, IFPD staff has worked more than 13,000 hours at fires elsewhere.

For the current fiscal year, IFPD has a slight deficit of $14,000 after the first quarter. This is attributable to the additional salary and benefit costs from going to the mutual-aid fires. IFPD will be reimbursed for these costs, as well as others.

Also, property tax revenue from Riverside County will not be distributed until late December and January.

In other business, the commission adopted a resolution changing its December meeting to the third Tuesday of December from the fourth. The fourth Tuesday typically is between Christmas and New Years. Consequently, it is often canceled.

“The Christmas holiday affects the meeting and I suggest we move it to the third Tuesday,” President Rhonda Andrewson said in favor of the change. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The Town Crier’s Idyllwild daily high and low temperatures and rain and snow totals in the past were taken directly from the National Weather Service website, which gets its Idyllwild weather information from automatic weather sensing equipment at Idyllwild Fire Station, an official

NWS COOP reporter. The amount of rain plus the amount of water present in snow would be the “moisture” total for that day. But we cannot accurately report “moisture” since we currently receive no report of how much water is contained in any particular snowfall. [We are seeking reliable Idyllwild and Pine Cove full-time residents to provide this information. Residents who follow CoCoRaHS procedures would be strongly preferred. IWD reviews GM's performance, no action taken

NEWS EDITOR

The Idyllwild Water District directors held a special meeting Wednesday evening, Oct. 24. Director David Hunt was absent.

The other four directors went into closed session to review the performance of General Manager Jack Hoagland, who did not attend the meeting.

After they finished, President Dr. Charles "Chip" Schelly announced that no actions were taken.

Although he did not attend the meeting, Thursday morning, Hoagland declined to comment about the proceeding.

During the board's open session, they deferred the item to discuss filling a possible board vacancy. Hunt announced at the Oct. 17 meeting that he intended to resign after the IWD regular Nov. 21 meeting.

Since Hunt has not submitted a written resignation, his colleagues postponed the discussion of their plan to fill the seat if he were to resign. They expressed hope that he would change his mind by the November meeting.

Life Tribute Christina C. Farman 1943-2018

Christina C. Farman, Pine Cove resident since 2002, passed away unexpectedly on Tuesday, Oct. 16, 2018.

Christina was born in Washington, D.C. in 1943, the second daughter of Carl H. Farman, a senior United States government official, and Elsa Farman. She spent her high school years at the Sacred Heart boarding school in Montreal. She graduated from the University of San Diego with a Bachelor of Science in chemistry.

After graduation, deeply devoted to her Catholic faith, she volunteered for a teaching position with the Sacred Heart community in Uganda. There, she spent a year teaching at the local Catholic High School.

On her return from the African continent, she moved to the Chicago area where she worked as social worker and supervisor with the Illinois Department of Human Services.

In the early 1980s, Christina moved to Oklahoma City to assist her beloved sister, Elsa L. Farman (Major, USMC), as they established Elsa's private law firm there.

Christina was a poet all her adult life. When her sister's law firm was flourishing, Christina followed her dream and enrolled in the creative writing program at the University of Central Oklahoma. She graduated with a Master of Art degree and published a well-received volume of poetry.

In 1997, she moved back to San Diego where she had felt at home ever since her college years. In 2002, she decided to move to the Pine Cove-Idyllwild area. She loved "The Hill" and the kindness of this mountain community.

Christina remained committed to the religious of the Sacred Heart family and to the welfare of her friends in Uganda and Kenya whom she continued to support financially with great generosity throughout her life.

She loved the outdoors, was an avid camper in her younger years and had a special love for the Hawaiian island of Kauai.

Christina was a quiet person with a good sense of humor, an incredibly sharp mind and a big heart. Her most outstanding quality was her compassion for those in need and the kindness with which she treated others.

Having no children of her own, she was a beloved member of the Morris family: John, Tonya and their children Tiffany, Cynthia and Jeroid, who is her godson. She became a trusted and cherished aunt and friend to those children during their growing-up years.

Christina's last year was made difficult by various illnesses; during that time, the Morris family became her invaluable emotional and practical support.

She will always remain honored and cherished by those who knew and loved her. May she rest in peace.

Life Tribute James Mettler 1961-2018

James Mettler, born Nov. 30, 1961, died Friday, Sept. 28, 2018.

Jim was an extraordinary man: an avid learner of everything, and a member of the Palomar Observatory docents, Mountain Disaster Preparedness, Mile High Radio Club and Pinzgauer truck group.

He was active with outreach programs using astronomy through California schools and Positive Adventures.

Jim loved a good joke (or a bad one).

He was a real life "MacGyver" as well as an inventor. Jim holds a patent on a High Frequency Multiphase Flyback Power System (battery recovery system). His last invention was an IV tubing holder he designed while in the hospital.

He leaves behind his wife Colleen; son Ben; parents Jerry and Patricia Mettler; siblings Ken, Lisa (Jim), Chuck (Tina); 10 nieces and nephews; and other family.

In lieu of flowers, please make donations to International Dark-Sky Association at darksky.org.

A celebration of life is to be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10, at Camp Emerson (owner Boseker Scout Reservation), 53155 Idyllbrook Dr., Idyllwild.

Riverside County provides accessible voting tool

Riverside County is providing a voting service in the upcoming general election for voters with disabilities to be able to vote by mail. The Remote Accessible Vote-by-Mail system, called Omni-Ballot, allows for voters who cannot vote on a paper mail ballot due to disabilities to now access and mark their ballot using their home computers.

"Vote-by-mail is the fastest growing method of voting in Riverside County, which is terrific for most of our voters. However, for voters who cannot hold, mark or see their ballot due to disabilities, a paper ballot simply does not work," said Rebecca Spencer, registrar of voters in Riverside County. "That is why we wanted to offer this service to our blind and disability community. Using the OmniBallot system, voters with disabilities can now vote by mail just like everyone else."

The Remote Accessible Vote-by-Mail system is not Internet voting. "Although the accessible ballot is delivered electronically, the voter still prints a paper ballot to be returned with their signature, just like a traditional vote-by-mail ballot. This system is in no way Internet voting," stated Mrs. Spencer.

The OmniBallot system from Seattle-based Democracy Live was certified by the California Secretary of State to comply with all state and federal accessibility laws.

To access the Remote Accessible Vote-by-Mail system, visit www.voteinfo.net.

MDP plans exercise Nov. 6: Be prepared

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

On Nov. 6, the Mountain Disaster Preparedness group will conduct an emergency drill. About 4 p.m., an announcement will go out to MDP members that an emergency has occurred.

The Community Emergency Response Team members will report to the Disaster Assistance Station to which they are assigned. The medical team, co-chaired by Dr. Richard Goldberg and Gigi Kramer, will establish an Advanced Treatment Area at Idyllwild Pines.

"We want to test our corps," said MDP President Mike Feyder. This drill will involve first aid preparations, the DAS units, its communication network and the medical group.

Each DAS unit and CERT members will have to respond to a different medical scenario, such as a broken limb or eye injury. The medical staff at the Advanced Treatment Area also will prepare for these same injuries.

This type of response is more likely associated with a weather event or earthquake, Feyder added. Typically, a fire, such as the July Cranston Fire, would require residents to evacuate the Hill.

When an evacuation is in place, the DAS units remain closed, Kramer explained. "In a disaster, the Idyllwild Fire Department is involved moving patients to the Advance Treatment area, and they need to know our capabilities, too," she added.

The Mile High Radio Club and WNKI also will participate in the drill, Feyder said.

Training is important,

Kramer stressed. "Train and train, so everyone is confident. The more you do it, the easier it is," she stated. The drill will be a benefit for new CERT members. Many obtained their certification elsewhere, such as San Diego or Orange counties.

OUT LOUD

It has been some time since I wrote this column, primarily because of space limitations over the past few months due to Cranston Fire aftermath coverage and the elections. We managed to cover 11 propositions, one measure and 12 candidates, the last two candidates in this week's paper, thanks to JP and Marshall.

I found one of Ernie's columns from Nov. 1, 1968, by chance when I was searching for something else, that reflects my thoughts exactly over the past few weeks. Was it just coincidence that I found this almost exactly 50 years later and everything about it strikes true today? Ernie, long gone, seems to be speaking directly to me. So, I decided to republish it instead of writing my own thoughts since he expressed it so well:

"Country editors have long been regarded as a breed of philosophers, a distinction that befalls anyone who must face and survive more than the usual volume of life's vicissitudes. Editors learn to cope with human nature as part of gathering and publishing the news.

"Every news item has within it the seed of reaction and violence. What may seem like an innocent story turns out to be the spark that sets off an explosion among readers. Publish a misprint and the word is out that the editor possessed malicious intentions.

"Treat the material objectively and the editor is accused of straddling the fence. Take a side and he's [or she's] unfair. Quote a person and he's [or she's] offended. Leave out a name and someone is offended.

"The newspaper business is one of the few commercial ventures in which the public has a strong voice. Customers don't just fade away, they fire away. But try to please them all and the newspaper gets a reputation of being wishy-washy. A strong position on anything leads to accusations of dictatorship.

"Consequently, the small town editor develops a special kind of philosophy as a shield. Some take the short route to drink or add a gruff exterior to hide true feelings. An editor must be sensitive to catch the heartbeat of a community, and yet he [or she] must be agile so that he [or she] doesn't get caught with his [or her] feelings extended. A part of his [or her] insides must be locked up.

"There are many occupations which call for the same actions, but we're not seeking any of them. We've enough to cope with for a lifetime. What relieves the situation for editors now is the fact that the heat's on politicians. They need both a rugged constitution and a philosophy of reinforced concrete to face the public."

Consolidate?

EDITOR:

I would hazard a guess that people who happen to live in Fern Valley or Pine Cove sometimes eat out in the town of Idyllwild, have a drink in Idyllwild, shop for food in Idyllwild, do business in Idyllwild, use the library in Idyllwild and/or just pick up their mail in Idyllwild. Are these people then unaffected by the politics and policies of Idyllwild Water District?

It seems to me that we are one community in the San Jacinto Mountains — Idyllwild/Fern Valley/Pine Cove — a small one. We share the same zip code, the same natural environment of trees, land, air and water. And yet it appears that fiefdoms have been created that are being defended.

Unfortunately, we're showing ourselves to be very much a microcosm of today's world; we're exhibiting the "them vs. us" syndrome playing out so vividly on the world's stage.

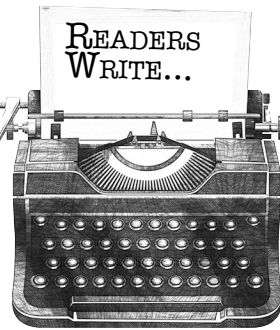

There must be some way to consolidate that would be advantageous and benefit everyone in the long run. No doubt there would be growing pains as we all made adjustments.

We have an opportunity to look to the future and to set an example for our children, our children's children and future generations.

As long as we maintain a "them vs. us" mentality, we will never improve this community and we will continue to keep the status quo, which gets us nothing but hostility, separation and stagnation.

"It" doesn't have to be broke to want to fix it. It can be improved, brought into relevancy and administered the proper care.

When will we realize that compassion will get us to where we all want to be — in a society of fair-minded, caring people who help one another, who don't need to wait for a disaster to strike in order to work together for the common good? United we stand. Divided we fall. Perhaps we can help improve the world stage community by community.

Is our voice heard or sought?

EDITOR:

Starting last week, we have observed a mural being painted on the rear of our public library. It will be honoring our firefighters.

We all agree that they should be honored and all of us appreciate their heroic efforts saving our town. But what about the process — how the subject and the artist were selected? What was the input of the community in shaping our public spaces? There was none.

The decision was apparently made by faceless public officials of Riverside County who did not feel any need to obtain our community's views. (Our library had no role or input in the process.)

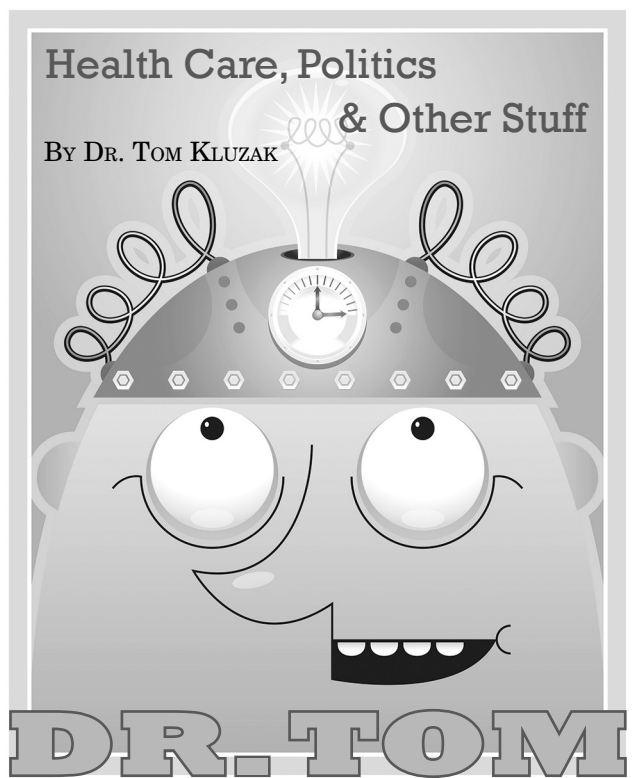

A number of artists, including a student at Idyllwild Arts, had submitted proposals for a public mural at the library to represent our community, but these were simply ignored or passed over.

We have many local painters who would have liked to create the mural.

We live in a community of artists and people who have a special concern for our unique community. Should our officials have consulted us or at least made some effort to communicate with us before they made their decision? I think they should have.

Healthcare in the coming election ...

I have been intending to write to explain some of the nuances of a single-payer healthcare system, commonly referred as "Medicare for All." Confusion and attempts at distortion abound, but a short essay can, unfortunately, only serve to lay the groundwork for more homework on the part of every voter.

There have been various proposals, some of which have been gaining publicity and votes in Congress. The most talked about is Sen. Bernie Sanders' Medicare for All, very close to the "Expanded and Improved Medicare for All Act," HR 676. Both have features championed for years by Physicians for a National Health Program (pnhp.org — a site well worth perusing) that the group refers to as "Improved Medicare for All."

In essence, these would extend Medicare to all citizens, funded by a variety of taxes, eliminating copays and deductibles while expanding coverage to include dental and vision care. Note that private insurance and the payroll deductions for it would be phased out.

Yes, taxes would be higher, but other costs would be lower, with a net total cost less than what we now pay. How is this possible? Consider that Medicare has an overhead of 3 percent compared to 15 to 30 percent for private insurance companies. Consider the effect of lower drug costs, negotiated on a national scale. Consider the amount of profiteering in healthcare that would be eliminated. You get the idea. And you might also get an idea of who might be opposed and how much money they have.

There also have been a number of alternative proposals, like offering Medicare to anyone over age 55, and Medicare X, which would "offer" Medicare to those not previously covered. However, these plans would not automatically cover everyone, would not necessarily cover pre-existing conditions, and might not include dental and vision care. Obviously, careful evaluation of any proposed legislation is required. Unfortunately, it can be difficult to separate fact from fiction.

I wish it were possible to have a totally non-partisan discussion but there is too much baggage attached to the long history of Medicare to allow that. Please understand that the Republican Party has opposed Medicare and Medicaid forever. They characterized Medicare as "socialized medicine" that would strip us of our basic freedoms.

Since it was enacted into law, however, they have been faced with the fact that it is popular with the American people, forcing approaches that could not include outright repeal, rather focusing on ways to privatize it (Medicare Advantage) or pay for it with vouchers that would limit government spending.

To summarize, as Paul Krugman, a Nobel Prize-winning economist, wrote recently in the NY Times: "If you believe that Medicare is a bad thing and the government shouldn't protect people with pre-existing conditions, vote Republican. If you want to defend Medicare and ensure coverage even for those who have health problems, vote Democrat."

He was writing this in response to an op-ed article in USA Today on Oct. 10 by President Trump which was widely fact-checked and found to be without them (like "Democrats would eviscerate Medicare"), accusing the Democrats of everything the Republicans have actually been attempting.

Please do not take my word for it, or President Trump's or Paul Krugman's. Evaluate the claims carefully by seeking out independent fact-checkers and reputable news sources. The citizens of our country deserve no less when you enter the voting booth.

Voepel versus Elia in Assembly District 71

BY MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Assembly District 71 stretches from Idyllwild in Riverside County to the California border. Consisting mostly of rural mountain country or desert, much of the population is clustered in the southwestern suburban part of the district near San Diego.

The voting population of the district is skewed heavily Republican with nearly a 9-point registration edge (37 to 28 percent). In any election, a ble (53 Democrats and 25 Republicans).

In his interview with the Town Crier, Voepel emphasized his support for issues that could resonate with Idyllwild voters, regardless of party. He is vice chair for the Assembly's committee on aging and long-term care. He advocates more oversight and inspections for nursing homes in the state to eliminate errors and potential mistreatment of patients. He would be open to having cameras in patient rooms if the facility had already been cited for a violation.

He also is an advocate for veterans and wants to funnel more state money into California's network of eight homes for veterans. His priorities for dealing with homelessness, a major issue throughout metropolitan areas in the state, would be to provide more housing for homeless veterans first.

He would take all state funding to provide care and education for undocumented aliens and direct that to addressing homelessness and other critical state infrastructure and education problems, including poverty rates among legal residents.

Addressing wildfires and the continued likelihood of more, Voepel would push utility companies to upgrade their equipment, and install cameras and sensors on all their grid so that management is quickly aware of grid problems and can respond quickly and effectively coordinate with first responders.

He would favor some level of state subsidization of citizen generator purchases in fire-susceptible areas.

Ranking the issues currently most important to him for all residents of AD 71, he lists public safety and fire suppression first, and housing second (noting that it is too expensive throughout the state based on average incomes). He opposes rent control and believes the solution to the housing crisis would be to have more housing built. He proposes limiting local permit fees builders are charged to encourage more building. "Local jurisdictions should only collect the fees they need to cover building issues," said Voepel.

While he agrees that health care is an important issue, he is not in favor of Medicare for all.

James Elia casts himself as a progressive on most issues. As a nonprofit head, Elia hangs much of his platform on the need for a public bank in California, much like the Bank of North Dakota. With no need to mount huge profits, with fees reasonable to users, the money saved could be used to fund key areas Elia believes California needs to address: Medicare for all (single-payer healthcare), and investing in education and apprenticeship programs to produce skilled workers to help rebuild California's infrastructure. Elia believes public banking (also supported by Democrat Gavin Newsome, running for governor) could fund free tuition for college and trade schools in California. "Newsome is a huge proponent of public banking and is committed to getting it established in California," said Elia.

Like Voepel, Elia supports requiring equipment upgrades by power companies to help fire suppression. He also supports a coordinated program of tree thinning throughout AD 71's forested areas to reduce fire spread.

He believes the housing shortage within the district is critical. He would address it by requiring issued building permits to mandate beginning construction within a specified period, thereby shortening the time more housing is built and available for occupancy. "Developers will sit on land, waiting for the most profitable times to build," said Elia. "Developers should not be allowed to sit for four or five years on land that can be developed."

Help celebrate library's 100th

The Idyllwild Library is one of the oldest and most venerated institutions on the Hill and it is geared up to celebrate its 100th anniversary July 27, 2020.

Staff and volunteers are planning a series of fun, informative and memorable community events leading up to that historic date and there are at least 100 ways for you to be a part of this special occasion.

They would love to hear your recollections of the library's history, especially from the 1920s to the 1950s, including important contributors, programs and milestones. Tell them your library stories: Why is it so important to you, your family, and our community?

If you have one of the earliest Idyllwild Library cards issued and pictures of the library at former locations or of its old card catalog, they would love to add these items to their treasure trove.

They especially want to receive memorabilia from the earliest days forward. Email your library stories and historic tidbits to Shannon at Shannon.Ng@rivlib.net. Bring your donated memorabilia to Shannon at the library.

For more information, contact the library at 951-659-2300 or stop by for a visit.

Since the housing crisis in the state also is caused by home prices that outpace median income, Elia advocates that rather than let supply and demand be how home prices are determined, he would tie pricing to median incomes areas as currently required to obtain financing by federal regulations stated in the Community Reinvestment Act. Elia would extend the provisions to building as well.

And lest any think that progressives are soft on crime, it was reported by the San Diego Union Tribune in August that late-night gymgoer and former high school wrestler Elia chased down a burglar trying to break into and steal a car, and single-handedly apprehended him. The reported story earned Elia new fans who appreciated his impulse to do the right thing and stop a criminal undertaking.

Local Red Cross seeks volunteers

The American Red Cross is seeking local volunteers. Meetings are about once a month. Volunteers are needed to set up a shelter in Idyllwild during a disaster, be prepared for floods and manage disasters.

Especially now, with the increased risk of mud/rock slides, and flooding from the burn scar, there may be more of a need for shelter openings in the future.

County Service Area 36 board meets

Votes to recommend continuing advisory committee oversight

By MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Two headlines came out of the County Service Area 36 Advisory Committee meeting on Thursday, Oct. 25.

One, that construction has begun on the Idyllwild Community Center amphitheater, funded by a previously announced $1-million donation from David and Loie Butterfield. The amphitheater will be completed in Part 1 of the center construction process and should be ready for use by summer 2019. "We just got the permit and work has begun," said Janice Lyle, president of the nonprofit San Jacinto Mountain Community Center.

SJMCC, doing business as the ICC, both runs taxpayer-funded community recreation through a contract with the county and also is responsible for getting the center built. When completed, the center will be called Butterfield Commons on Strawberry Creek and Butterfield Amphitheater.

The other headline was that the advisory committee will recommend to Riverside County 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington that committee oversight in a public forum should continue, largely because property tax money is being used to fund recreation and needs "arm's length" supervision of how tax dollars are being spent.

The supervisor's office had recommended discontinuing that oversight and replacing it with public attendance at SJMCC board meetings. Lyle noted that at present, the board does not conduct public meetings but potentially could, if needed.

The recommendation came about through the urging of committee member Peter Szabadi that oversight and the public forum should be independent of the private nonprofit currently running recreation.

Chair John Metroka called for a vote. All three attending members, Metroka, Szabadi and Mark Garrett, voted yes, and the recommendation will be passed on to the supervisor.

Several attendees questioned why there were not more notices about the CSA meetings and that they had only at-were being reviewed.

In response to a question about the differences, Reitz said the county accepted most of the district's recommendations but added administrative requirements, which he wants to review.

Also, Reitz and the commission were thankful for the community support at their Sept. 29 fundraising event. He estimated about $40,000 was raised.

tended because of word of mouth. Mike Franklin, county Economic Development Agency CSA project manager, reviewed that the county had previously placed ads and agendas about the CSA meetings in the Town Crier and that process could be revived. Szabadi said he could draft a notice for the newspaper stressing what the meeting was about — recreation and public tax money funding it — and that the public is invited.

Franklin offered a financial report showing an end-of-September cash balance of $221,791.44.

Lyle presented a Statement of Recreation Programs and Activities — Cash Basis covering the period January through September 2018 showing revenue of $190,121.79 and expenses of $17,700 for recreation and sports programs; $15,900 for operations including insurance, supplies and telephone; and $126,000 in payroll.

Lyle also provided a handout "Questions and Answers about the Idyllwild Community Center project" that included:

- Site development including driveways, lighting, parking and amphitheater will be completed by summer 2019. And "Based on the ability to secure funding, the ICC building will be constructed in Phase 2 starting January 2020."

- The Idyllwild community has raised just under $400,000 for the center building with its targeted youth center, activities rooms, community kitchen, restrooms and outdoor decks. Current estimates for the building are $4 million. County EDA and Washington have indicated a "willingness" to assist by providing a grant of $1.2 million from Community Development Block Grant funds. The remaining $2.4 million will be part of a new fundraising campaign targeting other available public and private grant sources.

- Regarding rental of the site when construction of phases is completed, Lyle's handout suggested that the goal of ICC management is to maintain an affordable fee structure that also helps "support the operation of the Butterfield Commons on Strawberry Creek."

To date, the Butterfields have donated the 5-acre site as a gift to SJMCC. They subsequently donated $4 million toward the development of the site and the amphitheater. In recognition of this generosity, SJMCC voted to name the site and the amphitheater Butterfield Commons on Strawberry Creek and Butterfield Amphitheater.

Two crashes on Hill roads, with one DUI arrest

Two crashes occurred on Hill roads over the last week with one of them resulting in an arrest for suspected driving under the influence, according to California Highway Patrol Officer Ed Nuñez.

At 4:25 a.m. Thursday, Oct. 25, Garrison Osburn, 31, of Ramona, was driving a white 2016 Ford F150 pickup truck eastbound on Highway 74 at mile marker 76, when, for unknown reasons, he caused his vehicle to turn off the roadway and subsequently crash into a drainage ditch. Osburn complained of back pain and was transported by American Medical Response ambulance to the Inland Valley Medical Center in Wildomar. No other vehicles were involved in the crash, nor were there passengers in Osburn's vehicle.

At 9:20 a.m. Friday, Oct. 25, Steven Harvert, 52, of Anza, was driving a red 2000 Dodge Ram pickup truck eastbound on Highway 74 at mile marker 77, when he allowed his vehicle to drift off the roadway causing it to strike a wood and metal guard rail. Harvert sustained a large contusion to his forehead and a possible broken back in the crash.

He was arrested at the scene on suspicion of driving under the influence of alcohol and transported by AMR to Desert Regional Medical Center in Palm Springs where he was "released to the care of the hospital," according to Nuñez, because of the seriousness of his injuries. Harvert will have a court date for his suspected DUI.

Supervisor Washington gives $4,000 grant to Fire Safe Council

Funds to help create more defensible space around local homes

By JP CRUMRINE

At the Oct. 23, Riverside County Board of Supervisors meeting, 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington recommended his colleagues concur with a $4,000 grant to the Mountain Communities Fire Safe Council.

These monies will be used in conjunction with the $600,000 state fire prevention grant, which was awarded to MCFSC in August.

About $200,000 of the grant funds will be earmarked for defensible space projects on the Hill, said Edwina Scott, MCFSC executive director.

Since the state money has a matching share requirement, Scott submitted a proposal to Washington requesting more funds to help low-income, seniors and disabled residents pay the homeowner's share of the project.

While the MCFSC's Woodies can create many defensible-space projects, there are some that require additional work and equipment. The grant money will enable MCFSC to provide the extra assistance to the frail and elderly, Scott said.

The state money has not been distributed to the recipient organizations, but Scott expects it within a month or so.

If you might qualify for this grant to create defensible space, call Scott at the MCFSC office, 951-659-6208.

In April, Washington provided money for the 2018 Idyllwild Summer Concert Series and in July, he aided the annual Jazz in the Pines festival.

Cannabis

cultivation may be permitted within some rural residential areas, are still to be decided.

At the beginning of her presentation, Charissa Leach, assistant director of the Transportation and Land Management Agency, explained the purposes of the proposed ordinance: "It establishes allowable and prohibited commercial cannabis uses and its zones, it sets development standards and operation criteria and sets the permitting regulations."

After January, implementation will be a slow and incremental process. The board adopted the staff recommendation to limit, in the first year, the retail permits to 19 and the cultivation permits to 50.

Leach emphasized that it will take time for staff to learn how to process the permits. Two hearings will occur and state regulations are still being modified. She felt this was a reasonable limit in the first year. In the future, the number of retail and cultivation permits will increase. There are no limits yet for the number of permits for distribution, manufacturing and testing of cannabis.

Before the final vote, Supervisor Kevin Jeffries (1st District) described the proposed ordinance and process, "Are the regulations heavy handed? Yes! But it's our first time at it. We will fix it if we didn't do something or if we didn't need to do something."

Commercial cannabis operators and owners will have to meet several regulatory standards. First will be a criminal background check. In response to a question from Jeffries about what criminal records will disqualify an applicant, Leach said, "Any felony conviction."

Each business must be consistent with the overall general plan and the requirement of the location's zone. Whether to permit some cultivation within the R-R, R-A and W-2 zones, which are residential, is to be further studied and brought back to the supervisors for a decision.

Many residents of these zones, especially in Anza and Aguanga, oppose cultivation in their neighborhoods. Their objections, which were strong, included the odors, water quality, traffic volume on unpaved roads and privacy.

However, two individuals spoke in favor of cultivation in these zones, both owning or representing owners of large tracts. Randall Longwith, speaking on behalf of Cameron Ranch, between Twin Pines and Poppet Flats, said the property is 600 acres. They can easily keep the growing area out of sight of the neighbors with a buffer zone.

He also noted that this area is within a significant fire zone. Cannabis cultivation would be a lesser risk than additional housing.

The board voted 4-1 in asking the Planning Commission staff to study and review how an exception might be allowed, while protecting neighboring parcels.

Obtaining a conditional use permit for the business will be required and that process includes two public hearings — before the Planning Commission and then the supervisors.

Development agreements with the county will be another requirement. These will specify the operations fees, as well as stipulate any community benefit, such as roads or parks, which the operator would be willing to provide.

"I strongly support the community benefit concept," said Jeffries. "So many unincorporated communities have been left behind. Few parks and little revenue to support local facilities ... The development agreement is an opportunity for cannabis facilities to be good neighbors."

All operators must be at least 21 years old, provide a security plan and obtain a state license. For growers, other requirements and limitations include methods to control odors, no visible live plants, a "will-serve" letter from the local water district and a 1-acre limit. Nurseries are not considered growers, consequently, no mature plants may be for sale at a nursery.

The ordinance does include two significant prohibitions. No outdoor cultivation will be permitted. All of the cultivation permitted must be under some form of cover and not visible beyond the property.

Although the three zones in which cultivation will be studied permit agricultural uses, Leach told the supervisors that cannabis is not like other agricultural commodities. From seed to sale, cannabis is regulated and tracked unlike any other agricultural product; it is still considered a Schedule 1 Drug, and it is not covered by California's Right-to-Farm.

"These are residential zones and a lot of people are living within these zones," she stated. Many residents have raised concerns about cannabis activities near homes.

Also, the county will not permit mobile cannabis retailers, which is selling from a vehicle such as a truck. Current state regulations will permit retail establishments to deliver products to any customer.

The county also had asked its staff to examine the issue of "on-site consumption." Alicia Barry, Idyllwild resident, was one of several people in favor of permitting some limited on-site use.

"The new land development agreements will help the community," she stated. "But keep an open mind about one place for consumption."

Although Ashley opposed the ordinance, he supports cultivation, with restrictions, within the rural residential zones. "If you do go ahead, after listening to the arguments very carefully, the speakers for Cameron Ranch and the last speaker gave perfect examples of why it would work in these zones."

He did vote no on the ordinance, but supported more staff analysis of permitting cultivation in the rural residential zones.

Both Ashley and Tavaglione in opposing the ordinance cited statistics from Colorado, where cannabis is legal, about the increase in crime rates.

Ruiz campaign coffers swelling with cash

Pelzer's contributions significantly trail Ruiz

By JP CRUMRINE

Dollars are not votes and upsets happen. Representative Dr. Raul Ruiz (D-36) can personally vouch for the possibility of a challenger overcoming the name recognition of an incumbent congressman.

Nevertheless, at the end of September, with five weeks until the election, Ruiz had 12 times the cash available than his Republican challenger Kimberlin Brown Pelzer.

Ruiz has received more than $1.2 million from individual contributors. Hundreds, maybe thousands, have given to his campaign. Many of these people have given $25 or $50 every month or two since 2017. This does not include the nearly $200,000 in donations from ActBlue, which accepts contributions of as little as $3.

Among the dozens of Political Action Committee contributions, Ruiz has benefited from many physician and pharmaceutical entities. Examples include the American Academy of Family Physicians, the American Association of Neurological Surgeons, the American Association of Nurse Practitioners, the American College of Cardiology and the American Hospital Association.

Private PACs include Eli Lilly, Edwards Lifesciences, Edison, General Electric and Walgreen. He also has received funds from the Democratic Party and many individual contributors.

Pelzer has received more than 580 contributions from individual donors. The total from individual contributions is about $625,000 and nearly 92 percent of the funding to her campaign. Of the individual contributions, slightly less than half were for $1,000 or more. She has received 141 contributions, totaling $378,000, which is more than half her total.

PAC contributions represent a small part of her treasury. Several, such as Maggie's List and Value in Electing Women, are nonpartisan.

Sheriff's race is for millionaires

Bianco still leads in money

By JP CRUMRINE

The race for the Riverside County Sheriff position is costing the candidates — incumbent Sheriff Stan Sniff and his challenger Lt. Chad Bianco — millions.

Through Oct. 20, with about two weeks remaining for the campaign, each candidate had spent more than $1 million.

While it appears (see accompanying table) that Bianco has received twice the contributions that Sniff has, that reflects only the 2018 gifts. During 2017, before Bianco declared his candidacy, Sniff had already received nearly $312,000.

In the week since the summary reports were filed, both candidates have reported more financial donations. Sniff has received $20,000 more and Bianco has been given $19,500.

The Riverside Sheriffs' Association is the principal support behind Bianco's campaign. The RSA has given him more than $725,000, or nearly three-quarters of his campaign chest.

Several other law enforcement associations are large and significant donors to Bianco's effort, too. For example, the California Correctional Peace Officers Association has donated $120,000 and the Corona Police Officers have given $7,500. Two other police groups from Los Angeles County have sent him $5,000 each.

Also, the Haagen Company LLC has contributed $50,000.

Sniff's largest donors are Harold Matzner, who has given $100,000, and Frederick Noble and Affiliated Entities, who have given $73,200, some of which has been consulting services. Sterling BMW has given Sniff $23,200. He has two other contributors who have donated $16,000 and 13 contributors who have give $5,000 to $15,000.

Silver and Democrats pouring thousands into race against Stone

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Polls indicated the race for the state Senate District 28 seat between Republican incumbent Jeff Stone and Democratic challenger Joy Silver is tightening. Financial contributions seem to support Silver's closing the gap.

Through Sept. 22, she had received more than twice Stone's contributions and had spent nearly twice as much. Her available cash for the remaining six weeks was $120,000 compared to Stone's $76,000.

In financial filings since then, Silver has received another $440,000, doubling her total. In the week from Oct. 22 to 26, she received $245,000.

The largest gift has been $150,000 from the California Democratic Party. But the Tehema County Democratic Committee has sent $50,000 south to Silver and the Fresno, Humboldt and Santa Barbara counties committees have contributed $20,000 each. Also, 17 fellow Democratic candidates have each contributed $4,400 to her campaign.

During the same period since mid-September, Stone received another 26 contributions for $100,000. He is now receiving support from his party. The largest was $30,000 from the Republican Party of Orange County and another $15,000 from the 36th District Republican Party.

Most of the gifts were from organizations such as Chevron, American Medical Response and Union Pacific. Several medical related groups, such as AmerisourceBergen Services, Temecula Valley Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, and Western Dental Services, also contributed.

On Thursday, Silver's campaign released a poll showing she was within 1 percent of Stone. Stone was the favorite of 45 percent of the respondents (a total of 414 likely voters) and Silver was favored by 44 percent.

Idyllwild Community Fund gives $15,000

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Last week, during its reception at the Red Kettle, the Idyllwild Community Fund announced the organizations to whom it has awarded grants for 2018.

This year the grant awards totaled more than $15,000. The largest check went to the Idyllwild School smARTs program. The $3,250 will enable the program to purchase more art supplies. The Help Center was awarded $3,000 to help fund its utility assistance program.

One new recipient, as the result of the Cranston Fire, is the Southern California Mountains Foundation. Its gift will go toward purchase of materials to repair and to renovate the Tahquitz Fire Lookout Tower, damaged during the fire.

Other awardees include Forest Folk, Idyllwild School Booster Club, the Idyllwild Soroptomists, Idyllwild Scholarship Fund and the Woodies of the Mountain Community Fire Safe Council.

The Cranston Fire caused a lot of damage and the recovery process can be slow. ICF President Shannon Ng also shared, "In response to this need, the Idyllwild Community Fund with the Community Foundation [of Riverside and San Bernardino Counties] looked for a way to help in the recovery process. On our behalf, The Community Foundation accepted donations and matched those donations up to $10,000 to help local residents hardest hit.

"We would like to invite your nonprofits, who have programs planned or in place to directly assist those residents, to consider applying for the funds collected through this campaign," she said. Guidelines and deadlines for applying will be announced shortly, Ng added.

Forest expanding use of online reservation for local campsites

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The U.S. Forest Service is expanding its use of online reservations for many local campgrounds.

By the 2019 Memorial Day weekend, when the agency's campgrounds open, reserving a site at the Marion Mountain, Fern Basin and Boulder Basin campgrounds will require using the online reservation system. Reservations can be made up to six months in advance on Recreation.gov. Group campgrounds, Black Mountain for example, are already reservation-only.

Currently, campsites at these campgrounds also can be reserved by walking into the office or online.

Some campgrounds will remain walk-in only. These include Dark Canyon and Pinyon Flat campgrounds in the Santa Rosa and San Jacinto Mountains National Monument.

Online reservations will allow Forest Service staff to perform other needed work. The reduced time spent on fee compliance, collection, accounting and transferring federal money will enable staff to spend more time on public contacts, cleaning restrooms, emptying trash cans and addressing maintenance needs at campgrounds and in day-use areas, according to Zach Behrens, public affairs officer for the San Bernardino National Forest.

Signs have already been posted alerting campers and hikers of the coming changes.

For the remainder of 2018, campground operations are continuing as normal. Fern Basin and Marion Mountain campgrounds will close Nov. 12. Boulder Basin, Black Mountain and Dark Canyon campgrounds are already closed for the season, according to the Forest Service.

Idyllwild Arts student and family raising funds for autism

In an effort to raise awareness about the impacts of neurological disorders, Idyllwild Arts Academy Inter-arts student Jackson Bujnosek's family decided to take this idea directly to campus. "With my personal passion for art, and the importance of certain social issues within my family circle, we've found it best appropriate to combine the two aspects together around one, unified and concrete cause," Jackson wrote.

"Our brother, Beck Bujnosek, is diagnosed with severe autism on the spectrum. The project was ultimately inspired by him and to raise awareness about the other end of the autism spectrum which is not highlighted by the media. Many people who have autism cannot speak, have permanent immobility, and uncontrollable movement. The higher end of the spectrum is only one aspect of the larger picture. We hope to bring him to the reception."

The event is at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, in Bowman Theatre (IAF Theatre) on campus.

Donations are requested, and T-shirts and cupcakes will be sold.

"This will involve the true reality (from personal experience) of charities, their ultimate lack of helping those affected with autism disorders (even with good intention), and the larger blind-eye when considering the lack of funding that goes into autism-related programs even when one in 58 children get diagnosed on the spectrum,"

Local pianist and teacher Michael Staff will perform at Carnegie Hall

A modest man realizes a long-held dream

BY MARSHALL SMITH
CORRESPONDENT

Idyllwild resident Michael Staff is a modest man, an everyman — a devoted husband and father, and a contributing member of his community. To all outward appearances, he is an ordinary man. But his quiet and respectful demeanor belies his sparkling intellect, artistic depth and multi-dimensional imagination.

Unlike many with great talent, Staff does not readily talk about himself. He does not, in social settings or in conversation, seek the spotlight.

Yet this gently introverted man will occupy front and center at Carnegie Hall in New York City on Saturday, Nov. 3, in the spotlight on one of classical music's most storied stages.

Getting there has been an arduous journey of many years — relaunching a promising career that was put on hold 13 years ago, by a personal crisis.

At age 21, while preparing for the prestigious Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, Staff experienced a nervous breakdown. His technique and artistry had already marked him as someone to watch, someone with a major concert career ahead. Then came the crash. "I was studying with Dr. Tao Chang [Azusa Pacific University] and working on Tchaikovsky's 'Piano Concerto No. 1 in B flat minor' and Schumann's 'Piano Concerto in A minor' when I had the breakdown, precipitated by the pressure of preparation and some neurological issues," Staff recounted.

He couldn't continue. He no longer had the emotional or physical ability to go on with music. He stepped away, to regroup, re-define and heal. Two years later he met the woman who would become his wife. With Erin's help and support he began to think about concert piano once again. He washed windows to support his family. After five years, the physical strain on his hands and his overall physical health became too apparent to ignore. "I realized that living was more than surviving," he recalled. "Erin helped me get enough private piano students to allow me to quit manual labor that would negatively affect my hands." He gradually resumed playing.

In 2014, he began playing at Mile High Café. In 2017, he won second place at the McCallum Theater's Open Call competition in Palm Desert. He recorded a CD of his own compositions titled "Dreams of a Somnambulist," thematically exploring the relationship between math, one of Staff's great obsessions, and music, the other. In February in early summer that he had won a first prize gold medal and the right to appear on Saturday, Nov. 3, at Carnegie Hall. For the competition and online submission, he played selections from Bach's "Art of the Fugue" and Chopin's "Etudes Opus 10." "I also won a bronze medal in the Global Music Awards with the same submission material," said Staff.

At Carnegie Hall, he will play his own composition, the second version of his "Variations on Gounod's Marche Funèbre D'Une Marionnette." "Gounod's theme is played at the beginning, then it's my piece from then on," said Staff.

The life he is fashioning for his career, wife and two young children also is his composition from this point on — created with the balance and structure that math helps define, and the beauty and joy that music creates.

When asked what is coming next professionally, he answered that he will be expanding into writing for chamber music — string quartets. "It will be my first foray into other instruments, voices and permutations. I'll be looking at counterpoint, form and structure, and the sonata form. I'm finally figuring out my place in everything."

Asked how important Idyllwild has been in helping him find his way forward, he smiled and said, "I don't know how to live anywhere else but Idyllwild."

Staff teaches piano privately to students of all ages. For more information about him, visit his website at www.michaelstaff.com.

HOROSCOPES
 November 2018 — Week 1

March 21 – April 19
ARIES
 Keep your feelings to yourself as you work through an awkward circumstance. Complaining is useless, and also unwise since your words could come back to haunt you.

April 20 – May 20
TAURUS
 A sudden flash of Bovine practicality shows you how you might be able to turn your artistic pursuits into a profitable venture. A spouse or partner offers some sage advice.

May 21 – June 21
GEMINI
 Be prepared with several "Plan Bs" that you might have to use as backups just in case you encounter some troublesome complications with your carefully constructed schedule.

June 22 – July 22
CANCER
 You might think you'll never have a free moment again with the demands of the workplace piling on. Cheer up. The pressure eases as holiday time nears. An old friend brings good news.

July 23 – August 22
LEO
 Your Leonine pride might make it difficult to offer an apology to a co-worker you unintentionally offended. But a quick and sincere "I'm sorry" could prevent problems down the line.

August 23 – September 22
VIRGO
 This is a good time to tackle those backed-up chores that have kept you from moving into other, potentially more worthwhile projects. A personal matter needs your attention.

September 23 – October 22
LIBRA
 You usually have no problem rushing to the defense of someone you perceive as being treated unjustly. But perceptions could be deceiving this week. Check the facts before you act.

October 23 – November 21
SCORPIO
 Before you point fingers at who might be to blame for the unexpected change in your plans, take a few moments to reflect on how this turn of events might be a blessing in disguise.

November 22 – December 21
SAGITTARIUS
 You seek out advice in the first part of the week. But be careful not to let counsel from others overshadow your own sense of perception. Things become clearer by the week's end.

December 22 – January 19
CAPRICORN

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentations to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.
