Caltrans estimates four more months for highways to reopen

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The damage to highways 74 and 243 is more extensive than originally thought. Engineers have done a more thorough assessment of the damage and the current estimate for full repair and opening of the roads is four months, according to Terri Kasinga, chief, Public and Media Affairs, Caltrans District 8.

Ames Construction, the Caltrans contractor, is not only repairing the damage to Highway 74, where it collapsed and was severed, but is repairing and protecting the highway in several more locations.

The fast-moving runoff eroded the edge of the highway in many places. Work is being done to restore Highway 74 about 0.75 miles west of Mountain Center, before any of the passing lanes.

“There are over 25 locations on SR 243 with damage including two locations with complete road loss,” a Tuesday press release from Caltrans explains. “SR 74 has over 40 locations that will require repairs. At this time, Caltrans is estimating at least four (4) months before public access or reopening of

Edison submits wildfire mitigation plan to CPUC

Improvement costs approach $600 million

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Last month, in response to Senate Bill 901 (approved Sept. 21, 2018), California’s electric public utilities submitted wildfire mitigation plans to the state’s Public Utilities Commission.

Southern California Edison’s plan was more than 100 pages long. The document described dozens of different actions and plans to lower the risk of a wildfire igniting near or because of Edison’s equipment. Many of these steps have already been implemented or are being prepared for implementation this year or next year.

SCE’s two principal objectives are “... further harden the electric system against wildfires and enhance wildfire suppression efforts...” Edison estimates that nearly one-third of its territory is considered “High Fire Risk,” according to the CPUC and Cal Fire designations.

Most of the planned and proposed actions were shared with local residents last spring, when MDP invited SCE representatives to speak at a community meeting, and through press releases on its website (www.sce.com/safety/wildfire), as well as the “Grid Safety and Resiliency Program” that SCE also submitted to the CPUC in September 2018.

The WMP also describes SCE’s goals and the measures to assess the accomplishment or progress toward the goals.

In the press release with the WMP, Phil Herrington, SCE’s senior vice president of Transmission and Distribution, said, “This is an aggressive plan to protect public safety. We are implementing a variety of additional tools and technologies to advance fire safety even further throughout our system to respond to the ‘new normal’ of year-round wildfire risk.”

Among the many actions SCE has begun implementing, or has completed, is system hardening as a critical protective action. SCE is replacing older bare conductors with covered conductors, inspecting and replacing poles, and installing automatic reclosers, which function like a circuit breaker.

The newer conductors will “... significantly reduce contact from

Our mountains not included in wildfire mitigation report to Gov. Newsom

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Gov. Gavin Newsom assumed office on Jan. 7 and the next day, he issued an executive order for the preparation and submission to him of “... recommendations of the most impactful administrative, regulatory and policy changes or waivers the Governor can initiate that are necessary to prevent and mitigate wildfires to the greatest extent possible, with an emphasis on environmental sustainability and protection of public health.”

Cal Fire submitted its report last week. The agency identified 35 high priority projects “that can be implemented immediately to help reduce public safety risk for over 200 communities.” However, only four of the projects are in Southern California. The most vulnerable communities are in Northern California, based on the report’s results, which employed various socioeconomic data to rank projects.

Two had a fire risk of less than 10. The project evaluation “considered socioeconomic characteristics of the communities that would be protected, including data on poverty levels, residents with disabilities, language barriers, residents over 65 or under five years of age, and households without a car.”

As an example, while the report includes the Paradise Fire, where many of the deaths were elderly people, it does not appear to include access as a measure of safety. While county, state and federal officials frequently warned Riverside County residents of the dangers of flooding and road closures following the Cranston and Holy fires, ingress and egress corridors were not part of Cal Fire’s calculation of high priority projects.

The report describes the projects as “... local projects that can be addressed urgently in partnership with communities to make a difference this wildfire season. Examples include removal of hazardous dead trees, vegetation clearing, creation of fuel breaks and community defensible spaces, and creation of ingress

Lake Hemet RV renters face uncertain future

By Marshall Smith
Staff Reporter

Nearly one month after torrential rainfall caused major flooding and mud flow to areas of Lake Hemet Campground, RV campground site renters face uncertain futures. Additional rains could cause further flooding and campground renters' rights may be limited.

Lake Hemet and the campground are owned by the Lake Hemet Municipal Water District headquartered in Hemet. The campground is managed by Basecamp Hospitality, formerly The California Parks Company.

On Thursday, Feb. 14, a levee breached causing water to rapidly rise to 3 or more feet around meadow-facing premium RV month-to-month rental campsites.

Some who were able to drive out on Valentine's Day morning will not return. Patricia Blaine and partner Randy got out before noon, but in their hasty exit, their RV sustained damage when hitting a submerged rock. "We're not going back because they haven't corrected the problem," said Blaine. "The breach has not been fixed and when rains come again, so will flooding. On the 14th, nobody [from campground management] came down to see us or help us. Had we not gotten out when we did, who knows what might have happened."

Blaine provided a copy of her original contract with camp management which defined month-to-month renters as "campers not permanent residents." (Blaine has lived at Lake Hemet Campground since October 2017.)

The contract's "Acknowledgement of Risk and Waiver of Liability" seems to transfer risks, including during emergencies, to those who voluntarily enter onto the campground, thereby limiting campers' expectations of assistance during emergencies, and rights of recovery for losses or injuries sustained.

A section of the contract reads as follows: "I [signing individual] am fully aware of the risks and hazards inherent in boating and camping and associated activities. I have decided to enter onto the property of the Lake Hemet Municipal Water District ("District") and use District facilities knowing that such an act on my part may involve some danger to my person, to my property, or to the person or property of others. In addition, I understand that I am entering a campground as a camper, and not a permanent resident, in a relatively remote area and that availability of convenience and emergency services is limited or non-existent."

Campers also sign a release from liability and agreement to indemnify both camp owner and management.

Another liability section speaks to acts of God limiting camper recovery rights. "Any person using these [campground] facilities will do so at their own risk. The management and staff assume no responsibility for fire, theft, accidents, vandalism, flooding, winds or any act of God, which may occur during the stay of the tenant/guest.

"Any violation of these rules shall be grounds for termination and/or non-renewal of any tenant's Rental Agreement."

Although Blaine left the campground and is not planning to return, other long-term campers with patio rooms and other attachments to their RVs find it more difficult to leave.

Previously interviewed Mary and Michael Murray love the peace and quiet of their premium site and have been, for the last month, repairing mud and water damage to their possessions. They are planning to stay but are apprehensive about further flooding. "Everything [power, water, sewage connections] is now working and the rain we've had since the 14th has not caused any more problems."

Kelly Lam, marketing director of Basecamp Hospitality, responded to the Town Crier's inquiry about conditions at the park and management's plans to mitigate the damage at the campground and continued difficulties facing long-term renters.

He said, "Lake Hemet Campgrounds sympathizes with the plight of those camping along Hurkey Creek and understands the effect that flooding is causing to their personal property. This is an unprecedented, 100-year flood event.

"We have communicated to all campers that they may move their trailers and RVs to any open campsite away from the flooding. "To assist with relocating trailers and RVs, the Idyllwild Garage has offered to stand by to tow trailers and RVs and will refer campers to other tow operators should they be unable to help.

"We have told affected campers that once this flooding has subsided, they may move their trailers and RVs back to the campsite they've been occupying, as long as it is still inhabitable.

"Like all campgrounds, Lake Hemet Campgrounds is intended to be occupied temporarily. At Lake Hemet, some campers stay month to month. Their campsite rental agreements specify that it is each camper's responsibility to be prepared to move their trailer or RV should it be necessary.

"We have been in touch with disaster agencies to determine if assistance can be provided to those campers unable to afford to move their trailers and RVs, though so far, we've not found an agency able to provide such assistance."

As a reference for readers, California Civil Code Sections 799.20 through 799.79 detail R.V. Park Rent Laws.

The code differentiates between long-term and short-term RV park renters. Code defines "occupant" as one who has occupied a lot for 30 days or less; a resident as one who had occupied a lot for nine months or more; and a tenant who has occupied a lot "for more than 30 consecutive days."

Of interest is section 799.40 which states "The rights created by this chapter shall be cumulative and in addition to any other legal rights the management of a park may have against a defaulting occupant, tenant, or resident, or that an occupant, tenant, or resident may have against the management of a park."

Also, Section 799.42 states, "No occupant registration agreement or tenant rental agreement shall contain a provision by which the occupant or tenant waives his or her rights under the provisions of this chapter, and any waiver of these rights shall be deemed contrary to public policy and void."

The flooding, rain and heavy snow on the mountain before and after Feb. 14 have caused property damage and travel inconvenience to many Hill residents in addition to those at Lake Hemet Campground,

Because of current and prolonged closures of Idyllwild-access sections of highways 243 and 74, local businesses are hurting due to reduced tourist traffic. The county website www.rivcoready.org, provides links for downloading forms that may provide disaster aid assistance: "Riverside County Operational Area Residential Damage Reporting Form," and "Estimated Disaster Economic Injury Worksheet for Businesses." Upon completion, forms can be submitted to EMDOperations@RivCo.org for possible financial reimbursement of funds from disaster declarations.

As of this writing, Tuesday morning, March 12, Idyllwild received 1 to 5 inches of snow with more at higher elevations. Rain was expected later Tuesday.

Riverside County Library System offers Mental Health First Aid training

From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Thursday and Friday, March 28 and 29, the Idyllwild Library Branch of the Riverside County Library System will be offering Mental Health First Aid training in Idyllwild.

This groundbreaking eight-hour training course in two sessions gives people the tools to identify when someone might be struggling with a mental health or substance use problem, and to connect them with appropriate support and resources when necessary.

One in five Americans has a mental illness, but many are reluctant to seek help or might not know where to turn for care. Unlike physical conditions, symptoms of mental health and substance use problems can be difficult to detect. For friends and family members, it can be hard to know when and how to step in. As a result, those in need of mental health services often do not get them until it is too late.

Just as CPR helps even those without clinical training assist an individual having a heart attack, Mental Health First Aid prepares participants to interact with a person experiencing a mental health crisis.

Mental Health First Aiders learn a five-step action plan that guides them through the process of reaching out and offering appropriate support.

"Through this program, we hope to take the fear and hesitation out of starting conversations about mental health and substance use problems," said Linda Rosenberg, president and CEO of the National Council for Behavioral Health, which helped bring Mental Health First Aid to the U.S. in 2008. "When more people are equipped with the tools they need to start a dialogue, more people can get the help they may need."

In just 10 years, Mental Health First Aid has become a full-blown movement in the United States — more than 1 million people are certified Mental Health First Aiders, and that number is growing every day.

Riverside County Library System, through a grant from the California State Library, is offering free training classes to library staff and the public for a limited time. Local community groups are encouraged to attend.

For more information or to participate in the Mental Health First Aid training in Idyllwild, contact the Idyllwild Library at 951-659-2300 or email Shannon Houlihan Ng at shannon.ng@rivlib.net.

Arctic frontier physician to speak

Few books are page-turners, and few of them are nonfiction, but one is "On Call in the Arctic," by Thomas J. Sims, M.D. (Pegasus 2018).

This memoir recounts the adventures of a 26-year-old, brand-new Public Health Service physician as the sole doctor in Nome, Alaska, serving not only the entire town but 13 Eskimo (yes, Eskimo, not Inuit) villages, as well.

Although this all took place in the 1970s, you have the sense that this is real frontier medicine, with "Doc Sims" often having to improvise and struggle against unimaginable obstacles. And the volume of patients, the weather and poor facilities were not his only adversities.

Adventures is the right word. Sims has a way of making his readers feel they are right there with him, as if you could reach through the pages and try to help somehow.

Try to not turn the next page, if you can.

Sims will speak and sign his book "On Call in the Arctic" at the Idyllwild Library at 1 p.m. Saturday, March 16. The public is invited free of charge.

When departments help others, costs are reimbursed

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

As the Idyllwild Fire Protection District moves forward with its plan to offer a ballot measure to increase its parcel (unit) fee, several readers have asked questions about how the mutual aid revenue is generated.

“Mutual aid” is the reimbursement that goes to departments that respond to dispatch calls to send crews to fires outside of their jurisdiction. Usually, these are large conflagrations, such as the Camp or Woolsey fires, but not necessarily.

The agency or agencies in whose district the fire occurs are responsible for reimbursing the agencies that respond to the requests for help or more resources. For example, more than 20 different jurisdictions responded to the mutual aid requests during last summer’s Cranston Fire.

The Idyllwild Fire Department responded to 16 mutual aid requests during 2018. These incidents ranged in size from 282 acres for the Skyline Fire in Corona to 97,500 acres for the Woolsey Fire in Los Angeles County.

When a responding agency is present for more than 12 hours, its time and costs are reimbursed. For some large fires, such as the 2018 Ferguson Fire in Mariposa, the agency may be requested for multiple periods.

The direct salary costs of the firefighters who respond are reimbursed to their agency.

Since sending a team takes staff from an agency’s station, other staff or reserves must be called in as back up in case a fire starts at home. These costs also are reimbursed since they are the direct result of supplying mutual aid.

When a team responds, it travels on an engine and sometimes other vehicular equipment such as water tenders. The transportation costs, such as gasoline and depreciation, are reimbursed. Also, if the equipment was damaged, for example, a flat tire was incurred, the cost to repair or replace is reimbursed.

aged, for example, a flat tire was incurred, the cost to repair or replace is reimbursed.

All of the direct costs are totaled and then a 10 percent administrative cost is allowed. In larger agencies, administrative staff completes paperwork and other non-firefighting work to support mutual aid. IFPD is too small for a separate administrative staff to do this work, but it is still eligible to apply the 10 percent fee.

Typically, a complete engine crew responds to the mutual aid call. For example, IFPD sent two crews, at different times, to the Ferguson Fire.

However, sometimes it can be an individual responding and their costs also are covered. IFPD Assistant Chief Mark LaMont is a member of statewide Incident Management Team 2. When his team is activated, he responds. The team commander is Chris Fogle, battalion chief on the San Jacinto Ranger District, and the deputy is Norm Walker, former fire manager for the ranger district and former chief of the Idyllwild Fire Department.

In 2017, IMT 2 was assigned to the Salmon August Complex Fire, which burned 65,000 acres in or near the Klamath National Forest. LaMont was assigned to the fire for weeks.

For the 16 mutual aid responses during the summer of 2018, IFPD received or will receive about $500,000 for its time and expenses, which amounts to $50,000 in administrative fees. The total hours involved exceeded 14,000.

While the mutual aid responses take staff from the district, the benefits are more than the reimbursements. Both Fire Chief Patrick Reitz and LaMont praise and value the opportunity for real time training the IFPD staff gains from its participation in fighting these fires outside the district. Both Reitz and LaMont emphasized how important going to these fires is to the crews’ effectiveness.

“It’s great training, and we get reimbursed,” LaMont has said. And the responses are growing as the number of large and extended wildfires has increased in California. In fiscal year 2015-16, IFPD’s mutual aid revenue was about $240,000. At that time, the department estimated it would slowly increase.

For example, the projection for the current fiscal year (2018-19) was slightly more than $250,000, about half of what IFPD actually has received or will receive so far this fiscal year.

Forecast shows precipitation abating

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

Spring, according to the calendar, is still a week away. But the rain and snow in the past five weeks have sprung the local springs.

Runoff continues to flow down many streets, often through yards and under or into homes. Last week, less than an inch of rain was recorded at the Forest Service’s Keenwild Ranger Station; yet the sides of many local roads still have water running along the curbs and into drains.

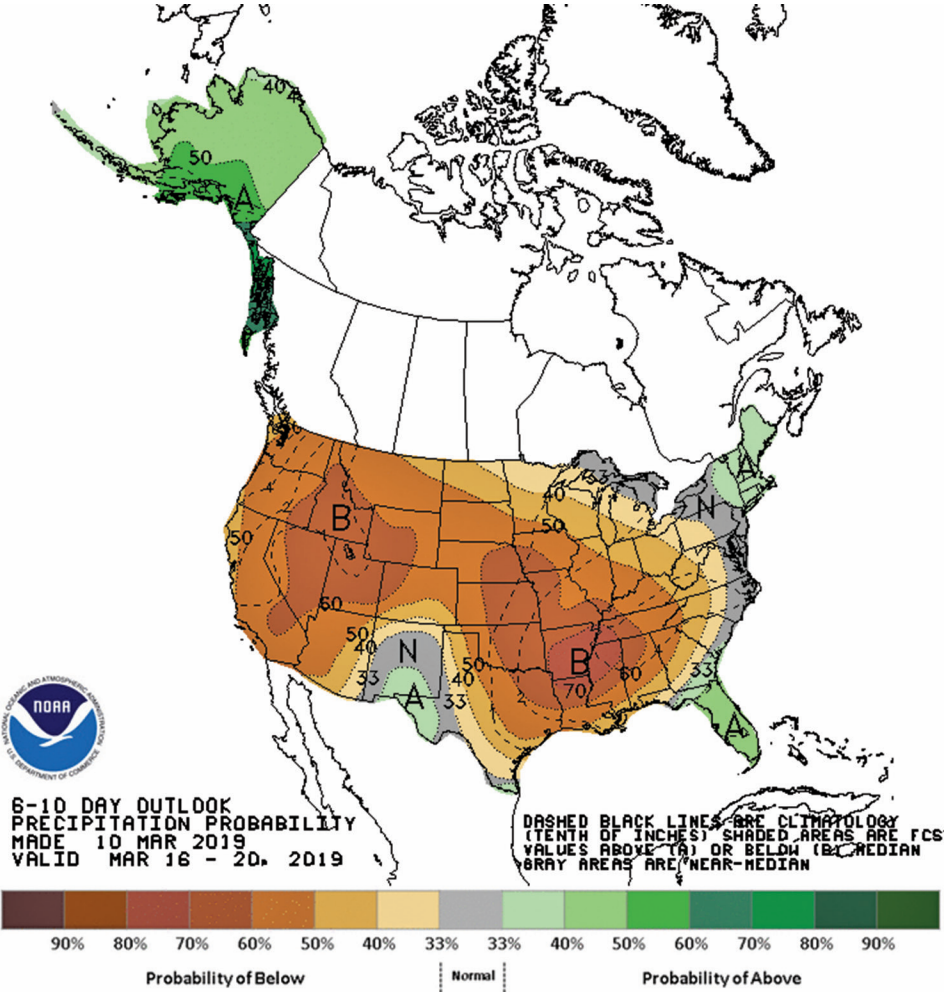

About a third of an inch fell in Garner Valley and closer to a quarter of an inch was recorded at the Idyllwild Fire Station.

With the calendar approaching Spring, the weather appears to concur. Drier and warmer trends have been forecast beginning Wednesday and Thursday, March 13 and 14. Idyllwild may heat up to the 50s and 60s during the next week.

Since Oct. 1, 2018, total rainfall through Monday, March 11 recorded at Keenwild has been 26.4 inches. The long-term average for a year is 25.7 inches, of which about 20.5 falls between October and the end of March.

The National Weather Service’s forecasts for the next 6 to 10 days, for the next two weeks and for the next month all show below average precipitation.

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

‘Here comes the sun’ moments in government

*Little darling, it’s been a long cold lonely winter
Little darling, it seems like years since it’s been here
Here comes the sun (doo doo doo doo)
Here comes the sun, and I say it’s all right*

By BRIAN HUNHOFF

George Harrison’s song of spring is a fitting start to my Sunshine Week salute to everyday heroes bringing light to local government.

“Why do you want to know that?” is a question most reporters have heard when asking for public documents. It generally becomes a Freedom of Information teaching moment from the journalist to the reluctant keeper of records.

Many years ago, I was covering a county commission meeting when a department head stood to speak. Before addressing commissioners, he turned to a radio reporter next to me and gruffly ordered him to turn off his tape recorder.

Say what?! We insisted my friend had every right to tape comments at a public meeting, but it took a while to convince the surly official. He clearly didn’t know the first thing about open meeting laws.

It goes with the territory. The press must sometimes teach Sunshine 101 to public officials on Main Street, U.S.A. This column recognizes some of those public servants and intrepid reporters with symbolic citations from my Sunshine Week playlist.

“Here comes the sun” award to Hilde Lysiak, a plucky 12-year-old reporter who made headlines on a visit to Patagonia, Arizona. Riding her bike to investigate a tip, Lysiak was stopped by Patagonia town marshal Joseph Patterson and asked for ID.

Lysiak gave her name and said she was a reporter. Patterson said, “I don’t want to hear about any of that freedom of the press stuff.” Lysiak said he also threatened to put her in juvenile detention.

In a second encounter, Lysiak began video-taping Patterson and said, “You stopped me earlier and said I could be thrown in juvie? What exactly am I doing that’s illegal?” Patterson warned her (inaccurately) against posting the video online. “If you put my face on the Internet, that’s against the law,” he said.

Lysiak posted a YouTube video of their exchange on her Orange Street News website. She later received an apology from Patagonia mayor Andrea Wood who said the town respects her First Amendment rights.

“House of the rising sun” award to Brenda Fisk, mayor of Paint Rock, Alabama (population 200). Mayor Fisk drafted a resolution to close town board meetings to non-residents and members of the press. She told the Jackson County Sentinel, “What goes on in Paint Rock is the business of the people who live in Paint Rock.” Fisk said she had “personal reasons” for proposing the move, “but I since found out that I cannot do that.”

“I can see clearly now” award to Kirby Delauter, a county councilman from Frederick, Maryland. Delauter once threatened to sue the Frederick News-Post for “unauthorized use of my name.” The newspaper responded with an editorial using his name 26 times. They also explained why newspapers in America are actually allowed to write about public officials without their permission. Delauter later apologized.

“Let the sunshine in” award to Jerry Toomey, former mayor of Mitchell, South Dakota. A citizen called Toomey “a drunk” during the public forum portion of a Mitchell City Council meeting. His accusation set off a heated exchange, and stemmed from an earlier altercation between the two men in the citizen’s driveway.

In an interview with the Mitchell Daily Republic, Toomey called the incident “a black eye” for the city, but added, “The public forum has a critical place in government and it is important to let people voice their issues, valid or not.”

Letter of concern regarding highways 74 and 243

Editor’s note: This letter is being sent to Rep. Dr. Raul Ruiz. Mountain Disaster Preparedness has organized a community meeting called “Storm Lessons Learned and Caltrans / CHP Highway Report.” The meeting will happen on Monday, March 18, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in the Idyllwild School Gymnasium.

CONGRESSMAN RAUL RUIZ, M.D.:

On behalf of the Idyllwild Association of Realtors®, local business owners, parents and residents of Idyllwild, we are writing to voice our concern regarding the road conditions and the timeframe for reopening Highway 74 from Hemet to Idyllwild, and Highway 243 from Banning to Idyllwild. Currently, the only access to Idyllwild is Highway 74 from the east going through Garner Valley.

Idyllwild is a small mountain town with tourism as our #1 source of revenue. We understand and appreciate that Caltrans is doing everything it can to get these vital arteries open as soon as possible, but our local economy does not have the luxury, or margins, to “hang on” for the months these two highways are projected to be out of service.

It is not just the real estate sector that is suffering, but also the local retail stores and restaurants that cannot sustain their current operations.

Local families and parents worry about their children who are now obligated to travel 1.5 hours each day just to get to school. In turn, county, state and local revenues — property tax, sales tax, T.O.T., etc. — are all going to suffer.

Without assistance, and with only one way into Idyllwild for the next several months, the town will be decimated to the point of extinction. It has already been a huge economic burden since the Valentine’s Day storm took out the two state highways a month ago. This burden only gets worse as each day passes.

We are asking that one lane be open with pilot vehicle escort as soon as possible on state highways 74 and/or 243. The survival of our little town depends on it.

Thank you for your consideration,

THE IDYLLWILD ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®

have spent and will continue spending on first fighting the fire and then reforesting the area?

What about the millions of our taxpayer dollars we have spent and will continue spending for the flooding, mud slides and road damages making commutes much longer because of the loss of vegetation caused by the fire?

What about the thousands of people who had to evacuate and spend their own dollars for lodging, food, gas, etc.? In addition to time lost for work?

Add all that to the destruction of the forest, death and loss of habitats for animals, etc.

Twelve years in prison — probably with time off for “good behavior,” which I assume would mean he didn’t set the prison on fire.

I am not a big fan of punishment, but McGlover is responsible for all of that. In this case, I believe life in prison would have been reasonable.

Objection to headline

EDITOR:

I appreciate the expanded coverage of the Quiet Skies Idyllwild public meeting on Saturday, March 2.

The text and photographs are excellent, however, we find the article’s title “Quiet Skies demands FAA cancel flight path over Idyllwild, shunt jets over Temecula” to be misleading and may spark reaction from Temecula residents. We certainly don’t want other towns in Riverside County to suffer from the burden of increased overflights, such as we have here in Idyllwild.

In fact, there is a line in the same article that captures our position more appropriately: “Perhaps the FAA can design a modified route just south of Temecula which would make the shift even more compelling for safety and noise pollution considerations.”

DAVID PEARSON, PhD
QUIET SKIES IDYLLWILD

Editor’s note: When asked about the flights over Temecula in an email, Pearson’s response was: “Yes, there would be an increase in overflights of Temecula. However, these would not number any more than they were already experiencing pre-March 2017. Also, Temecula does not experience the noise reverberation from overflights which plagues us here on the bowl-shaped western slopes of Mt. San Jacinto.”

McGlover deserved life

EDITOR:

I would like to add to the previous letters about Brandon McGlover, who received 12 years in prison for starting the Cranston Fire.

What about the millions of our taxpayer dollars we spokesman who sent the following email to the Barbourville Mountain Advocate: “From this point forward when KSP is working on an investigation, you are to wait until OUR press release is sent out before putting anything on social media, radio, and newspaper ... If this continues, you will be taken off our media distribution list.”

Jon Fleischaker, general counsel for the Kentucky Press Association, said the order violated the First Amendment and state agencies cannot withhold information “just because they don’t like what the media outlet is writing.”

“Walking on sunshine” award to Art Cullen, Pulitzer Prize-winning editor of the Storm Lake Times in Iowa. Cullen’s editorials about agricultural impact on his state’s poor water quality were not popular with some prominent Republicans. The GOP-controlled Iowa Senate stalled a resolution to recognize his national writing prize. Cullen responded, “I would not want the support of a den of philanderers and oafs.” He added, “I honestly do not care if I am ever honored by the Iowa Senate, the U.S. Congress, or any other institution of dysfunction and cynicism.”

Brian Hunhoff of the Yankton County Observer is a member of the South Dakota Newspaper Hall of Fame. He received the 2005 S.D. First Amendment Committee Eagle Award “for protecting the public’s right to know” and the 2014 Golden Quill award for editorial writing. He is a two-time winner of the National Newspaper Association Freedom of Information Award.

Focus on Members renewals

By JACK CLARK
CO-PUBLISHER AND GENERAL COUNSEL

This week we focus on renewing Memberships in the Town Crier. So far, 314 Charter Members have renewed their Memberships as they became due for renewal. To those of you who timely renewed, your ongoing support is fully appreciated — not just by the Town Crier staff, but by our entire Hill community, including those extended Members of our community who primarily reside off the Hill.

The Town Crier is the sole monitor of eight local governmental agencies on our Hill, and one of our primary duties is to attend their meetings and report on their regularities and irregularities — their accomplishments and their controversies — all for the benefit of the public.

As we’ve previously noted: A newspaper is a community watchdog that publishes the bad with the good. It warns of danger, advises of opportunity, challenges authority, praises accomplishment, investigates irregularity, marvels at art, exposes abuse, celebrates lives and publishes its readers’ letters. A publication is not a newspaper if it does not do all those things. Fortunately for all of us, the TC has readers who appreciate this and who support the paper to make sure that it remains strong for the benefit of all.

The Town Crier strives to keep us all informed of the effects of the weather on our Hill, which includes the damage that weather recently has done to private and public properties, as well as to the ingress highways that so affect the economy of our community. This TC issue reports on page 1 as to the most recent Caltrans officials’ estimates as to road rebuilding efforts and the time involved. We do not publish rumors or second-hand knowledge. “My friend talked with someone from the crew working on the roads, and he said ...” — does not cut it with a real newspaper.

Those of you who have renewed your Memberships have the sincere thanks of our whole community. If you missed renewing your Membership, it’s not too late to rejoin us. Sign up anew and receive the benefits of Membership, including the most important one: Knowing that you are doing your part to keep your newspaper doing its job for you.

Please join us Wednesdays at 8:30 a.m. at the Idyllwild Library for our public news meetings. That’s when we decide on the stories that will be covered in the following week’s issue. We very much want your participation.

How to get a letter published

The Town Crier welcomes letters reflecting all opinions. Letters should be concise and to the point. They should be no longer than 400 words. Letters must be typewritten, double-spaced and in upper/lower case (not in all caps). Letters must be identified with the author’s name, address and weekday phone number.

The Town Crier will not publish “thank-you” letters, consumer complaints, form letters, clippings from other publications or poetry. Political letters during election season cost 10 cents per word but are not accepted the week before an election.

We reserve the right to reject or edit letters for length, taste, clarity or frequency of submission. Only one letter per author within a 28-day period. Letters do not necessarily reflect the opinions of Town Crier staff. Letters may be submitted in person, by mail, by fax (659-2071) or by e-mail (becky@towncrier.com).

Deadline is 10 a.m. Monday.

WOMBANIA™

MANAGING EMOTIONS

By CALLIE WIGHT

Nothing in this article is meant to be medical advice. Please consult your own healthcare provider. Some info below taken from: www.behavioraltech.com

There's a skill used in cognitive-behavioral therapy called Opposite Action. It is very effective for managing troubling emotions and problematic ways we deal with them. As the name implies, the skill involves reversing both how the emotion feels and what problematic actions we habitually take to deal with the emotion (behavioral-expressive aspects). Problematic actions don't lead to a beneficial outcome. They often perpetuate or make worse the troubling emotion and interfere with our daily lives and relationships. Let it be stated, though, that we don't need or want to change all troubling emotions. For instance, grief over the loss of a loved one is painful but genuine and we honor this emotion as appropriate in our culture. The idea of OA is to change the behavioral-expressive aspects of a troubling emotion by acting in a way that is opposite to that emotion. We are not wasting our time trying to block the emotion, which usually is ineffective anyway, but are changing what actions we take. This can lead over time to reducing the strength of that emotion, making it easier to manage. For example, withdrawing from life when feeling sad or blue can cause the sadness to last longer. Constantly shouting at someone you are angry with but care about can push them away. How OA works, in five steps: 1. Name the emotion. We may want some help with this because it can be a bit tricky at times. 2. Name the problematic action connected to the emotion. For example: Fear: Avoid Anger: Attack/judgmental thoughts Sadness: Withdraw Shame: Hide 3. Decide do you want to reduce this emotion? If we don't really want to reduce the emotion, we won't have success with OA. Ask yourself, "Will reducing this emotion and changing my actions bring me closer to the life I want to live?" 4. What is the emotion's opposite action? Using the chart above, here are the OAs: Avoid (Fear): Approach; do what you are afraid of Attack/judgmental thoughts (Anger): Gently avoid; be kind/decent Withdraw (Sadness): Be active; approach. Go do other things that make you feel confident and competent. Hide (Shame): Approach; repeat this behavior over and over. 5. Go all in. This final step means genuinely, enthusiastically, repeatedly engaging in the OA. This isn't easy so don't scold yourself for finding it challenging. Do keep on keeping on, though, and eventually, you will see the results you want. As stated above, like any skill this requires practice. It will not work for you if you don't work it. Some last thoughts. OA works when the troubling emotion is not well-founded in real situations. Fear is justified when there's a real threat to life and limb; OA won't work here. Anger is an exception. Although anger may be justified, our habitual actions may make the situation worse, and then OA may be the right skill. Don't give up practicing OA, and OA won't give up on you. Callie Wight is a California state-licensed registered nurse with a Master of Arts in psychology.

(951) 659-2145 or Email: mandy@towncrier.com

Every day throughout the United States, newspapers publish thousands of public notices about events, conditions or actions that affect countless individuals, families, neighborhoods and businesses. Public notices cover many topics, including business matters, liquor licensing, public auctions and sales, estates, zoning, public meetings, bids to sell goods and services to the government, local government finances and state and local elections. Public notice is a fundamental component of our system of representative democracy, which depends upon the participation of educated, responsible citizens.

DETAILED SUMMARY OF THE MATTERS PLAINTIFF SEEKS TO VALIDATE:
Plaintiffs are the Garner Valley Property Owners' Association ("GVPOA"), an unincorporated association of property owners located in Garner Valley, and James Martens ("Martens") (collectively, "Plaintiffs"), an individual. Plaintiffs seek to invalidate the Lake Hemet Municipal Water District's ("District") adoption of Resolution No. 785 which, among other actions, increases water service rates in the Garner Valley service area. Resolution No. 785 and the rate increase seeks to recover $1,700,000 from Plaintiffs for a historical deficit in Garner Valley associated with previous advancement of funds. However, there is no explanation of the purpose of the purported $1,700,000 in advanced funds and there is no evidence that the funds were considered at the time to be an advancement and no evidence that the idea of cost recovery was contemplated. The District's rate increase materials also failed to present any plan or program describing how costs claimed to be misallocated going back to 2002 would be paid back.
The District improperly approved the rate increase by diluting the protesting power and rights of Garner Valley ratepayers. The Garner Valley service area is a self-contained and the costs of operating that system have no direct connection to or impact on the main Hemet/San Jacinto system. The District impermissibly merged the 242 Garner Valley ratepayers with more than 14,000 District ratepayers served through a completely separate distribution system with water from sources distinct from Garner Valley for purposes of calculating protests to the rate increase.
Through this reverse validation (or invalidation) action, Plaintiffs seek: a judicial determination that the District's adoption of Resolution No. 785, and the rate increases adopted therein, was invalid and improper and must be set aside; and a stay and/or temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction and/or permanent injunction restraining and enjoining the District from taking any actions in furtherance of or in purported reliance on Resolution No. 785.

for trimming and removal of trees. This master service agreement is expected to be finalized in first quarter 2019,” according to the press release.

With the help of licensed arborists, SCE will evaluate the threat of trees as potential risks to power lines. This may result in removing nearly 7,500 hazardous trees near lines this year. SCE will regularly inspect lines, looking for potential problems.

Besides replacing older equipment, and installing newer and safer equipment and removing potential vegetative threats, SCE also is strengthening its ability to forecast and identify problems remotely. It is installing hundreds of local weather stations and remote cameras, and using new threat algorithms.

Another major action, which local residents have already experienced, is the public safety power shut-off. SCE is revising and expanding its protocols for when it decides to “de-energize” (turn the power off) a portion of its grid.

The WMP describes dozens of actions and plans SCE will be implementing this year and next. According to the September “Grid Safety Program,” the costs will approach $600 million.

Estimated costs for both the GSRP and the WMP could be $230 million for capital investment and $220 million of added operational and maintenance expenses in just 2019.

Nationwide, influenza activity was elevated at the end of February, and the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention expects the high level of activity to continue beyond the first few weeks of March.

However, in its latest weekly report, the CDC stated, “Severity indicators continue to increase as expected but remain substantially lower than what was observed last season.”

In California, the state’s Department of Public Health reported, “Flu activity is increasing . . . several more weeks of influenza activity is expected.” Flu-like illness was widespread, as it was in 47 other states. The number of outpatient visits was moderate.

In California, the number of visits to physicians increased during week nine (which ended March 2) compared to week eight. However, it remains below-average nationwide. And compared to the same week in 2018, nationwide visits are lower in 2019.

Hospitalizations increased last week from the previous week.

In Riverside County, visits to physicians surged during week eight (12.4 percent) compared to the prior three weeks

Sending complaints on highways

Rep. Dr. Raul Ruiz and state Sen. Jeff Stone’s offices are taking email complaints about the highways conditions in the San Jacinto Mountains, and how they are affecting you.

Send emails to Ruiz at Hernan.Quintas@mail.house.gov and Stone at Darrell.Conner-ton@sen.ca.gov.

Flu activity in California higher than nationwide and are above the historical average for this date. But the percentage of visits continued to decline in weeks nine and 10. In week nine, they were almost 11 percent and as of Friday, March 9, they were 8.1 percent. However, this is above the historical data for this period.

Local school absenteeism increased to 9.7 percent from 7.4 percent.

Since Sept. 30, 2018, 307 Californians have died from influenza, of which 42 died last week.

CDC expects the flu activity to remain elevated for several weeks. Consequently, health officials still recommend getting a flu vaccine if one has not already gotten it. Even if flu is contracted, the vaccine will mitigate the symptoms.

This year, two different influenza viruses are prevalent. The A(H3) is becoming more common as the flu season progresses. But the A(H1N1) virus still predominates nationally. Both are circulating in California.

The CDC stresses, “The majority of influenza viruses characterized antigenically are similar to the cell-grown reference viruses representing the 2018–2019 Northern Hemisphere influenza vaccine viruses.”

In other words, the viruses now circulating are similar to the viral material that was used to prepare this year’s vaccines.

both SR 74 or 243 can take place. Reopening will be contingent upon delays due to weather or other unforeseen damages or circumstances. There are limited lane widths on SR 74, however in the event of an emergency that would require community evacuation, Caltrans, in coordination with the California Highway Patrol (CHP), Riverside County Sheriff and Emergency Management, will make arrangements for evacuation if it becomes necessary between Mountain Center and Valle Vista.”

Riverside County 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington toured the highway last week and said, “I learned a lot about highway construction and why the damage occurred. And also about the gap between realistic expectations and what the community expects them to do.” Washington also emphasized that Caltrans not only has to repair the damaged road, but must rebuild the support base in order to prevent future damage.

Besides repair, Caltrans engineers identified several locations where the hillside, or wall of the mountain, posed future danger for rockslides or collapse.

These photos depict the work being done to reduce this future risk by scaling the hillside to reduce its steepness.

The Mountain Disaster Preparedness group has invited Cal Trans spokespeople to Idyllwild Monday, March 18. Starting at 6 p.m., the community meeting will be at the Idyllwild School Gymnasium.

Topics will discuss the damages to highways 74 and 243, the future of repairs and when an opening might occur.

Report

and egress corridors.”

Apparently, the projects for which the Mountain Communities Fire Safe Council received funding, and are in a high fire risk designated area, were not rated high priority. This is an area that has experienced two major conflagrations within five years and a third about 12 years ago where the lives of five firefighters were lost.

“It is disappointing that Cal Fire didn’t include the Holy or Cranston fire areas, they are still fire prone,” said state Sen. Jeff Stone, who represents the Hill. He also expressed his concern about the limited access and egress from the Hill, especially during fire season.

The 35 projects were not the only recommendations contained in the report. The authors recommended deploying National Guard with Cal Fire to establish bases to work on fuels treatments. More housing for seasonal employees was the third priority.

The report also recommended suspending regulatory requirements for assessing fuels reduction projects and streamlining requirements for permits, licenses and contracts.

Stone, who served in August on the Legislature’s ad hoc committee that developed SB 901, feels the effort to lift and loosen the regulatory and legislative constraints to fuels reduction is valuable.

“Cal Fire does need bold legislation and leadership, which will not impede it from doing its job,” he said. Emphasizing this point, he repeated that his principal problem with SB 901 was the five-year window for expedited fuels maintenance. With so many dead trees throughout the state, Stone argued for a 10-year window.

Funding and staffing needs for Cal Fire also were listed as an immediate priority. Newsom requested almost another $100 million for Cal Fire in his current budget proposal. This would fund 13 new engines, air tankers, fire detection cameras, and staffing for CCC crews and equipment.

On March 6, the Legislative Analyst’s Office presented to the Legislature the following recommendation: “Cal Fire, in coordination with OES, to provide an assessment of existing state, mutual aid, and federal fire response capacity; gaps in capacity; and where additional resources would be most beneficial.”

Longer term, the report recommended that more state agencies sign memoranda of understandings to help create fuels reduction. Also, the report urged Cal Fire to find more options to encourage home owners to harden their homes with the Wildfire Urban Interface areas. The latter included a longer term goal of possibly strengthening codes for defensible space, including financial penalties.

Neither Cal Fire’s Sacramento Information Officer Scott McLean, nor Riverside County’s Fire Chief Shawn Newman responded to calls and emails to discuss the report. The original request was made Thursday, March 7.

Inspirational speaker and singer to perform at Town Hall

Named 2016 ‘Music Evangelist of the Year’

By MARSHALL SMITH
STAFF REPORTER

Johnny Rowlett is a gentleman country singer honored as “Music Evangelist of the Year” in 2016 and 2018 by the Inspirational County Music Association. He is a Nashville recording artist with four top-five singles. Two of his songs, “The Truth Is” and “Old Mustang,” hit number one on the PowerSource Nashville charts.

Rowlett also has been honored for Video of the Year and Male Vocalist of the Year by the ICMA.

After balancing a recording and performing career with weekend ministries, Johnny and wife Gale decided that wasn’t enough. Five years ago, they began their own full-time and “life-long” traveling ministry, taking their music and inspirational talks wherever they were needed — churches, high schools, prisons, retirement homes, and impromptu stops and mini-concerts along the highway.

“We went on the road full-time because we realized there are so many more people to be reached,” said Rowlett. “We sold our home in Monroe, Michigan, and moved our entire lives into the tight quarters of our motor home. Though living in a motor home doesn’t come without its difficulties, it’s allowed us the freedom to go where and when God opens doors.”

Johnny Rowlett, award-winning country singer and inspirational speaker, will appear with wife Gale at Town Hall on Friday, March 15 in a concert sponsored by the Idyllwild Assembly of God Church. Admission is free and donations are welcomed at the door. PHOTO COURTESY JOHNNY ROWLETT

They dedicated their mission to connecting people to God through song, speaking and prayer. Rowlett said he and Gale believe that Christianity is rooted in “true relationship, not religion.”

The central tenet that defines their career and ministry is giving. In addition to singing and speaking to audiences and assemblies, wherever they are, they carry with them “Gale’s Hope Bags,” giving them to any in need.

“Everywhere we went we saw those who were homeless,” said Gale. “Once in Montana on a cold night, we met a man lying on the ground outside of a Flying J truck stop. We went to multiple homeless shelters all over the country and learned how we could help. It seemed like every city we visited, God would show us people that just needed to be loved and ministered to.

“We began to save up extra soaps and shampoos from hotels we stayed in every night. We took the extra food that pastors put in our welcome baskets and we would give it to people on the street. That’s where it started.”

They fill and distribute Hope Bags everywhere they go. These 1-gallon bags contain basic necessities such as water, clean socks, granola bars, soaps and lotions. “It’s not what’s in them, but rather who’s giving them,” said Gale. “It’s our heart to have these bags be a point of contact that helps us build relationship with these people and it gives us an opportunity to pray for them and believe with them for supernatural healing and revelation of who Jesus is.”

According to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development’s annual Homeless Assessment Report, as of 2017 there were around 554,000 homeless people in the United States on a given night, or 0.17 percent of the population.

“It’s our passion to give and to help these people,” said Rowlett. Although Rowlett has been accorded many honors in the country music industry, he said he is most proud of being named Music Evangelist of the Year by the ICMA. “This recognition is reassurance that our life’s mission is working and changing lives,” he said.

The Town Hall Friday concert at 7 p.m., sponsored by the Idyllwild Assembly of God, is a donation event. For more information, call 951-581-0012.

Kids invited to ‘Pi Painting’

Idyllwild Library presents free another STEAM event — “Pi Painting” — from 1:30 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, March 13.

All kids are welcome. In honor of Pi Day (3.14), kids do some “Pi” painting. They will get to graph the number Pi (3.141592653589793238....) and then paint it as they wish to create a graphic “skyline” of Pi. They also will learn some things about the number Pi.

Seeking actors and musicians

The Idyllwild Community Playback Theatre by Sarvi Aseidu is now recruiting actors and musicians.

Aseidu is seeking an unprofessional, irreverent, uninhibited group of locals who want to riff off of their own stories and the stories of the audience. Laughter, enlightenment and willingness to be silly are requirements. Subject matter will vary.

All are welcome to the free event from 4 to 6 p.m. the Wednesday, March 13 at the Idyllwild Library.

Imagery of Words event Saturday

The Art Alliance of Idyllwild, in association with Idyllwild Storytellers, is sponsoring The Imagery of Words from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. Saturday, March 16, at Town Hall. The free event involves a community potluck with a no host bar. The event pairs poets, visual artists and musicians for an evening of inspired artistry.

Over the course of the last eight weeks, more than 35 poets and songwriters submitted a total of 82 original poems and songs to AAI visual artists. Twenty-five artists stepped up to the challenge choosing 27 poems and songs, each of which inspired a piece of art that will be available to collectors as companion works in a silent auction. All proceeds will endow arts education in Idyllwild.

Also, Cole Withers, Jeff Hixon and Terry Jo Stratton will perform original acoustic songs and Carlos Reynosa will provide inspired mood music throughout the evening. There also will be two live paint pieces created during the course of the event by Neil Jenkins and Rob Padilla.

The finale of the Idyllwild Arts Music Theatre Cabaret presentation on Saturday, March 9, featured all of the performers dancing and singing "We'll Always Be Together," a treat for those packing Rush Hall on the campus. Leading up to this number, individuals and small groups of the talented students presented a variety of numbers that produced a wonderful evening of entertainment.

Washington rescheduled

Riverside County 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington will be in Idyllwild to meet with constituents in scheduled 15-minute meetings from 2 to 4 p.m. Thursday, March 21, at the Idyllwild Library. To schedule a meeting with Washington, call his office at 951-955-1030. The other meetings this year will be May 17, Aug. 23 and Nov. 1.

Intro to Primordial Sound Meditation

An Introduction to Primordial Sound Meditation by Leda Csanka, certified Chopra instructor, happens from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday, March 25, at the Idyllwild Library. The meditation uses individually selected sounds of nature called mantras to disconnect us from the activity of life. Used on a daily basis, it may help you manage stress, enhance sleep, improve relationships and connect more deeply to spirit. The free class is open to adults.

CREATURE CORNER

BY JANICE MURASKO

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," ARF cats imagined life in a forever home. Thomas: Who's gonna be the office cat? Mr. Gray: What do you mean? Paddy has kind of filled the position since he got here. Thomas: But he got adopted on Sunday! George: I knew it! I knew he would. Good for him. Bear: And how is Tommy the dog doing in his trial adoption? Thomas: I've heard it's pretty much a done deal. He is doing very well. Zeus: So, no dogs now?

affectionate. Mr. Gray: She has one ear up, the other down! How cute is that? Sadie: She also is very, very good with dogs of all sizes. George: So what kind of family will she be good with,

Sadie: Well, I heard that there is one, although she won't be ready for adoption for about a month. Her name is Nala. Heavenly Whiskers: I know that she had surgery on Monday to reset a broken rear leg. Sadie: That's true. Nala was found on Highway 74. No one claimed her. It's very sad, although she is with a very good foster, one who will care for her while she recuperates. George: What kind of dog is she? What's her story? Sadie: She is a German shepherd, about 7 years old. I've heard she is very mellow and once she is 100 percent? Sadie: She will be good with just about any family as she is so easy-going. If her foster didn't already have her dogs, she would love to keep her. Thankfully, she has agreed to nurse her back to health after this surgery. George: Do you think she was abandoned? Hit by a car? Sadie: We don't know, George, and right now, I guess that doesn't matter. She is in good hands with ARF. Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of Our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Hwy. 243 on Saturdays 10-4 and Sundays 10-2, or by appointment M-F by calling 951-659-1122. Creature Corner is sponsored by Carole Herman & Sandi Mathers.

CONTEST JUDGE

OK, two entries to last week's vertical letters puzzle photo. The were the three vertical letters ("LAA") from the sign: IDYLLWILD/VACATION/CABINS on North Circle Drive near Cedar Street. Rochelle Ainsworth and Laurie Cole had correct entries, and Rochelle's name came out of the hat. So, Rochelle, please come to the Town Crier office to pick up your prize — preferably after Wednesday this week. Thanks! The Red Kettle restaurant and Higher Grounds Coffee House sponsor this column by providing prizes in the form of gift certificates to their fine establishments. So, please stop in and give tell 'em thanks, OK? This week's photo is of some rock work framed in rustic logs. Should be a few entries this week, I believe. One entry per household. Contest deadline: Monday noon. Not a race — correct entries go into a hat for a drawing. Full contest rules and guidelines available at the Town Crier office. Email entries to jack@towncrier.com.

MUSIC REVIEWER

The drama involved in both pieces was similar; the action of the father and son riding through the wind and rain, as well as the description of a Swiss mountain storm (as can only occur in Switzerland) was complemented in her energetic fingered responses to the required action; such action as would have been exhausting to many a performer, but with the appropriate instinct of both timing and force, such mechanisms were brought to the fore to evince the necessary timed effect, as well as to avoid a total collapse at the end. And in conclusion, Ms. Oltmanns returned to the Debussy Preludes as an encore presentation as a summation of the proceedings (with "Le vent de la plaine" (The Wind on the Plain), Book I, #3), in effect an illustration of the benefits of air and earth (as a contrast to our Hill's pre-occupations with fire and water), and as a promise of better and more beneficial effects of natural elemental mixtures.

HOROSCOPES
March 2019 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
You'll want to discourage well-meaning but potentially ill-advised interference in what you intend to accomplish. Your work has a better chance to succeed if it reflects you.

April 20 – May 20
The Bovine's well-deserved reputation for loyalty could be tested if you learn that it might be misplaced. But don't rely on rumors. Check the stories out before you decided to act.

May 21 – June 21
You've been going on adrenaline for a long time, and this unexpected lull in a recent spate of excitement could be just what you need to restore your energy levels. Enjoy it.

June 22 – July 22
Friends can be counted on to help you deal with a perplexing personal situation. But remember to keep your circle of advisers limited only to those you're sure you can trust.

July 23 – August 22
Security-loving Lions do not appreciate uncertainty in any form. But sometimes changing situations can reveal hidden stresses in time to repair a relationship before it's too late.

August 23 – September 22
This is a good time for single Virgos to make a love connection. Be careful not to be too judgmental about your new "prospect" -- at least until you know more about her or him.

September 23 – October 22
Your sense of justice helps you resolve a problem that might have been unfairly attributed to the wrong person. Spend the weekend doing some long-neglected chores.

October 23 – November 21
You might feel justified in your anger toward someone you suspect betrayed your trust. But it could help if you take the time to check if your suspicions have substance.

November 22 – December 21
Ignore distractions if you hope to accomplish your goal by the deadline you agreed to. Keep the finish line in sight, and you should be able to cross it with time to spare.

December 22 – January 19
Your creative self continues to dominate through much of the week. Also, despite a few problems that have cropped up, that recent romantic connection seems to be thriving.

January 20 – February 18
As curious as you might be, it's best to avoid trying to learn a colleague's secret. That sort of knowledge could drag you into a difficult workplace situation at some point down the line.

February 19 – March 20
Instead of spending too much time floundering around wondering if you can meet your deadline, you need to spend more time actually working toward reaching it.

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

'Our Amazing Deserts' at library

The Friends of the Idyllwild Library presents "Our Amazing Deserts: The Diversity of Life" with Sharen Metz, an associate of the Friends of the Desert Mountains, from 3 to 5 p.m. Monday, March 18, at the library.

The desert is one of the most biologically diverse places in the world. It is home to plants and animals that are found only in the Coachella Valley, and no place else on Earth. And yet, what accounts for this amazing diversity? The presentation will answer that question, and also discuss the mission of the Friends of the Desert Mountains.

'The Other Einstein' at library
Rescheduled from February due to weather, the Fire-side Book Group will be reading "The Other Einstein" by Marie Benedict.
"In a time when most twenty-year-old women were wives, or trying to be, Mileva Maric was studying physics at an elite university in Zurich," according to Fantastic Fiction.
"Her rise from the relative backwater of misogynistic Serbia to all-male university classrooms in Switzerland was nothing short of meteoric ... Then, fellow student Albert Einstein took an interest in her and the world turned sideways. Their life together was a partnership of heart and mind. But could there be room for more than one genius in a marriage?"
The group meets from 2 to 3 p.m. Wednesday, March 20, at the Idyllwild Library. The group is open to all.

'The Pursuit of Happiness'
Marsha Kennedy will present the another of a 10-week course, "Pursuit of Happiness," beginning from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 19, at the Idyllwild Library.
The free course explores what matters for a happy and meaningful life. It is a worldwide program based on an online study guide and supported by the Dalai Lama. Each session covers a different theme.]

Fern Valley Water meeting in March
The Fern Valley Water District canceled its scheduled Feb. 15 meeting due to the rains and road conditions. The next scheduled meeting will be 9 a.m. Friday, March 15.
