Two major earthquakes rattle California

Tremors and shaking felt as far south as Idyllwild

BY JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

After a year in which two natural disasters — fire and floods — have threatened the hill and disrupted living patterns, the Fourth of July and the evening of July 5 raised concerns of a third disaster, earthquakes.

While Idyllwild only experienced the tremors from two distance quakes to the north, Ridgecrest — near the Mojave Desert and just east of the Sequoia National Forest — experienced two earthquakes greater than 6.4 in magnitude. Both were felt as far south as San Diego.

The first occurred about 10:30 a.m. on July 4 during Idyllwild's Fourth of July Parade. Most parade spectators only detected it after reading news bulletins on their cell phones.

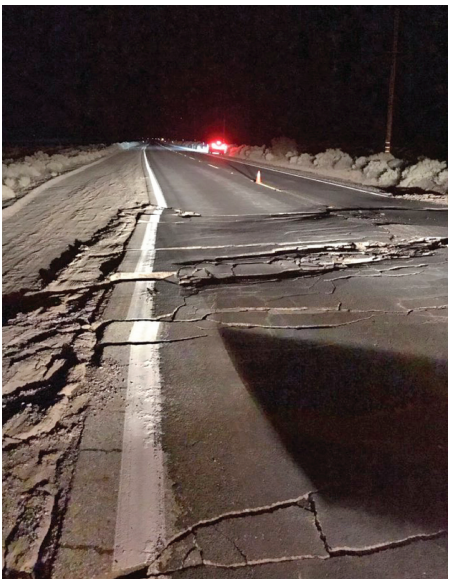

However, the second quake was at about 8:20 p.m. on Friday, July 5 and many local residents felt their floors quivers, the walls stretch and heard the vibration. No local damage or injuries occurred.

The second quake was measured at 7.1 magnitude. The damage around Ridgecrest was reported as much greater than Thursday's quake.

On Saturday, U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) Seismologist Dr. Lucy Jones wrote on Twitter that there was a 10% chance that Searles Valley, the actual site of the two quakes, would experience another earthquake greater than 7.0.

But she calmly added, "That is a nine in 10 chance that tonight's magnitude 7.1 was the largest."

Looking into the future Jones wrote, "Like any quake, today's magnitude 7.1 has a one in 20 of being followed by California State Route 178, southwest of Trona, following the 7.1 magnitude earthquake Friday, July 5. The road is now closed for repairs.

something even bigger. Smaller quakes — magnitude 5s are likely and a magnitude 6 is quite possible."

After Friday's 7.1 magnitude quake, three quakes greater than 5.0 magnitude occurred in the Ridgecrest Little Lake area in a 16-hour period. Twelve greater than 4.5 magnitude shook the area and another 22 between 4.0 and 4.5 magnitudes were recorded.

A total of more than 270 quakes occurred in Southern California during that period. In total, thousands of quakes in magnitude from less than one to over five have occurred since the first 6.4 magnitude quake on Thursday.

"The number of aftershocks goes down with time, but not the magnitudes! The ratio of large to small quakes is constant," Jones wrote on Twitter.

Life Tribute
Ben Killingsworth
1929-2019

A gentleman has joined the moon and stars.

Handsome, hilarious, deeply humane, and brilliant, Ben Killingsworth passed away in his Idyllwild Home on June 7 with his wife Nanci and his beloved animals at his side.

Ben was born June 25, 1929 in San Diego to Benjamin and Lois Killingsworth.

Job and housing shortages found the little family, now including sister Kay and brother Ronnie, hopscotching across California to join grandparents in Oregon. Theirs was a tiny farm perched on the edge of the Smith River where transportation into town was a rowboat. At night, kerosene lamps were lit and the bathing trough was heated by the woodstove. Hunting wild game was a necessity and little "Bennie" tagged along for the adventures with the menfolk.

Facing a wartime housing shortage in Indio, where Ben's dad was now an officer with the CHP, the family joined an aunt and uncle on their hog farm in Perris. Ben and his siblings attended a one-room schoolhouse. Once they settled in Indio, Ben thrived in wide-open country life, tending to an assortment of dogs, homing pigeons and chickens.

During Ben's teen years, the family resided in Riverside and his grandpa built a cabin on Pinecrest in Idyllwild. Visits up the mountain were in his "hopped-up" hot rod navigating the early perilous roads with some very frightened family members.

Ben served in the US Navy from 1948 until 1952. He was assigned to the USS Essex as a combat air crewman during the Korean conflict. During an early mission headed to North Korea, the plane malfunctioned and Ben and the crew had to eject into the Sea of Japan.

Ben followed his father's career path and entered the CHP Academy in 1954. Upon graduation, he was assigned to the Compton area as a state traffic officer and then transferred to the Riverside area. He subsequently served in San Bernardino, CHP headquarters, San Diego and Fresno in various ranks and assignments. In January 1978, he was appointed Border Division Chief where he served for 10 years prior to his retirement in December 1988.

In 2002, Ben and Nanci moved to Idyllwild and both became very active in the community. Ben was a founding member of Idyllwild Community Recreation Council, president of the Idyllwild Chamber of Commerce, vice president of Mountain Disaster Preparedness, newsletter editor for Idyllwild Area Historical Society, Rotary bulletin editor, Idyllwild Fire Protection District fire commissioner and treasurer of the Help Center board.

The Town Crier offered Ben the chance to write a weekly column and he jumped at the chance to share his keen observations of small town life, and in general, how we all manage to make our way in the world. The collection of those columns resulted in his 2011 book "Waiting for My Wife."

With the dogs in tow, Ben & Nanci traveled extensively in Audrey the Trailer surviving blown tires, too many wrong turns, ripped off roof vents and crashes into fences and trees which all added to their joy of the open road.

Ben was a treasure of a man with boundless humor, wry wisdom and unsurpassed compassion. He will be missed forever.

His survivors include his wife Nanci, his son Craig and daughter-in-law Kelly, sister and brother-in-law Kay and Jerry Clemons, brother-in-law David McElfresh and wife Tina, sister-in-law Jeanne Christolm and brother-in-law Steve McElfresh, and their precious sons, nephew Michael and Ben's much loved animals and countless friends. His brother Ron, daughter Julie and nephew Mark predeceased Ben.

A private gathering for friends and family was held at Ben and Nanci's home on June 25 to celebrate what would have been his 90th birthday.

Audit faults agency implementation of environmental law

JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

The California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) has failed to meet its responsibilities under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA). This is the overall finding from the State Auditor's report released June 27.

The audit found fault with how the department reviews CEQA documents, including environmental impact reports. The report stated that the CDFW was not accurately accounting for the use of environmental filing fees.

During 2018, CDFW responded to about 20% of the requests for consultation from lead agencies. The department responded that it did not have sufficient staff resources to respond to all CEQA documents.

However, CDFW has no policies or procedures for setting priorities to determine which requests will be answered, according to the audit report. Further, late responses or no responses result in more time needed during later steps such as permit review applications.

The auditor recommended that CDFW develop and implement a policy for determining how it will review and provide comments on CEQA documents by March 2020.

CEQA, which was enacted in 1970, "requires state agencies to give major consideration to preventing environmental damage when regulating activities under their jurisdiction. Both public and private development projects — such as community centers and apartment building — are generally subject to CEQA.

Complying with CEQA allows state and local government agencies to inform decision makers and the public about the potential environmental impacts of proposed projects and to reduce those environmental impacts to the extent feasible.

When the CDFW does not reply, the lead agencies may not be aware of an environmental issue that should be included in their CEQA documentation. This issue may then become controversial during a later stage, such as a permit approval.

If aware of the issue, the research and studies might be completed sooner.

The report authors found that CDFW was not only derelict responding to preliminary stage requests, but its response to draft documents has "dropped significantly over the past five years."

CDFW's response to the audit finding agreed with the audit acknowledging that it does not have sufficient staff to respond to all requests. Consequently, CDFW is balancing the need for staff with the establishment of

WITH DIAZ HERNANDEZ

I fell into local journalism. I am the accidental journalist. Why? I was filling a void at local city council meetings. No one was digging into what was really going on with companies doing business with the city or who was being appointed to various committees and commissions.

Only surface information was being reported and that was a problem. The more I investigated, the more I found.

One of my best stories came from a citizen commenting about how votes at a meeting were not tallied properly. The final vote count was more than what was possible.

Sounds simple, right? Let me tell you, that comment led to a very complex story.

I didn't go into this business to win a popularity contest — trust me!

I believe that it is the job of journalists to be the fourth (and unofficial) check and balance of the government. Journalists are here to call out the government when they overstep. We are here to serve the people so that you can make the best decisions possible before, during and after elections.

There are eight government-run agencies on our mountain. Eight! And four of the eight agencies are water districts. Water is big topic, not only because of safety, but also price increases and how the funds are being spent.

The people elected to office need to respect the people who pay the bills — the taxpayers.

I was fortunate to meet quite a few of you at last week's meeting. The topics of conversation were intriguing and established many questions that need to be answered.

I hope the group that attended continues to attend and that many more of you join the Wednesday morning meetings.

Please continue to make your voices heard!

The Town Crier focuses advertising on readers committed to our hill

JACK CLARK
CO-PUBLISHER & GENERAL COUNSEL

When you advertise in an off-hill daily newspaper, you pay for delivery to many 10s of thousands of people who have no interest in visiting our hill. That's costly and inefficient.

But when you advertise in the Town Crier, you reach folks who already are big fans of our hill community. That's called focused advertising. More than 700-plus readers are so committed to our community they have Town Crier supporting Memberships, and most of those Memberships have two or more household members who read the Town Crier each week. Many hundreds more pick up the Town Crier from our hill's stores. That's thousands of eyes on your ads.

What they all have in common is their focus on our hill. So, focus your ads on them by advertising in the Town Crier.

Another thing to consider is that daily newspapers get thrown out the next day when a new issue arrives. But people keep and read their Town Crier until a new issue comes out a week later. That's a whole week of advertising for each one of your Town Crier ads.

And, of course, you know that your advertising helps the Town Crier serve our hill communities by keeping folks apprised of everything important to our hill. That's a win-win for all of us.

Please participate in our weekly news meetings. The meetings are open to the public and start at 8:30 a.m. on Wednesday mornings at the Idyllwild Library, 54401 Village Center Dr., Idyllwild. Have your voice heard — and meet the Town Crier's new editor, Melissa Diaz Hernandez.

How to get a letter published

Letters must be typewritten, double-spaced and in upper/lower case (not in all caps). Letters must be identified with the author's name, address and weekday phone number.

The Town Crier will not publish "thank-you" letters, consumer complaints, form letters, clippings from other publications or poetry. Political letters during election season cost 10 cents per word but are not accepted the week before an election.

We reserve the right to reject or edit letters for length, taste, clarity or frequency of submission. Only one letter per author within a 28-day period. Letters do not necessarily reflect the opinions of Town Crier staff. Letters may be submitted in person, by mail, by fax (659-2071) or by e-mail (melissa@towncrier.com).

Idyllwild Nature Center
honors Hampsons

By SALLY HEDBERG
CONTRIBUTOR

On the morning of July 3, Susie and Richard Hampson were recognized for their years of volunteering at the Idyllwild Nature Center. The recognition occurred during the unveiling of "The Birds of Idyllwild Nature Center" interpretive panel.

This panel, sponsored by the Friends of Mt. San Jacinto County Parks and designed by Janet McAlpine, is dedicated to the Hampsons. Park Ranger Steve Perez presented the couple with a plaque for their dedication to the Nature Center and their love of birds. The interpretive panel is installed on the birding deck at the center.

The Hampsons moved to the hill from Orange City in 2001, after years of camping and hiking trips to Idyllwild. Like so many, they fell in love with the beauty and small community feeling. They had always like birds, but didn't pay much attention to them until they became infatuated with identifying the birds of Idyllwild.

They both admit it takes lots of practice to spot the birds. Susie whipped out her s "Sibley Guide to Birds," where she keeps records of their sightings' — 353 birds to date. The key is, "A good pair of binoculars and taking the time to stroll and look around your surroundings," explained Susie.

The Hampsons have been volunteering since their arrival 18 years ago. Their duties at the Nature Center consist of almost anything and everything that needs to be done.

Richard prides himself on keeping the windows, doors or anything to do with glass clean.

Susie works with school groups, and leads birding hikes.

involved in the Nature Center events, and just recently, started collecting wild flowers for the Wildflower show and doing children's crafts at the Lemon Lily Restoration Day.

This couple also volunteers at the Idyllwild Library and are very involved with the Idyllwild Bible Church.

The Hampsons believe there are tremendous benefits to volunteering. They stated they are able to experience, "The joy one gets from sharing the knowledge and appreciation of God's creation with people you meet."

The Idyllwild Nature Center is located at 25225 Highway 243, Idyllwild, and is open from 9 a.m.- 4 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday. Nature Center is closed Mondays, Tuesdays and all major holidays.

An update on the politics of healthcare

With all the hullabaloo about healthcare from politicians recently, I thought it was time to dust off my typewriter. I claim some knowledge and experience in this area, having practiced medicine for 40 years. I am also board-certified in two medical specialties and have two master's degrees.

None of that implies that my beliefs are correct, but it might mean that I can write intelligently about the topic with the intent to provoke thought and further research on the part of the reader. If healthcare is important to you, please don't believe everything you hear or read. Do your homework!

As much as I would like to make this a nonpartisan discussion, it should be obvious that is not possible. The Republican party has been pretty much against any government participation in healthcare since before Ronald Reagan spoke about the loss of freedom Americans would experience if Medicare were implemented.

When Medicare turned out to be popular, it became difficult to argue that it should be repealed. Nevertheless, that still seems to be a common, if unexpressed, sentiment among present-day Republicans.

For now, suffice it to say that the Republican party has no place in a discussion about "fixing" healthcare in our country. They have proposed nothing of substance. Perhaps that will change in the near future, but as of now, if you believe that healthcare reform is needed, the Republican party isn't going to be the one to do it. Therefore, this discussion will involve topics that will occupy the Democratic debates and platform.

Why do we even need healthcare reform? Two simple reasons: to control costs that are spiraling out of control and to provide healthcare to those who do not have access. The latter reason is pretty much unique to the United States because every other country has managed to provide healthcare to all of its citizens. Cost control is a problem; however, that all countries face. None has been totally successful, but most have equal or better healthcare at about half the cost.

Please do not fall prey to all the specious arguments about long waiting times, etc. that are starting to pop up in ads about how awful care is in other countries that have universal coverage. People in Canada, for example, give their healthcare higher marks than we do in this country.

Is it perfect? No! Is it better than here? Well, it does cover everyone, and it costs much less, so it has some things going for it. Likewise, silly slogans like "Socialized Medicine" rely on lies to distort and oversimplify the problem. Socialism means government control of the means of production. No one has proposed that our government own all the hospitals and employ all the doctors and other healthcare workers.

Don't be fooled. The problems are complex and solutions will not be simple, but some of the reasoning may be straightforward.

With this as an introduction, I will try to map a rational path to healthcare reform over the next few weeks. As always, I will be happy to debate this topic in any public forum and I will respond to questions or disagreements as space allows. Just to be clear: the views expressed in my columns are mine alone and not those of the publishers of the Town Crier.

HEALTH BENEFITS OF STRETCHING

By CALLIE WIGHT

Nothing in this article is meant to be medical advice. Please consult your healthcare provider. Some information for this article was taken from: <https://www.health.harvard.edu/staying-healthy/the-importance-of-stretching> and http://web.mit.edu/tkd/stretch/stretching_4.html

Last month, we promised more information on stretching, so here we go... Harvard Medical School tells us in its September 2013 Harvard Health Letter “The importance of stretching” (The link is at the end of the article.), “Stretching keeps the muscles flexible, strong, and healthy, and we need that flexibility to maintain a range of motion in the joints.”

Without it, the muscles shorten and become tight. Then, when you call on the muscles for activity, they are weak and unable to extend all the way. That puts you at risk for joint pain, strains, and muscle damage.

Regular stretching keeps muscles long, lean, and flexible, and this means that exertion “won’t put too much force on the muscle itself,” says Nolan. “Healthy muscles also help a person with balance problems to avoid falls.”

Stretching is something one benefits the best from if it is practiced daily.

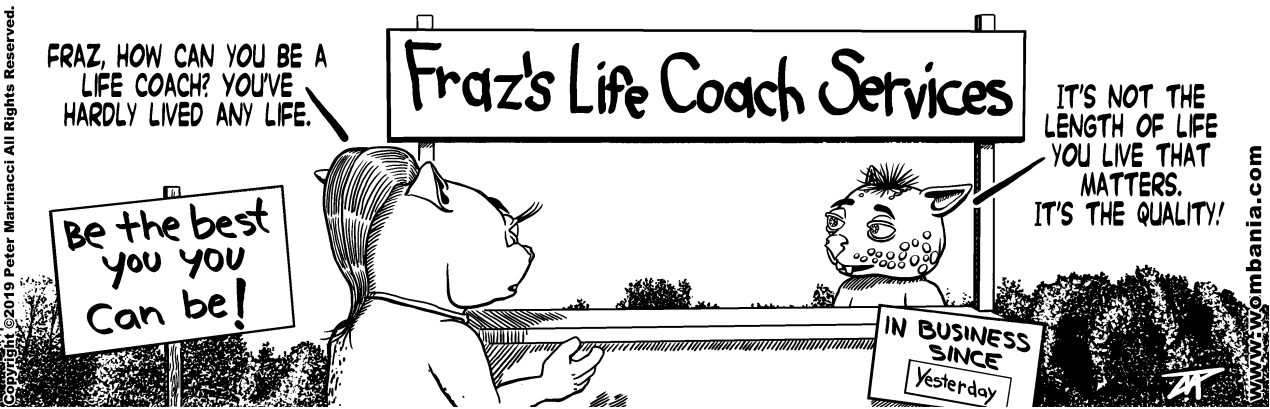

But as we noted in last month’s “A healthy Idyllwild” article, not all stretching is equal. There are types of stretching used by kinesiologists and physical therapists for different types of training or rehabilitation.

There are also types of stretching to enhance athletic performance. There are types of stretching for general fitness, including yoga and Tai Chi or Qigong. There are also types of stretching for the art of dance.

We might say that safe, effective stretching has a common link in that all of these varied types of stretching are adroitly managing the muscle stretch reflex. The importance of managing the stretch reflex repeatedly pops up as a central theme in health and fitness literature discussing the most effective forms of stretching.

What is the stretch reflex and why should we be aware of it?

Quail team looks for citizen scientists

By DR. JENNIFER GEE
DIRECTOR, UC RIVERSIDE JAMES RESERVE

Allison Roth, a postdoctoral researcher in Professor Nick Keiser’s lab at the University of Florida, will be launching a project with Dr. Jennifer Gee, the resident director of The James Reserve, on California quail. Roth comes to us fresh from the University of Oxford where she studied how animal personalities affect reproductive performance in two species of birds, the great tit and the red junglefowl. We are thrilled that Roth will be spending much of 2019 and 2020 in Idyllwild and at the James Reserve, as she explores the environmental factors that shape social interactions among individual California quail.

As with extroverted and introverted people, animals seem to differ in the degree to which they are social. Roth is interested in understanding why some individual quail are very social (extroverted) while others are less social (introverted).

She notes that these social strategies often remain consistent over an individual’s lifetime — even when the strategy may seem detrimental to the individual.

For instance, an individual who is extroverted may have contact with lots of other individuals and be at a disadvantage when a contagious disease breaks out.

Nevertheless, when disease hits, this individual often does not change its extroverted tendencies of socializing.

Roth equates this phenomenon in wild animals to a school child who has a lot of friends being more likely to come home sick with the flu than a child who spends more time by themselves. In contrast, when disease levels are low, extroverted quail may be at an advantage, compared to introverted individuals, because they may be more likely to acquire information about food or predators from other birds, which would increase their chances of survival.

California quail (pictured) are a charismatic backyard

The stretch reflex is our bodies natural response to protect muscles from injury. So, it’s a good thing. Nevertheless, over-stimulating this protective reflex may cause loss in the range of motion (ROM) in our muscles.

An example of stretching that may well over-stimulate this reflex is ballistic stretching. On the other hand, as noted above, not stretching will also likely result in loss of ROM. Either way, loss of ROM and shortened, inflexible muscles are what we do not want.

If possible, do consider consulting an expert in body mechanics such as a physical therapist or kinesiologist before starting a stretching regimen if you have not already established a daily routine.

This gives you the chance to start with a strategy that takes into consideration where you are now regarding flexibility and that guides you into a practice that allows you to slowly recondition muscle tissue while avoiding any injury.

“Gradually, you can train your stretch receptors (the stretch reflex) to allow greater lengthening of the muscles,” states a MIT website.

Please don’t forget that it is not a good idea to stretch before warming up. Five to ten minutes of light activity is an adequate warm-up.

bird with a charming call and an unpredictable gait and flight, which helps them evade predators. During the nonbreeding season (winter), these birds forage, roost and travel in groups called coveys. Roth will be comparing the social interactions of California quail in Idyllwild with the social interactions of this species at other southern California localities, including Anza-Borrego and Royal Carriazo (just below Pinyon Crest).

She predicts that extroverted individuals living in localities with high disease abundance (specifically avian malaria) will be more likely to die or will have lower reproductive success than introverted individuals. Furthermore, she predicts that if extroverted individuals are more likely to die or produce fewer offspring in environments with higher disease risk, then this should result in a higher prevalence of introverted individuals at these locations. She predicts that this will feed back onto the overall social structure seen in quail coveys — coveys in high-disease environments being less tightly knit than coveys in low disease environments.

The quail team involved in this work is looking for citizen scientists who might be interested in helping out with this project. If you have lots of quail around your property, we would appreciate if you would let us use your property as a field site. Please contact Allison Roth (amr2264@columbia.edu) or Jennifer Gee (jengeeucr.edu) if you would like to get involved in this new and exciting project.

Steele T54 at Wells Fargo

By JACK CLARK
PRO GOLF CORRESPONDENT

Brendan Steele fired a 9-under-par 66-68-73-68 — 275 at the 3M Open in Blaine, Minnesota, last week for a share of 53rd place. The native Idyllwilders’ drives averaged 307.8 yards while finding 76.79% percent of the fairways, and he hit an excellent 84.72% percent of the greens in regulation. Putting hurt, though, as he averaged giving away 1.564 strokes to the field each day with the putter. Had he been just even with the field in putting, he likely would have finished in the top 20.

Brendan currently is ranked 158th on the FedExCup points list and is 208th in the Official World Golf Ranking. This season, a rough one for him, he’ll not qualify for The Open Championship in Northern Ireland. So his next tournament is expected to be July 25 on the Montreaux Golf & Country Club course in Reno: the Barracuda Championship, which is played in Modified Stableford format, which B likes.

Under Modified Stableford format, a par is worth zero points, while a birdie is worth +2 and a bogey is -1. This system encourages aggressive play, since the reward for a birdie is larger than the penalty for a bogey. Similarly, an eagle counts +5 and a double eagle (aka albatross) counts +8, while a double bogey or even worse counts only -3. Of course, in Modified Stableford, the highest score wins.

Caltrans workers' kids in new video

Caltrans, along with the California State Transportation Agency, California Highway Patrol, and the California Office of Traffic Safety, unveiled the new “Be Work Zone Alert” public awareness campaign to remind drivers to slow down when passing highway workers.

But the real stars of this campaign are two dozen children and grandchildren of current Caltrans workers. Through the highway safety campaign, they speak directly to the driving public asking for help to keep their loved ones safe and alive on the job.

In the newest Caltrans News Flash, go behind the scenes of the film shoot and hear directly from these kids at www.dot.ca.gov/paffairs/newsflash/.

of Idyllwild to bring it down. According to Mike Zambra of Pino, the base of the tree measured approximately 51 inches in diameter. A 47-inch chain saw was used on the tree stump to lower it to Edison's requirement.

The tree was taken down from the top in five segments. The man hoisted by crane and lowered to the treetop to do the high-level chain sawing was Zach Baker, 22, the son of the late Bobby Baker, of Idyllwild timber-cutting fame. This was not Baker's first tree topping. He brought down several on lower Pine Crest Avenue, as well.

Two crashes on Hill roads over last week

There were two vehicle crashes on hill roads over the last week, California Highway Patrol Public Information Officer Darren Meyer reports.

At 7:15 a.m. on Tuesday, July 2, Margaret Moore, 68, from Cathedral City, was driving a silver 2012 Lexus eastbound on Highway 74 with black 2016 Dodge Challenger approaching from behind. The driver of the Challenger, 36-year-old Kendall Goco from Temecula, went to pass Moore over the broken yellow line at the same time Moore was making a left-hand turn onto Pine Crest Trail.

The vehicles collided. Neither party was injured, but both vehicles were towed to Idyllwild Garage.

At 2:45 p.m. on Sunday, July 7, Regina Rau, 37 of Idyllwild, was parked in front of Mountain Top Liquor on the eastbound side of Highway 243 in a silver 2005 Honda Accord. Mountain Center resident Kimberlie Reyes, 30, was parked on the other side of Highway 243 (westbound) in front of Idyllwild Village Market. The drivers of both vehicles backed into each other.

Neither vehicle was towed, as the collision only resulted in minor injuries to both vehicles. No one was injured.

Safety on the trail

Hiking season is in full swing! Here are some safety tips from the San Bernardino National Forest-San Jacinto Ranger Station to help keep you and your loved ones safe while hiking.

1. Contact your local ranger station for permits, maps and weather.
2. Plan ahead. Tell someone where you are going and when you will return
3. Stay together in your group, so people do not get lost.
4. If you get lost, stay put and do not wander (Hug-A-Tree). Use your whistle and signal mirror.
5. Stay on the trail to alleviate getting lost and creating unnecessary erosion.
6. Use “Leave No Trace” ethics.
7. Do not cut switchbacks (a zigzag trail for climbing a steep hill or mountain) to alleviate unnecessary erosion. Do not make new trails that do not coincide with trail incline requirements. You can receive a citation and/or fine for cutting switchbacks.
8. Pack it in and pack it out.
9. Get settled before it gets dark.
10. Treat water with a filter, tablets or boil for 10 minutes.
11. Be careful with fires if they are allowed. Use stoves that can be turned on and off and burn only small fires (if permitted) for heating food.
12. Pack your 10 hiking essentials (below) and be prepared for weather changes. Hypothermia can even occur in the warm summer months.

Quakes

"The big ones just become much less frequent. Large, late aftershocks show up in most sequences. The last magnitude 5 aftershock to 1994 Northridge was in 1997."

Saturday morning, the USGS posted the following probabilities: "The chance of an earthquake of magnitude 6 or higher is 27%, and it is most likely that as few as zero or as many as two such earthquakes may occur... The chance of an earthquake of magnitude 7 or higher is 3%, such an earthquake is possible but with a low probability."

By the afternoon on July 4, Gov. Gavin Newsom had declared a state of emergency for the Ridgecrest area. Shortly after midnight Saturday, he issued a state of emergency for all of San Bernardino County and wrote President Donald Trump requesting federal assistance for Kern and San Bernardino counties.

reasonable and appropriate fees.

The audit report also found that CDFW was using CEQA fees to supplement non-CEQA work in recent years. To correct this problem, the state auditor recommended several changes to the CDFW financial system. CDFW agreed with these recommendations and will improve its financial reporting systems.

Besides the lack of specific policies for determining the priority for responding to a CEQA request, the auditors also noted that CDFW provides insufficient training to staff on how to review documentation. Consequently, consistency across the state is inadequate.

While Charlton Bonham, director of CDFW, generally agreed with the audit results and agreed to embrace the recommendations, he did say in his June 7 letter, "...we would be remiss if we failed to acknowledge that some of the language in the report is unduly provocative and without critical context."

The state auditor replied, "We stand by the language we use to describe the department's challenges related to CEQA. Our report provides appropriate context and sufficient evidence to support our report's headings and conclusions."

Lyle encourages people to bring chairs to sit in while watching and listening to the concerts. Currently, the area is covered in wood chips and sitting on the ground might be less comfortable than expected.

There are still several projects to finish—one is the sitting area on the hillside facing the stage.

"Between events, the amphitheater and lower parking will be closed until some other projects, such as signage, are completed," Lyle stated. "But the whole upper area will remain completely open.

"I'm hopeful all goes well," she said cautiously. The Riverside County Planning Commission approved the conditional use permit for the ICC site on Dec. 7, 2016. The groundbreaking ceremony was on May 26, 2018.

After many years, Idyllwild will have a community center site.

Black bears are back in action

California's black bears are waking up hungry from their winter downtime. To help minimize unwanted bear foraging behavior, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife is reminding those living in or visiting bear country to store food and dispose of garbage properly.

Black bears typically prefer remote mountainous areas. However, as more people frequent or live in natural bear habitat, the abundance of food and garbage associated with human activities is a temptation hungry bears find hard to resist.

"Over the years, we have seen bear behavior change significantly in areas where more people live and recreate in bear habitat," said Vicky Monroe, CDFW's Conflict Programs coordinator. "Beginning with spring and into late fall, we receive a steady stream of calls from the public reporting anything from bears breaking into cabins and tents to bears stealing food off picnic tables."

Black bears, like other bear species, have a highly specialized sense of smell, which can sometimes lead them to towns and recreation areas where they may quickly find an overflowing garbage can, or someone's leftover hamburger and French fries.

Rick Michel sings Sinatra July 18

Second ISCS features American Songbook

By JP CRUMRINE
NEWS EDITOR

On July 18, Frank Sinatra classics will be heard at the second concert of the Idyllwild Summer Concert Series (ISCS). He will be here in the person of Rick Michel, who will be joined by the Harry James 12-piece band.

Michel does "Sinatra Forever: A Salute to Frank Sinatra" around the world. He also does a Rat Pack tribute. "Sinatra Forever" will bring the American Songbook with all the original arrangements to Idyllwild.

But Michel stresses this is not an impersonation show, it's his interpretation of Sinatra's works.

"I am not trying to impersonate Frank Sinatra, just pay homage to the man's music, and share the stage with the original members of his band," he has written on his website.

Michel is well known in Las Vegas and performs around the world. This is Michel's second concert in Idyllwild. He performed during the 10th anniversary concert series and has visited Idyllwild several times.

Ken Dahleen, the ISCS producer, and Michel have worked together many times. "But it began long ago and the exact moment is buried in memory," Dahleen said. The show business bible, "Variety," has described his performances as the, "closest thing to Frank Sinatra we have ever heard."

"I think Frank Sinatra was the most articulate of all the pop and standard singers," said Michel on his website. "He made songs his own by uniquely phrasing the words to wrap around the melody line like no one else before him or since."

The audiences recognize many of the song selections in the show. "I have tried to touch upon all aspects of Mr. Sinatra's life by choosing the variety of music that best represents his career," Michel explains on his website.

When asked how he got interested in singing Frank Sinatra songs, Michel replied, "In 1961, my mother took a picture of me with a Brownie camera. I was seven years old and I was doing an impression of Stan Laurel, he began.

"As a teenager, I could do Sinatra, but I began as a stand-up in Las Vegas comedy clubs," he continued. "By 1980, I was singing. I've been doing this for 40 years."

Sentimentally, "You Make Me Feel So Young" is his favorite Sinatra piece because his mother introduced him to it.

"But I have so many songs I love," he said. Michel does Sinatra in a variety of contexts from small groups to large bands, and sometimes just with strings.

Dahleen emphasized that the audience should pay attention while Michel is performing — Sinatra is not the only voice Michel sings.

"He also does Dean Martin and he may actually do a couple of other voices. So if you are not watching, you may think other singers have returned," Dahleen cautioned.

The ISCS starts at 7 p.m. at the Butterfield Amphitheater. Dahleen is anxious to present his concerts there.

"The Amphitheater sound should be good," he said. "People will enjoy it."

March 21 — April 19
Is someone at work resisting that Aries charm? Hard to believe. But seriously, Lamb, you might want to back up your ideas with some solid data, and then watch the yeas pile on.

April 20 — May 20
Your hard work could pay off in ways you didn't expect, but certainly deserve. Tend to that pesky health problem now so you'll be in top shape to tackle the new projects coming up.

May 21 — June 21
Planning a family event can be stressful unless you make it clear from the start that you're in charge. You might accept suggestions, but it will be your decisions that count.

June 22 — July 22
You still have a way to go to bring that professional matter to a satisfactory conclusion. Meanwhile, an important personal situation could require more of your attention by week's end.

July 23 — August 22
There's something about you Fine Felines that makes people want to tell you secrets. But once again, be wary of who is doing the telling. You might not want to be that person's confidante.

August 23 — September 22
Creating a fuss about a family matter might get everyone's attention. But it might be better to talk one-on-one with family members in order to spare a loved one unnecessary embarrassment.

September 23 — October 22
You're making progress on that career move, albeit not as quickly as you had hoped. But stay with it. Your personal life takes an unexpected (but very welcome) new turn.

October 23 — November 21
If you feel you've been unfairly treated in a workplace decision, correct the situation now while there's still time to do so. Arm yourself with facts and go to it. Good luck.

November 22 — December 21
Devising your own system of doing things might be the best way to handle an increasingly complex situation. But do it tactfully in order to avoid ruffling too many of your colleagues' feathers.

December 22 — January 19
A family member's health problem might once again require you to shift some of your current priorities around. But this time, make certain other relatives will be there to help.

January 20 — February 18
Catching up on tasks you've left undone will take a while to accomplish. But the sooner you complete them, the sooner you'll be able to take on another time-sensitive project.

February 19 — March 20
You might feel swamped by all that you're expected to do. But take a moment to come up for air, then handle things one at a time, and you'll soon get through them all.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

CREATURE CORNER

By JANICE MURASKO

Last week in “Days of Our Nine Lives,” ARF family members talked about their new ARF family members and those who had been adopted. Panther: Little Girl may have gone to her forever family, but we will still carry on her tradition of doing an ARF cat check-in.

So You Think You Know the Hill?

CONTEST JUDGE

I am very sorry we had no contest last week. The holiday paper with lots of stories, photos and ads bumped us back a week. So, let’s catch up:

Dave Hunt, Kris Kirschbaum, Chris Morse, Marc Reis and John Thomford all had correct entries regarding the photo from two weeks ago, which was of the interior ceiling of the gazebo at Village Center at the corner of Village Center Drive and North Circle. Mandy Johnson pulled Marc’s name from the hat. So Marc, come get your gift certificate at the Town Crier office.

Gift certificates are provided by Higher Grounds Coffee House and Red Kettle restaurant in the center of town. Thank you, both, for your sponsorship of this column!

OK, today’s photo shouldn’t be too hard. One entry per household. Contest deadline: Monday noon. Not a race — correct entries go into a hat for a drawing. Full contest rules and guidelines available at the Indigo: Good idea! Let’s find out what’s new with each of us felines.

Panther: And we will start with me! I am a big boy, but not as big as I used to be. I came to ARF with a little poodle when my guardian passed. My poodle buddy was adopted right away, but I’m still here.

Topsy: But why? You are so wonderful.

Panther: Right? I was 24.5 pounds when I got here, but I’ve slimmed down to 19.8 pounds. I’m much more active since losing weight. I’m male, and I just love humans and being in a human’s lap. I’d be a great family member.

Topsy: You would be. May I go next?

Panther: Sure!

Topsy: So, I am one of the few remaining kittens, and I am jet black. I’m about 10-weeks-old, female, and super playful. I would love a forever home with a playmate, or maybe someone will adopt me and one of my sisters?

Panther: Thank you, Topsy. How about you, Indigo?

Indigo: Well, let’s see...I am the co-office cat. I help Panther welcome all visitors. I got this job because I am so friendly. I’m also a jet black cat (there are lots of us!), male, and I would really like a loving home. I try so hard to convince everyone who comes to the ARF House.

Panther: Thank you! We will continue roll call next week.
