Six war veterans receive high school diplomas

BY RIVERSIDE COUNTY OFFICE OF EDUCATION

Deceased World War II veteran Vallie Lee Engelauf's family accepted his high school diploma on Nov. 12 as part of the Operation Recognition program. U.S. Navy Coxswain Engelauf was born in Riverside in 1926 and lived in the Rubidoux and Jurupa areas his entire life. During his military service, he was at Iwo Jima and witnessed the raising of the American Flag on Mount Suribachi. Engelauf comes from a family of veterans as he, his older brother George, and father William were inducted into the Veteran's Memorial Park in Rubidoux in 2013. The awarding of his high school diploma posthumously is Engelauf's final honor of distinguished service. The Operation Recognition program awards diplomas as a joint effort of the Mountain Center welcomes new postmaster

BY JENNY KIRCHNER
REPORTER/PHOTOGRAPHER

Sylvia Smith has been with the U.S. Postal Service for 32 years. Starting in October 1987, she was a part-time carrier in St. Louis, Missouri. Smith delivered mail to residents and businesses all over the city for six years before being promoted to a supervisor position. Sixteen years ago, she moved to California because of her two sons. One was going to a private school and the other was in the U.S. Navy. During that time, she worked throughout the San Diego district, learning her way all over the county and working in multiple offices. On Oct. 16, Smith started at the Mountain Center post office, learning every aspect and the duties of being a postmaster. Having been a carrier and supervisor, Smith never learned how to run the front window since she was always in the back office with employees or out delivering mail.

HUSD student decided to make a change

BY JENNY KIRCHNER
REPORTER/PHOTOGRAPHER

Sometimes there are people in this world that no matter what challenges come their way always manage to persevere. Helen Hunt Jackson College Prep High School Senior Isaiah Garcia-Plazola, 17 years old of Hemet, is one of those people. At such a young age, Garcia-Plazola has learned that he is in control of his destiny, solely leaving him responsible for how he handles life and its ups and downs. Recently, Garcia-Plazola received student of the month and spoke at the Hemet Unified School District State of the District on Oct. 10. At 13 years old, Garcia-Plazola's parents divorced leaving him lost and broken. With no real father figure to help guide him, he started traveling down the dead-end street of a life full of drinking, drugs and the actions that come with the territory. Watching drug deals and people getting jumped was a normal occurrence. He knew he was in a bad spot and if he didn't change something quick, he would end up in jail or dead. IWD’s legal fees add up over summer

By MELISSA DIAZ HERNANDEZ
EDITOR

At the last Idyllwild Water District (IWD) meeting on Oct. 16, Director David Hunt asked for an itemized bill of the legal fees.

“The legal fees seem awful high,” said Hunt. “Is there a way we can see an itemized bill for that?” The district contracts with Aleshire & Wynder, LLP for its legal services.

The newspaper submitted a public records request for the district’s legal fees from the beginning of FY 2019/20 to date. In addition, the newspaper noticed that there was a payment of $8,880 made in September payable to Aarvig & Associates, a law firm in Redlands, for HR consulting fees. The newspaper also requested the invoices pertaining to that payment.

Between June 1 and Sept. 30, 2019, the district spent more than $20,000 on legal fees. The highest being in September for a total of $8,857. The $8,880 made payable to Aarvig & Associates is in addition to the $8,857. Aleshire & Wynder, LLP charged 39.1 hours at $220 per hour for general legal services and one hour for personnel at $255 per hour.

The district’s former general manager, Michael Creighton, was undergoing consistent employee performance evaluations prior to his Sept. 25 termination. Less than two weeks before his termination, the district’s directors held a special closed session meeting regarding significant exposure to litigation (two cases).

On July 10, the district held another employee performance evaluation. This time the evaluation was of Chief Financial Officer Hosny Shouman. The report out of that meeting was that the district was going to bring in a professional to help with an employee situation.

IFPD looks for new legal counsel

By MELISSA DIAZ HERNANDEZ
EDITOR

The Idyllwild Fire Protection District (IFPD) commission put out a request for proposal (RFP) for legal counsel. The commission held a meeting to interview the two responding firms — Cole Huber and Varner & Brandt — on Oct. 29. Unfortunately, the item will be revisited at the Nov. 26 commission board meeting because only three of the five commissioners were present.

When asked if the board made a selection on legal counsel at the Oct. 29 meeting, commission President Jerry Buchanan responded: “Thanks for the question on the new attorney decision. It has been the policy of the IFPD to refer all questions to the chief. I will notify [Chief] Mark [LaMont] about your question and he will respond.”

La Mont responded: “The RFP for legal services was discussed at the special meeting of Oct. 29. The two respondents to the RFP each gave a presentation to the board.

“Action taken: Three board members [Buchanan, Rhonda Andrewson and Henry Sawicki] were present at the special meeting. When brought to a vote two board members voted to retain Cole Huber and one board member voted to retain Varner & Brandt.

“Without a majority vote this item will be revisited on the agenda for review/discussion/approval at the Nov. 26 regular board meeting.”

The newspaper requested the attendance log for the commissioners starting January 2019. The district emailed the log beginning January 2017. For 2019, Andrewson and Buchanan have the best attendance having attended 13 of the 14 commission meetings since January. Larry Donahoo has been present for half of the meetings. Ralph Hoetger has been present for 12 of the 14 meetings and Sawicki has been present for 11 of the 14 meetings.

delivering mail. The Mountain Center post office has helped her learn, in a pint-sized office with a little over 300 customers, as opposed to the large numbers that make their way through the postal system in larger communities.

“I’ve always wanted to be a postmaster. This is a good office to learn everything,” Smith said.

While Smith has only been up here for about a month, she’s already fallen in love with the community.

“I love it up here. I’m learning names and everyone is so friendly and nice,” Smith said.

Living in Temecula, the commute is only an hour with the scenic views and wildlife our mountain has to offer instead of the hour-and-a-half, bumper-to-bumper commute to San Diego that Smith did for many years.

“I have this wonderful drive from Temecula to work,” Smith said. “It’s quiet and so scenic. It’s really a beautiful drive.”

When asked what her future holds, Smith told the newspaper: “While I could retire after this year, I’m not ready to go. I wouldn’t know what to do. I like to keep busy and go, go, go.”

If you haven’t made your way into the Mountain Center post office yet, head in to meet the new postmaster and make her feel welcomed.

What ‘Do Not Call’ complaints are telling us

BY AMY HEBERT
CONSUMER EDUCATION SPECIALIST, FTC

Have you gotten a call from an imposter, maybe someone pretending to be with the Social Security Administration, IRS, or a tech support company, this year? If so, you're not alone. Calls from imposters were the most-reported topic of unwanted calls to the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) over the past year, FY 2019.

You can see our annual report on Do Not Call complaints, with state-specific data. Here are some key takeaways:

- The FTC got 5.4 million complaints about unwanted calls this year.
- 71% of complaints reported the call was a robocall.
- Calls from imposters are now the most-reported type of unwanted call, with 574,000 complaints.
- After imposters, the next most-reported topics were calls about medical issues and prescriptions, as well as reducing debt.
- The states with the most consumer complaints (per 100,000 population) were Colorado, Oregon, Arizona, New Jersey, and Nevada.
- The Do Not Call Registry now has 239.5 million numbers on it. More than 4 million of those were added over the past year.

Find out more about what's happening in your state. But remember — you don't need to wait for our annual report to know what's happening. As we told you this summer, the FTC's Do Not Call data is now available in an interactive format at ftc.gov/exploredata, and is updated quarterly.

The FTC continues to go after the companies and scammers behind these calls, so please keep reporting unwanted calls at donotcall.gov (or, if you've lost money to a scam call at ftc.gov/complaint instead). We take the phone numbers you report and release them to the public each business day, which helps phone carriers and other partners that are working on call-blocking and call-labeling solutions. Your reports also help law enforcement identify the people behind illegal calls.

To find out more about how to get fewer calls and avoid scams, check out the articles, videos, and infographics at ftc.gov/calls, and share them with your family and friends.

mother, law enforcement was called and Garcia-Plazola had a choice to make. As he watched his little sister crying and scared, he thought about whether this was the role model he wanted to be. He got a second chance that night. Officers decided not to arrest him and he chose to make a change.

Garcia-Plazola had a heart-to-heart with his grandmother, who opened his eyes to what he could accomplish if he turned his life around. He said his grandmother asked him: "What's your purpose in life?"

He didn't have an answer.
 "I didn't have any goals in life, I was just doing what I was doing," said Garcia-Plazola. "That's where I started on my journey to find what my purpose was in life."

He decided to get sober and clean up his life when he was 15 years old. With the guidance of teachers and therapists at Helen Hunt Jackson, Garcia-Plazola learned coping skills and other tools to better himself while finishing his high school general education classes. He will graduate with the class of 2020.

In that process, he learned his life's purpose. "My purpose in life is to give back to the community and help others like others have helped me," said Garcia-Plazola. "That's one of the reasons I want to become a corrections officer, and if they can help provide financial aid I can go to school at Mt. San Jacinto College to become an Emergency Medical Technician also."

When asked what inspired him most, Garcia-Plazola responded: “My sister, girlfriend, grandma and my mom inspired me to change my life. I wanted to show them I wanted to do something with my life. I really want to have a family in the future and that was a big inspiration for me.”

Then he added, “Thank you for the opportunity to speak. Everybody has a story and everybody is special. I am blessed to be able to share my story with others and hopefully be able to touch somebody’s heart.”

No matter how young or old you are, your life is only one step away from changing for the better. You just have to make the decision.

Karen Ann Metz passed away Wednesday, Oct. 9 in Tallahassee, Florida where she lived for the last two years with her husband Les Suderman. Karen was born on April 27, 1943.

Karen and Les lived in Idyllwild from summer 2012 to 2016. They bought their cabin in 2003 but moved here permanently after Karen retired from her work at the Mary S. Easton Center for Alzheimer's Disease Research at UCLA. She loved her job there as chief of operations, grant administra-

Karen continued this work on a part-time basis in Idyllwild working with Tom Unwin on grants for RhizoSystems Implementation and Idyllwild Center for Spiritual Living. She worked at Idyllwild Arts Academy from January 2013 to March 2014 as the summer alumni relations manager.

She was deeply involved with the community as a volunteer for Jazz in the Pines, Idyllwild Art Alliance and the Idyllwild Nature Center where she enjoyed conducting nature talks for visitors.

Karen and her husband moved to Tallahassee, Florida in 2017 to be near his relatives. Even there, Karen volunteered to do historic talks at the local St. Marks Lighthouse and surrounding areas.

Her struggle with cancer started with a simple infection in a sinus cavity that was diagnosed as cancerous. Karen fought off cancer with surgery, radiation and trial medications, but it eventually took her life.

She is loved and missed by her husband, Les Suderman, her son, Justin Hunsaker, her twin sister, Sharen and her half-brother, Dick Metz.

Friends and associates are invited to a "wine and memories" open house at her sister's cabin Sunday, Dec. 8 from 4-6pm. Contact: Sharen Metz at 562-252-6306 or sharen-metz@gmail.com.

erating costs, our Hill will continue to have a watchdog monitoring our eight local public agencies that no one else monitors. The Town Crier will also continue to serve our community by warning of danger, advising of opportunity, challenging authority, praising accomplishment, investigating irregularity, marveling at art, exposing abuse, celebrating lives, and publish its readers' letters.

That is what a real newspaper does, and that is what your Town Crier will continue to do as long as you all support it. You support it in several ways: (1) by patronizing the businesses that advertise in your Town Crier, which will make them want to advertise here (so when you visit our advertisers, please thank them and tell them you read their ad in the Town Crier); (2) by keeping your Town Crier memberships current and (3) by discussing with others what you read in the Town Crier.

We appreciate all of you — members, advertisers and those of you who simply purchase and read the Town Crier. Please join us soon at one of our weekly news meetings which — unlike any other newspaper of which we are aware — are open to the public. These are normally held every Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. at the Idyllwild Library. Thank you all!

How did ‘The Old Man’ impact town?

By JENNY KIRCHNER
REPORTER/PHOTOGRAPHER

On Oct. 30, Idyllwild was inundated with trucks, equipment, and a film crew taking over the center of town for the filming of the FX television pilot of “The Old Man” starring Jeff Bridges. While the consensus was positive, some businesses suffered financially during the filming.

“They closed the roads down and we didn’t get any business,” said Pedro Guillen from Mountain Footwear. “They did compensate us for their inconvenience, but we didn’t get any business. Same with the businesses upstairs.” Guillen also stated that the compensation wasn’t comparable to the sales that were missed.

Merkaba had a different experience with the film crew being here in town. Overall they felt it was good for the community because some of the crew members and workers never knew Idyllwild even existed.

“Business-wise it technically didn’t affect anything because we are normally closed Wednesdays,” said Merkaba owner Ron Campbell. “They offered us compensation of $150 for just coming in and turning on the lights. Everybody was friendly and nice.”

On the cusp of everything else that the town has endured with the road closures and repaving of the center of town, Candy Cupboard owner Jennifer McKee said, “It impacted us for sure because all their wardrobe and restroom trucks were parked in front so you couldn’t even see the shop. We got a little bit of business, but it put a damper on the day because the regular tourists that are coming up avoided us because of all the stuff.” When asked if they received compensation, “They didn’t compensate us at all. It’s great for the lodging and town to have all the people, but for us as a merchant, it was different.”

For years, Idyllwild has been a destination spot for the filming of movies, commercials and television shows. Being only a couple of hours from Hollywood, the mountain is a magnet for talent and creative minds.

While the consensus was positive, some businesses suffered financially during the filming.

HOW TO BE A HEALING PRESENCE

By CALLIE WIGHT

Having been a trauma psychotherapist for nearly 30 years — now retired — I still think about how to help those of us who are suffering from traumatic incidents. Many of you, also, wish to be a healing presence for family and friends experiencing urgent states of highly charged emotional/physiological stress. Such stress can be caused by a wide-breadth of dramatically upsetting events such as serious motor vehicle accidents, violence, loss of a loved one, devastating medical diagnoses or even direct abuse at the hands of another.

When I say urgent states, I am thinking of someone whose emotional/physiological equilibrium is so deeply overturned that they are “beside themselves,” as the saying goes. You know what I mean if you’ve ever experienced one of those altered states where you are so disoriented you don’t feel like you’re in your own body. Your own natural resilience seems lost to you. It’s a frightening state to be in and having someone nearby who can help ease that suffering is invaluable.

Often though, when we’re trying to help, we feel inadequate and unprepared.

I stumbled across a terrific book a few years ago, “The Worst Is Over.” I recommend it. It provides the reader with needed preparation. The authors call it “verbal first aid.”

The authors provide medical evidence that the right words can be calming — actually changing the physiological reactions of the sufferer. The wrong words can change reactions, too, worsening them.

When I was training physicians on how to work with women who had been sexually assaulted, one caution I always underscored was that an innocent phrase could have devastating effects on the victim. A phrase such as: “Why did you even go into that dark parking lot alone?” — although meant empathetically — will frequently be interpreted by the victim as blaming and become an additional hurt, long-remembered.

On the other hand, something as simple, genuine and heartfelt as “I am so sorry this happened to you” can be soothing.

There is not enough space here to do justice to verbal first aid, but here are the bare bones.

Do these even with an unconscious person:

Generate rapport with the sufferer and speak with authority and empathy.

Give your name. “I am here to help. The worst is over. I will not leave you alone. Help is on its way.” Describe your comfort/first aid measures.

Get a contract: “Will you do as I ask you to?”

Give clear, positive, firm suggestions for pain relief and healing: “Because your body knows how to heal itself, you can right now begin to relax and let your body do its work. All your body’s resources are working at this very moment to help you recover and get through this.”

California spending over $13 billion annually on special education

By LOUIS FREEDBERG
EDSOURCE

Spending on special education students in California has increased by just over 20% over the past decade — from $10.8 billion to $13 billion in inflation-adjusted figures, according to a new report.

That’s just one of the startling figures in the report from the Legislative Analyst’s Office (LAO) that provides a detailed overview of California’s special education system, which now serves some 800,000 students with physical, cognitive and learning disabilities.

They make up about one in eight of California’s public school students. Despite the massive investment, special education students lag behind almost all other student groups on a range of measures, such as average test scores and graduation rates. They also are suspended from school and are chronically absent — which means absent from school for 10% or more of the instructional year — at higher rates.

The majority of students have relatively mild disabilities like speech impairments and specific learning disabilities like dyslexia. However, the number of students with severe disabilities has increased substantially, doubling over the past two decades, according to the report.

The biggest increase has been in the proportion of children diagnosed with autism, which has risen from one in 600 students in 1997/98 to one in 50 students in 2017/18 — a 12-fold increase.

The report comes against a backdrop of concerns among state leaders that the special education has not undergone much-needed reforms in areas compared to other parts of the education system.

As part of the budget legislation approved earlier this year (now part of the California Education Code), in order for certain state funds to be allocated for special education next year, the Legislature will be required to come up with a number of reforms “to improve the academic outcomes of individuals with exceptional needs.”

The LAO’s report underscored the extraordinary financial pressures on local school districts to educate students with disabilities.

The average cost of educating a special education student each year is $26,000, compared to $9,000 to educate a “general education” student. Costs vary widely depending on the disability of each student, the LAO report notes. For example, it might cost $1,000 a year to provide a student with periodic speech therapy, while a student in an out-of-state non-public school with severe emotional problems might cost a district $100,000 a year.

Under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, school districts are required to provide special education students with the services they need, as spelled out in what is called an Individualized Education Plan agreed to by parents and school officials.

Beth Burt, president of the Autism Society of California, said that the state has made considerable progress in serving students with significant disabilities such as autism.

Most school districts, she said, have autism specialists and many offer speech and occupational therapy. She said her son, who is now 26, was diagnosed with autism when he was three. He graduated from high school with honors and is now working, thanks in part to the many services he received in the schools he attended.

The success of her son and others like him provides ample justification for whatever expense is involved, Burt said. “What is that dollar amount that we are willing to invest to make every student a productive member of our community?” Burt said. “If we as a society were to say ‘We don’t want to invest in a student because he or she has a certain diagnosis,’ who is to say who is more or less deserving of an education? The alternative is unthinkable.”

One major problem in covering costs is that despite mandating that school districts provide needed and often expensive services, the federal government has never paid anything re-

Rep. Raul Ruiz advocates for bold investments in America’s schools

BY THE OFFICE OF REP. RAUL RUIZ, M.D. CONTRIBUTED

A couple of weeks ago, Rep. Raul Ruiz, M.D., D-Palm Desert, advocated on the House floor for much-needed investments in our schools. Earlier last month, James Madison Elementary School in Indio closed after rust and corrosion were found in its support columns. Nearly 500 students had to be transferred to another facility.

“Madam Speaker: Earlier this month, James Madison Elementary School in Indio closed after rust, mold,

There is no way to avoid her. She comes for you whenever you make that “selfish” choice and you put your needs first — “The Mom Guilt Monster.” That inner she-devil whispers to you: “Wow, your poor children have a mother that would do this. How could you?”

I had what I hoped to be my last run-in for a long while with her on Halloween. Unfortunately — as a migraine sufferer — I don’t get to pick when my head is going to feel like it’s about to pop. My body does that and it doesn’t really care what’s on the calendar. The Mom Guilt Monster was there telling me my children would have the worst Halloween experience if I didn’t just suck it up.

So, I tried. I tried to push through and pray that the meds would work. I tried to relax and beg for the herd of elephants in my head to stop their parade.

I tried.

An hour before we were supposed to leave, I had a moment of clarity and asked myself: “Why?” Why was it so important that I be there? Would it really be the worst thing to show my children that everyone — even mom — needs to be okay with giving in to their body’s request for rest?

It’s important for me to be open with my children about what’s going on outside of their own little world. I want them to know that everything isn’t always perfect and that sometimes things don’t work out as we want them to and we need to just go with the flow.

So, I asked them very directly, “Would you be sad if I didn’t go out with you guys?”

And my boys replied with “No, you should sleep, mom.”

My eldest went even further to say, “Mom, even if we don’t go at all, that’s ok. We can skip it.” It was one of those “I’m doing it! I am raising kind human beings” moments that make a mama want to cry.

The little one was a little less understanding. He’s a nice kid but he still wanted to get his Trick or Treat on. His response: “But dad is fine, right?”

And so, my three boys went without me and had a wonderful time. It wasn’t the worst Halloween ever. It was the Halloween that mom told the Guilt Monster to get lost.

rastructure and putting students, teachers, and staff at risk,” Ruiz said. “The cost of our schools’ outdated infrastructure is adding up. We need big and bold investments in school infrastructure to keep our students safe, prevent school closures and help our students compete.”

Ruiz is a co-sponsor of H.R. 865, the Rebuilding America’s Schools Act, which would invest $100 billion in physical and digital school infrastructure. In his remarks, he called on fellow representatives to “prioritize students’ well-being, safety and education” and support this critical legislation.

motely close to what the original law set as its goal in 1977. The federal government was supposed to pay each state the equivalent of 40% of the average national per-student expenditure on education multiplied by the number of special education students in that state.

But because of inflation and the failure of congressional allocations to keep up with rising costs, the gap between what the federal government is paying and should be paying continues to widen, most dramatically over the past decade. That gap is now estimated to be $3.2 billion, according to the LAO report.

Congress has also avoided dealing with the issue by failing to reauthorize the federal disability law, something it is supposed to do every five years. But the last time it did so was in 2004. There had been some talk of reauthorization happening this year, but in the current fractious climate in Washington, that is unlikely to happen.

Local school districts have had to pick up an ever-increasing share of the costs. On average, California school districts now pay 61% of the costs, up from 49% just a decade ago, according to the LAO report.

School districts are even required to pay for special education services for students attending private schools. Last year districts covered special education services for about 2,300 students attending private schools in California, the report noted.

Four solo-vehicle collisions

By MELISSA DIAZ HERNANDEZ EDITOR

Four solo-vehicle collisions occurred over the last few weeks on the mountain, according to California Highway Patrol Officer Darren Meyer.

On Monday, Oct. 21 at 10:25 p.m., a red 2019 Honda Civic was traveling on Highway 74 one mile east of Keen Camp Road, when for unknown reasons, the driver of the Honda negotiated a left-hand curve and drove off the highway hitting a power pole. The driver fled the scene. The California Highway Patrol contacted the registered owner of the Honda who claimed the vehicle had been stolen the day prior. The vehicle was towed by Idyllwild Garage.

Another collision occurred on Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 5:40 p.m. Wade Davis, 21 years old of La Quinta, was traveling south on Highway 243 1,000 feet north of South Circle Drive in a white 1997 Mercury Cougar at 50 mph. Davis was traveling around a left-hand curve, lost control and crossed over the double yellow line hitting a tree and boulder. Davis was alone in the vehicle and was transported by Idyllwild Fire Protection District ambulance to a local hospital with minor injuries to his arm. The vehicle was towed by Idyllwild Garage. Neither drugs nor alcohol were involved.

On Friday, Nov. 8 at 7:20 p.m. Andrew Truelsen, 39 years old of La Quinta, was traveling east on Highway 74 just east of Highway 371 in a maroon 2003 Chevrolet Silverado when he drove off the roadway. A 2-year-old (unknown relation to Truelsen) was in the back of the vehicle strapped into a car seat. There were no injuries. Truelsen was arrested at the scene for driving under the influence of alcohol and taken to Larry D. Smith Correctional Facility and booked for DUI. The Silverado was towed by Idyllwild Garage.

The last collision occurred on Sunday, Nov. 10 at 12:20 p.m. on Highway 74. Reynaldo Ramsey, 23 years old of El Cajon, was driving west on Highway 74 two-tenths of a mile west of Scenic Drive on a purple 2010 Harley-Davidson motorcycle. Ramsey entered a right-hand curve and lost control, crossed the double yellow line and hit the dirt on the opposite side of the road. He was ejected from the motorcycle and suffered minor injuries. Ramsey was transported to a local hospital by AMR. The motorcycle was towed by Valley Auto.

By JIM CRANDALL
PALMS TO PINES GOLF ASSOCIATION HANDICAP CHAIRMAN

The Palms to Pines Golf Association played its regular monthly tournament and final round of playoffs for club champions at Hemet Golf Club on Friday, Oct. 18. It was a beautiful fall day and the course was in good shape.

In the A Flight playoff, Bob Wadlow defended his title against Norm Kyriss to retain his club champion status for the second year in a row. He will go on to represent the club in the Southern California Golf Association (SCGA) Tournament of Club Champions in December. Wadlow will again have his name inscribed the special Robert "Bob" Stearns memorial trophy.

In the B Flight playoff, Jerry Daquila also defended his title against David Hiemenz. Daquila will receive a special plaque.

In the A Flight regular tournament, Wadlow (11 handicap) shot a net 69 for first place. Gary Brown (17 handicap) shot net 71 for second place. Kyriss (7 handicap) shot net 72 for third place. Paul Cozens (12 handicap) and Tony McLean (17 handicap) shot net 73s to tie for fourth place.

In the B Flight regular tournament — made up of golfers with handicap indexes of 24.4 or higher as of August — Barry Zander (34 handicap) shot net 65 for first place. Beethoven fills concert hall

By ART CONNOR
CONTRIBUTED

When opportunities arise for a renewal of interest in any particular subject, especially in the area of live musical performances, it is in the nature of this reviewer to investigate. One such opportunity came into play last Monday evening, Nov. 4, with the return of Idyllwild Arts Academy alumnus Jassen Todorov (class of 1994) to the campus from his post as professor of violin at San Francisco State University. Considering the 25-year hiatus, as well as his academic background at Harid Conservatory in Florida and the Eastman School in upstate New York, the follow-up to his return visit was encouraging enough with the prospective survey of Ludwig van Beethoven’s compositions for violin and piano in the works.

The overall outlay of last Monday’s concert consisted of the first four violin and piano sonatas, presented in compositional order, with the Opus 12 set as the lead-in. Todorov made his mark early on with a general display of his violin tone and technique in the traversal of the first two of the sonatas (in D Major and A Major respectively).

His chosen instrument — a 1778 Neapolitan model from the workbench of Tomaso Eberle — gave out the pulse and rhythm of the fast first and third movements accurately, if a bit diffidently, minimizing the effect of “sincere admiration” for previous composers’ efforts in this area (particularly Haydn, Mozart and the dedicatee of the set, Beethoven’s teacher Antonio Salieri) and bringing forth the melodic form in all of the slow movements. Dr. Michael Smith’s piano accompaniment acted as a further complement to this presentation — perfunctorily enough and even in tone, without any particular dramatics for the sake of exposition.

It was with the final two sonatas, following a short intermission, that the concert really took off to the height it was capable of reaching, both in the compositional material and the overall sonorous effect. The third sonata of the Opus 12 (or “Salieri” set), in the key of E flat, proved the relevance of the apposite piano accompanying as far as Smith was concerned — E flat being more friendly a key to a pianist than a violinist — but Todorov had the situation well in hand from the beginning. And with the transition to the minor mode of the succeeding Opus 23 sonata (a rousing “Presto” in A minor) from the jubilant rondo finale of Opus 12 #3, the somewhat superficial effects of the concert’s first half were dispelled, again without much (unnecessary) brilliance, but an overall mastery of bowing technology and sound production. Likewise, in the Opus 23 finale (another rondo movement, but this time in minor and with subtle enough tempo variations), the effect in sum was the precise melding of virtuosity (when needed) and accuracy of intonation.

Audience reaction, though displayed throughout the performance enthusiastically, was most intent following the whole concert. One can only wish for a return engagement at William M. Lowman Concert Hall by these two perfectly matched individuals for the remaining six Beethoven violin sonatas during next year’s prospective events in celebration of the composer’s 250th birth year.

Students are grateful for ‘unity’

By MELISSA DIAZ HERNANDEZ

Some very lucky Riverside County high school students attended the Student Unity Conference on Tuesday, Oct. 29, at the Riverside Convention Center. Speakers included Dr. Bernice A. King, Celebrity Teen Coach Jesse LeBeau, and motivational speaker Clint Pulver.

The newspaper reached out to Hemet Unified School District’s Public Information Officer Alexandra Sponheim to get some student feedback on the conference, which definitely made an impact.

“The Unity Conference was an amazing experience that changed my perspective on life,” said Theresa Daigneault. “I now have a more positive outlook on life and I am more thankful for everything I am blessed with. I am so thankful that I was able to attend.”

“The Student Unity Conference is for students who are interested in unlocking the potential in themselves and bringing out the best in everybody around them,” said Riverside County Superintendent Dr. Judy D. White. “We are stronger when we focus on what unites us instead of what divides us and this free conference is perfect for students who want to be the change in their world.”

“The Unity Conference was very fun,” said Presley Jackson. “I learned a lot in just a few hours. The Unity Conference left a great impact on me. I felt motivated and determined to chase my dreams. I am very thankful that I was able to attend the conference.”

Some students were pleasantly surprised by what they learned.

“I didn’t expect to get much out of attending the Unity Conference. However, it was the most uplifting, motivational, and memorable meeting I’ve ever attended,” said Olivia Sorenson. “I was able to take home with me what I learned from the speakers and try to apply it to my own life.”

“I now have a more positive outlook on life and I am more thankful for everything I am blessed with.”

Aspiring architect to give next IDYTalk

BY IDYLLWILD ARTS ACADEMY
CONTRIBUTED

The intention of Idyllwild Arts Academy’s InterArts department to teach artists “to collaborate, to innovate, to be entrepreneurs and to be adaptable and resilient, as well as socially aware.” This will be embodied by Jackson Bujnosek at his Friday night Nov. 15 IDYTalk at the Idyllwild Town Gallery.

“I’m interested in visual arts,” Bujnosek says. “But I also have broad interests outside of visual arts.”

Broad interests are to be expected in a family that features both a mathematician — Bujnosek’s father, who teaches at Mount St. Mary’s University, in Los Angeles — and a creative writer. The creative writer is Bujnosek’s sister Bailey, who will graduate from Idyllwild Arts Academy along with him next May.

The InterArts department permits students to develop interdisciplinary interests. Bujnosek’s favorite courses during his two-plus years at the academy have included theatrical production taught by Department Chair Abbie Bosworth.

“We learned how to do all the theatrical behind-the-scenes stuff,” Bujnosek says. “Actors need sets, and we built them.”

But another favorite course was electronics for artists taught by Braden Diotte, a walking example of interdisciplinary interests since he belongs to both the mathematics and music faculties.

“That class was fun,” Bujnosek says. “I built a board

“I’ve been interested in architecture since I was nine. It started with video games.” — Jackson Bujnosek studded with lights and the lights would flash in time to music.”

A common denominator of theatrical production and electronics for artists is the chance to build things that each class provided. Bujnosek will probably attend College of the Desert next year. However, down the line he plans to transfer to the University of San Diego whose “really good architecture program” should help him satisfy his love of building.

“I’ve been interested in architecture since I was nine,” Bujnosek said. “It started with video games.”

Grown from the seed of video games

Video games appear to be all about motion. So, for video games to provoke a fascination with the stable structures commonly associated with architecture may seem surprising. But video game characters, like actors — like all of us on the stage of the world making our exits and entrances as we play our many parts — need sets to move through.

“In middle school, one of my teacher’s introduced me to SketchUp,” Bujnosek continues.

SketchUp is a three-dimensional-modeling computer program with drawing applications for interior design and landscape architecture as well as to the traditional discipline of architecture.

As he explains his interest in architecture, Bujnosek’s affinity for the InterArts commitment to social awareness becomes clear.

“I like the idea of designing experiences for theme parks,” said Bujnosek. “You can see how the lightboard that I built for electronics for artists would connect to that. But that would only be a sideline architectural interest for me. I’m mainly interested in residential architecture.”

It doesn’t sound exciting at first. Then he elaborates. “My mother was a high school teacher until she stopped working to take care of my older brother Beck, who’s severely autistic. She and the rest of us in our family are able to give my brother the love and care he needs. As an architect, I’d like to do something else — design housing that would satisfy the needs of people like Beck.”

Bujnosek and his sister have already organized two fundraisers for autism-related causes. Given their devotion to Beck, additional fundraisers seem inevitable.

Another thing that seems inevitable is that more students like Bujnosek will graduate from Idyllwild Arts Academy. The academy wishes to educate young people who aspire to be citizen-artists and who understand that the attainment of artistic excellence can lead to something of greater value than fame.

Meet a young man on his way to a beautiful fulfillment of the citizen-artist ideal at Bujnosek’s Nov. 15 IDYTalk at the Idyllwild Town Gallery, 54425 N. Circle Dr. The talk is free and open to the public.

HOROSCOPES
November 2019 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
A long-sought workplace change could be happening soon. Consider reworking your ideas and preparing a presentation just in case. A personal relationship takes a new turn.

April 20 – May 20
Your persuasiveness doesn't really start to kick in until midweek. By then, you can count on having more supporters in your camp, including some you doubted would ever join you.

May 21 – June 21
Your workload is still high, but -- good news! -- you should start to see daylight by the week's end. Reserve the weekend for fun and games with friends and loved ones. You deserve it.

June 22 – July 22
Regardless of how frustrating things are, keep that "Crab" under control. A cutting comment you might think is apt right now will leave others hurting for a long time to come.

July 23 – August 22
Be more sensitive to the emotions of loved ones who might feel left out while you're stalking that new opportunity. Be sure to make it up to them this weekend. A nice surprise could be waiting.

August 23 – September 22
The gregarious Virgo rarely has a problem making new friends. But repairing frayed relationships doesn't come easily. Still, if it's what you want to do, you'll find a way. Good luck.

September 23 – October 22
A misunderstanding with a partner or spouse needs to be worked out before it turns into something really nasty. Forget about your pride for now and make that first healing move.

October 23 – November 21
Communication dominates the week. Work out any misunderstandings with co-workers. Also get back in touch with old friends and those family members you rarely see.

November 22 – December 21
As busy as your week is, make time for someone who feels shut out of your life. Your act of kindness could later prove to be more significant than you might have realized.

December 22 – January 19
Congratulations. Your busy workweek leads to some very satisfying results. Sports and sporting events are high on your weekend activities aspect. Enjoy them with family and friends.

January 20 – February 18
Your generosity of spirit reaches out once again to someone who needs reassurance. There might be problems, but keeping that line of communication open eventually pays off.

February 19 – March 20
You are among the truth-seekers in the universe, so don't be surprised to find yourself caught up in a new pursuit of facts to counter what you believe is an insidious exercise in lying.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," ARF cats discussed how adopting a pet actually saves two lives. Terra: Gather around everyone! Arnold, the kitten, has found his forever home! That leaves four kittens still looking but I'm certain they'll find their homes soon. Mr. Gray: Uh, Terra. Who is hanging around you? Terra: Oh! My bad. This is Tilly. She is the mother of this newest litter of kittens. She is also in training to be an office cat. Mr. Gray: Welcome, Tilly. Nice to meet you! Tilly: Hi guys! So, I am recovering from a very busy time as a mom. I'm now spayed and ready to go to a forever home. Zeus: I see that you are a very friendly cat. Tilly: Yes, sir! I really like humans and want one of my own! Zeus: Don't we all! Terra: She will be a good office cat, no doubt. Zeus: Any human who stops by ARF will feel lots of love. That's for certain. Sadie: Those who want a playmate will love the kittens. They really like to play. Zeus: Where are the dogs? Mr. Gray: I've heard there aren't any right now, but you know how it goes. Bear: Yep. Any minute now ARF will have one. Mr. Gray: The big problem is that ARF is down to one-an-a-half fosters. Terra: That's right. One foster can take a dog for only a day or two. The other is "in for the duration" but has cats, so the dogs must be cat-friendly or at least cat-tolerant. Mr. Gray: So what does this mean? Terra: It means that until some new angels step up to be fosters, the number of dogs ARF may care for is severely limited. ARF truly needs some fosters who are able to care for a dog until it is adopted. Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of Our Nine Lives" each week. Please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturdays and from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on Sundays, or by appointment Monday-Friday by calling 951-659-1122. CONTEST JUDGE

Last week's photo was pretty easy. Five entrants correctly identified a painting on the side wall near the outside back of Higher Grounds Coffee house: Rochelle Ainsworth, Laurie Cole, Chris Morse, Marc Reis and John Thomford. All five also had correct entries the previous week. So, five names in the drawing ... Laurie! Please come pick up your prize at the Town Crier office. Our gift certificate prizes are generously provided by Red Kettle restaurant and Higher Grounds Coffee House. Please be sure to thank them for their continued sponsorship of our photo contest column the next time you visit these fine establishments. This week's photo should be tougher — but just a bit. Good luck! One entry per household. Contest deadline: Monday noon. Not a race — correct entries go into a hat for a drawing. Full contest rules and guidelines available at the Town Crier office. Email entries to jack@towncrier.com.
