Caltrans gives culvert update to PCPOA

By Melissa Diaz Hernandez

The culvert work on highways 243 and 74 is now complete. Terri Kasinga, public and media affairs chief for Caltrans District 8, reported the news at the Nov. 7 Pine Cove Property Owners Association meeting.

"Culvert work was holding up traffic and was a big inconvenience to folks going up and down from Idyllwild," Kasinga said.

Kasinga also stated that there may be further issues with Highway 243. Caltrans was not able to repair every single culvert but it's now doing final checklist items, so continue to expect delays.

There will be pavement work, but again, no more culvert work. Kasinga explained that the expectation is that the work should hold for a long time because the work was invasive and extensive.

The target date to complete those items is Dec. 15. However, with the rain and snow, the contractor is unable to work so the completion date may be delayed.

Caltrans is performing regular maintenance to keep drains clear and, according to Kasinga, also keep the

During the update, Michael Feyder, president of Mountain Disaster Preparedness, mentioned paving issues at Highway 243 and Saunders Meadow Road and at Highway 243 where the rock was recently re-

"They are still going to be doing paving," Kasinga said. "Give it a month or so when it gets dry, and if it's not done call me, because it should be a punch list item."

Kasinga continued, "There has been a lot of upgrade rk on that mountair

Caltrans' culvert work update:

The culvert work projects on highways 243 and 74 are complete. However, final checklist items remain. Delays are still expected. The target date to complete these items is Dec. 15 but may be delayed due to weather. If you experience delays that exceed 30 minutes or if you have questions or concerns, contact public affairs at 909-383-4631.

Woman found after missing in Anza

By Jenny Kirchner REPORTER/PHOTOGRAPHER

The Town Crier contacted the Riverside County Sheriff's Department (RCSD) media information bureau over the weekend after learning that another woman had gone missing. Just before the newspaper went to press, RCSD sent an email saying the woman had been located, but did not give an update on her condition.

The newspaper asked over the weekend if the department had any information regarding Tajah Connelly Horner and what search efforts had been conducted to locate her.

"Tajah Connelly Horner, a 29-yearold resident of Anza, was reported missing on Nov. 5," RCSD Correctional Sgt. Deanna Pecoraro wrote in an email several hours before the newspaper went to press. "A search of the area in which she was last seen and/or staying was searched that day. Due to not locating Tajah Connelly Horner PHOTO COURTESY OF TAJAH CONNELLY HORNER Tajah, she was placed into the missing persons system on Nov. 5. We are asking for the public's assistance on her whereabouts and to contact us if they have any information."

According to a post on Facebook, Connelly Horner was camping in an unknown location in the local hills in Anza. She drives a blue/green 2001 two-door Ford Focus with a red, white and blue reflective skull sticker on the hatchback. Her phone had been off since either Wednesday night, Oct. 28, or Thursday, Oct. 29. The post also mentioned that she said there were "mesquite or elderberry trees near her as well as redshank of course." She said there were "friendly, wild dogs in the area."

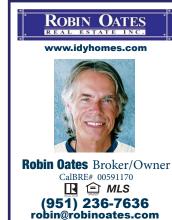

Since the beginning of June, the Town Crier has contacted RCSD's media information bureau every week in an attempt to receive updates about the missing people in and around the Idyllwild area.

Connelly Horner was the seventh person to go missing since March of this year.

The newspaper has been trying to obtain any information regarding the four still missing people in the Idyllwild area and has not received any additional information. Lydia "Dia" Abrams, Roy Prifogle, Melissa Lane and Rosario Garcia remain

COVID-19 LOCAL UPDATE:

Outdoor operations become challenging as area has first snowfall

By Melissa Diaz Hernandez EDITOR

The area just had its first snowfall over the weekend. As the county of Riverside remains in the most restricted purple tier of the state's tier system, some local businesses are going to have a difficult time maintaining revenue as they are forced to operate outdoors.

Congress still has not passed another stimulus package to assist small businesses and those who have suffered permanent job loss.

According to the state's tier system, purple means the virus is widespread and that many nonessential indoor business operations are closed.

The county previously explained that it "will need to remain in the purple tier for at least three weeks and meet the red tier metrics for two of those weeks before returning to the red tier."

In addition to decreasing cases and hospitalizations, more testing is needed to help push the county back to the less-restricted red tier, where many businesses can move back to some indoor operations. Even though Riverside County is testing more residents per day, the statewide testing median is 239 per 100,000 residents per day.

According to the Riverside University Health System - Public Health (RUHS) website, the area of Idyllwild-Pine Cove has a total of 25 reported COVID-19 cases since the outbreak and one death reported. Twenty-three of the 25 people have recovered.

As of press time on Nov. 10, Riverside County has 71,620 confirmed COVID-19 cases. There are 1,338 deaths related to COVID-19 and 63,478 people have recovered. There are 228 individuals being hospitalized and of those 64 are in the intensive care unit (ICU). The county's positivity rate is 5.9%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 is 11.5.

As of press time on Nov. 3, Riverside County had 68,920 confirmed COVID-19 cases. There were 1,322 deaths related to COVID-19 and 61,421 people had recovered. There were 179 individuals being hospitalized and of those 43 were in the ICU. The county's positivity rate was 5.6%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 was 10.1.

As of press time on Oct. 27, Riverside County had 66,732 confirmed COVID-19 cases. There were 1,295 deaths related to COVID-19 and 59,516 people had recovered. There were 164 individuals being hospitalized and of those 60 were in the ICU. The county's positivity rate was 5.2%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 was 9.1.

As of press time on Oct. 20, Riverside County had 64,668 confirmed COVID-19 cases. There were 1,273 deaths related to COVID-19 and 58,236 people had recovered. There were 157 individuals being hospitalized and of those 42 were in the ICU. The county's positivity rate was 5.2%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 was 9.1.

To date, 886,462 people have been tested for COVID-19 in Riverside County, according to RUHS. The two demographics with the highest number of cases are Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander and His-

The county is urging residents and visitors to cover their face, keep 6 feet of distance and wash their hands.

COVID-19 updates & resources

COVID-19 testing

COVID-19 testing is available for those with or without symptoms. Testing is free and available for everyone.

All residents are encouraged to take a PCR swab test to contain the disease and help reach the red tier metrics. Visit GetTested.ruhealth. org or call 800-945-6171 to make an appointment. For more testing options, visit https://covid19.ca.gov/ get-tested/.

The county is looking to expand outreach and partnerships to increase testing as well as more mobile units and pop-up testing sites.

Food assistance

For those needing to connect with food resources, visit https://rivcoph.org/ coronavirus and select "Food Access" at the top right for a county map directing you to food pantries, senior and school meals.

HUSD will serve students supper, lunch and breakfast at no charge for students enrolled in the district at Hamilton School, Idyllwild School and Hemet High (3:30 to 5 p.m. only) from 6 to 7 a.m.and from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Behavioral health

For those in need of behavioral health assistance, you may utilize a computer and smartphone app called TakeMyHand.co. A 24/7 free, confidential crisis or suicide intervention service can be reached at 951-686-HELP (4357). You may also contact 2-1-1 or call the behavioral health CARES line at 800-706-7500.

Schools update

The Hemet Unified School District (HUSD) began the school year Aug. 17 fully online. Idyllwild Arts Academy (IAA) students began their 2020/21 school year Aug. 31 with distance learning.

IAA students returned to campus Oct. 1. For more information, see the letter to the community on page A3 or visit idyllwildarts.org.

Because the county moved back to the purple tier Oct. 20, it clarified that "schools that have already opened for in-person instruction may continue to do so. Schools and school districts that have not already opened for in-person instruction will need to obtain a waiver, approved by the Riverside County Public Health Officer and CDPH. For a complete list of all schools that have applied for, or received approval for, a waiver, visit www. rivcoph.org/SchoolWaiver."

HUSD will continue with the online learning model through Jan. 21 for elementary students and Feb. 1 for middle and high school stu-

The district previously announced, "This decision was made due to concerns related to safety and the desire to create the most stable and consistent learning environment for students. The potential disruption to in-person instruction in the hybrid-model is due to procedures and protocols that the district is directed to follow from the State and County Public Health officers." The date is subject to change.

For more information, visit www.hemetusd.org/apps/pages/ parentcommunications.

HUSD provides mobile hot spots. However, it realized that was not always adequate in the areas of Anza and Idyllwild. In response, the district stationed two buses that distribute a Wi-Fi signal — one at Town Hall and the other at Lake Hemet — from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. HUSD partnered with the Anza Community Center to bring internet access to stu-

Reopening

Gov. Gavin Newsom outlined a color-coded, tiered system that will use two metrics to measure the coronavirus: spread rate and test positivity percentage.

The tiers are designated by four colors: purple (widespread), red (substantial), orange (moderate) and yellow (minimal with the lowest restrictions).

Counties must remain at each tier for a minimum of 21 days. The metrics are tracked at www.COVID19. ca.gov. Riverside County moved back to the purple tier on Oct. 20.

For more information on state guidance, visit https://covid19. ca.gov/industry-guidance/. www.RivCoBiz.org for modifications and other measures encouraged by the county to keep employees, customers and clients safe.

World War II veteran among 11 graduates to receive diploma through Operation Recognition Program

BY RIVERSIDE COUNTY OFFICE OF EDUCATION CONTRIBUTED

For a student whose formal education came to an end after the eighth grade, the life of World War II veteran Eliodoro "Lolo" Gonzalez is an important lesson in making the most of every situation in life.

At the age of 95, Gonzalez is about to receive something he never thought he could achieve — a high school diploma.

The Operation Recognition Program awards diplomas as a joint effort of the Riverside County Board of Education, the Riverside County Office of Education and the Riverside County Department of Veterans' Services. Since its inception in 2007, 362 diplomas have been presented to residents of Riverside County who missed completing high school due to military service in World War II, the Korean War, the Vietnam War or due to internment in WWII Japanese-American relocation camps.

Gonzalez is one of 11 veterans who will receive their diploma ahead of Veterans Day — along with congratulatory commendations from local legislators.

Dear Idyllwild Community,

Throughout the month of October, students continued to travel from their homes around the world to attend Idyllwild Arts Academy. We are grateful to students who chose Idyllwild Arts for their education. They are deeply committed to pursuing their passion and they hold themselves accountable to one another to create the environment in which young artists can live and grow.

We continue to be pleased with the positive attitudes and proactive steps that everyone has adopted to protect the health and safety of our community. We have conducted weekly COVID-19 tests for all employees and students and will continue to test regularly throughout November to ensure that we are creating the safest possible environment for our students, faculty, and staff.

This week we learned of a positive COVID-19 result in our school community. Housekeeping quickly responded and thoroughly cleaned and sanitized all appropriate spaces. Staff immediately conducted contact tracing and anyone potentially exposed was notified. We are following the guidelines and regulations of federal, regional, and local health officials, and in many cases we exceed all recommended protocols.

Students are adapting to the idea of remaining on campus without off-campus trips into town or elsewhere. We are holding in-person modified classes throughout campus as well as online classes. As cold weather moves the students inside, we now rely on personal protective equipment, thorough and regular cleaning throughout campus, partitions in studios, and more to protect our students and teachers.

Students are making the most of what education must look like in an environment still fighting a pandemic. They miss visiting the town and we know that the residents of Idyllwild miss attending the exhibits, readings, and performances that we always make available, free of charge, to the public.

We are grateful to be part of the Idyllwild community and we appreciate the support we continue to receive. We will keep the residents of Idyllwild apprised of campus activities and we always welcome your questions or concerns.

We wish each of you good health and happiness in the weeks and months ahead.

Warm regards,

Pamela Jordan

President, Idyllwild Arts Foundation

What does tolerance of others mean to you?

BY CALLIE WIGHT

I have been continuing to think about healthy relationships. Not only relationships with those who are our intimates but also our community and societal relationships. I am convinced, without a doubt, that healthy relationships at all levels, in their very essence, benefit each one of us in every way — physically, emotionally, cognitively, practically and economically.

This brought me to thinking about tolerance. A vexed topic for us today. And then I recalled that there is such a thing as International Day of Tolerance.

The International Day of Tolerance is observed annually on Nov. 16. In its Declaration of Principles on Tolerance, the United Nations defines tolerance, in part, as, "... respect, acceptance and appreciation of the rich diversity of our world's cultures, our forms of expression and ways of being human. It is fostered by knowledge, openness, communication, and freedom of thought, conscience and belief. Tolerance is harmony in difference. It is not only a moral duty; it is also a political and legal requirement. Tolerance, the virtue that makes peace possible, contributes to the replacement of the culture of war by a culture of peace."

In her blog post linked below, Hauwa Ibrahim, Esq., a visiting Nigerian scholar at the Wellesley Centers for his brother that which he desires for himself. Women at Wellesley College, Massachusetts, gives us a quote from Rumi: "I am reminded of the words of Rumi (1207-1273), a Sufi scholar, writer and poet who summed up tolerance as unconditional acceptance, patience, love, compassion, and benevolence embodied in what he referred to as 'Seven Advices' which epitomize the highest sentiment of humanity, transcends religious boundaries, and encompasses the common values of all

- In modesty and humility: be like the soil.
- In tolerance: be like the ocean.

Either you appear as you are, or: be as you appear." Ibrahim shares her own definition of tolerance: "In essence tolerance is a prime virtue for human dignity, where diverse peoples can live together with a richness of beliefs and experiences, where people are willing to listen with tolerance and compassion. To live and let

Since, today there are so many opportunities to practice intolerance, active reminders may be necessary.

The United Nations (see links below) suggests the use of Story Circles to deepen understanding of tolerance through gaining intercultural competencies. These are especially useful in groups gathered for learning. "Specifically, some intercultural competencies goals for Story Circles include the following: Demonstrating respect for others, practicing listening for understanding, cultivating curiosity about similarities and differences with others, gaining increased cultural self-awareness, developing empathy, and developing relationships with culturally different others." We might use these goals as everyday guides to stimulate our own awareness and the awareness of our family members.

Teachingvalues.com (see below link) gives us this fascinating list of the universality of what we may know best as the Golden Rule. Simply put, do unto others as you would have others do unto you. What a great learning tool to understand that this value seems to be uni-

TC's tasks: Warning of danger

Co-publisher and general counsel

A newspaper's work in warning of danger includes, of course, reporting on crimes, fires, and dangerous road and weather conditions. But we also warn of health hazards, such as the current coronavirus presence on our hill. And we advise of preventative measures from fire abatement to health precautions.

During the 2013 Mountain Fire, we did not evacuate we stayed and posted continual fire updates in the Town Crier online newspaper. During the 2018 Cranston Fire, we had to evacuate, but we posted fire updates to the Town Crier website using a cellphone.

In the past 15 years, more than 2,000 newspapers have closed in the United States, well more than a hundred in California. Some counties no longer have even one newspaper. But Town Crier Members from Hawaii to Maine are keeping a real newspaper serving our Hill community. To Town Crier Members and to our business and organization advertisers - congratulations and thank you all.

Poor and minority children with food allergies overlooked and in danger

By SANDY WEST Kaiser Health News

As Emily Brown stood in a food pantry looking at her options, she felt alone. Up to that point, she had never struggled financially. But there she was, desperate to find safe food for her young daughter with food allergies. What she found was a jar of salsa and some potatoes.

'That was all that was available," said Brown, who lives in Kansas City, Kansas. "It was just a desperate place."

When she became a parent, Brown left her job for lack of child care that would accommodate her daughter's allergies to peanuts, tree nuts, milk, eggs, wheat and soy. When she and her husband then turned to a federal food assistance program, they found few allowable allergy substitutions. The closest allergy support group she could find was an hour away. She was almost always the only Black parent, and the only poor parent, there.

Brown called national food allergy advocacy organizations to ask for guidance to help poor families find safe food and medical resources, but she said she was told that wasn't their focus. Support groups, fundraising activities and advocacy efforts, plus clinical and research outreach, were targeted at wealthier — and white — families. Advertising rarely reflected families that looked like hers. She

"In many ways, food allergy is an invisible disease. The burden of the disease, the activities and energy it takes to avoid allergens, are mostly invisible to those not impacted," Brown said. "Black and other minority patients often lack voice and visibility in the health care system. Add the additional burden of an invisible condition and you are in a really vulnerable position."

An estimated 6 million children in the United States have food allergies, 40% of them with more than one. Though limited research has been done on race and class breakdowns, recent studies show that poor children and some groups of minority children not only have a higher incidence of food allergies than white children, but their families also have more difficulty accessing appropriate child care, safe food, medical care and lifesaving medicine like epinephrine for them.

Black children are 7% more likely to have food allergies than white children, according to a 2020 study (https://www.eurekalert.org/pub_releases/2020-05/arhfam051320.php) by Dr. Ruchi Gupta (https://www.feinberg.northwestern.edu/faculty-profiles/az/profile.html?xid=17229), at Northwestern University's Feinberg School of Medicine. To be sure, the study shows that Asian children are 24% more likely than white children to have food allergies. But Black and Hispanic children are disproportionately more likely to live in poor communities, to have asthmedical care.

"In many ways, food allergy is an invisible disease. The burden of the disease, the activities and energy it takes to avoid allergens, are mostly invisible to those not impacted."— Emily Brown

And finding allergen-free food to keep allergic children safe can be costly — in both time and money. "Many times, a mother is frank and says, Thave $20 to $40 to buy groceries for the week, and if I buy these foods that you are telling me to buy, I will not be able to feed my entire family," said Dr. Carla Davis (www.texaschildrens. org/find-a-doctor/carla-m-davis-md), director of the food allergy program at Houston's Texas Children's Hospital.

"If you are diagnosed with a food allergy and you don't have disposable income or disposable time, there is really no way that you will be able to alter your diet in a way that your child is going to stay away from their allergen."

Fed up with the lack of support, Brown founded the Food Equality Initiative (https://foodequalityinitiative.org) advocacy organization in 2014. It offers an online marketplace to income-eligible families in Kansas and Missouri who, with a doctor's note about the allergy, can order free allergy-safe food to fit their needs.

Nationwide, though, families' needs far outstrip what her group can offer — and the problem has gotten worse amid the economic squeeze of the COVID pandemma, and to suffer from systemic racism in the delivery of ic. Job losses and business closures have exacerbated the Brown said her organization more than doubled its clientele in March through August, compared with the same period in 2019. And though it currently serves only Missouri and Kansas, she said the organization has been fielding an increasing number of calls from across the country since the pandemic began.

For low-income minorities, who live disproportionately in food deserts, fresh and allergy-friendly foods can be especially expensive and difficult to find in the best of times.

Food assistance programs are heavily weighted to prepackaged and processed foods, which often include the very ingredients that are problematic. Black children are more likely to be allergic to wheat and soy than white children, and both Black and Hispanic children are more likely to be allergic to corn, shellfish and fish, according to a 2016 study (www. jaci-inpractice.org/article/$2213-

After their 3-year-old son, Elijah-Alavi, died as a result of a dairy allergy when fed a grilled cheese instead of his allergen-free food at his preschool, they launched the Elijah-Alavi Foundation to address the dearth of information about food allergies and the critical lack of culturally sensitive medical care in low-income communities.

"We started it for a cause, not because we wanted to, but because we had to," said Thomas Silvera. "Our main focus is to bring to underserved communities — especially communities of color — this information at no cost to them."

Only a few years after the end of World War I, Gonzalez was born in Mexico. His parents relocated to the Inland Empire shortly thereafter and Gonzalez enrolled in Ramona Elementary School on the west side of San Bernardino.

"I was an average student," Gonzalez acknowledged. "I remember that the principal was stern and nobody argued with him." Gonzalez's parents returned to Mexico during the summer following his eighth-grade year — effectively ending his formal, in-classroom education before he ever set foot on the campus of San Bernardino High School.

"I kind of figured that might be the end of school because I had to work and couldn't see myself going back to school," Gonzalez said.

His family returned to San Bernardino when he was 17. He found work at the Santa Fe Railroad's "ice plant" where he maneuvered large blocks of ice into Santa Fe railroad cars to keep fruits, vegetables and other foodstuffs cold as they traveled across the country.

At the age of 18, Gonzalez joined the United States Army in 1943 during the height of World War II. He joined his two older brothers who were also serving in the war — continuing a family tradition that eventually resulted in all seven Gonzalez brothers serving in the U.S. Armed Forces. Gonzalez became a naturalized citizen while serving for the United States on Oct. 19, 1945.

His time of military service included a stint at Port Moresby, the capital of Papua New Guinea in the South Pacific, with the 31st "Dixie" division with many fellow recruits from the southeastern part of the United States.

As a rifleman and truck driver, Gonzalez was part of the force that drove the Japanese off the island and then helped deal with the abandoned equipment and supplies from the fleeing forces after the war ended in 1945. When his division was assigned to serve in Mindanao in the Philippines, he recalls receiving a ticket from the military police for speeding — an ironic circumstance as he would later spend 25 years protecting the streets of San Bernardino from speeders as a police officer.

Gonzalez was honorably discharged in 1946 and returned to work at the railroad ice plant in San Bernardino. He never considered returning to school, but he took the opportunity to improve his English while he was in the Army.

"I grew up speaking Spanish at home and my mom taught me how to read and write in Spanish," Gonzalez said. "I enjoyed reading and was always looking for good stories with my nose in a book."

While serving overseas, Gonzalez described his English as having "an accent like you wouldn't believe." His fellow recruits, many with their own unique accents from the American South, served as good teachers and corrected his English.

His English skills became an important requirement for landing a position as an officer in the San Bernardino Police Department in 1956. He navigated the hiring process and was hired without having to show proof of completing high school.

While serving on the San Bernardino Police Department for 25 years, Gonzalez went through the process to apply for promotions several times. The process included written tests that he always passed. But, he never followed through on the process for fear of being disqualified because he lacked a high school diploma amongst his paperwork.

Whenever I was asked where I graduated from high school, I would tell people I went to the 'Armed Forces Institute,'" Gonzalez said. "Only one guy ever figured it out."

Gonzalez met and married his wife, Carmen, in 1950. They celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary in 2020. Their family of five children has grown to include 10 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren and two greatgreat grandchildren.

Although he has been a resident of Hemet for the last 30 years, Gonzalez took advantage of an opportunity to purchase a lot of land for $2,500 in the mid-1970's on the west side of San Bernardino. Starting with a shovel, he would spend the next six years building a 2,700 square foot, two-story custom home in San Bernardino. He finally moved his family in after he retired from the police force in 1981.

When asked about the prospect of receiving his diploma more than 75 years after he would have attended high school, Gonzalez laughed wistfully.

"The first thing I'm going to do is show it to my great-great grandkids and tell them it's better late than never," Gonzalez said. "Then I'll probably celebrate with a glass of wine."

Missing persons

August, searches were conducted by our Riverside Mountain Rescue Unit (RMRU), in the last known area that Rosario Garcia and Roy Prifogle may have been. No additional information or leads were located during those searches. Melissa Lane is a continued investigation and as well have no updated information at this time. Dia Abrams is a continued investigation with no further update at this time.

The community remains confused by the lack of information being released by the media information bureau and wonders if their safety is at stake. On Sept. 10, a RCSD SUV was spotted hauling an off-road vehicle near Highway 243 and Saunders Meadow Road. According to Hemet Sheriff Station

Capt. Leonard Purvis, "They were conducting follow-up searches for Melissa Lane." While it was unclear exactly where on the mountain deputies were searching for Lane, Purvis also confirmed that the search didn't provide any further information or evidence of where Lane may have gone missing. That is an update RCSD could have provided. Lane, 41, was last seen June 15, according to a poster on display in the Mountain Center area. The Town Crier spoke to Kathy Lamont, Lane's mother, right after she was reported missing.

"She was an avid hiker but didn't have a destination," Lamont said. "She was last seen in Pine Cove. I don't know if she's dead or alive."

Friends, family and the community have been left in the dark. The emotional toll all of the families and friends of these missing people are having to endure can only be expressed as excruciating.

Garcia was last seen July 7 wearing a brown shirt and blue jeans at the 26000 block of Katherine Street in Hemet. Garcia is a 73-year-old Hispanic female and it is possible she suffers from dementia or Alzheimer's disease. She is 5' 3" tall and 120 pounds.

Palm Desert deputies from the RCSD were dispatched to the area of 70000 East Highway 74 in Pinyon Pines at 11:46 a.m. July 9 after Garcia's vehicle was found unoccupied. Garcia was not located after a search of the area was conducted.

Earlier in the year, Prifogle was reported missing after going on a hike in the Pine Cove area Wednesday, March 4. He left home at about 1 p.m. and was last seen at the Pine Cove Market at 6:30 p.m. on the same day. He was last seen wearing a red backpack and jeans.

RCSD Deputy Jeremy Parsons said, "After six full days of searching in between inclement weather, searching 8 to 10 hours per day, Prifogle has not been located. The RMRÚ, as well as search and rescue volunteers from San Bernardino County, Orange County and San Diego County, were assisting. In total, about 150 people have been searching during those six days." Also adding, "On the second or third day of the search, we found his backpack, but have found no other clues as to his whereabouts."

On Sunday, June 7 at about 8:24 a.m., Hemet Station deputies were dispatched to 10:15 a.m.

6:31 p.m.

the 58000 block of Bonita Vista in reference to a missing person. Abrams was placed into the system as a missing person.

Abrams is 65 years old, 5' 5" tall, 130 pounds with blonde hair and blue eyes.

She was last seen wearing a black and turquoise jacket, vellow shirt and blue jeans.

Áccording to RMRU, their team of volunteers was dispatched Abrams' 160-acre ranch in the Apple Canyon area (between Mountain Center and Garner Valley) June 9. They conducted a search from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. with no success of finding Abrams.

RMRU went out again June 10 to search more difficult areas on the property including a creek bed and the hills overlooking her ranch. All assignments were completed by 6 p.m. At that point, detectives took over investigation and called off the physical ground search.

New restaurant opens

By Jenny Kirchner Reporter/Photographer

Stevie Davis and Jennifer Muir have spent most of their adult lives in the restaurant business. They've worked their way from working at other restaurants to owning their own catering company. Now, they have taken the next step — opening their own restaurant.

While they are only in the beginning of this grand adventure, they have bigger ideas and creations for the future. After signing the lease just before COVID-19 hit, Davis and Muir were in the same boat as many, delayed and unable to open. The silver lining is that it gave them more time to prepare and explore how to make their dreams a reality.

Davis attended culinary school at the California Culinary Academy in San Francisco, gaining knowledge and skills while working his way up in many restaurants over the years.

Muir has been inventing unique and tasty drinks while being a manager and bartender at restaurants throughout the state

Between the two, they are a perfect team to create quality food and drinks with an atmosphere to match.

"Our goal is to provide quality food at a price point everyone can afford," Muir said. "All of our food is fresh and made from scratch with no preservatives."

With the help of Marisa Kesler (head baker) and Cheyne Odil (demi chef), Davis (chef) and Muir (mixologist) have been able to open the doors of Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit.

"We are using as much organic and non-GMO food as possible," Davis said. "We also have a 20% discount for locals."

By early next year, Davis and Muir are planning to open the bar with a full liquor license and full dinner menu.

"We started this restaurant with $2,000 and we've made it happen," Davis said. "We have been afforded the time to make it the way we wanted with décor and we've hired local people to do the major electrical and plumbing work. It's all been Idyllwild done."

Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit is looking for a bakery and deli manager as well as a kitchen manager. Davis and Muir are now offering gourmet cheeses and meats in their deli but need more staff to make it as successful as possible.

"We will slice cheese to order and we are getting a lot of imported cheeses and dried meats," Davis said.

In the long run, Davis and Muir want to offer a unique, nighttime dining experience with entertainment when they are allowed by county health and state regulations to do so. They have an early 1900s Franklin piano ready to be played but look forward to bringing talented artists in to perform.

Currently, Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit's kitchen is open Wednesday through Sunday 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. Bakery and deli items as well as coffee drinks are available until 5:30 p.m.

"We want people to enjoy their time here and we want it to be good, clean food and drinks," Muir said. "Once the bar opens, our juices will be fresh-squeezed and we will make handmade syrups."

They say everything tastes better when it's made by someone who cares about you. So, that is exactly what Davis and Muir want to provide.

"The pure intention is to make the food and drinks with love," Davis said. "You can taste the difference when the food is made with love and good intentions."

Muir added, "We want people to try something new and different that maybe they wouldn't be able to try anywhere else. We are also open to comments and suggestions from the community."

So far, Davis and Muir have been selling out of their food. However, due to their food not having preservatives, creating a short shelf life, Davis and Muir plan to start a donation program with the Idyllwild HELP Center and other non-profit organizations if they have leftover food.

"The support we've had from the community has been phenomenal and overwhelming so far," Davis said. "We are grateful for their support. The people in the community have stepped up and it means a lot to us."

Some have wondered how Davis and Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit is now open.

Muir came up with their name.

They held a community questionnaire on Facebook asking for suggestions. Linda Lauderbaugh suggested Hungry Habit and the Thirsty Rabbit, which became the most popular choice and ultimately what Davis and Muir chose to use.

All of the coffee is supplied by locals Chris and Katie Bayer of Black Mountain Coffee Roasting

"We are very community driven," Davis said. "We want to stay as local as possible with everything."

The restaurant will be evolving and changing as Davis and Muir adjust to their new business. Delivery is also available for those who don't want to venture out Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit is located at 54200 N. Circle Dr. It can be found on Facebook and Instagram and a website is in the works.

Stop in and try Stevie's Hungry Habit and Thirsty Rabbit. They're open and ready to serve you food and drinks made with love.

Idyllwild Arts senior publishes in top-tier literary journal

By Idyllwild Arts Academy Contributed

The publication this month of Idyllwild Arts Academy (IAA) twelfth-grader Rome Smaoui's short story, "Days of Summer," in Narrative (www.narrativemagazine.com/) is a startling achievement for a high school student. Narrative is a top-tier literary journal and it is free to register. The number of Narrative pieces appearing annually in the prestigious anthology, The Best American Short Stories, compares well with the numbers chosen from The Kenyon Review, The Missouri Review and Virginia Quarterly Review.

"Days of Summer" suggests not only Rome's talent, but the ambivalence about her identity that drives much of her work. The story takes place in Rome's North African home country of Tunisia.

"It's about two young sisters whose mother is very strict and won't let them leave the house by themselves," she says. "Strictness like that toward girls isn't unusual in that part of the world. Through their windows they can see boys playing outside and the boys tease them. One day the sister, who's a little older, rebels and climbs out the window."

During this extraordinary time, Rome has spent the first two months of the IAA school year studying online in her parents' house in Davidson, North Carolina, 20 miles north of Charlotte.

"I don't live with anything like the strictness that those sisters experience," she says. "Especially not when I'm at Idyllwild Arts! But if you were to ask me what I am, just like you'd probably say you're an American, I wouldn't hesitate. I absolutely consider myself a Tunisian. I guess that's strange since I always feel pushed out by Tunisian culture when I visit there. They think of me as American instead of Tunisian."

Identity reclaimed

Almost a decade ago, Rome's parents made a game of permitting only English to be spoken at home. In the accent that is the consequence, hinting that she might have grown up in LA or Seattle, she explains that her name is connected to her sense of exclusion.

"Mariem, the name my parents gave me, is extremely common in that part of the world. But feeling pushed out like I did, it didn't seem to belong to me. For Idyllwild Arts, where I first came as a sophomore, I needed a new name so I could reclaim my identity. A lot of our Chinese students take new names, and that's about more than the difficulty that English-speakers have in pronouncing Chinese. Renaming yourself is liberating! Anyway, I wrote a story about a girl named Rome who was everything I wanted to be: carefree, but also ... I don't know. I guess free, period."

The desire for freedom is easy to understand, as is renaming oneself as an expression of, and even a path to, freedom. But why "Rome?"

"Not sure," she acknowledges. "Rome is a specific place, but also one of those places that's known everywhere. So maybe it's a way of saying that I could be from anywhere: that you can't pin me down."

Yes. In 1175, when French theologian and poet Alain de Lille observed that "a thousand roads lead to Rome," he knew that the roads also led out of the city.

Rome herself first followed a road out at the end of the summer of 2011, when she was 8. The previous December, a Tunisian street vendor named Mohamed Bouazizi had set himself on fire to dramatize his country's lack of economic opportunity, igniting the Arab Spring protests. As the revolution in Tunisia proceeded, Rome's parents moved the family to Dubai, where her father had work. She lived in Dubai until she came to Idyllwild Arts

Approaching God through metaphor

in August 2018.

The next big move for Rome after graduating from the Academy next spring might be to New York. This past summer she enjoyed Columbia University's advanced creative writing workshop, participating online, of course. Now she hopes to continue her creative writing studies at Columbia.

Before the coronavirus pandemic struck, Rome had found inspiration in New York for another of her notable writing achievements.

"I was in a museum," she said. "New York has so many that I can't remember which one. But I saw a writer use his entire body to perform a poem and decided that I wanted to do something similar."

The result was her blindfolded recitation at an Idyllwild Arts campus reading of "I Mother Some Instinct."

"Some people told me that seeing a poem recited blindfolded was so striking that they didn't notice the words," she laughs. "But I hope that whoever reads the poem will notice that it's about God and our vulnerability to God, which is even greater than the vulnerability of blindness. But it's a pretty good metaphor for our relationship to God, who's supposed to be invisible but able to see us at all times."

Rome's talent suggests that many readers will be able to see her as well, as she publishes more of her work in highly visible places.

Jesse went on to win three more gold medals in the 1936 Olympics, making him the first track-and-field star from the United States to win four gold medals at the Olympics. He showed the world that people of any race could based on hard work and dedication, not race.

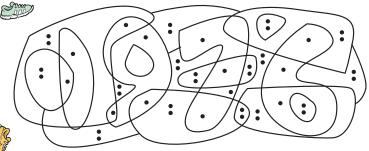

New York City gave Jesse a ticker-tape parade when he came home from the Olympics, but he was still not treated equally in his own country.

"When I came back to my native country, after all the stories about Hitler, I couldn't ride in the front of the bus," Jesse said. "I had to go to the back door. I couldn't live where I wanted. I wasn't invited to shake hands with Hitler, but I wasn't invited to the White House to shake hands with the president, either."

40 years later, President Gerald Ford invited Jesse to the White House and gave him the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest honor a civilian can achieve. What year was that? Color the spaces with one dot red.

Jesse went on to win many more awards and he talked to people about the importance of sports, the Olympics and democracy. He never stopped working to be better in his own life and to make lives better for others.

Roger loves to go for a run every morning he wakes up before the sun rises he always stretches his muscles first and then he heads for his favorite trail that is next to a creek as Roger runs he enjoys seeing the frogs birds and butterflies busily beginning their day on weekends Roger runs with his friend Stacy who lives down the street from Roger they both signed up for the big Midtown Park 10K Fun Run it is being held next Saturday afternoon at 1:00 which attracts thousands of runners from all over the state Stacy and Roger will train for the event while also making sure to eat healthy foods and drink plenty of water while also getting a good night's sleep every night.

When Jesse was a child in Alabama, white children and black children were not allowed to go to the same school. When he could, Jesse would walk nine miles to and from the only school for black children. He loved school.

When Jesse was in high school, he won races and set world records for his age group. Colleges wanted him to be on their track teams. Jesse became the first person in his family to go to college. He chose Ohio State University, where he became a member of the Buckeye track-and-field team.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

CREATURE CORNER

By Janice Murasko

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," ARF cat's learned how adopted pets are beneficial for the whole family.

Pepper: I have some surprise and some not-such-a-surprise news!

Lulu: Let's hear it!

Pepper: ARF's new dog Benny has been adopted.

Whiskers: I'm so not surprised. He is adorable. Pepper: And the other news did surprise ARF humans. When Holly, one of the new ARF dogs went to the vet, she was confirmed pregnant. Very pregnant.

Whiskers: Wow. Has she had the puppies? Pepper: She had them sooner than anyone had anticipated! She had a bunch-o-babies last Wednesday. Lulu: How exciting! When may we meet them? I just love puppies and kittens. Pepper: Oh, we won't meet them for a little while. They are in the arms of a caring foster who is helping to feed them since Holly seems a bit overwhelmed. Lulu: So, we have kittens, puppies, Holly and sweet Buddy. Pepper: Correct! All of the puppies are way too young to meet the public but I'm guessing the kittens are ready to meet potential forever families. It will be about three or four weeks for the puppies. Lulu: That's right! ARF is now letting potential forever families meet the kittens and submit applications with deposits.

Pepper: When may they do that?

Lulu: Folks may call for an appointment or stop by the ARF House on the weekends. Pepper: I heard that one kitten is already spoken for. I bet the rest will go quickly. Lulu: Without doubt! They are so playful and cute.

Whiskers: How about some kitten photos?

Lulu: Portraits are scheduled for this week. Pepper: You mean like a real photo shoot?

Lulu: Only the best for ARF pets!

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243 on Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and Sundays 10 a.m.- 2 p.m., or by appointment M-F by calling 951-659-1122.

Your ruling planet, Mars, allows you to assume a sense of command that can help you turn a chaotic workplace situation into one that's orderly, productive and, yes, even friendly.

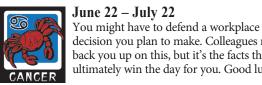

Getting a relationship that's been stuck in a rut up and running again depends on how far you want to run with it. Be honest with yourself as you consider which decision to

April 20 – May 20

Be wary of rumors that seem to be coming from everywhere this week. Waiting for the facts before you act means never having to say you're sorry you followed the wrong decision you plan to make. Colleagues might back you up on this, but it's the facts that will ultimately win the day for you. Good luck.

July 23 – August 22

Some of the new people coming into the Lion's life could play pivotal roles in future personal and professional matters. Meanwhile, an old friend might have an important

A delay in getting things moving on schedule can be a blessing in disguise. Use this extra time to do more research so you can buttress any of the weaker points with solid facts.

You might need to get involved in a personal matter before it becomes a serious problem. Also, be wary of someone offering to mediate, unless you can be sure of his or her motives.
