IDYLLWILD, CA

Veterans attending War Horse Creek soon to have housing

By Jenny Kirchner Reporter/Photographer

VOL. 76 NO. 10

Living Free Animal Sanctuary (Living Free) created a program called War Horse Creek (WHC). The program rescues wild horses and mustangs and provides equine-assisted reintegration training to military veterans, helping them reintegrate into civilian life; ultimately, helping both the veterans and the rescues.

The nonprofit organization is set to offer three, five and seven-day programs starting this summer. Because of this, WHC wants to provide housing, dining and bathroom facilities to all participating veterans. Up to this point, the veterans have brought their own camping gear or trailers to stay on the property.

On the morning of March 2, Mike and Linda Rivkin, business managers from the Southern California Pipe Trades Administrative Corporation (SCPTAC) and active and retired military, met at Living Free for the groundbreaking of the semi-permanent structures that will be built between now and the middle of June.

The Rivkins donated $25,000 to the WHC. SCPTAC provided a matching $25,000 grant.

Fire code approved and emergency siren update

By Melissa Diaz Hernandez

The Idyllwild Fire Protection District (IFPD) Board of Commissioners approved the fire code as presented at its February meeting. An update regarding the emergency siren alert system was given and a discussion regarding the purchase of a metal vehicle storage building

Brett Leseberg was awarded 2020 Firefighter of the Year. Nelson Escovar was awarded the 2020 Chiefs Excellence Award and Josh Pereda was awarded 2020 Reserve of the Year.

The appeal process is covered in Chapter 1 section 108 including establishing the board of appeals, limitations on authority, request for hearing and its procedures, appeals to the board of directors and fees and costs.

Under Chapter 9 is the following: "Additions to existing buildings. When an addition to an existing structure is (33%) or more of the original square footage 'and' the addition area is greater than 1,000 square feet the entire structure shall be provided with an automatic sprin-kler system." Sheriff says why it waited to retrieve Rosario Garcia

By IENNY KIRCHNER

Over the weekend, the Idyllwild Town Crier reached out to the media information bureau of the Riverside County Sheriff's Department (RCSD) to ask why it took until Feb. 5 to retrieve Rosario Garcia.

Skeletal remains were brought to the attention of the RCSD Jan. 25 by the Fowler-O'Sullivan Foundation. Western States Aerial Search, who was working with the foundation, spent hours collecting photos of the area between Jan. 22 and 24.

While RCSD was notified immediately once the skeletal remains were identified in the photos, nothing was done until Feb. 5.

Sgt. Deanna Pecoraro of the media information bureau responded by email Monday morning writing, "On Jan. 25, it was snowing heavily and the conditions were dangerous. When we were advised of possible human remains in the area, we were only given photographs and coordinates."

Pecoraro continued, "We waited for the conditions to get better and needed the snow to melt not only for safety but to assure we could identify and recover all of the remains.'

The RCSD released the following Thursday, Feb. 18: "On Friday, Feb. 5, 2021, personnel from RMRU, Riverside County Search Dogs, Riverside County Coroner's Bureau, Riverside County Forensics, Sheriff's Emergency Response Team and personnel from the Hemet Station responded to the Mountain Center area and conducted a search in an area where information was received that possible human remains had been seen. Human remains consistent with an adult female were located in the area as well as items belonging to Rosario Garcia. Our Coroner's Bureau was able to obtain a positive identification that the remains belonged to Rosario Garcia. There is no evidence of foul play."

Garcia's family has now been able to work on finding closure, but the searching continues for the four other families.

Kendra Johnson recently posted topographic maps of the general area on her Facebook page of where her father, Roy Prifogle, went missing and where his backpack

Other than the response regarding Garcia, the media information bureau did not respond to an email requesting updates on the four remaining missing persons.

Four people remain missing

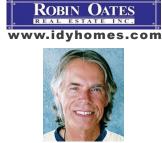

Eight people have gone missing in the area since March of last year and four remain missing

On Sept. 10, an RCSD SUV was spotted hauling an off-road vehicle near Highway 243 and Saunders Meadow Road.

According to Hemet Sheriff Station Capt. Leonard Purvis, "They were conducting follow-up searches for Melissa Lane."

While it was unclear exactly where on the mountain deputies were searching for Lane, Purvis also confirmed that the search didn't provide any further information or evidence of where Lane may have gone missing.

Lane, 41, was last seen June 15, according to a poster that was displayed in the See Missing persons, page A5

COVID-19 LOCAL UPDATE:

School board votes on hybrid in-person instruction

By Melissa Diaz Hernandez

Recently, the county announced that transitional kindergarten through sixth grade can resume in-person instruction with approved COVID-19 prevention plans because the county has less than 25 cases per 100,000 residents.

The Hemet Unified School District Board voted on the "approval of the instructional model and timeline to return to hybrid in-person instruction" at its Tuesday night meeting. The newspaper will report the outcome

The proposed timeline is as follows: "Students in grades preschool to second grade will return March 29, 2021 and grades three through five will return April 12, 2021. Middle School students in sixth grade will return April 12, 2021 and grades seven and eight will return April 19, 2021. High School students in ninth grade will return April 12, 2021 and grades 10 to 12 will return April 19, 2021."

The county reminded residents that "Schools previously open for transitional kindergarten through sixth grade education under the earlier waivers process remain in operation, as do those schools that opened for all grade levels during the county's brief period in the state's red tier framework, Dr. Cameron Kaiser, [the county's public health officer said]."

The county also announced "Moderate- and high-contact sports, including soccer, football, baseball, cheer and water polo, may now resume in Riverside County as the county's adjusted case rate is 11.3.'

The county recently announced "For those who received a first dose at a county vaccine clinic (also called points of distribution or PODs), local health officials will reach out to residents through the contact method provided at the first appointment. At that time, the county will provide instructions for receiving the second dose conforming to the current CDC guideline on timeframes. Residents who received their first dose at [a] private provider, should contact that same provider to schedule their second dose."

The CDC announced the second dose of the COVID-19 shot can be administered 42 days after the first dose instead of the originally recommended 21 or

According to the Riverside University Health System - Public Health (RUHS) website, the area of Idyllwild-Pine Cove has a total of 113 reported COVID-19 cases since the outbreak and two deaths reported. One hundred and eight of the 113 people have

As of press time on March 9, Riverside County has 291,040 confirmed COVID-19 cases, 3,912 deaths related to COVID-19 and 280,923 people have recovered. Two hundred and fifty-one individuals are being hospitalized, and of those, 64 are in the ICU. The county's positivity rate is 5.8%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 is 11.3.

As of press time on March 2, Riverside County had 289,773 confirmed COVID-19 cases, 3,792 deaths related to COVID-19 and 274,956 people had recovered. Three hundred and seven individuals were being hospitalized, and of those, 83 were in the ICU. The county's positivity rate was 7.6%. The current adjusted case rate

As of press time on Feb. 23, Riverside County had 287,822 confirmed COVID-19 cases, 3,664 deaths related to COVID-19 and 265,635 people had recovered. Four hundred and forty-one individuals were being hospitalized, and of those, 132 were in the ICU. The county's positivity rate was 11.0%. The current adjusted case rate per 100,000 was 28.8.

To date, 2,545,613 total tests have been given for COVID-19 in Riverside County, according to RUHS.

"The pandemic has had a major impact on education, like everything else, and as case rates currently continue to decline we can start getting more kids back in class," said Dr. Camer-on Kaiser, Riverside County's public health officer. "But this can't be without safety precautions or monitoring. Our districts and schools are commit-

The HUSD board previously decided the district would continue with the online learning model through the end of the 2020/21 school year. However, the board voted on the "approval of the instructional model and timeline to return to hybrid in-person instruction" at its Tuesday meeting. The newspaper will cover the results next week.

The proposed timeline is as follows: "Students in grades preschool to second grade will return March 29, 2021 and grades three through five will return April 12, 2021. Middle School students in sixth grade will return April 12, 2021 and grades seven and eight will return April 19, 2021. HUSD provides mobile hot spots. However, it realized that was not always adequate in the areas of Anzand Idyllwild. In response, the district stationed two buses that distribute a Wi Fi cignal — one at Town Hall ute a Wi-Fi signal — one at Town Hall and the other at Lake Hemet — from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Wednesdays. HUSD partnered with the Anza Community Center to bring internet access to students.

Reopening
Gov. Gavin Newsom outlined a color-coded, tiered system that will use two metrics to measure the coronavirus:

spread rate and test positivity percentage.
The tiers are designated by four colors: purple (widespread), red (substantial), orange (moderate) and yellow (minimal with the lowest restrictions).

Counties must remain at each tier for a minimum of 21 days. Currently, the county is in the purple tier.

Siren update

A subcontractor will install the siren. The pole has been delivered and should be installed soon.

Fire Chief Mark LaMont said, "With the new subcontractor for Sentry Siren, they put in a request for the pole about two weeks ago and I just got notified today [Feb. 23] that the pole will be delivered here in 10 to 15 days ... As soon as the pole arrives, their subcontractor from Denver, Colorado will arrive within a day or two to set the siren on the pole, do all the infrastructure work for that and then set the pole." By March 15, the siren should be attached to the pole, according to LaMont.

It was reiterated during the meeting that the siren is in partnership with the Fern Valley Water District (FVWD). The water district will be able to use the alert system to notify customers of a potential contamination.

Newly elected Commissioner Christina Reitz asked about the role of Idyllwild Water District (IWD) in the emergency siren system. LaMont stated that IWD decided to not partner with IFPD.

He continued by saying that it would have been nice if IWD partnered and contributed but IFPD would not let the citizens be at risk if there were a contamination. However, IWD will not have access to the siren at its discretion like FVWD.

A monthly test is currently scheduled for 4 p.m. the third Saturday of each month once the siren and pole are installed. The test will last 20 seconds. The district will be working with Mountain Disaster Preparedness to educate the community regarding the siren.

Vehicle storage building

The board discussed the purchase of a metal vehicle storage building. The purpose of purchasing the building, according to LaMont, is to have a place to store the vehicles and reduce vehicle maintenance. LaMont included the Capital Improvement Plan for 2021/25 so the board can see what else the district is looking to purchase.

"What will fit up here is anywhere from a 40 foot or 50-footwide to a 90-foot long," said LaMont. The district went out and priced the units. Empire Steel Buildings, of San Diego, provided a quote for $41,934 for a 40-by-80-by-15'6'. Carport Central, of Mount Airy, provided a quote of $76,965.82 for a 40-by-80-by-16. A concrete foundation will be an additional cost.

The semi-permanent structures will offer the flexibility to be moved as the program continues to grow and is a more financially suitable option. The structures will be built by volunteers, some of which are veterans.

Ray Barmore, equine and facilities manager at Living Free said, "I'm excited. We're finally taking the first step. The reason we are building so-called temporary is that maybe a couple years down the line we might want to rearrange and move structures. And as we get our feet wet, we can really see exactly where we want things when it's time for permanent structures."

There will be one building, 24 feet wide and 36 feet long, with sleeping cubicles for privacy. There will be another 24-footwide by 36-foot-long structure that will be a combination of a mess hall and a kitchen and one smaller structure for the staff and a building for the shower house. All of these structures will be built and finished by mid-June, just in time for the first three-day session to begin June 18.

Many of the supplies WHC is getting to build these temporary structures will be at discounted rates.

ShelterLogic is providing the materials for the structures. Village Hardware, in Idyllwild, is providing discounted plywood that will be coming in from New Zealand to build the decks.

When Omar Galindo, of SCPTAC, heard WHC needed more funds for this project, he took the initiative to help pool together the $25,000 grant.

"This program is going to help a lot of veterans," Galindo explained. "When I first came up here and worked with the horses, for me, that made me really realize my lack of communication and how much I need to work on that with my wife and kids. I want people to have awareness of what this place can be. The more people who know about it, the more we can grow. I will come up here and do whatever work I can do, when I can do it."

WHC hopes to expand its operations to the national level, eventually allowing them to provide help to thousands of veterans all over the country and rescue the horses and mustangs in desperate need of care. A win for everyone.

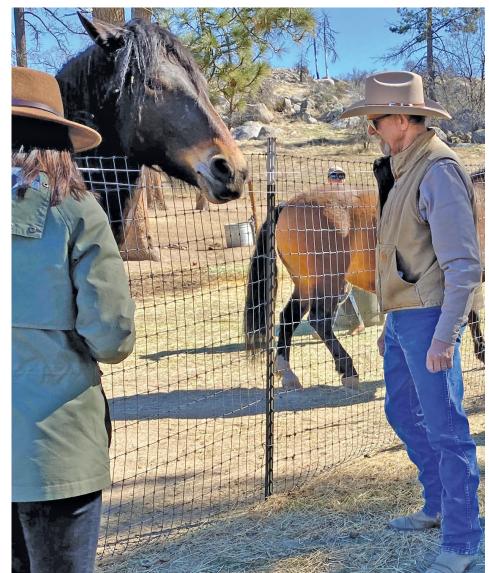

"We came to know Randall [Harris] a few years ago, and we really jumped on the train because of Randall and his vision and interest in putting this together," Mike said. "We are sorry not to have him here today, but it's wonderful to see things progressing regardless."

The Rivkins have property in the Coachella Valley that they might be able to use to help expand WHC as it grows.

"We have the space and potentially the ability to follow up on what's done here and do something similar down on the desert floor and be sort of the first franchisee," Mike said.

Barmore added, "They've got a great piece of property in the Whitewater area that backs up to the mountains and it's just a beautiful spot. It would be really ideal for this type of thing."

Thanks to the generosity of Linda and Mike Rivkin and the SCPTAC, the first $50,000 is on its way to help WHC grow its vision to assist fellow veterans.

Dear Idyllwild Community,

In-person instruction began this week at Idyllwild Arts Academy! We are absolutely delighted to have our students return to the classroom, even with schedule modifications and reconfigured spaces. Students have already done the hard part: quarantining for two weeks, attending arts and academics classes online, attending virtual social events, and sharing meals only with roommates. Their dedication and tenacity are paying off now that they can once again collaborate in person with their peers.

We are grateful that the vaccine for COVID-19 has been made available to educators and that many Idyllwild Arts employees have received the vaccination. We continue to go the extra mile to ensure that our community is safe by administering weekly COVID-19 tests to students and employees, by maintaining social distancing, by increasing outdoor seating, and by other means. Recently, through our regular protocols we learned that an IAA employee had tested positive for the virus. We appreciate the diligence and dedication of our community in complying with weekly testing so that we were able quickly to address the situation and limit the potential spread. Out of an abundance of caution, boarding students are still prohibited from leaving campus at this time.

With students now settled on campus, we have several events underway (still virtually, of course!).

We invite you to join us online this Friday, March 12, for our annual Art In Society Symposium. This year's theme is Art and Healing. The Symposium will feature three one-hour sessions on healing through the creative process. This is also the final week for A Pimple Of Mountain: Caring For Wounds, a thought-provoking and intense exhibition by Yixuan "Maisie" Luo, an Academy graduate in the Class of 2015. Finally, our annual Black History Month Concert, which is so popular among our community and was previously postponed, will now take place on Sunday, March 21, at 4 pm. Please visit the school's events calendar at idyllwildarts.org for links to these virtual events. We'd love to see you there.

We appreciate the support we continue to receive from the community of Idyllwild. Our students are so happy to be back "on the hill," enjoying the tranquility and inspiration that are found here. We are grateful to the Associates of Idyllwild Arts Foundation, which continues to support our students and faculty in a myriad of ways, even during the pandemic when we can connect only virtually. There is an African proverb that says, "It takes a village to raise a child." We are deeply grateful for the support our school receives from our mountaintop village, Idyllwild.

Warmly,

Pamela Jordan

President, Idyllwild Arts Foundation

particularly look alike judging from published photographs of the two. Google them and take a look.

Well, what other history — Black and otherwise — is being mischaracterized, omitted, lost in the telling - casually dismissed?

Madame Walker was born free in 1867 in Louisiana. She became a wealthy businesswoman, philanthropist and political and social activist in the early 20th century. Like many African Americans, I recognize her image from past Black History Month programming, plus her haircare products were a fixture in my childhood home.

The "mistaken identification" is regrettable, even more so as Kid Scoop (in Sonoma, California) will not issue a correction. I telephoned the nonprofit and was told that it would take a month before a correction could be published, and by then, probably no one would notice or remember seeing the feature.

Well, what other history — Black and otherwise — is being mischaracterized, omitted, lost in the telling — casually dismissed? It is not OK to let the Kid Scoop failure slide. According to its website, the feature "appears in more than 300 newspapers with a combined circulation of more than 7.5 million."

I laud Vicki Whiting, Kid Scoop's founder for her goal "to provide resources to parents, schools ... foster academic success, a joy of learning and family discussions" but her organization should acknowledge and promptly correct its error and be more diligent in the future. Don't "draw children into the page ... stimulate their interest" with falsehoods and sloppy editing.

African American History should be taught accurately, broadly and in-depth as a part of regular school curriculum, beginning at an early age — not crammed into 28 days, then ignored for the next 337.

Handwashing

By Callie Wight

During Women's History month we recognize women's role in disease prevention through innovation ever today.

We often think a simple action like frequent handwashing is petty when it comes to preventing disease and staying healthy. We couldn't be more wrong.

Simple hand hygiene is the single most important factor for infection control.

This is recognized by public health experts all over the planet. Handwashing, in particular, has been championed by health care professionals for over 160 years. (Hand hygiene per se is defined to include handwashing and/or use of alcohol-based hand sanitizers). There is even such a thing as the Global Handwashing Partnership. "The Global Handwashing Partnership is a coalition of international stakeholders working to promote handwashing with soap and recognize hygiene as a pillar of international development and public health" (see third link below). Why is this so important?

"Diarrhea and pneumonia are leading causes of death for children under the age of 5. Handwashing with soap is among the most effective and inexpensive ways to prevent these diseases. This simple behavior can save lives, cutting diarrhea by almost one-half and acute respiratory infections by nearly one-quarter. Handwashing with soap impacts not just health and nutrition, but also education, economics and equity.

"Decontamination using hand hygiene remains one of the most important and effective methods for reducing healthcare-associated infections and cross-infection between patients. In 1860, Florence Nightingale wrote that nurses should wash their hands frequently throughout the day, demonstrating an early awareness of the effectiveness of this simple procedure. The COVID-19 pandemic has demonstrated that effectively applied hand hygiene is a vital intervention that can be used to prevent the spread of disease" (see fourth link below).

Florence Nightingale, considered the Mother of Nursing, saw a link between cleanliness and disease transmission before 1860. Yet, the germ theory of disease was not proven until 1875. Nevertheless, Nightingale, adhering to her belief in the power of observation coupled with practice, put two-and-two together and posited a correlation between handwashing and general cleanliness and a decrease in death rates from illness. She implemented brand-new health care practices on sick wards in war zones and at home in hospitals in Britain. These innovative changes saved lives with death rates being dramatically reduced.

Juli C. Maxworthy, RN, MSN, MBA, CPHQ, observed, "In 1860, Nightingale wrote 'Notes on Nursing, What It Is and Is Not' in response to the high infant-mortality rate in England, strongly linking hand hygiene and cleanliness with lower patient mortality. She wrote: 'In almost all diseases, the function of the skin is, more or less, disordered; and in many most important diseases nature relieves herself almost entirely by the skin. Poisoning by the skin is no less certain than poisoning by the mouth — only it is slower in its operation. Every nurse ought to be careful to wash her hands very frequently during the day. If her face too, so much the better.'

'Nightingale's book, 'Notes on Nursing' (1860), was more of a public health instruction book than a nursing manual. It advised ordinary people how to maintain healthy homes ..." (see the second link below). She advised folks at home to use the same measures she herself innovated in those hospital wards and field hospitals during the Crimean War. These measures were part of her own nursing principle, known as the Environmen-

Nightingale's Environmental Theory continues to inform health care of the ill today at home and in hospitals. "She identified 5 environmental factors: fresh air, pure water, efficient drainage, cleanliness or sanitation, and light or direct sunlight in her theory." (see last link below). In her public health-oriented book, "Notes on Nursing," she advised homemakers to consider these same five elements in the maintenance of good overall hygiene in the home as well as especially when caring at home for the ill.

One school district's struggle over public health, parents and politics

By Mark Kreidler Kaiser Health News

[UPDATED on March 6]

Brandon Dell'Orto listened to the comments and complaints as the school board meeting dragged on hour after hour. Many parents were angry. Their kids were sad, bored, borderline depressed, fed up with a school model that didn't allow them to be on campus every day. The parents wanted schools open. They de-

Dell'Orto, a history teacher and teachers union leader in the Roseville Joint Union High School District near Sacramento, knew it wasn't so simple. Many of the district's classrooms couldn't meet new state guidelines

(https://www.cdph.ca.gov/Programs/CID/DCDC/ CDPH%20Document%20Library/COVID-19/Consolidated_Schools_Guidance.pdf) for resuming safe on-campus instruction. Further, 4 in 5 teachers in his union, the Roseville Secondary Education Association, opposed a full return to the physical classroom. They feared for their safety and that of some students, and many preferred to wait to be vaccinated before once again teaching in person.

Dell'Orto also knew that the protocols and opinions were unlikely to affect the ultimate decision. In the most recent election, Roseville voters had chosen three school board members who campaigned primarily on a message of reopening classrooms full time. It was clear, Dell'Orto said, that the new members were going to do exactly that.

California has 1,037 public school districts, each empowered to make its own decision about reopening schools during the covid-19 pandemic. Politics and public health are at war in many districts, including this one. So, while classrooms had been closed nearly a year in neighboring Sacramento County, the Roseville schools were going the other way.

The night of the meeting, Jan. 26, the school board See KHN School, page A5

rushed out an online survey to parents. Within three days, 94% of those households had responded, and the results were clear: They overwhelmingly wanted the schools to reopen five days a week for in-person instruction. On Jan. 31, the board approved such a reopening, effective immediate-

"We are not going to move backwards," Lisa Mendenhall, parent of a student at Oakmont High School, had declared at the board meeting.

For years, Dell'Orto said, Roseville's teachers have enjoyed a good relationship with the district, its families and the school board. But when it came to discussing the continuation of a hybrid model versus a full return to campus, the teachers union, which had proposed the hybrid, was largely ignored. During the $5\,1\!\!/\!2$ -hour meeting on Jan. 26, Dell'Orto said he was allotted 90 seconds to weigh in.

"We really try to be a pragmatic, productive partner," he told California Healthline. "Lately, though, everything has gone to 'Pick a side."

"This is why the country is in this situation," Dell'Orto told the board. "Because people don't want to follow guide-

The board approved a back-to-school order even though three of the six high schools in the district had been unable to meet guidelines for keeping the recommended distance between students. In a previous attempt at reopening, following winter vacation, one of the schools, Roseville High, had to quickly shut down after a covid outbreak forced hundreds of students and staff members into quarantine.

Jess Borjon, the district's interim superintendent, told California Healthline that administrators were "confident that we can arrive at the minimum distance" of 4 feet between desks allowed under new California Department of Public Health guidelines issued in mid-January. The Roseville High outbreak, he said, "was a reminder of how diligent we have to be to stay open."

Roseville, with a population of about 141,500, is a mostly suburban city northeast of Sacramento. Unlike Sacramento, though, it's in largely rural Placer County, which sprawls all the way to Lake Tahoe and has voted for the Republican candidate in five straight presidential elections.

Placer County, with nearly 400,000 people, has tended to resist health and safety protocols during the pandemic, with many businesses and churches defying orders to close.

Last summer, the county supervisors, unhappy with their public health officer's reluctance to arbitrarily terminate covid emergency declarations, stripped her of that au-

Dr. Aimee Sisson, promptly resigned and was hired to the same position in nearby Yolo County, whose supervisors have closely followed her guidance and kept schools closed.

In fall's Roseville school board election, one returning member and two new candidates were elected on the promise that they would reopen schools. Newly elected Heidi Hall is listed as a Placer "county coordinator" (https://recallgavin2020.com/county/placer/) of the statewide petition to recall California Gov. Gavin Newsom.

Hall blamed the Democratic governor for the confusing and shifting state guidelines for reopening schools. At the Jan. 26 meeting, she declared that California's distancing recommendations were "not making a difference in these positivity rates" and that it was "irresponsible to listen to this guideline coming down that is not based in any science."

In fact, the CDPH guidelines on reopening schools closely follow protocols (https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/community/schools-childcare/index.html) produced recently by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That set of guidelines stirred vigorous debate (https://www.npr.org/2021/02/19/969467560/if-schools-follow-cdc-guidance-bidens-reopening-goals-could-be-hardto-reach) among experts, some of whom said it would be impossible to reopen schools while following them. President Joe Biden has repeatedly said he wants most U.S. schools open by the end of April. While children rarely get seriously ill from covid, their ability to transmit the disease remains a subject of intense interest, and the CDC recently found that teachers and staffers may act as vectors of covid in schools where distancing recommendations aren't followed and masks are not worn.

None of it mattered in Roseville. The three newly elected board members voted against a motion that would have kept the high schools in the hybrid model, with some students coming to campus on selected days. That would have allowed its six high schools, with a combined enrollment of more than 10,000, to more closely follow the CDPH guidelines. Their votes defeated that motion, 3-2. They later voted to return to full on-campus learning. (None of the three responded to questions posed by KHN.)

The health department's memo calls for a distance of 6 feet between students' desks unless, after a "good-faith effort," such a distance is determined to be impossible. In that case, 4 feet is allowed as the absolute minimum. Three of the Roseville district's schools were not able to meet the 4-foot requirement, either. They opened anyway.

Doug Ginn, who teaches science at Oakmont, noted that the heating system in his lab "only brings in 10% fresh air" for classes that often have 40 students or more. Ginn's soluthority, then lifted the emergency themselves. The officer, tion on a recent day was to open the front and back windows and turn on a fan to keep fresh air moving through. It was 35 degrees outside when school began, he said.

"I've already lost two students [who returned to remote learning] because they don't feel safe," said Ginn. "We do everything we can, but for classes like labs where being there in person is so critical, there are only so many ways to modify a crowded room."

As the district scrambled to redesign classrooms to meet safety mandates, students were already back on campus. Jennifer Leighton, principal at Granite Bay High School, told families in an email shared with The Sacramento Bee that "any form of distancing will not happen — sorry — classes have been large and could likely grow since 300 more than we've had are planning to return."

Borjon said the suggested distancing guidelines weren't practicable if all the students were on campus for all their

"The spacing issue in full classrooms is a real concern for us, and is at the forefront of our thinking," the superintendent told KHN. "We share the concerns of teachers, students, parents and staff regarding classroom safety."

But most parents remain viscerally opposed to the hybrid model. "It does not work. It's a failure," said Mark Anderson, whose son attends Oakmont. Added Jennifer Scott, parent of a Granite Bay student, "It makes no sense, as this pandemic is coming to a tail end, that we would go backwards."

With Roseville schools open, teachers have had to adjust. The schools continue to offer a Zoom option for students to remotely monitor instruction if they don't feel safe returning to their campuses. So far, though, school officials said they are gaining students on campus with each passing week, which further strains their ability to even approach the state guidelines for a covid-safe envi-

'We're professionals. We were asked to try to make this work, and so we're trying to make it work," said Ginn, whose science classes had to be moved to larger areas, including the library. "It's not in a teacher to just say no. These are our students you're talking about.'

Mountain Center area. The Town Crier spoke to Kathy Lamont, Lane's mother, right after she was reported

"She was an avid hiker but didn't have a destination," Lamont said. "She was last seen in Pine Cove. I don't know if she's dead or alive.'

Outside of the search for Lane, the community has not received any updates on the other three missing people. Friends, family and the community have been Prifogle was reported missing after going on a hike in the Pine Cove area Wednesday, March 4, 2020. He left home at about 1 p.m. and was last seen at the Pine Cove Market at 6:30 p.m. the same day. He was last seen wearing a red backpack and jeans.

RCSD Deputy Jeremy Parsons said, "After six full days of searching in between inclement weather, searching 8 to 10 hours per day, Prifogle has not been located. The Riverside Mountain Rescue Unit (RMRU), as search and rescue volunteers from nardino County, Orange County and San Diego County, were assisting. In total, about 150 people have been searching during those six days." Also adding, "On the second or third day of the search, we found his backpack, but have found no other clues as to his whereabouts."

On Sunday, June 7 at approximately 8:24 a.m., Hemet Station deputies were dispatched to the 58000 block of Bonita Vista in reference to a missing person. Lydia "Dia" Abrams was placed into the system as a missing person.

Abrams is 65 years old, 5' 5" tall, 130 pounds with blonde hair and blue eyes. She was last seen wearing a black and turquoise jacket, yellow shirt and blue jeans.

On June 6, Lydia "Dia" Abrams was last seen by her self-proclaimed live-in boyfriend Keith Harper at her ranch in Apple Canyon (between Mountain Center and Garner Valley). Since the initial search efforts eight months ago, the RCSD has not provided new information or updates regarding her disappearance despite weekly inquiries from the Town Crier.

David Gotfredson, investigative producer from News 8 out of San Diego, has also been following the case since the beginning. In a recent broadcast, Gotfredson reported that News 8 and drone pilot Steve Jensen made their way out to Grand Wash Cliffs in Arizona to do some searching of their own.

Gotfredson and Jensen spent multiple hours over a two-day period searching the cliffs and surrounding area for remains or clothing that match what Abrams was last reported wearing. Unfortunately, they didn't find anything.

According to Gotfredson's story, Harper was in the Grand Wash Cliffs area a few weeks before Abrams went missing. He owns about 85 acres of land. While Harper lived with Abrams at her ranch, two days after she went missing, Harper left the state, driving through Arizona to get to New Mexico.

Gotfredson reported that the San Juan County Sheriff in New Mexico obtained a search warrant and deputies impounded the RV Harper drove to New Mexico taking evidence from inside. However, the RCSD has not provided any persons of interest or susts regarding A brame or any of the other missing people.

According to RMRU, their team of volunteers was dispatched to Abrams' 160-acre ranch in the Apple Canyon area June 9. They conducted a search from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. with no success of finding Abrams.

RMRU went out again June 10 to search more difficult areas on the property including a creek bed and the hills overlooking her ranch. All assignments were completed by 6 p.m. At that point, detectives took over the investigation and called off the physical ground search.

The most recent woman to go missing from the Hemet/San Jacinto area is 27-yearold Diana Perez Gonzalez who was reported missing Dec. 11. According to family, Gonzalez visited the Idyllwild area regularly. She was last seen by her boyfriend.

Christy Rojas, Gonzalez's sister, and her family are struggling with her sister missing. Rojas said, "We've been terribly sad. We think about her every day and have dreams

Idyllwild Arts senior spotlight

By Jenny Kirchner Reporter/Photographer

Srishti Sharma is a senior and a theater major at Idyllwild Arts Academy (IAA). Sharma participated in a Zoom interview Saturday, Feb. 27 with the Town Crier to tell us a bit about her story.

"I'd never heard of a boarding art high school, and at first, I didn't believe it was real. I thought it was like 'High School Musical.' " — Srishti Sharma Sharma is from New Delhi, India and started IAA her junior year of high school. Being from India, theater is not something that is encouraged, especially as a viable career path. However, Sharma wanted to follow her dream of learning to act.

She was looking around online when, to her surprise, she stumbled upon IAA's website.

"I'd never heard of a boarding art high school, and at first, I didn't believe it was real," Sharma admitted. "I thought it was like 'High School Musical.'"

Sharma took it upon herself to apply without telling

"I didn't know how they'd react," Sharma explained. "Even though they've been supportive of my choice to be in the arts, it felt weird to be going outside the country."

Luckily, everything worked out and Sharma was accepted into IAA.

Sharma does admit that she had very little confidence in performing when she first started at IAA. However, she has stuck to theater and has come a long way in the short time she's been there.

Sharma explained, "IAA has helped me with my confidence on stage and off stage. I took a class last year — physical storytelling — which really helped me connect with myself as well as those around me. After studying here for just two years, I know myself better and I know what I want better."

Sharma started out interested in theater as an outlet to express herself. Being an only child, Sharma didn't have siblings to bounce things off of and was struggling with her mental health. She discovered theater as an outlet and a way to

There are many different types of theater actors can perform, but Sharma definitely has her favorites and has ideas of what she'd like to learn in the future.

"I'm really a big fan of devised shows and children's theater," Sharma said. "I love to perform for kids." Adding, "with the devised shows not having a script and having to improvise, you get to create your own script and your own characters. It's scary but it's also fun. I would also like to learn more about film acting.

While Sharma admires and appreciates all the teachers at IAA, a couple stand out a bit more for her. Theatre Department Chair Bonnie Carpenter is a big inspiration, and according to Sharma, has taught her how to be an independent and global artist. Another teacher, Erin Crites, has also taught Sharma to be unapologetic and has helped her connect with herself through movement and performance.

As high school comes to a close in just a few short months, Sharma is planning to attend college in the fall. She has applied to colleges, but she is still waiting to hear back from all of them before she chooses where to go.

"I've already been accepted to Cornish College of the Arts and The American Musical and Dramatic Academy, but my top choice schools are University of Southern California and Vassar College," Sharma said.

With a future full of potential, Sharma continues to practice the art of theater with the hopes of making it her career one day.

Sharma shared a bit of advice to those who might be struggling to find their way.

"You don't need to convince other people as long as you're convinced that this is what you want to do, Sharma said. "Accept yourself, accept what you want, and try to enjoy it. Don't give up."

Exploring the healing power of the arts

By Idyllwild Arts Academy Contributed

Idyllwild Arts Academy's Art in Society (AIS) program will present its annual symposium via Zoom (https://idyllwildarts.zoom.us/j/95430507766) Friday, March 12, from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The event is free and open to the public.

This year's Symposium on Art and Healing offers reflections on the healing power of art that have arisen directly out of student experiences of the coronavirus pandemic.

"The pandemic has made our students more aware than ever that we need creative engagement to bring balance and healing to our lives," explains AIS coordinator Erica Nashan.

Last March, 300 academy students scattered across the globe, returning to their homes in some three dozen different countries. They completed their lessons for the 2019/20 school year online and then began 2020/21 online.

About half returned to the IAA campus in October, while the other half stayed home. Now, as many as three quarters of the academy student body may be on campus by April.

Throughout this time of isolation, fear and uncertainty, academy students separated from each other by thousands of miles stayed in touch and gave one another solace by sharing their art online. They asked for a symposium that would articulate what they've felt about these experiences, and AIS has obliged with a ized peoples through the arts.

lineup of talented and thoughtful presenters.

The presenters include Violet Duncan (Plains Cree of Kehewin Cree Nation and Taino) and her husband, Tony Duncan (Apache, Arikara, Hidatsa and Mandan). They are practitioners of a number of restorative art forms known to many Native American tribes, including the Hoop Dance, in which Tony has recently won his sixth world championship.

Music therapist Sabina Barton and dance-movement therapist Christine Little, mother of a current academy student, will also present. Barton and Little are at the forefront of a growing movement to address through the arts conditions that are traditionally treated with

Erica Nashan points out, "Art therapy is usually associated with visual arts like painting and sculpture, but arts therapy — with an 's' — practitioners like Barton and Little are demonstrating the therapeutic power of other arts disciplines."

Finally, DTLA Proud will present a creative response to the pandemic's torpedoing of last spring's L.A. Pride parade in LA. Downtown LA residents and DTLA Proud members Scottie Jeanette Madden, Dennis Caasi and Andrew Arnold have found a new ally in using the arts to soften the edges of bigotry in Rachel Gartside, one of the Royal Shakespeare Company's lead education practitioners. Gartside, active in combating anti-Muslim prejudice in the U.K., is collaborating with DTLA Proud on new ways to bring pride to marginal-

Steele T18 at Palmer; plays this week at The Players

By Jack Clark

Pro golf correspondent

Brendan Steele posted a 2-under-par 286 at the Arnold Palmer Invitational last week to earn a tie for 18th place, his second-best finish in the Palmer ever.

The Idyllwild native collected an eagle and 10 birdies against 10 bogeys while finding nearly 61% of the fairways with drives averaging 296 yards. He hit 67% of the greens in regulation but averaged losing 0.619 strokes daily to the field with the putter.

Brendan currently stands in 84th place on the FedExCup points list and is ranked 78th in the world on the Official World Golf Rankings.

Brendan will play this week in the $15-million The Players Championship on the TPC Sawgrass course in Ponte Vedra Beach, Florida, the tournament often referred to as "the 5th major."

The Players features a famous par-3 17th hole — an island green producing much drama over the years. Brendan's best finish in The Players was a tie for 7th in He'll tee off Thursday at 10:22 a.m. PST and Friday at 5:02 a.m. PST, playing with Andrew Landry and Cameron Champ both days.

Watch him on the Golf Channel and NBC, or follow him shot-for-shot in 3D with computer or cellphone using TOURCast at pgatour.com.

Cable Car Conductor

As a young woman, Maya was San Francisco's first African-American female cable car conductor. She worked hard to support herself and her son.

In 1960, Maya moved to Cairo, Egypt and became the editor of an English language weekly newspaper.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor.'

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

Idyllwild Arts Academy student Shukhrat Turdikhodjaev is one of 112 southern California high school semifinalists in The Music Center's 33rd annual Spotlight Program.

Turdikhodjaev is a semifinalist in the jazz instrumental category.

"Each semifinalist will audition virtually again before a new panel of judges, who will then select the top two finalist performers in each category for a total of 14 Grand Prize Finalists," The Music Center explained. Each category will also name an honorable mention.

The semifinalists receive $300 and grand prize finalists will each receive a $5,000 scholarship. The honorable mention recipients will receive $1,000 scholarships and five merit award winners will each receive $100.

Turdikhodjaev went through two rounds of auditions with almost 1,500 students from 275 schools.

The grand prize finalists will perform at 7 p.m. May be honest, I am a true lap dog, and I want a lap all to my-Pepper: At least you're being upfront about all of that.

Lulu: I think you will be a wonderful addition to a quieter home. Kimmi: I will give a human, or humans, so much love.

My foster says I'm very affectionate and loyal. Lulu: Has ARF scheduled a meet-n-greet for you and potential forever families? Kimmi: They have! It will be this coming Sunday, March 14. Those who would like to meet me should call to schedule an appointment.

Whiskers: Some family is going to be very lucky!
Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243 on Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., or by appointment M-F by calling 951-659-1122.

March 2021 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19

Consider moving beyond the usual methods to find a more creative means of handling a difficult on-the-job situation. Avoid confrontation and, instead, aim for

April 20 – May 20

Seasonal change creates a new look for the outdoors. It also inspires Taureans to redo their own environments, and this is a good week to start redoing both your home and workplace. Enjoy.

May 21 – June 21

A misunderstanding needs to be straightened out so the wrong impression isn't allowed to stand. If necessary, offer to support the use of a third party to act as an impartial arbitrator.

A career change offering what you want in money and responsibilities could involve moving to a new location. Discuss this with family members before making a decision.

July 23 – August 22 Feeling miffed over how you believe you were treated is understandable. But before you decide to "set things straight," make sure the whole thing wasn't just a misinterpretation of

Showing you care makes it easier to build trust and gain an advantage in handling a

August 23 – September 22

experience also will help you understand yourself better. September 23 – October 22 Planning for the future is fine, especially if you include the roles that family members

October 23 – November 21

November 22 – December 21

Making choices highlights much of the week, and you have a head start here, thanks to your ability to grasp the facts of a situation and interpret them in a clear-cut manner.

Carrying a torch can be a two-way situation: It can either keep you tied to the past or help light your way to the future. The choice, as always, has to be yours.

December 22 – January 19 Your watchwords this week are: "Focus."

January 20 – February 18

"Focus." "Focus." Don't let yourself be distracted from what you set out to do. There'll be time later to look over other changes you're not keen on making. Discuss the plusses and minuses with someone familiar with the situation before you make a decision.

A workplace opportunity might require

February 19 – March 20

Love and romance are strong in your aspect this week. If you've already met the right person, expect your relationship to grow. And if you're still looking, odds are you'll soon be finding it.
