More of what victims can teach us after the fire

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

Editor's note: This story is continued from last week.
Paying for fire insurance doesn't necessarily mean you are covered

One homeowner, who declined to be named because of ongoing negotiations, discussed the complications that arise after a partial loss from fire. When a building is completely gone, insurers have little option but to pay the policy limits. But if a house is only partly damaged and it is "additional structures" that are gone, the situation is very different.

"My research confirmed what I experienced: Even though, in terms of emotional impact, having a better result than others, (the house not being gone) in terms of insurance, it's not a better position, it's much worse, because they fight you on everything. I found out that in spite of paying a huge premium, because of the way structures are categorized, I got about a third of the cost of rebuilding ... In 'other structures' I had the garage and guest room, a wooden fence, a shed, an irrigation system. All were in one 'bucket,' counted as a percentage of the house coverage.

"Coverage A is primary residence, B is other structures. ... I don't believe they even looked at the property, so I got no guidance. When I asked later they said they had used a 'formula.'

This same owner described the process for making a claim for personal property lost in the fire: "Property damage was another horror. My adjustor told me to create a list with the age of items lost. He kept urging me to do it the day after I returned home. That was crazy. I was in shock. He did not instruct me to include the condition of things lost. I happened to have a huge amount in the garage as I was redoing the floor in my bedroom, so all my clothes and bedroom furniture were in the garage besides what was usually there in storage. As a result of this (deliberate?) incomplete instruction, when loss was estimated, the assessors determined everything was 'average,' so I got less money for most items ... rather than the real value of replacing something in excellent condition. Then they only give you part of assigned replacement cost, you have to actually go out within a year and re-buy everything you lost to get full replacement cost.

"That was impossible. The idea that you have to buy all those things to get compensated is absurd and deliberately unrealistic. It is an intentionally nightmare process, it is designed to reduce the insurance payout. The whole insurance process took me two years. It was so all-consuming I was unable to work. ... Literally one of the worst things in my life, it wasn't the fire, it was the insurance company. It took up so much energy and

California's water crisis affects the Hill

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Rainfall since Oct. 1, 2021, the beginning of the current rain year, has been 11.4 inches. In the five months since Jan. 1, 2022, Idyllwild has received 3.5 inches of rain. The long-term average rainfall from October to June is 23.2 inches, about twice what has fallen this year, the third consecutive drought year.

The first three months of 2022 were the driest in more than 100 years. January through April was the third driest in 128 years, according to National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's national drought information.

Earlier this year, the state Department of Water Resources announced it would deliver only 5% of requested State Water Project (SWP) supplies in 2022. SWP deliveries to Southern California are at a record low, a result of limited snowpack and reservoirs depleted by three years of drought.

"California is facing a drought crisis and every local water agency and Californian needs to step up on conservation efforts. I am hopeful the measures enacted by the State Water Board will lead to a reduction of water use across the state. These conservation measures are increasingly important as we enter the summer months. I'm asking all Californians to step up, because every single drop counts," said Gov. Gavin Newsom after the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) adopted emergency regulations two weeks ago.

All of California's 58 counties are under a drought emergency proclamation. Californians are being asked to reduce their water use by 15% over 2020 levels to protect water reserves. Since winter, Newsom has been urging local water agencies to strengthen their efforts to conserve water. Thus far, the water usage data does not reflect any significant progress.

On May 24, SWRCB took more aggressive actions to force urban water suppliers to conserve water.

"The new regulation bans irrigating turf at commercial, industrial, and institutional properties, such as grass in front of or next to large industrial or commercial buildings. The ban does not include watering turf that is used for recreation or other community purposes, water used at residences or water to maintain trees," said the SWRCB press release announcing the changes.

The regulation, which was approved unanimously, requires local agencies to implement water use restrictions amid the possibility that water supplies may be up to 20% lower due to extreme weather.

The Metropolitan Water District, which provides water to multiple Southern California water districts, announced June 1, "Local water providers serving about one-third of Southern California will begin mandating emergency drought restrictions today to stretch the region's severely limited water supplies until the end of the year ... Restrictions vary by city, but largely consist of limiting outdoor watering to one or two days a week or implementing water budgets for residents."

"People need to take these restrictions seriously. There is not enough SWP water coming from Northern California this year to meet normal demands. So we must do everything we can to lower our use and stretch this limited supply," Metropolitan General Manager Adel Hagekhalil said in the release.

SWRCB took action after water usage continued to increase during the third consecutive year of drought. In early May, SWRCB reported that water consumption statewide had increased 19% in March, moving strongly in the opposite direction of Newsom's goal of a 15% savings from 2020. This was the greatest increase since 2015.

COVID vaccine clinic at library Saturday, June 11

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 11, COVID vaccinations for children and adults will be available at the Idyllwild Library. This opportunity also will be available Saturday, July 9.

The clinic will have vaccines for children ages 5 to 11. An appointment is recommended.

The child must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian; if not, the child must have a signed written consent from a parent or legal guardian and be accompanied by an adult.

"The form is only necessary if the minor is brought by an adult other than the patient's parent or legal guardian," specified Manuel Elias of the Riverside University Health System.

If a child has had their first Pfizer shot more than five months ago, they are eligible for the booster shot.

Adults can have their first vaccine, their second, another dose or the booster. All are from Pfizer.

A third clinic is scheduled for Thursday, June 23. This clinic will only offer adult vaccines from Moderna and Pfizer. No children's vaccines will be available at this clinic.

"Our mobile COVID-19 vaccine clinics are able to include only two types of vaccines at each mobile clinic, either Pfizer/Moderna or adult Pfizer/pediatric Pfizer," Elias explained. "We have scheduled multiple clinics at the Idyllwild Library so that the community has access to all available types of vaccine, but we are unable to provide all types at the same mobile clinic."

To make an appointment, call (951) 358-5000, or on weekends, dial 2-1-1.

"Appointments are encouraged but not required. Registering beforehand help ensures that the clinic team will bring enough vaccine doses, but the team will happily vaccinate walk-ins while supplies last," clarified Elias.

The vaccines and clinic are provided by the Riverside University Health System.

At the request of local pickleball players, the Idyllwild Community Center has installed windscreens around its pickleball courts located at Idyllwild Pines Camp. Court use is free and open to the public, with scheduled co-ed play at 11 a.m. Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays and women (only) at 9 a.m. Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Water crisis

As the current poor water status deteriorates further below the Hill, the situation here is not nearly as dire. Water supplies and sources are in better shape locally. As Fern Valley Water District (FVWD) General Manager Victor Jimenez said, "We haven't changed much in the last 20 years." But water demand for residential growth has continued and is continuing to increase "in the flatlands."

"The biggest thing there, which doesn't have much affect here, is 70% of water usage is for outdoor watering. Not a lot of lawns up here," he added.

SWRCB oversees urban water suppliers. The three Hill water agencies — Fern Valley, Idyllwild (IWD) and Pine Cove (PCWD) — are too small to be included within the SWRCB purview. None have 3,000 customers nor supply a minimum of 1,000 acre-feet of water (about 10 times the production of IWD).

The largest increases occurred in areas surrounding the Hill — Los Angeles, San Diego and the desert cities. Many water agencies in those areas are imposing strong curbs on water usage, especially outside usage.

Newsom's goal was a 15% reduction in water usage when comparing March 2020 to March 2022. The vast majority of the state, including the Hill districts, did not achieved this goal.

PCWD customers used 2% more water in March compared to March 2020. Fern Valley provides bi-monthly data. Usage for March and April this year was 1.7% greater than March and April 2020.

However, IWD's March consumption was 150% greater than two years ago. This year, production was 7.3 million gallons compared to 4.9 million in 2020.

The lower production two years ago is very likely to be the "COVID factor," according to IWD's General Manager Leo Havener.

"There were very few people up here then. Weekends were empty and water use was way down," he added. Comparing production during the two months before and after March, the production in February was 6% less than two years ago, but April's production was 130% greater compared to April 2020, when production was nearly 10% below the five-year average.

"Every water agency across the state needs to take more aggressive actions to communicate about the drought emergency and implement conservation measures," said Newsom. "Californians made significant changes since the last drought but we have seen an uptick in water use, especially as we enter the summer months. We all have to be more thoughtful about how to make every drop count."

While the Hill water districts are sensitive to the current climate conditions, water usage for the beginning of 2022 (January through April) has varied. Consumers in Fern Valley and Pine Cove districts have used less water through April than in 2021. Both district's production through April is about 700,000 gallons less than in 2021. This is an 8.2% reduction for FVWD and 5.2% for PCWD, and consistent with the reduced consumption in 2021 compared to 2020.

"We're still good," Jimenez said. "Our wells look good, but creeks are drying up. Well levels are staying pretty consistent overall."

FVWD is in Stage 3, which cover's everything the governor wants, Jimenez stressed. Outdoor water usage should have a shut-off nozzle and limit water to the period from 6 p.m. to 8 a.m.

IWD consumption, however, has grown both this year and in 2021. For the first four months of 2022, consumption has increased 4.3 million gallons, or 15%, over the same period in 2021. And usage in 2021 was 4.9 million gallons, 5.9% more than 2020.

"Our current status is ok. There is no crisis here," stated Havener. "We went into Stage 2 on June 1. We're just asking customers to reduce usage by 10%."

PCWD is currently in Stage 2. However, water conditions are improving. The water level of district's monitoring well has increased 2 feet in each of the past two months, according to acting General Manager Jeremy Potter. This reverses the decline that was happening last summer and winter.

"We're doing good, but we'll be in Stage 2 through the summer," Potter said. "Our tanks are full and pumping has been minimal. We're a lot different than districts off the Hill. We've still got to be cautious. We don't want to get ahead of ourselves."

Water conservation

The state is calling on Californians to take immediate action to avoid a crisis, including:

- Limiting outdoor watering — cutting back by even just one day a week can save up to 20% more water.
- Taking shorter showers. Going to a five minute shower to save up to 12.5 gallons per shower when using a water-efficient shower head.
- Taking showers instead of baths — a bath uses up to 2.5 times the amount of water as a shower.

- Using a broom instead of a hose to clean outdoor areas to save 6 gallons of water every minute.
- Washing full loads of clothes to save 15 to 45 gallons of water per load.

Participants will receive a stipend of $20 per hour, training and mentoring from nonprofit and government partners and supportive services including transportation, clothing, counseling and technological assistance.

What’s going on with regulating fire insurers?

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Idyllwild is surrounded by the San Jacinto Ranger District in the San Bernardino National Forest. According to Cal Fire, this area is a very high fire hazard area. And with a history of wildfires — Mountain Fire (2013) and the Cranston Fire (2018) — fire insurance is important and good protection.

However, fire insurance companies view wildfires as huge risks, which can significantly reduce or eliminate profits. Consequently, in areas similar to Idyllwild, it is not uncommon to learn of a neighbor or friend who received a notice of cancellation from their fire insurer.

This situation is not limited to low- or middle-income residents or homeowners who refuse to create “defensible space” around their home for greater protection.

In the April 14 issue of the Los Angeles Times, former State Insurance Commissioner Steve Poizner wrote of his experience receiving a “notice of cancellation.”

“I’m one of hundreds of thousands of Californians who have lost coverage on their homes as insurers invoke the problem of wildfire risk. I’m a former insurance commissioner of California. If it happened to me, it can happen to you.

“... A few years ago, my insurance company assured me that if I took steps to protect my home, then my coverage would be renewed. I live in a hilly suburban area with lots of trees just 15 minutes from San Jose airport. At a cost of thousands of dollars, I put in state-of-the-art vents on all openings in my home where fire or wind-blown embers could enter; pruned trees to keep them away from a deck; and thinned foliage in my yard to create ‘defensible’ space. No wildfire has ever threatened my home in the 25 years I have lived in Silicon Valley. Satisfied with my efforts, the company insured me year after year,” Poizner wrote.

“Until this shocker hit my mailbox: My home is suddenly ‘ineligible due to the wildfire risk assessment of the dwelling location,’” he added.

Requirements to receive better insurance

Protecting the structure:

- Class-A Fire rated roof
- Maintain a 5-foot, ember-resistant zone around a home (including fencing within 5 feet)
- Noncombustible 6 inches at the bottom of exterior walls
- Ember and fire-resistant vents (See Low-Cost Retrofit List at <https://osfm.fire.ca.gov/media/10748/low-cost-retrofit-list-final.pdf>)
- Upgraded windows (Double paned or added shutters)
- Enclosed eaves

Protecting the immediate surroundings

- Cleared vegetation and debris from under decks
- Removal of combustible sheds and other outbuildings from the immediate surroundings of the home, to at least a distance of 30 feet
- Defensible space compliance including trimming trees, removal of brush and debris from yard, and compliance with state law or local ordinances

Community mitigation

A community with a clearly defined boundary and a local risk assessment in consultation with the local fire district or state fire agency

A community with an identified evacuation route, cleared of vegetative overgrowth, and evacuation plan contingencies

Clear funding sources to implement community mitigation activities and meet clear risk reduction goals.

Integrated and up-to-date local planning documents pertinent to community wildfire risk. These plans should have measurable goals for risk reduction each year and specific annual education and awareness actions.

Examples of community designations for wildfire safety applicable for incentives include:

- Fire Risk Reduction Community designation as established in Public Resources Code 4290.1 (under development by the Board of Forestry and Fire Protection)
- Shelter-in-Place designation, including rules for buildings and vegetation management, as designated by a local fire district
- Firewise USA community in good standing (recognized by the National Fire Protection Association), with an updated risk assessment and updated community action plan

Insurance Commissioner Ricardo Lara, a former legislator who has followed and written bills about this issue, took office in 2019. He began holding hearings on the issue of fire insurance for homes in high-risk zones in October 2020. And in February, the California Department of Insurance (CDI) issued draft regulations to help protect residents in these areas.

The proposed regulations, which have been presented in public hearings, require insurance companies to consider consumers’ and businesses’ wildfire safety actions when setting policy rates. Also, insurance companies will have to share the “wildfire risk score” assigned to the client’s properties.

Policy holders will have to demonstrate their efforts to improve the safety of the homes and structures. In cooperation with the CDI, California’s fire and emergency service agencies developed a list of critical actions.

The “Safer from Wildfires” recommendations can be found on the CDI website at <http://www.insurance.ca.gov/01-consumers/200-wrr/saferfromwildfires.cfm>.

When the actions were released in February, CDI noted this was the first time that state agencies have been brought together to identify a common insurance framework for mitigation of wildfire threats to existing homes and businesses.

Companies would have to specify what were the reasons that influenced the consumer’s score, what the policyholder could do to lower their score, and how much their premium might be reduced if they take actions recommended by the company.

When setting prices, insurers would have to consider

Life Tribute Suzanne Yvonne Bowman 1939-2022

Suzanne Yvonne Bowman (née) deNevers was born in New York Feb. 10, 1939. Long-time residents of Woonsocket, Rhode Island, the deNevers family moved to Los Angeles in the 1950s. Suzanne attended college at San Francisco State and became an R.N., ultimately obtaining a master’s degree in nursing. She worked as a nurse and a teacher of nursing for 45 years. She passed away on March 4, 2022, after a short battle with dementia.

Suzanne experienced many adventures in her lifetime, including world travels, quite literally, as a close friend of many members of the Voyager team, the crew and airplane that completed the first non-refueled and non-stop flight around the world in 1986. That is the legacy of which she was most proud.

After living in Los Angeles for many years, her late husband Russell Clifford Bowman, a Hollywood photographer, and their two children relocated to Idyllwild, and Suzanne remained a long-time resident of Pine Cove until her passing. She also was a member of the Idyllwild Area Historical Society and her beautiful cabin on Logan Creek Road has the distinction of being listed as one of the historically designated homes of Idyllwild. Suzy loved this mountain and its people.

Suzanne was an active supporter of ISOMATA and volunteered her skills working the nurses’ booth every year at the Idyllwild jazz festival. She also very much enjoyed working the many art shows around Southern California, teaming up and helping her long-time love and partner, local artist David Salk, sell his wares at the shows, seeing and making many friends that would become a built-in following, showing up for them every year.

Sue was a free spirit and an eccentric personality. She would make many trips to the dump only to return with a haul of junk that she brought back, after leaving her own. She was a thrift store queen and nothing thrilled her more than the lucky thrift store find. She also had a world-class smile that could light up a room.

Suzanne is survived by her two children, Greg (Pamela) Bowman of Ventura and Lisa (Anthony) Madruga of Point Loma; three grandchildren, Dustin (Lara), Nathan and Annalisa Madruga; one great-grandchild, Savannah; stepchildren Tundi Schonek of Florida and Jeff Bowman of Arizona; and brother Maurice deNevers.

A memorial service was held at Suzy’s beautiful cabin and her ashes were scattered according to her wishes in the forest of Pine Cove.

whether a homeowner or commercial property owner had taken steps, such as clearing vegetation or installing fire-resistant vents, that would reduce a property’s wildfire risk.

“By requiring insurance companies to utilize the Safer from Wildfires framework in their pricing for insurance, Lara is sending a strong signal to consumers about the need to better prepare for extreme wildfires — which will lead to a more competitive market for all California residents and businesses,” according to the department’s press release.

Lots of fun in library’s Summer Reading program

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

Idyllwild Library is kicking off its annual Summer Reading program, a six-week reading party, from Monday, June 13, to Friday, July 22. An Idyll-Beast sighting is expected during the inaugural morning children’s session from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. the first day. The theme this year is “Reading beyond the beaten path,” encouraging people (and other literate beasts) to read outside.

Librarian Shannon Ng said, “We do several events. The kickoff on the 13th will be divided into two parts: in the morning, 11-1, for children, featuring face painting, balloon twisting, games and a visit from Tony the Pony, a real miniature horse for petting (not riding). The afternoon, 1-2, is geared toward adults, with bingo in the community room. This is all to get people to sign up for Summer Reading.”

“There will be prizes: Anyone who signs up that day will be entered into a random drawing. Kids may win a tent package, including chair and umbrella. Teens will vie for a spike ball set, and adults may win a zero gravity chair. Everyone who registers gets a bag of fun things.”

Events will occur throughout the summer, ending with an awards ceremony featuring Sandii Castleberry Monday, July 25. Prizes for best reader and most books read will be awarded. A point system online allows you to register every time you read a book or participate in an event. Everybody who reads five books gets a prize, a bag full of camping goodies. And badges will be awarded for reading under the categories Preschool, Kids 5-12, Teens and Adults. One big branch prize, a Lake Hemet Annual Pass, also will be awarded. The event is county wide those these prizes are specific to Idyllwild.

The schedule will include five or six online virtual events for all throughout the county. These include two story times at the Nature Center, one in July, one in June. Children’s story times at the library are once a week on Wednesdays.

Friends of the Idyllwild Library supports the program. Ng said, “We accept donations for prizes. Last year five different businesses did; that was really nice.”

The program’s mission is to combat “summer slide” where children begin to lose reading skills. One of the first speakers will be Jim Dover talking about rock climbing in Idyllwild. His presentation is targeted at adults, but everyone is welcome at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 29.

Photographer Peter Szabadi will be mounting an exhibition with the theme of “Our Town: Music, Dance and Art” with a reception Saturday June 25.

County-wide events are on the rivlib.net website. Click the “events” link at the top of the page to connect to individual library schedules. The system-wide events are all on weekends, Friday to Sunday and are open to all virtual visitors.

Steele T10 at the Memorial

By JACK CLARK
PRO GOLF CORRESPONDENT

Brendan Steele notched his fourth top-10 finish on the PGA Tour this season, posting a four-under-par 69-76-68-71 — 284 at the Memorial Tournament in Dublin, Ohio last week. Seventeen birdies against 13 bogeys earned his second top-10 finish in as many tournaments.

The Idyllwild native’s drives averaged 303 yards into 69% of the fairways and he hit two-thirds of the greens in regulation, while with the putter he gained a fraction of a stroke per day on the field.

Brendan’s four-over-par second round hurt him last week; an even par second round would have netted him sole possession of third place at tournament’s end. But he responded with an excellent opening nine holes in the third round, when he posted four birdies against a lone bogey, scoring a fine 33.

Brendan now stands in 47th place on the PGA’s FedExCup points list, and he now is ranked 110th on the Official World Golf Rankings.

Dear Idyllwild Community,

On May 27th, we bade farewell to the Class of 2022. The students of Idyllwild Arts Academy earn a High School Diploma as well as a certificate of completion in the arts. The expectation established for these students far exceeded the requirements of a traditional high school and they worked diligently to meet the demands of the Academy’s co-curricular unique program. They now leave us as citizen artists, spreading across the globe to take gap years or attend some of the best colleges, conservatories and universities in the United States and abroad.

A time-honored tradition is to grant awards to students of all grades, who are outstanding scholars, artists and citizens. Below is a list of the 2022 award recipients. Students referenced with an * are residents of Idyllwild. This year’s recipients were:

- Richard H. MacNeal Award – Ela Miri Bosworth Tetikoglu*
- Valedictorian – Claire Young Kim
- Outstanding Citizenship Award – Alyssa Janae Minor
- Jon and Lillian Lovelace Outstanding Artist – Guanzhi Wang
- Outstanding Class Scholars
- Evelyn Kay Johnson* – 9th Grade Scholar
- Julie Skye Wangler* — 10th Grade Scholar
- Sylvie Mizrahi Kalach – 11th Grade Scholar
- Aurora Wackford Muñoz* – 12th Grade Scholar
- Outstanding Artists – Department Awards
- Bella Koschalk – Creative Writing
- Nita Lomidze – Dance
- KraShane Andreé Sims – Dance
- Isabella Catharina Santos Lima Bastos – Film & Digital Media

- Logan Oz McLaren Guardino – InterArts
- Rebecca Chen – InterArts Fashion
- Andrew Kim – Music
- Gabriel Felipe Gómez Fernandez – Theatre
- Fatima Guzmán* – Visual Arts

We are proud of all of our students as well as the class scholars and graduates who earned Idyllwild Arts Academy’s highest honors. They now join thousands of Idyllwild Arts Academy alumni who are contributing to society in meaningful and artful ways.

Cheers,

Pamela Jordan
President, Idyllwild Arts Foundation

CREATURE CORNER

BY JANICE MURASKO

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," the ARF cats discussed Rio's adoption and the fate of the litter of kittens.

Phil: It was a quiet week.

Harley: It was. It seemed especially quiet after the holiday week-end.

Phil: Have all the kittens been spoken for?

Carmel: I haven't! I'm still waiting for my forever family to find me.

Phil: I'm surprised you're still here.

Harley: Seriously. You are so darned cute!

Phil: Just like the rest of the litter.

Don: Just relax, Carmel. The right family will be by soon, no doubt.

Pepper: Kittens usually are adopted pretty quickly.

Harley: Make certain to show any human visitors just how adorable you are.

Carmel: That won't take much effort. I just need to be myself!

Whiskers: Anyone who is having a sad day should stop in to meet all of you. A sweet kitten is all a sad person needs in order to feel better.

Harley: Ain't that the truth! But you know, an adult cat can also make a person feel wanted and loved.

Carmel: And we all know that having a cat, or dog, in the family is very good for mental health.

Don: That's right, Carmel. A purring cat has a soothing effect on people. It allows them to relax and unwind. It puts them in a blissful mood.

Phil: And people might be surprised to know that owning a cat has been scientifically proven to benefit the heart, reducing the risk of stroke or heart attack by as much as 20%.

Don: If those aren't good enough reasons, researchers have found that people who take care of cats lead longer lives than those who do not surround themselves with pets.

Pepper: So essentially, we are almost necessary!

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

HOROSCOPES
June 2022 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
Recently obtained information could open a new opportunity for a career change. But temper that Arian impatience and act on it only when all the facts are made available.

April 20 – May 20
You're moving into a more active cycle. So put your ideas back on the table, where they'll be given the attention they deserve. Expect a favorable change in your love life.

May 21 – June 21
A friend might ask for a favor that you feel would compromise your values. Best advice: Confront him or her and explain why you must say no. A true friend will understand.

June 22 – July 22
A relationship continues to develop along positive lines. Meanwhile, a job situation is brewing that could create complications for one of your pet projects. Look into it right away.

July 23 – August 22
Your interest in a co-worker's project could lead to a profitable experience for you both. But before you agree to anything, be sure to get all your legal I's dotted and T's crossed.

August 23 – September 22
Be careful whose counsel you take about a possible long-distance move. Some advice might not necessarily be in your best interest. Stay focused on your goals.

September 23 – October 22
Someone might try to complicate efforts in an attempt to work out that confusing job situation. But don't let that keep you from sticking with your decision to push for a resolution.

October 23 – November 21
A disagreement on how to handle a family problem could create more trouble for all concerned. Look for ways to cool things down before they boil over.

November 22 – December 21
An unexpected change in long-standing workplace procedure and policy could provide a new career target for the Archer to aim at. Start making inquiries.

December 22 – January 19
You're finally able to get back into the swing of things, as those temporary doldrums begin to lift. Expect some surprising disclosures from a new colleague.

January 20 – February 18
Rely on your innate sense of justice to see you through a dilemma involving a family member. Other relatives who've stood back soon will come forward as well.

February 19 – March 20
A new friend seems to be pushing you to take risks -- financial or otherwise. Best advice: Don't do it. They might have a hidden agenda that hasn't surfaced yet.
