IDYLLWILD, CA

THURS., JUNE 16, 2022

Nestor Hernandez-Lopez sworn in to CHP

Nestor Hernandez-Lopez of Idyllwild, has successfully completed cadet training at the California Highway Patrol (CHP) Academy. He is assigned to duty at the CHP's Borrego Springs Area office. He was one of 128 graduates of the academy.

Officer Hernandez-Lopez graduated from Hemet High School in 2008. He continued his education by obtaining an Associate of Arts degree in criminal justice from Southern New Hampshire University.

Before attending the CHP Academy, Officer Hernandez-Lopez worked as a server for La Casita Mexican Restaurant in Idyllwild.

At the CHP Academy, cadet training starts with nobility in policing, leadership, professionalism and ethics, and cultural diversity. Cadets receive instruction on mental illness response and crisis intervention techniques. The training covers vehicle patrol, crash investigation, first aid and the apprehension of suspected violators, including drivers under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

The cadets receive training in traffic control, report writing, recovery of stolen vehicles, assisting the motoring public, issuing citations, emergency scene management, and knowledge of the California vehicle code, penal code, and health and safety code.

The Idyllwild Fire Protection District will test its emergency siren alert system at 1 p.m. the third Saturday of the month. The test will last 1 minute. In an emergency, you will hear three consecutive 3 minute alerts. Tune into WNKI-AM 1610 to receive information regarding the emergency alert. The following websites will also have information regarding the reason for the alert and action that needs to be taken: idyllwildfire.com, fernvalleywater.com and mdpidyllwild.org.

work a nighttime shift. They will each accompany a deputy in a sheriff's vehicle. These officers will be assigned between the Lake Elsinore, Jurupa, Perris, Hemet and Thermal patrol stations.

In his report to the board, Chief Operating Officer Juan Perez outlined the plan for this year's enforcement efforts. Sheriff's deputies will focus their efforts on areas where the most issues are reported and/or observed. This approach will focus on areas previously identified as having high fireworks activity.

Deputies will cite and release observed violators. Fireworks will be collected and properly disposed of by the sheriff's Hazardous Device Team. Misdemeanor filings of the ordinance will be submitted to the Riverside County District Attorney's Office for prosecution.

Last year, county enforcement officers seized more than 800 pounds of illegal and dangerous fireworks, made eight arrests and were involved in more than 68 fireworks-related incidents. On July 4th, 2021, more than 600 fire calls were made, according to County Fire Chief Bill Weiser.

Last week, the board approved spending another $100,000 for efforts to control illegal fireworks and prevent their dangerous consequences. This includes more funding for Code Enforcement staffing, an advertising campaign to educate residents on the dangers of fireworks and the penalties for violation of the ordinance, and changeable message sign rentals.

The messaging campaign will include billboards and a Public Service Announcement that will include collaboration with all stakeholders. Changeable messaging signs will be placed at strategic locations throughout the unincorporated areas with messaging on ordinance changes and penalties.

Residents may visit www.riversidesheriff.org/555/Fireworks or call the Riverside County hotline at (800) 950-2444 to report the use of illegal fireworks within the unincorporated areas of Riverside County.

Results of the countywide primary

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Below are the results of the races in the Riverside County June primary. The top two vote getters for each U.S. and state elected position will be the candidates on the November Election ballot. Regardless of party, the two candidates with the most votes will face off during the fall campaign.

For Riverside County elected positions, if a candidate receives more than 50% of the votes cast, they are declared the winner and will not have to battle in November.

As of Monday evening, June 13, with 100% of county precincts reporting, 308,249 ballots had been counted. That is 23.6% of the 1.3 million registered voters in the county. In March 2020, for the presidential primary, 43.2% of registered county voters cast ballots. In 2018, for the last gubernatorial primary, turnout was 35.2% and, four years earlier, in 2014, only 22.3% of registered voters came to the polls.

The Registrar of Voters site states 36,000 vote-by-mail ballots and 2,000 provisional ballots have not yet been counted.

U.S. Representative District 41

Running in a slightly modified district, Republican Congressman Ken Calvert was the leading candidate with 47.9% of the votes. His November challenger will be Democrat Will Rollins, a former federal prosecutor. Rollins and his fellow Democrat Shrina Kurani together collected 47,989 votes, or 46.4%, which is slightly less than Calvert's 59,778 votes.

In the closely balanced district, this may indicate a close race in November between Calvert and Rollins. However, if Republican John Michael Lucio's 5,000 votes switch to Calvert, he will protect his incumbency.

After early results were posted, Calvert issued a press release Wednesday morning. In it, he said, "It's truly an honor to receive the most votes once again in this election. The election results send a clear message that voters in the 41st Congressional District want to move our country in a different direction from the constant state of crisis and inflation we have found ourselves under President Biden."

State Senate District 32

With only two candidates, both Assemblyman Kelly Seyarto (R) and Brian Nash (D) will be on the November ballot. But Seyarto did receive 62.4% of the votes.

State Assembly District 47

Four candidates were in this race. Christy Holstege, Democrat from Palm Springs, garnered 52.3% of the vote followed by Republican Greg Wallis, who had 29.0% of the votes.

State Assembly District 36

Assembly District 36 includes Garner Valley, Anza and Aguanga. Eduardo Garcia, a Democrat, and Ian Weeks, a Republican, received 91% of the total vote and will compete in November. Since election day, June 7, Weeks trailed Garcia until the June 13 results were released. Weeks is currently outpolling Garcia by 700 votes with 46.8% of vote to Garcia's 44.6%.

District Attorney

In a three-way race, incumbent Michael Hestrin was reelected Riverside County district attorney. He garnered 54.9% of the total vote, outpolling his two rivals, Judge Burke Strunsky and Lara Gressley, who together had only 45.1% of the ballots.

With each new report of votes counted, Hestrin's lead has gradually increased since Tuesday night.

Sheriff

Similarly, incumbent Sheriff Chad Bianco was reelected with 60.6% of the voter over his challenger Michael Lujan.

Auditor Controller

As more vote-by-mail ballots are counted, Ben Benoit has gradually taken and widened his lead over the county's incumbent Auditor-Controller Paul Angulo. As of Sunday, June 12, Benoit has received 45.4% of the ballots cast and Angulo has 40%.

From Tuesday night through Thursday, Angulo had the lead in the close race. The third candidate, Marshall Campbell, received 14.7% of the votes, consequently it is unlikely either Angulo or Benoit can avoid another battle in November. Both will be on the November ballot.

Assessor-County Clerk and Treasurer Tax Collector

In two separate races, the incumbent was not challenged. Peter Aldana, assessor-county clerk, and Matthew Jennings, treasurer-tax collector, were elected and will not have to face any November challenge.

County Superintendent of Schools

Incumbent Edwin Gomez was unopposed.

County Supervisors

Two incumbent supervisors, Karen Speigel (2nd District) and Manual Perez (4th District, which now includes the Hill communities) were unchallenged and, therefore, re-elected.

Current Board of Supervisors Chair Jeff Hewitt of the 5th District had three opponents. As of Monday evening, he trails Moreno Valley Mayor Yxstian Gutierrez by 720 votes. Neither candidate polled more than 35%. So the fall campaign will focus on gaining support from the voters of the other three candidates, especially Lloyd White who represents 25.7% of the voters.

Results of the statewide primary

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Below are the results of the statewide June primary. The top two vote getters for each office will be the candidates on the November election ballot. Regardless of party, the two candidates with the most votes will face off during the fall campaign. Even if one candidate polls more than 50%, the top two move to November.

As of Monday evening, June 13, only 4.9 million (22% of registered voters) ballots had been counted. This compares with a 37.5% turnout in the June 2018 gubernatorial primary and 46.9% in the March 2020 presidential primary.

Incumbents easily garnered the most votes in each race. With 2,721,302, Secretary of State Shirley Weber had the most votes of any candidate in Tuesday's election. So far, she has outpaced Gov. Gavin Newsom by about 41,375 votes.

Governor

Less than a year after successfully defeating a recall effort, incumbent Gov. Gavin Newsom, a Democrat, outpolled his 24 other challengers garnering 56.3% of the vote. He will face Republican challenger Brittan Dahle, who received 17.4% of the vote. None of the other 23 candidates gained more than 4% of the votes cast.

Lt. Governor

The lieutenant governor candidates will be incumbent Eleni Kounalakis, a Democrat, and Republican Angela Underwood Jacobs. Together they received nearly 72.4% of the total votes.

Secretary of State

The pattern continues for this office, too. The top voter getter was incumbent Shirley Weber, a Democrat, followed by Republican Rob Bernalsky.

Controller

The two candidates on the November ballot will be Republican Lanhee Chen, who garnered 37% of the voter, and Democrat Malia Cohen, who received 21.9% of the voter. Democrat Yvonne Yiu was third with 15.5% of the vote. Incumbent Betty Yee was ineligible for a third term.

Treasurer

In November, incumbent Treasurer Fiona Ma will face Republican Jack Guerro. Together they received nearly 80% of the votes cast.

Attorney General

Incumbent Attorney General Rob Bonta, a Democrat, received nearly three times the votes of his November challenger, Republican Nathan Hochman.

Insurance Commissioner

The insurance commissioner contest was the closest of the state office races. Democrat incumbent Richard Lara was the top voter getter, but he received only 36.5% of the votes. The race for his challenger is tight. Republican Robert Howell is currently second with 819,354 votes (18%). But he was closely trailed by Democrat Marc Levine, 800,047 votes (17.6), and Republican Greg Conlon, 744,242 votes (16.3).

U.S. Senator

Incumbent Democrat Alex Padilla, appointed after his predecessor Kamala Harris was elected vice president, was the top voter getter for both the partial term to finish in January 2023 and for the full-six-year term beginning in January 2023. His challenger will be Republican Mark Meuser.

Superintendent of Public Instruction

This is a nonpartisan race, but the incumbent Tony Thurmond was the top vote-getter followed by Lance Ray Christensen. Thurmond's total was nearly four times Christensen's votes.

But Christensen is only 3,950 votes ahead of George Yang who is only 5,770 votes ahead of the fourth place candidate Ainye Long.

Office #11

Jay Kiel, a deputy district attorney, has a 11,360-vote lead over Superior Court Commissioner Laura Garcia. Kiel has 52.1% of the counted vote and trailed Garcia until Friday's votes were counted. This race could flip several more times as the final 38,000 votes are counted.

With only two candidates, one will garner the 50% plus one to be the victor without needing a runoff in November.

Rabbi Ilana Grinblat leads Temple Har Shalom

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

Idyllwild's synagogue, Temple Har Shalom, is welcoming a new rabbi. Rabbi Ilana Grinblat has led high holiday services for several years, including virtually during COVID, but will now be performing shabbat services regularly in person.

Temple Board President Pat Schnetzer described how a community gathering for religious observances became a synagogue:

"It started in April of 2014. In December, we were having a community gathering for Hanukkah, and someone said, 'You know, I think Jewish Federation of the Desert can help us become a synagogue.' We were able to find a student rabbi, Julian King, and then we had a retired rabbi, Malka Drucker, from Santa Fe, up here for five years. Then Rabbi David Lazar, who came from the desert, and now we're starting with Rabbi Ilana Grinblat. She did high holy days here a few years ago, so we know her, and really like her."

Grinblat grew up in Washington DC, and after working summers in the capital, attended Brown University in Rhode Island, studying world religions. She spent two semesters abroad, teaching school in Ecuador, and studying art and culture in Ghana. Returning to DC, she worked for the American Jewish Committee in Washington. She came to Los Angeles' Ziegler School of Rabbinic Studies. She also earned a master's degree in Midrash (Biblical studies) from the University of California, Los Angeles. She has over 15 years of experience serving as a rabbi.

The Crier spoke with her this week.

TC: "You have been coming up here for a while?"

IG: "I have done services on high holidays for several years, 2019 and 2020. I've been leading services. My first shabbat was in May, and doing virtual Friday night candle-lighting services. I'll be coming up in June."

TC: "You're commuting?"

IG: "I live in LA. I applied because it's so beautiful. I wanted to spend some time up there. I got to know the community during the high holidays; such a warm synagogue, the people are lovely."

TC: "You have quite a résumé."

IG: "Thankfully."

TC: "What else should we know about your work?"

IG: I wrote two books: one is called "Blessings and Baby Steps." It goes from pregnancy to pre-school, with spiritual lessons for each of those stages. My second is called "Castles and Catch." It goes through the Bible with three spiritual reflections from each part on the lessons that children teach us."

TC: "Are you a parent?"

IG: "I am. I have two kids. My son is graduating from high school next week, my daughter is finishing ninth grade. I've been writing about what I've learned from them basically their whole lives."

TC: "When did you first realize you wanted to be a rabbi?"

IG: "I figured that out in college. I was raised in a very Jewishly religious household. My father was a rabbi, not a congregational rabbi, but a rabbi. In college I realized that 'rabbi' combined my passions for counseling, writing, community building, teaching and ritual."

TC: "Anything else you want to say to readers?"

IG: "How excited I am to be part of the community. The people are so warm and welcoming, I have been enjoying getting to know them better; it's such a beautiful place, and beautiful to be part of that."

Schnetzer said Grinblat also is a certified Zumba teacher. "In the past she has done it to Jewish music; maybe you'd call it Jewmba? And she sings and plays guitar." Synagogue member Karin Greenwood relayed an invitation to "new-to-the-Hill members as well as others who are interested in taking part ... to join us and help Temple Har Shalom move forward to best serve the needs of our Jewish community."

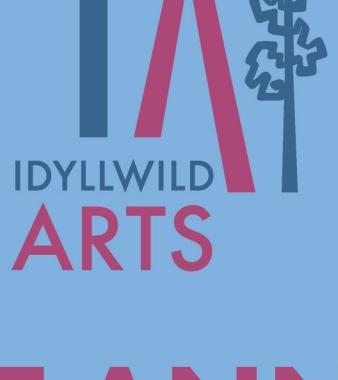

Schnetzer also spoke of the last few years and the new "virtual" services. "During COVID there emerged a small but mighty group who have stayed together on Zoom. It's been pretty wonderful — on Friday night to light the candles, and Saturday afternoon book club with Rabbi Malka."

These modern resources mean that even when members move away from the Hill, they may still participate and keep in touch. The active involvement of former Hill residents made their recent yard sale a success, with several members making the trek up the Hill to reconnect and help out.

A newer member, Julia Ruchman, pointed out that meeting the challenges posed by the pandemic has strengthened the group. "[It] is wonderful and inspiring to join a congregation that is actively seeking new ideas, and wants to grow and evolve. It is an important part of our culture that our religion must keep evolving in order to survive — and our adaptability is a key component of our survival."

In these two races, the top vote-getter has more than 50% of votes cast. In Office 26, Jason Stone has 63.8% of the votes and for Office 28, Kristi Kirk has 55%.

Statewide votes

Comparing the top two vote getters in the Statewide races, Riverside County voters and the rest of the state were remarkably the same except for two second-place candidates. In the race for controller, local voters favored Yvonne You (D) over Malia Cohen (D).

While Riverside County and statewide voters were in step on which candidates they favored, local voters were decidedly less Democratic than the rest of the state. For example, Gov. Gavin Newsom gained 56% of the state voters, but only 46% of Riverside County voters. And the differences were similar in the other races.

In the nonpartisan race for superintendent of public instruction, Riverside County voters supported Ainye Long over George Yang.

Rabbi Grinblat*Continued from A3*

Ruchman also described the joy of unexpectedly discovering community. "I am a new member of the congregation, but not super new to the Hill. I have lived here since 2019. I grew up in a small, rural town in New England, very much like Idyllwild, where we were one of the only Jewish families in the community. I (incorrectly) assumed that there weren't any other Jewish people living in Idyllwild-Pine Cove full-time, and so I didn't look for them. Then — just last week — I was standing in line at the post office and overheard one of the members talking to someone else about Jewish services. I couldn't believe it. I basically chased after her to find out more information."

"She introduced me to Pat and many of the other members. It's such a wonderful group of people who I am so pleased to know. The sense of community, their hospitality and generosity of spirit is very inspiring. They made me feel so welcome."

Services are held at St. Hugh's Episcopal Church on Tahquitz Drive. Those interested in attending may email templeharshalomofidyllwild@gmail.com or call (951) 468-0004.

Documentary of 'Fiddler on the Roof' this Saturday

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

"Fiddler's Journey to the Big Screen," a new documentary about the making of the musical "Fiddler on the Roof," will be screened at the Rustic Theater at 3 p.m. Saturday, June 18. An informal Q and A session with Fiddler cast member and longtime Idyllwilder Michèle Marsh, who played the middle of Tevye's three marriageable daughters, Hodel.

The Los Angeles Times called the film "... as wonderous, buoyant and heartwarming as the film it celebrates..." and "... a much deserved love letter to the long and socially conscious career of [director] Toronto-born Jewison..."

Last year marked the 50th anniversary of the film, which was nominated for eight Oscars and won three, and shows up on any short list of great film adaptations of Broadway musicals. The documentary includes interviews old and new with participants including Director Norman Jewison, conductor and arranger John Williams, Topol (Tevye), his three daughters (Rosalind Harris, Marsh and Neva Small) and lyricist Sheldon Harnick. Jeff Goldblum narrates the film.

Director Daniel Raim's previous documentaries have focused on behind-the-scenes artists who helped make great films look the way they did: "The Man on Lincoln's Nose" treated Alfred Hitchcock's production designer Robert Boyle, and "Harold and Lillian: A Hollywood Love Story" follows the careers of storyboard artist Harold Michelson (remember that shot from "The Graduate" of Dustin Hoffman framed by Anne Bancroft's crooked leg?) and researcher Lilian Michelson. Lillian, incidentally, was responsible for the research into Eastern European shtetl life that made the village of Anatevka in "Fiddler On The Roof" such a believable world. Both these other films are also "deep dives" into film art and the human stories behind it.

The Crier spoke with Marsh about how she came to be cast as Hodel, and the upcoming event.

TC: "You have done other Q and A sessions after screenings of the film?"

MM: "Only one, the opening in Los Angeles' the other two [director Raim and producer Berman] did the opening in New York."

TC: "The opening at the Museum of Tolerance?"

MM: "It was very nice — the theater seats like 300 — there was a full house, very responsive audience. With the things happening in the Ukraine now, and Fiddler treating intolerance, they thought it very relevant. In the trailer they included the clip where Norman said he didn't want it to be a film just for Jewish people, but for everybody; he wanted everyone to relate. When he was asked, 'What would you say if we asked you to direct,' he said, 'What would you say if I told you I'm a goy?'"

TC: "Jewison likes that story, being used to people assuming he is Jewish because of his name."

Indeed, Fiddler stands out for its universality. It is three coming-of-age stories, and in each one the viewer identifies with both father and daughter, understanding both the "immovable object" of Tevye's traditions and the "irresistible force" of the daughters seeking their own destinies. And with history casting long shadows, we all recognize that our own lives are as unlikely and precarious as, well, as a fiddler on the roof.

Marsh related for our readers the story of how she came to her part in Fiddler: "For me, when I was cast I thought, 'I'm not Jewish.' I thought Norman was going to regret casting me. I got all these books and began doing research on Judaism and Jewish mysticism and the faith. When we were in London after we had recorded the musical numbers and rehearsed the dance numbers, Norman had Paul Michael Glaser [Perchik, Hodel's love] and myself to fit us with brown contact lenses because we had blue eyes. We were supposed to wear them during the two weeks before shooting so we could adapt. When we showed up Michael had gotten used to wearing them, but all that Norman got from me was squinting, because I couldn't get used to wearing them. Then he discovered that Rosalind Harris, who played my older sister Tzeitel, and who is Jewish, had blue eyes, and the exact same shade as me, and also the man who played Lazar Wolf, the butcher, he also had blue eyes, and he's very Jewish. So I got to keep my own eyes."

"I don't think I realized how lucky I was to be cast in this; it was such a fluke, getting it. I was out of college, I met a young man, Joel, and we moved into an apartment together. We were hired by the American Conservatory Theater In [San Francisco] (ACT). The managing director hired us and put us on a journeyman's contract, that was like $85 a week, 'Whoa hoo!' Then the artistic director Bill Ball came back from a 'cure' in Spain and said, 'We have to let them go, we can't have all these young actors making $85 a week.' Thank goodness I had moved in with my boyfriend, otherwise I would have been jobless and homeless."

"Then my boyfriend, who was kept on [at ACT] because he was also a stage manager, heard that 'Oh! Calcutta,' which was still running on Broadway — sketches about sex, had nudity, (this was after 'Hair') — needed understudies. I thought, 'As long as I'm an understudy, hopefully I will never have to go onstage, I could never explain that to my parents.' Like a month later the producers called me and said they want to open it in LA, 'Can you come down and open it?' I said, 'No way!'"

"[At this time] Joel the boyfriend said, 'The next step is marriage and I'm not ready for it,' and broke up with me. [Then the people doing 'Oh! Calcutta!'] called and said, 'We just fired a girl in the LA cast and we're opening in two days, can you please come down and open the show?' I couldn't wait to get out of SF. Joel arranged for me to live with his Aunt Sandy in Beverly Hills, married to a television producer, and he drove me down."

About her run with "Oh! Calcutta!" Marsh recalled that "at one point we were all arrested for indecent exposure, we were all fingerprinted and 'mugged.'" Then Joel's Aunt Sandy heard that they were casting "Fiddler On The Roof." "She called the production company, Samuel Goldwyn Studios, and said, 'I have an actress here. Can she come in and audition for Jewison?' They said, 'Send in a résumé and a picture.' She said to me, 'No, you take it in person.' That was in the old days when there wasn't all this security; you could walk right on to the lot. I met his secretary and she asked, 'Can you sing?' I nodded yes. 'Can you dance?' I nodded yes. Then she said, 'Norman has already auditioned here and in New York and London, he's in Israel now...'"

"About a week later I got a call from the casting director. I went in and read for him. He said, 'Great, have these two scenes and these two songs memorized for tomorrow at 2 o'clock.' So I knew the play because I had done the play in high school. It was called "Tevye and His Daughters" before it was a musical. I went and bought the LPs and listened to them over and over again. And so the next day I showed up at 2 and read. Who was at the piano to accompany me was John Williams. I read, Norman gave me adjustments, I used his suggestions, his direction. I sang, he gave me some adjustments, I worked with that, they said, 'Thank you.' He also asked me, 'What are you doing now?' I said, 'I'm in 'Oh! Calcutta!' and I hate it!' He looked at me and leaned back and said, 'I was there on opening night.' He knew the producer Hillard Elkins. I thought, 'I'm screwed.'

"A week later they called me for a screen test. I had three screen tests ... If Joel hadn't broken up with me, I would never have taken the job, never have left San Francisco. By the end, Joel came back down and ultimately, we got married. He was with me in Yugoslavia; they gave him a small part in the movie. I thought it was a tragedy that he was breaking up with me; it turned out to be the big turning point in my life. It remains one of the most important things in my life, a true gift that is still giving."

About the Saturday "hometown" screening, Marsh said, "It is very exciting my friends want to come see it. The only thing that's disappointing is that [director] Daniel and [producer] Sasha won't be here. They were looking forward to coming up here and spending the weekend. He just got a new job, a documentary in Japan, and with travel preparation, and concerns about COVID ... he was questioning me about our [recent] trip to Italy, tests before flights ... I would love as many people to come as possible; I would love for everybody to come. It's at 3 ... The Q and A is informal, I'll be casual."

Berman sent her regrets, but added, "Michèle is the star attraction!"

Art and music festival at Town Hall

Last Saturday was a warm day but with some cool music and great art. The Art Alliance of Idyllwild's (AAI) "Eye of the Artist" and the "Call of the Wyld" were combined to the enjoyment of those attending. Starting at Noon, people drifted in and out of the Town Hall until 7 p.m.

The event started with a poetry reading by Holly Parsons and then the "Idyllwild Song" by Lindsay Speed, now a tradition at each concert. Julie Phillips graced the audience with her original songs and then Change Required rocked the place. There was a change of pace with a fashion show of Jen Savino's Designs followed by Songbird Sandii and the Finches. Slow the Goat, The 212 Band, and Lisa and the Broken Hallelujahs kept up the lively vibe, a hallmark of the event.

David Reid-Marr was the judge for the art show with the optional theme of "Wild Wyld" and here are the ribbons he awarded:

The "Eye" event is the AAI's second largest annual fundraiser. It didn't disappoint with the purchase of the silent auction items the business and artist community donated. Hundreds of raffle tickets were sold giving people a chance to win the judged art pieces artists donated.

Mountain Pottery offered attendees a handmade ceramic bowl filled with the chili of their choice. The proceeds of this project go to support the Idyllwild School PTA smARTS program.

AAI's next event is the 24th Art Walk and Wine Tasting Saturday, Oct. 8. Ticket sales open Friday, July 1. It is likely to be another sell out event and with "early bird" pricing, buy your tickets and book your accommodation as soon as possible.

Plankton

They may be teensy, tiny little things, but plankton are hugely important! They are hard to see, but these tiny living things in the ocean are important to our entire planet. They are food for many sea creatures. And they make much of the oxygen we breathe. The word plankton comes from the Greek word planktos, which means "drifter." Their name fits because plankton do not swim on their own. Instead, they drift through water. When the water moves, they move with it.

Photosynthesis

Like plants on land, phytoplankton use sunlight, water and carbon dioxide to make food and oxygen. This process is called photosynthesis.

This week's word:

CRUSTACEAN

Message in a Bottle

While walking on a beach, you spy a strange bottle with a note inside. What does the note say? What will you do next?

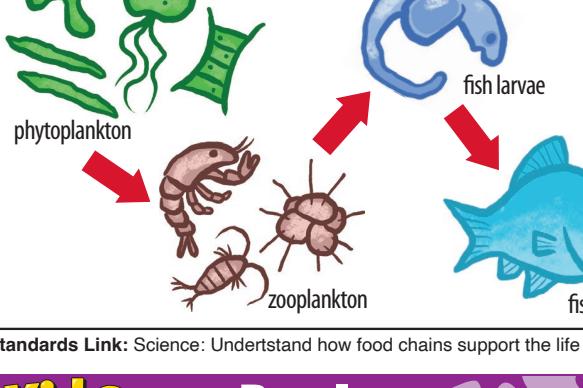

Are plankton plants or animals?

The answer is both! There are two main types of plankton: phytoplankton (fi-toe-plank-ton) and zooplankton. Follow the maze to discover which are plants and which are animals.

Ocean Food Chain

Plankton is made up of tiny, usually one-celled plants and small water animals such as larvae and eggs. Zooplankton and other small marine creatures eat phytoplankton and then become food for fish, crustaceans, and other larger species.

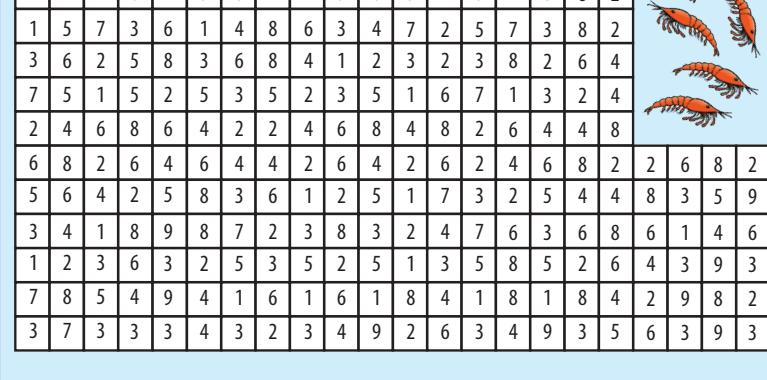

Complete this food chain diagram by drawing an ocean predator (shark, orca, barracuda) here:

Standards Link: Science: Understand how food chains support the life cycles of animals and humans.

Kid Scoop Puzzler

The world's largest animal, eats up to 16 tons of plankton daily. Ten adult men together would weigh about one ton. So 16 tons of plankton would be equal to the weight of 160 men. Good thing it likes plankton and not people!

Color the spaces with odd numbers blue to reveal the animal's name.

CREATURE CORNER

By JANICE MURASKO

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," the ARF cats discussed boosting the spirits of the last kitten waiting to be adopted..

Phil: Banner weekend! It was a banner weekend!

Harley: You're still here, so it wasn't your adoption. Why so excited?

Phil: All the kittens have gone to their new homes.

Harley: No kittens, but I've heard that there is a new cat.

Candy: (Bouncing into the room) That new cat would be me! Hi, everyone!

Phil: Wow! You know how to make an entrance. Welcome!

Candy: I'm Candy, ARF's newest family member.

Pepper: Candy, you are very small. What's your story?

Candy: I was a stray, sadly. ARF recognized what a great member of a family I will be and took me into their loving care. I'm very young and so very happy to be with all of you.

Whiskers: I've heard the ARF humans talking about you. They say you are incredibly friendly.

Candy: Oh gosh, you embarrass me. But yes, I am very friendly because I just love humans. I cannot wait to be member of a family.

Don: I saw you with a little girl the other day. You were so friendly and affectionate. The little girl liked you so much, and you were the perfect size for her!

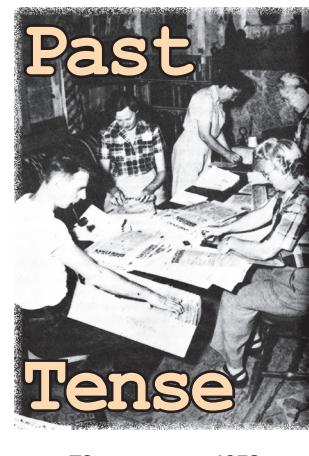

Phil: I think she would have taken you home if she and her aunt hadn't just adopted one of the kittens.

Don: We welcome you, Candy. You are a sweet addition to our family, and you'll be an even sweeter addition to your forever home.

Pepper: Ha ha, Don. I get it!

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

IDYLLWILD COMMUNITY CENTER

Idyllwild Community Center's (ICC) Youth Baseball season wrapped up Thursday, June 9, with fantastic games in all three age groups including T-ball, Minor and Major leagues.

After a three-year hiatus due to the pandemic, ICC was thrilled to get the communities' youth and families back to the baseball field. Over the six-week season filled with practices and games, all three age groups showed great skill development.

ICC was fortunate to have six generous local sponsors; Life Writers, Black Mountain Coffee, American Legion Post 800, Fairway Foods, Sugar Pine Tattoo and Schnalz Electric, which allowed the purchase of new equipment.

Idyllwild Youth Baseball season came to an end last week. Cardinals runner Maverick Marshall and Dodgers infielder Caleb Bischof.

Looking forward, ICC's 2022 Youth Soccer is set to begin late August, with registration opening this summer.

ON THE TOWN

HOROSCOPES

June 2022 — Week 3

March 21 – April 19

Information you need might be coming in sporadically, but at least what you're getting is valuable. Continue to wait until more is available before acting on that career move.

April 20 – May 20

You continue on an upbeat cycle, and with that strong Taurean energy you should see favorable results from your hard work. A pleasant surprise awaits you in your private life.

May 21 – June 21

A misunderstanding needs more time to be worked out. Don't give up on it just yet. Remain open to providing explanations, if called for. Another friend offers good advice.

June 22 – July 22

Fast action can correct a seemingly minor problem that has taken on some unexpectedly difficult aspects. Stay with it until it's resolved. News on a more positive note is due soon.

July 23 – August 22

Some snags could cause delays in those plans you're eager to see put into operation. But be patient. The Clever Cat will soon have good reason to celebrate a job well done.

August 23 – September 22

Be careful not to let that Virgin sensitivity dissuade you from being the hardheaded realist you should be at this time. Your goals are in sight. Stay focused on them.

September 23 – October 22

A more positive aspect opens up, allowing you to make some important changes in a personal situation. Remember to seek balance and avoid extremes as you proceed.

October 23 – November 21

This is a good week to get out and enjoy the fine times you missed while you were so deep in those workaday projects. Be sure to share it with that special person.

November 22 – December 21

Work and play are in balance this week. However, expect news that could tip things toward the workplace for quite a while. But all to a good end.

December 22 – January 19

You're more productive on the job than you have been in some time. That's good. But be careful not to overlook some situations developing in your private life.

January 20 – February 18

You've been doing a lot for others (as usual). But now it's time to focus on your needs, including finally going on that long-delayed trip you've been hoping to make.

February 19 – March 20

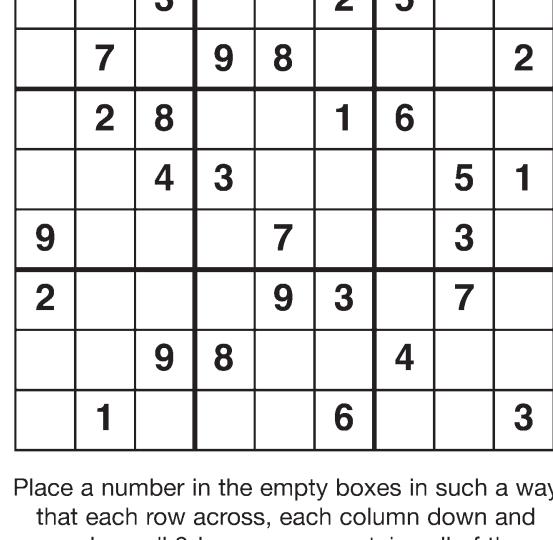

It's all smoothly going on 'twixt you and that very special person in your life. But a colleague causes some disruption on the job that you might be called on to help settle.
