State eliminates supervisors from redistricting decisions — Mandates a citizens redistricting commission

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

On Sept. 18, Gov. Gavin Newsom signed into law Assembly Bill 1307 which creates a County of Riverside Citizens Redistricting Commission, similar to the 2020 California Citizens Redistricting Commission. The state group redrew the boundaries for the Board of Equalization, Congress, state Senate and Assembly, following the 2020 Census.

Assemblywoman Sabrina Cervantes (AD 60), a Democrat representing Corona, Eastvale and a portion of Riverside, introduced Assembly Bill 1307 in February 2021. But it was not until this January, after the county supervisors approved a redistricting plan, that the Assembly held hearings on the bill.

It passed both state houses in August with nearly a 75% majority.

After Newsom signed the bill, Cervantes said in a press release, “This failure of a majority of the Board of Supervisors to protect the voting rights of our Latino community illustrates why we needed to create an independent citizen redistricting commission to draw fair maps for Riverside County.”

Cervantes’ bill was patterned after laws in 2012 and 2016, respectively, created independent citizen redistricting commissions for San Diego and Los Angeles counties. Proposition 11 in 2008 created the State Citizens Redistricting Commission.

Her bill creates a 14-member commission to redistrict supervisorial districts following the 2030 Census and each future Census. Commission members must be county residents and registered either as no party preference or with a party affiliation for the previous five years.

The commission’s composition should be close to the party affiliation or no preference percentages in the county.

During the prior 10 years, commission applicants may not have served or run for any political office at the federal, state or local level. Further, official office staff or campaign staff are also prohibited from seeking a commission seat.

Qualified applicants will be selected as commission members based on a lottery that the county auditor controller must conduct. Each supervisor’s district must have at least one resident on the commission.

Districts must comply with the U.S. Constitution and have “reasonably equal populations” except where deviations are needed to comply with the Federal Voting Rights Act.

The commission must comply with California’s open meeting law (Ralph M. Brown Act) and hold at least seven meetings of which at least one will be held in each supervisory district.

In 2019, the Legislature passed a bill giving counties with a population of greater than 400,000 the ability to establish independent re-

Short-term rental community meetings

Riverside County 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington is hosting two community meetings to discuss short-term rentals (STRs), one in Idyllwild and one in Temecula.

The Idyllwild event is from 5 to 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 3, at Town Hall.

The Temecula event is from 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 4, at the Temecula Public Library, 30600 Pauba Rd.

Those familiar with the issue know that the mountain and Temecula Valley unincorporated areas have the highest percentages of STRs.

districting commissions. However, Newsom vetoed that Senate Bill 139 because “... local jurisdictions are already authorized to establish independent, advisory or hybrid redistricting commissions.”

After the board’s December vote on redistricting, Cervantes opined, “[It] violates state and federal law by intentionally fracturing compact and cohesive communities of Latino voters into multiple districts.”

During the board’s consideration of which map to choose, both supervisors Karen Spiegel (2nd District) and Chuck Washington (3rd District) asked the county counsel for the Executive Office Technical Committee whether the maps being reviewed met the criteria of the Voting Rights Act. And counsel replied that all the maps satisfied the Federal Voting Rights Act.

Nevertheless, Cervantes disagreed and said, “Assembly Bill 1307 ensures that members of the Riverside County Board of Supervisors cannot draw their own district boundaries for their own benefit, and instead places that power where it rightfully belongs — with the people. Members of the State Legislature like myself do not get to draw their own districts. Why should members of the Riverside County Board of Supervisors be any different?”

After AB 1307 was signed, in an email to the Town Crier, Washington said, “Although I believe Riverside County’s redistricting process yielded a good product, there is always room for improvement. I would have liked more discussion to develop a local solution, but I support any effort to improve community engagement.”

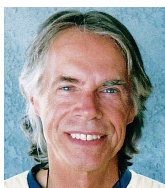

In June, the American Civil Liberties Union filed litigation on behalf of the Inland Empire United and six individuals challenging the county’s redistricting decision. This is pending in federal court.

When asked if the new law might affect the lawsuit, Cervantes replied that she does not comment on pending litigation.

Monday, Sept. 19, Cervantes posted the following on her Facebook page, “The Governor signed my AB 1307 into law! An independent citizens redistricting commission will draw lines for the Riverside County Board of Supervisors starting in 2030. This will protect the voting rights of Latinos, & provide fairer maps that better represent our community.”

Members of the first County of Riverside Citizens Redistricting Commission will be selected before Dec. 31, 2030, and will serve until the appointment of the first member of the succeeding commission.

County board approves Idyllwild Fire tax advance

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

At its Sept. 20 meeting, the Riverside County Board of Supervisors approved the request from the Idyllwild Fire Protection District (IFPD) for an advance of its property tax revenue. IFPD requested an advance of $400,000 from the county in July. The advance will be repaid, with interest, in December and January when Riverside County makes its first distribution of property tax receipts to the cities and special districts. The county estimated the interest would be about $3,400 this year. From July through the middle of December, the district's cash flow is limited to ambulance collections because it receives no property tax or assessments during that period. The county limits the use of the advance tax revenue to "any normal operating expense of the District included in the district's fiscal year 2022-23 budget." The commission has requested a $400,000 advance each year since 2016. In 2014, it was $300,000 and in 2011, it was $450,000. California's Constitution and Government Code have provisions that allow the county to temporarily advance and transfer funds to special districts. The limit is 85% of the anticipated revenues for the current fiscal year.

Wilkerson leads next mental hygiene workshop

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

From 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1, the Idyllwild Community Mental Hygiene Workshop Series continues at Town Hall with Cara Wilkerson, a licensed marriage and family therapist (LMFT). Her workshop is titled "Depression and Anxiety in Childhood, Adolescence and Adulthood: Effects on Relationships with Self, Others and Community." The series is a project of the Idyllwild Forest Health Project and its offshoot, Mountain Communities Mutual Aid. The series continues on Saturdays through Oct. 22. Organizer Robyn Winks, LMFT, will bring a different local mental health professional to help participants "gain healthy, updated coping skills and practices to thrive during challenging times." The emphasis is on community building as an aspect of mental hygiene, rather than on diagnosing or treating mental illness. Wilkerson specializes in treating complex trauma and post-traumatic stress disorder. She has 16 years of practice in California, Florida and Texas. She graduated Summa Cum Laude from California State University, San Marcos with a Bachelor's of Science in Psychology, and from California Baptist University with a Masters of Arts in Counseling Psychology. She also is certified in a number of alternative therapy modalities including Equine Therapy. Wilkerson said, "The workshop will be discussion based and we will have some exercises, different grounding or relaxation exercises." She explained that depression and anxiety are more nuanced than the layperson may think, and aims to break some of the stereotypes around these two common disorders and the people who suffer from them. She describes depression as a dysregulation within mood. "The symptoms may include social withdrawal or isolating, harboring negative beliefs about self, lethargy, helplessness, hopelessness — there are so many different ways people at different ages cope, manage and get treatment."

TC: "Most people might not think of that complexity." CW: "Sometimes depression affects how we see ourselves, sometimes how we see the world. People will distrust the world or isolate, withdraw from it. It is important to individualize it in view and treatment." Wilkerson explained that anxiety also is more complex than commonly thought. CW: "I am also going to cover different forms of anxiety. Within anxiety there is generalized anxiety, panic, social anxiety, trauma, phobias." TC: "All those are contained in anxiety?" CW: "They are all affecting our nervous system in a way that is dysregulating to our nervous systems. I am also going to touch on separation anxiety; I've noticed a lot of that since COVID. I will deal with how that affects adults and children differently; with kids it often occurs with their caregiver; with adults it can be separation from family, children, animals etc." Cara also shared that she was born and raised in Idyllwild. "My family goes back generations here. I went to Idyllwild School." TC: "Who was the first member of your family to move here?" CW: "Great-grandpa Errol Hunt, married to Juanita. They had four kids: Bud, Stan, Carol and Diane. Carol Hunt is my grandma." TC: "How does that experience shape you and your work?" CW: "The Idyllwild community is very special; it is different from most places. We have a lot of resources here within the community." TC: "How so?" CW: "Love as a behavior; not romantic love, but kindness and respect, compassion, open-mindedness, being non-judgmental." TC: "These things are helpful for healing?" CW: "Yes, for healing depression and anxiety." Dr. Tima Ivanova, LMFT, will facilitate a concurrent pro-

COVID precautions when our Community Level is low

The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) continues to rate Riverside County's Community Level as low. Based on this rating, CDC recommends that everyone stay up to date with COVID-19 vaccines. If you have symptoms, get tested. Wear a good-quality mask if you have symptoms, test positive, use public transportation or have been exposed to someone with COVID. If you choose, wear a mask at any time as an additional precaution.

As of Tuesday, Sept. 27, the Hemet Unified School District's dashboard showed that Idyllwild School reported no students and no staff members with COVID, while Hemet High reported nine students and two staff members with COVID. Both Hamilton Elementary and Hamilton second-ary reported no students and no staff members with COVID.

Democrat Brian Nash vies for state senator

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Editor's note: On Nov. 8, the state's general election will be held. Voters will choose a state senator for District 32, which includes the Hill. As a result of redistricting after the 2020 Census, there is no incumbent in this race. The two candidates are Democrat Brian Nash and Republican Assemblyman Kelly Seyarto. The Town Crier interviewed each candidate and both stories appear in this edition of the paper.

Brian Nash, the 42-year-old Democratic candidate for the state Senate District 32 seat, lives in Murrieta and is a Michigan native. After high school, he worked and eventually he and his wife, Nancy, headed to New Hampshire. There he graduated from Southern New Hampshire University and earned a master's in business administration degree from Indiana University before moving to California for work.

"It's an amazing experience. Living in California is new and a lot of fun," Nash said beaming.

He has been traveling the district to meet voters, to learn local issues and to seek support. But this is his first race for elective office and he said, "I'm an introvert at heart. This is pulling me out of my comfort zone."

The first page of his website (<https://electbriannash.com/>) identifies three issues: mass shootings, Roe v. Wade, and the effect of housing, health care and inflation on families.

In response to the question of why mass shootings is one of the critical issues on his list, Nash said, "The state Senate can help produce policies that govern the state. I want to help write laws governing guns in California. I want to challenge the status quo. This can happen anywhere, like it did in San Bernardino [which occurred in 2015]."

With respect to the U.S. Supreme Court's "Dobbs" decision, which changed its Roe v. Wade decision, Nash stressed, "I am appalled. It is really unfortunate and not in line with the majority of people ...

"I believe is not my place as a politician to tell a woman what to do," he added.

And he is a firm advocate for a single-payer health insurance system. Since most working individuals have some form of health insurance through their employer, he argues that converting to a single plan would save money.

"Currently, we are paying a middleman and this money could go directly to hospitals or doctors. With 40 million people [California residents], the cost saving would mean no need to skimp on the plan if implemented well," he contends.

Climate change is another issue for which Nash has strong feelings. He is worried about the future so he supports Gov. Gavin Newsom's actions to modify climate change.

In particular, he agrees with the recent Air Resources Board decision to phase out the sales of new gasoline vehicles by 2035. But he does disagree with Newsom's opposition to Proposition 30, which would tax incomes greater than $2 million and use the money to help establish the electric vehicle culture and wildfires. Newsom argues that Prop 30 is simply a subsidy for Lyft to replace its vehicles.

"I'm not sure why he singled out Lyft. Much of the funds, 80%, goes back to shifting society to electrical vehicles," Nash argued. "This will be a positive benefit on the climate."

If the state is going to shift to electric vehicles, Nash acknowledges that we'll need much more electricity. He wants to see solar, wind and, possibly, new and safer nuclear plants become the source of this needed supply.

He agreed with Newsom's recommendation to keep open the Diablo Canyon nuclear plant in San Luis Obispo County.

He noted that just three to four days after the California Air Resources Board (CARB) issued its regulation to begin reducing gasoline-powered cars in favor of electric, the state had to urge electric car owners to reduce charging because of the potential electric shortage due to the fires and extreme heat.

In a recently released Stanford University study, as the number of electric vehicle owners grows, more charging stations will be needed and it urges charging vehicles during the day, possibly at work.

"Nuclear power is extremely efficient when it works well," Nash stated. He would favor construction of new and safer plants while phasing out the older ones such as Diablo.

But Nash has said numerous times, education is the top issue of this campaign. To Ballet-pedia, he explained, "As the child of a teacher and principal, I know how important a good education is for people to be able to get where they want to go in life. I will vehemently advocate for both better funding for educators, and more options for our learners."

On his website, he stresses that teachers are overworked and underpaid, and open to constant criticism. He also favors alternative school paths, such as trade schools, rather than just a pre-college curriculum.

Nash also advocates changing the state tax system. He believes the system favors the affluent. "Our tax system is not structured in equitable ways. For example, the wealthy have ways to reduce taxes, like hiring an accountant, that lower income folks don't have," he argued.

"We need to update the tax structure rather than simplify components. We need to mediate the gap between highest and lowest earners," said Nash, describing his goal for the tax system. "It's extremely difficult for anyone making the minimum wage to get ahead."

Seyarto seeks move from Assembly to Senate

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Editor's note: On Nov. 8, the state's general election will be held. Voters will choose a state senator for District 32, which includes the Hill. As a result of redistricting after the 2020 Census, there is no incumbent in this race. The two candidates are Republican Assemblyman Kelly Seyarto and Democrat Brian Nash. The Town Crier interviewed each candidate and both stories appear in this edition of the paper.

Kelly Seyarto lives in Murietta with his wife Denise. Besides helping Denise raise three daughters, he was a firefighter for 35 of his 62 years. In 2015, he retired as a battalion chief for Los Angeles County Fire Department.

During his firefighting career, he also served as a Murietta Council member and mayor. In 2020, he was elected to the California Assembly to represent the 67th District, which stretches from the Temescal Valley east to south of Hemet. It includes Murrieta, Menifee and Wildomar.

California law limits an individual's opportunity to serve in either the Assembly or state Senate to 12 years. Consequently, Seyarto accepts that he will not have the opportunity for three Senate terms. "We knew going into [the race] it was potentially two terms."

He accepts this limitation because he believes he can be more effective for his constituents in the 40-member Senate rather than the 80-member Assembly.

As a former firefighter, Seyarto understands what State Responsibility Areas are and how Cal Fire, the U.S. Forest Service and local fire agencies must work together to reduce the risk of wildfires and to suppress a fire if one starts.

Consequently, he would like to see more emphasis on vegetation management to reduce the risk of major fires. "We need more protection on state and federal lands," he stated. "Over the years, maintenance has dropped, now there is too much fuel. Fire breaks are environmentally unpopular, but we need them now."

Seyarto introduced Assembly Bill 380 to address some fuel reduction issues. "One major issue occurs when fuel reduction contracts [are being developed] by any agency. The [California Environmental Quality Act] can sometimes be frustrating. And it may take years and years to get the contract through," Seyarto asserted. "Sometimes you can't wait that long."

While it didn't pass the Legislature, he hopes its chances will improve if he is elected to the Senate. He also wants Cal Fire to identify critical fuel-reduction projects each year that need to be completed soon and would qualify for these exemptions.

While a critical issue, wildfires are not the only issue that attracts Seyarto's attention. He has identified many issues (<https://seyartoforsenate.com>) he believes are important this year. These include energy policy, water storage, homelessness, and education and schools.

With respect to energy, he sees the lack of generators as one of the major problems. "On the horizon, there is an increase in the amount of consumption. But we're making policies that decrease the number of generators."

Since the state policy is to replace gas-driven cars with electric vehicles, Seyarto argues, "We can't take Diablo offline. That would be absolute devastation for charging electric vehicles. We don't have enough generators to accomplish the goals at this speed."

In a recent Stanford University study, a conflict with future transportation policy and electricity generation policies was described. In the future, as electric vehicle ownership grows, the demand for power will increase. But as the electric grid shifts to renewable sources, especially solar, it will be easier and safer to charge electric vehicles during the day rather than nighttime. Currently, most electric vehicle owners charge at night at home.

And this perception of "unintended and conflicting consequences" characterizes his position on many policies. As an Assembly member, Seyarto sees how the Legislature's actions can affect individual's pocketbooks. "They are getting hit hard in the wallet. At the state end when creating policies, are we adding to the cost-of-living since not everyone benefits from these actions, but all of us pay for it through taxes?" he noted.

Water policy is another example of these conflicts. The state is not building storage facilities as quickly as necessary to avoid a potential crisis, he believes. He added, "We know we're susceptible to the drought, but we are not updating our storage systems nor looking for other sources of water supply such as desalination."

Unfortunately, he averred, "We can't do nothing which is what we're doing now."

Understanding policy consequences influences his views of all legislation, especially homelessness. He believes strongly that the problem needs more work from charitable organizations and legislation that addresses the "root cause."

10% cap on STRs, please

DEAR EDITOR:

While most of the hard work is behind us, and the new short-term rental (STR) ordinance does have additional teeth, what we really need now is for the county supervisors to recognize and acknowledge that Idyllwild has by far the highest percentage of STRs in the county. We now need a carve out with a cap for Idyllwild.

Our current county supervisor, Chuck Washington, as well as our soon to be Supervisor Manuel Perez, will both be in Idyllwild from 5 to 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 3. They want to hear from the community regarding STRs.

The previous Town Hall that took place last year was an extreme exhibition of unruly behavior, that in my opinion bordered on barbaric at times. Many older folk who simply wanted to share their negative experiences with STRs were shouted down.

It is truly my hope that this Town Hall will be different, and folk can show respect on both sides.

STRs have been a part of Idyllwild for decades, but they have gotten to a point where their negative effects on our community cannot be ignored. Some of the issues our town has encountered from STRs are: Uneducated guests regarding fire; long-term housing shortages; problems for employers to find workers due to said housing shortage; loud, rowdy parties due to poorly managed homes; and long-term residents in some cases surrounded by multiple short STRs/mini-hotels.

Sadly, folk who have lived on the Hill for a long time had their long-term rentals turned into STRs and were forced to move off the Hill due to affordability if they could even find a long-term rental.

As some folk say, Idyllwild is a vacation destination, but the folk who live here full-time, combined with the folk who use their homes exclusively for their own enjoyment as a second home, and have no affiliation with the downtown businesses or the STRs, make up the majority of people in our town. They simply purchased homes here to enjoy the beauty and tranquility that is Idyllwild, which has survived for decades with far less business and revenue than it has now. I support and I'm all for businesses, just like to keep them separate from the residential neighborhoods.

There are 500-plus registered and probably another 150 or more unregistered. That's around 18% of all homes in Idyllwild/Pine Cove that are now owned and operated to some degree by STR folk. It's enough.

The main thing I'd like to see that hasn't been encompassed yet with the updated STR ordinance is a cap of no more than 10%, combined with some level of density. (Must be 300-foot distance between STRs within a given area).

If you are a full-timer who has been affected by STRs over the last few years, even if that has temporarily died down due to the inevitable cyclical nature of real estate and the current economic condition, please come out and share your experience and/or desires going forward for our town. Please show up and ask your supervisors for a cap of 10% and some sort of density limitation. The serenity and history of our enchanted town is on the line.

I do not advocate shutting down existing registered STRs in good standing and abiding by the newest STR ordinance, but until the actual number of total homes being utilized as businesses in our residentially zoned neighborhoods drops below 10%, it is imperative that the county continues the existing moratorium and does not hand out any more permits.

Lastly, and again, my hope is that we can all be civil at the meeting.

kids. It's important to support a system that gives parents choice ... so that when students graduate, they have tools whether they go to college or into trades."

At the end of June, when the primary campaign season ended, Seyarto's campaign coffers had nearly $180,000 in cash. His opponent, Brian Nash, has yet to file any campaign financial reports.

Since Aug. 1, Seyarto has collected another $46,000. These contributions have come from a variety of sources, including educational, energy, health care, transportation, farm and veterinary organizations. Cal Fire Local 2881 and the California Real Estate PAC gave $9,700 in May for the primary. In August, the California Real Estate PAC donated another $9,700.

Seyarto and Nash were the only two candidates on the June primary ballot. Seyarto garnered 62% of the ballots cast. And he remains optimistic about the November results.

If elected, Seyarto would join a legislative body that is nearly 80% the opposite party. Nevertheless, he believes he can work, thrive and succeed under those conditions.

"If you don't have the ability to work with others, work with different viewpoints, you're not going to be successful," he said. And his local government service has given him the experience to achieve without being partisan. "I won't let issues be tossed to the side because of partisanship."

Water board meetings during September

By BECKY CLARK
EDITOR

Here is a summary of recent Hill water district activity:
At their Sept. 17 meeting, Fern Valley Water District directors unanimously approved a non-budgeted cost of $60,000 to upgrade 10 fire hydrants from 3-inch post to 6-inch commercial. This will cover a quarter of the remaining 40 hydrants to upgrade and required a revision to the Capital Improvement Projects.
In public comments at their Sept. 21 meeting, Idyllwild Water District (IWD) directors heard from local tree authority Deborah Geisinger about the need to remove what she called invasive cedar trees because they consume so much more water than native species. She said, "I promise you the creeks will start running again." Since it was not an agenda item, President Charles Schelly asked her to bring a presentation back to the board for a future agenda item.
Water loss dropped to about 10% versus 19% last month.
IWD General Manager Leo Havener reported that he has sent feelers to Idyllwild Arts about purchasing property for the new wastewater treatment plant but had not heard back.
The board approved a revised employee manual 4-0 with Director Les Gin absent. The primary change was that employees who were hired since Jan. 1, 2019, will be at-will instead of contract employees.
At the Sept. 14 Pine Cove Water District meeting, General Manager Jeremy Potter reported that the crew has begun "well head protection and maintenance on all the wells."

He also said a retesting of wells that had tested high for lead show they all are below the maximum contaminant level now.
Lake Hemet Municipal Water District (LHMWD) General Manager Mike Gow reported at the board's Sept. 14 meeting that the California Regional Water Quality Control Board sampled Lake Hemet on Aug. 18 for cyanobacteria and its associated cyanotoxins. Although toxins were not found, he wrote that the state recommended "advising the public to not swim since the toxins can be harmful to pets and people if ingested."
An off-Hill development called The Boulders with about 360 single family homes is proposed within LHMWD but will need to satisfy the district's ordinance regarding water shortage restrictions to be able to receive service, as well as sewer and traffic issues. The proposal has not been submitted to the county.

Noer and Jimenez take over managing ICC programs

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

The Idyllwild Community Center (ICC) board has hired a new recreation and program director and an assistant director. The duo will manage programs at Town Hall and ICC's other facilities.

Speaking with ICC President Stephanie Yost and her two new team members at Town Hall, the impression is that their jobs change every day, and that this is one of the main appeals of the position.

SY: "Since we hired Will Steichen (ICC's previous recreation director) in 2019, the job duties have expanded considerably because we've added more programs and acquired new facilities to care for. So, we now have two people to take his place. Will is leaving to pursue his master's degree at UCLA. It seemed like a good time to look at adding the assistant director position."

TC: "How have the Idyllwild Community Center programs at Town Hall grown?"

SY: "We have expanded our child care program. We have expanded our Fit After 50 program. We have taken on managing the Farmer's Market. We became the local affiliate for Feeding America (monthly free food distributions). The Summer Concert Series has expanded over time. Once the renovation of Town Hall was completed (in 2020, we didn't really reopen until 2021) we have had many more rentals; local non-profits (like the Actor's Theater, the Art Alliance and Rotary) and businesses, families holding parties and weddings, retreats and conferences. The same with the amphitheater."

Recreation and Program Director Bridget Noer moved here from Hemet about 10 years ago to work at Ferro, but has many connections on the Hill going back further. She was a Girl Scout leader.

Assistant Director Emily Jimenez has been here for 22 years, growing up on the Hill. She was a camp counselor and "horse wrangler" (official title) at Camp Ronald McDonald in Mountain Center. She also credits her efforts in mounting the recent fundraiser to repair the Idyllwild Skate Park as getting her into the position. Yost commented that this provided "an opportunity to see her organizational skills as well as her commitment to the community. Both women, in their paid work experience, and in the community service sense, have a tremendous amount of experience interacting with the community and understand the importance of customer service. We interact with the community constantly and take a very customer-centered approach to providing services to the community."

All three seem to love the variety of duties that fall to them. Over and over the words came out: "Every day is different." Another phrase was "super exciting."

BN: "Some days it's just opening and locking doors. Yesterday we had to climb into the tube slide to remove graffiti. While we have a full-time maintenance man, things come up all the time that need to be taken care of quickly. We ask, 'Can we do it?'"

Yost wanted to underline the extent of ICC's footprint and responsibilities now. In addition to Town Hall and the Butterfield Amphitheater, they also manage the ICC Playground, the Skate Park, the Dog Park and the Pickleball Courts. All this as progress continues on the construction of the new Community Center itself. "It's a lot of places to take care of."

BN: "They each have their own little area that needs to be taken care of."

SY: "These two certainly have a lot to do. We've just finished Summer Camp and the kids are back in school. A lot of our focus is now on after-school programs and youth sports."

EJ: "We have 12 [soccer] teams. Organizing it was something I'd never done before. It was really cool to be on this side of the field. There are three divisions, each with four teams; a division for 4 to 6 year olds, one for 7 to 9, another for 10 to 13. There are over 100 kids in the program."

Jimenez's duties with the sports program included "registration, working with the coaches scheduling practices and games, ordering shirts and equipment, and maintaining existing equipment and working with Idyllwild School. "We do a contract with the district to share the top field," she said.

BN: "This has to be coordinated so there are no conflicts with their programs. We submit an electronic schedule to HUSD; it has to be approved by several different people before it is finalized."

TC: "You are becoming monsters of organization!"

BN: "There is always so much going on. It's fun, even if you get pulled into so many different directions every day. Everything needs to be well-organized and planned."

SY: "They also need to be prepared to help other staff with their jobs if we are down a person."

Yost explained that both director and assistant are completing their Fit After 50 certification so they will be able to step in if needed, and they already fill in with the child care programs. Yost also mentioned the on-the-job training the pair underwent to smooth the transition:

SY: "The pair had a chance to shadow Will Steichen for three weeks before he left to see what he did. Even with all that time, new situations and questions come up regularly and they're doing a great job stepping into their new roles. They just did the Feeding America food distribution for the first time without Will."

BN: "It went well. We're very thankful that all of our programs in place are running very smoothly. We just need to keep that forward momentum."

TC: "What else can you tell our readers about this new step for you?"

BN: "Out of all the places to land work-wise on the Hill, this opportunity presented itself and we're very fortunate. We're very happy to be here and look forward to adding more programs and events over time."

SY: "We have a good, strong team to maintain our existing programs, and as we build out we have more programs and events in the planning stage. It's exciting to have people who use the facilities have a voice, and it's great to have their input and ideas."

BN: "We were at the Skatepark yesterday, just 'tearing it up.'" [Note to readers, this means exerting themselves and not performing demolition.]

SY: "We had a number of applicants for the position, over a dozen. The hope at ICC was to find one or more solid candidates who were local; with such variable hours and so much community interaction we thought this would be the best fit. We're delighted to have Bridget and Emily on the ICC staff team."

When the recent Fairview Fire activated emergency plans on and around our mountain, Town Hall took on another of its many roles, opening its doors to those suffering power outages. ICC President Stephanie Yost explained:

"The Idyllwild Community Center has had a contract with SCE since the completion of Town Hall in summer of 2020 to be a cooling/warming/charging center in the event of a power outage because we have a generator there. Edison has used it several times when weather (wind, snow, ice) threatens our power on the Hill. They notify ICC within 24 hours of their intended usage of Town Hall when there is a possibility of an outage, and they bring small emergency kits, water and snacks to hand out to those in need."

A Big "Thank You" to the Sheriffs and Firefighters

The Fairview Fire is under control - now we can relax again.

All the years, I lived in Idyllwild, we never experienced such high winds. After them, the heavy rain was welcomed by all. Life has been very challenging for a number of years. Feeling shut and boxed in made us very impatient and irritable.

While the fire was raging, the Sheriffs were seen in numbers to protect Idyllwild. Seeing them, made me feel safe and protected. They contributed to our calmness. We are so blessed to have them!

Another "Big Thanks" goes to Ken Dahleen. The concerts he put together were loved by all and helped to forget difficulties for a while. I was moved to hear the Marine Band. They made me feel so proud to be an American and what we stand for.

We love Idyllwild - there is no better place for us.

Thank you again - we love you.

Goopy Manners

Gelett Burgess wrote a series of goop books to teach children manners.

One book of goop tales has verses about 52 children, two for each letter of the alphabet. Each child's name describes a fault.

Draw a line from each goop name to that child's fault.

Asleepnogo	would not share things
Teeza	had dirty hands
Nevashair	didn't want to go to bed
Inkafinga	picked on others

Standards Link: Reading Comprehension: Follow simple directions.

What faults are described by these names?

Standards Link: Vocabulary: Understand word meaning from context clues.

Make up names for children with these faults:

Gelett Burgess: The Nonsense Expert

Born January 30, 1866, Gelett Burgess is remembered as a nonsense expert. In fact, he may be one of your favorite authors, even though you have probably never heard of him.

He invented such great words as "blurb" and "goop."

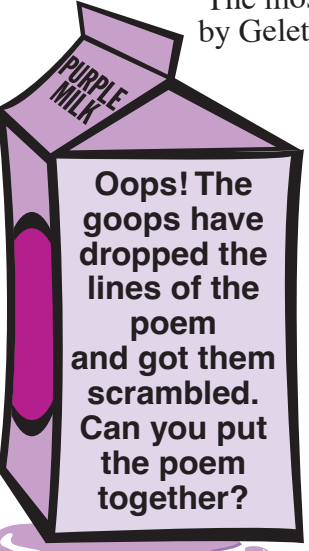

Goop comes from the many tales he told of the boneless, ill-mannered and sort-of-human characters he named "goops."

The goops, they lick their fingers;
The goops, they lick their knives.
They spill their broth on the table cloth.
Oh, they lead disgusting lives.

The Purple Cow

The most quoted poem of the 1890s was a little ditty by Gelett Burgess called "The Purple Cow."

Oops! The goops have dropped the lines of the poem and got them scrambled. Can you put the poem together?

A But I can tell you anyhow,

B I'd rather see than be one.

C I never hope to see one.

D I never saw a purple cow

ANSWER: The correct order is D, C, A, B.

Standards Link: Reading Comprehension: Follow simple written directions.

How to Draw a Purple Cow

STEP 1

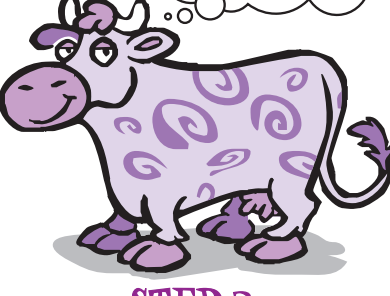

Draw big, simple shapes for your cow's body with a pencil. Draw very lightly. A cow's body is a rectangle. Cows have short legs and a long tail. Draw ovals for the head and feet.

STEP 2

Still drawing with a pencil, start adding details like eyes, hooves, udders, and horns. Remember to draw lightly with the pencil because you'll be erasing the pencil lines.

STEP 3

Draw over the pencil lines in ink. Make sure the ink is dry, then erase all the pencil lines. Color your cow and add spots, stripes, or wild & wacky patterns.

Well, this is udder nonsense!

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

CREATURE CORNER

By JANICE MURASKO

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," new ARF cats discussed how to keep cats comfortable in cold, snowy weather.

Phil: Let's continue the game we were playing last week, but instead of how to keep cats warm, let's talk about keeping dogs warm.

Atlas: Great! People just have to know when it's too cold for a dog outside, for starters.

Phil: Right! When it's 20° F outside, it's too cold for most dogs. Above 20° F it may still be too cold to walk if conditions are icy, windy, or if the dog is very young, old, or has a compromised immune system.

Newton: Jackets! Put jackets onto the dogs!

Buffie: Not all dogs will benefit from a sweater or jacket, but many breeds can.

Whiskers: Hairless breeds should always wear some type of winter dog clothing. Short haired and small breeds should always wear a sweater or jacket for insulation.

Buffie: And pet guardians should consider getting a jacket or sweater for elderly dogs, sick dogs, young puppies or immune-compromised pets.

Newton: And their feet! Don't forget about their feet!

Harley: Right. There can be sharp objects just below the snow-covered surface that no one can see.

Phil: They can wear booties or their pet parents can apply paw wax.

Atlas: And what about when the dog sleeps at night?

Cuddles: They should always be indoors, especially at night!

Harley: That should go without saying.

Phil: Besides being so much colder at night, when sleeping outside they are prime targets for predators.

Atlas: And if the dog is extra sensitive to the cold, even when staying inside, humans can use a warming bed or a heated pad designed to keep dogs warm.

Cuddles: The best part about all this is that the cold weather gives pets and their guardians good cause to spend time together.

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

HOROSCOPES

September 2022 — Week 5

March 21 – April 19
You might not like the sudden setback in your plans. But keep that headstrong Arian temperament in check and wait for explanations. Things will begin to clear up by week's end.

April 20 – May 20
Enjoy the respite from your recent hectic schedule, but be ready to plunge into a new round of social activities. A new contact holds much potential for the future.

May 21 – June 21
A trusted colleague has news that could change your perception of a current workplace situation. What had seemed unfair might prove to be highly favorable after all.

June 22 – July 22
You still need to watch what you say and how you say it. What you assert as honesty, others might perceive as Crabbiness. Be patient. This difficult period clears up by the weekend.

July 23 – August 22
Your Royalness needs some time away from the limelight to catch up on things, whether it's tidying up your desk or making those calls you've put off. You're back in the center of things by the weekend.

August 23 – September 22
Honesty is the best policy, of course. But, you'll do better at achieving your goals if you can be less aggressive and more circumspect in how you phrase your comments.

September 23 – October 22
Your ability to maintain your balance in confusing situations continues to work for you. Stay on the steady course, one step at a time. The weekend shows improvement.

October 23 – November 21
Your indecisiveness could simply be your keen Scorpion sense warning you to be wary of making a commitment. Take this time to do a more thorough investigation.

November 22 – December 21
Good news: New information comes your way to help you make a more informed decision on how to deal with the opportunity that has opened up for you.

December 22 – January 19
This is a good time to reinforce your self-confidence by acknowledging your own good qualities. A lull in your social life ends by the weekend. Have fun.

January 20 – February 18
It's a good time to let those recently pent-up emotions flow more freely. Why not start by letting the people you care for know how you really feel about them?

February 19 – March 20
Resist offers, no matter how well-intentioned, to help with a personal decision. Only you know what must be done, and you have the emotional strength to follow through.
