Revised STR ordinance approved; moratorium vote set for Oct 25

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

At the Oct 18 meeting of the Riverside County Board of Supervisors, Ordinance 927.1 (Regulating Short Term Rentals [STRs]) and Ordinance 671.22 (Consolidated fees for land use) were finally approved without any new requests for the planning staff to make further revisions.

The board also accepted the report on the current STR moratorium and set a public hearing for Tuesday, Oct. 25 to consider whether the moratorium will lapse on its expiration date, Oct. 28, or to extend it. The planning staff is proposing an extension for 10 months, until Sept. 9, 2023.

Ordinance 927

At its Oct. 4 meeting, the board requested more changes to the previously agreed-to revisions of 927. The latest changes involved how the size of the lot will affect the maximum permitted occupancy of an STR and the procedures for notifying neighbors when a property owner obtains an STR certificate.

The revised Ordinance 927 was finally approved at the Oct. 18 board meeting. The vote was unanimous.

Besides the occupancy and notification procedures, this revision includes earlier changes allowing accessory dwelling units to be rented, information on signs posted on the property, one-night minimum visits, increased fees for initial and renewal of STR certificates, increased fines for violations, fire sprinklers optional, and responsibilities of hosting platforms.

Following nearly an hour of public comments, only 3rd District Supervisor Chuck Washington spoke and his comments were not about the revisions to the proposed ordinance, rather he addressed the process that culminated with this vote.

During the first two weeks of October, Washington and his staff and the Planning Department staff held to community meetings. The first was in Idyllwild and the second in the Wine Country. Attendance was about 100 at the first session.

At the Wine County public meeting where there were about 135 people, some apparently pilloried Washington for not securing more changes that would limit STRs in the revised ordinance. See STRs, page A4

County continuing plans for Hill-wide emergency warning system

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

At its Oct. 25 meeting, the Riverside County Board of Supervisors approved increasing funding to plan for an emergency outdoor warning system (OWS) and travelers' information stations (TIS) for the San Jacinto Mountains area. The intent is to improve public alert and warning systems. Idyllwild's Mile High Radio Club (MHRC) has been pursuing this project for several years.

The increased planning costs were about $125,000 and will come from a Homeland Security Grant.

The board also approved a mitigated negative declaration for the project, which was circulated for the 30-day public review period from Aug. 4 to Sept. 3.

Nearly a year ago, the supervisors approved the project in-principle at their Sept. 21, 2021, meeting. At that time, the planning portion was expected to be $210,768. With this addition, planning costs will be about $335,000.

During this time, planning costs increased for due diligence of permitting multiple sites, and developing and approving owner agreements for county and non-county-owned sites. Also, the staff said that environmental analysis and mitigation measures were developed to comply with the California Environmental Quality Act and National Environmental Protection Act.

The county warning system is different from, but complements, the Idyllwild Fire Protection District's (IFPD) plans for sirens within the Idyllwild area. It also will not replace WNKI (Idyllwild emergency radio station 1610 AM) but will extend its coverage and capability north to Poppet Flats and south to Pinyon Pines — along the corridors of highways 74 and 243.

"It's an all-encompassing warning system," said Bill Tell, MHRC president, said when the board initially approved the project.

"This will help us in the long run," said IFPD Chief Mark LaMont. "But in the next fiscal year, we plan to add an additional siren in Idyllwild, which will give approximately 95% total coverage."

IFPD's sirens are the only outside noise notifications of an emergency on the Hill. Currently, the county's notification system relies on telephone systems to alert residents and businesses that might be endangered by an emergency event or a disaster.

The system uses phone numbers in the region's 9-1-1 database to contact listed and unlisted landline telephones. It is TTY/TDD capable. If an answering machine picks up the call, the system will leave a voice message.

The county, in collaboration with IFPD and MHRC, identified locations for upgrading and installing the OWSs, along with integrating the existing TIS system.

Initial planning has identified 37 possible OWS sites that include four TIS sites. Potential sites may be located in the following communities: Castille Canyon, Twin Pines, Anza Valley, Idyllwild/Pine Cove, Mountain Center, Pine Meadows and Pinyon Pines. The specific sites include existing fire stations, county property, local water districts, schools and private associations such as the Boy Scout camp.

Once planning and design are completed, construction, which includes procurement, installation, testing and activation of the system, will be implemented in phases depending on the ability to get real estate agreements in place and obtain entitlements.

COVID-19 LOCAL UPDATE: RCPH intends to correct inaccurate information regarding Idyllwild-Pine Cove’s vaccination history

Two weeks ago, we reported that the Riverside County Public Health Department (RCPH) informed the world via internet that — at “79% unvaccinated” — Idyllwild-Pine Cove was, by far, the most COVID unvaccinated community in our entire county. That was a shock, and it turns out RCPH’s report was inaccurate, as letter-writer Steve Proffitt and others have since pointed out.

The problem was with RCPH’s data collection procedure. Last week, Kevin Meconis of RCPH’s public information office told the Town Crier that RCPH’s vaccination information came from the half-page forms that people fill out at the time they were being vaccinated for COVID. But RCPH counted only those forms containing street addresses for persons vaccinated — forms containing post office box addresses were not counted. Meconis explained that RCPH could not assume that a person giving a P.O. Box address actually lived in the community in which they received their vaccination, and RCPH figured that people providing post office boxes would be an insignificantly small percentage of those being vaccinated in any given community, so it didn’t count them.

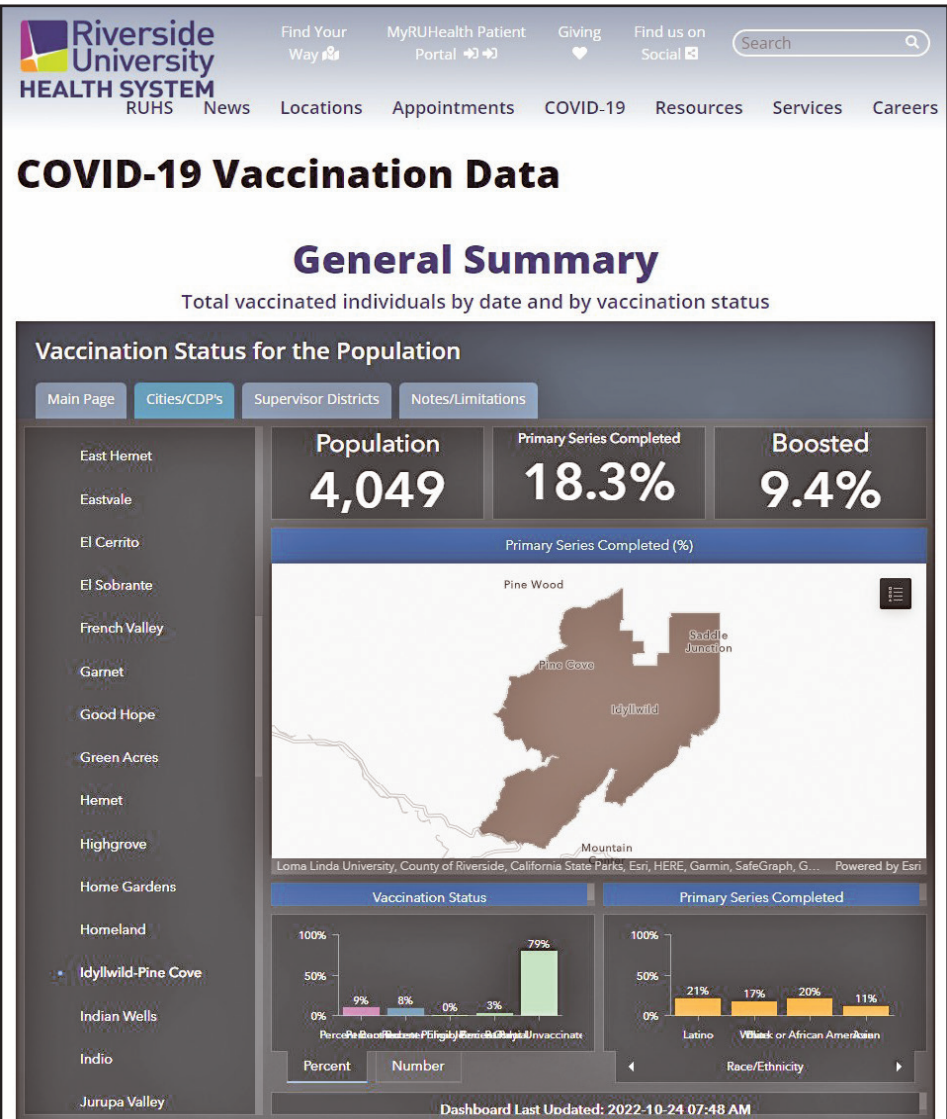

Not taken into consideration was the fact that in some communities mail is via post office boxes only, and that in those communities residents are accustomed to providing post office box numbers when asked for their addresses. The only time Idyllwild-Pine Cove residents give their street addresses is when they expect someone will be coming to our homes, such as service providers and delivery personnel. There certainly was no reason to expect RCPH would be visiting their homes.

The Town Crier spoke this week with José Arballo, also of the RCPH public information office, who at first related that he wasn’t sure that RCPH could do anything different in reporting Idyllwild-Pine Cove than what they do reporting other cities and communities, such as, not count vaccinated persons who give P.O. Box addresses on their vaccination forms. The Town Crier explained to him that incorrect information on the internet could adversely affect our Hill’s tourism, in the same way that a TV broadcast once referring to “the Idyllwild Fire” when, in fact, there was no fire in town appeared to have dissuaded visitors from visiting our Hill for two to three years afterward.

Arballo later called back and informed that RCPH would be altering its vaccination reporting procedure in such a way that Idyllwild-Pine Cove’s vaccination history would be reported more accurately.

As of Oct. 25, the Hemet Unified School District dashboard reported one student and no staff members currently with COVID at both Idyllwild School and Hemet High. Hamilton elementary reported no students and one staff member, while Hamilton secondary reported no students and three staff members with COVID.

Andrewson seeks to remain on IFPD board

Messina seeks to keep IFPD commission seat

Sawicki hopes to retain IFPD commission seat

Yost challenges IFPD commission incumbents

CORRESPONDENT

Editor’s note: On Nov. 8, the state’s general election will be held. The choice for Idyllwild Fire Protection District (IFPD) commissioners will be one of the many races on the ballot. Three commission seats are open and four candidates — Rhonda Andrewson, Dan Messina, Henry Sawicki and Stephanie Yost, who is challenging the three incumbents — are on the ballot. The Town Crier interviewed each candidate and all four stories appear in this edition of the paper.

Rhonda Andrewson is seeking her third term on the IFPD Board of Commissioners. She was first elected in 2013 and reelected in 2018. In her first race, she won a seat but finished third in votes. In her next election, she not only finished first, but she more than doubled the number of voters supporting her, 160% more votes than the first race.

During her time on the commission, she has served various roles, including president from 2017 through 2018 as well as vice president and secretary.

When asked why she was willing to continue to serve, she replied, “I love what I’m doing. Our community is so deserving and that’s what I love.”

And she believes that “... a lot of constituents are getting to know and to trust and respect my drive to oblige their needs.” In other words, Andrewson is consistent in how she works with her colleagues on the commission and the IFPD chief and staff.

If reelected, Andrewson wants to see the department “... keep doing what they’re doing. We will continue to work on the [Capital Improvement Plan] and follow through on the Strategic Plan. Those are great processes and very good for us.”

In her first race for commissioner, when asked about the department’s two missions — fire and emergency medical — Andrewson said without hesitation, “Number one we do medical and ambulance.” And she still firmly believes that. “This is our first priority,” she said again this month.

“Living where we do, fire protection is imperative. And training for both is beyond exceptional,” she continued. “I am very thankful that our senior population has the caliber of medics and EMTs that we have.”

During both of her previous election bids, Andrewson was a strong and adamant supporter of seeking approval of a measure to increase the local parcel fee for IFPD. However, nearly three years

The Town Crier interviewed each candidate and all four stories appear in this edition of the paper.

Dan Messina is making his second effort to become an elected IFPD commissioner. In June 2020, he was appointed commissioner to replace Larry Donahoo who resigned several months before his term expired. However, in the November election, voters chose Christina Reitz and Dennis Fogle to fill the two vacant seats on the board.

Then in June 2021, less than a year after the election, the commission choose Messina from three applicants to fill the vacancy when Ralph Hoetger resigned from the commission.

Messina’s career has been filled with firefighting and firefighting services. He worked his first fire in 1974. “I’ve been involved with the private or public fire services ever since,” he said.

Messina moved to Idyllwild in 2000, and his desire to serve and to participate in fire services continues as strongly as it did in his first firefighting experience. He was part of the Garner Valley volunteer company and led the Idyllwild volunteers for many years. During the transition from the Garner Valley volunteer company to the IFPD company, he offered his water tenders for IFPD use.

In late 2012, Messina and IFPD had an arrangement where IFPD could use water tenders from his water service company. The commission approved a pilot project that made the water tenders available on a national resource list to help the U.S. Forest Service or another fire agency during a major fire.

Messina’s company was responsible for maintaining the equipment and IFPD received a 15% fee for offering the equipment to fire tenders. Despite the eventual decision to drop the water tender contract, Messina continues to see IFPD in the forefront.

“I think Idyllwild is in a unique position with [IFPD],” he explained. “We offer far more services than the conventional Cal Fire could. I want to serve management and see it continue.”

Since November 2020, Messina said

Henry Sawicki is the current IFPD Commission president. He joined the commission in 2017 when he was selected from three candidates to succeed former Commissioner Nancy Layton. In November 2018, he ran and was elected to a full four-year term, which expires in December. He is seeking his second full term as IFPD commissioner.

Sawicki grew up in Massachusetts thinking of becoming a firefighter. Eventually, he gravitated west to Blythe where his sister lived. He spent seven years as a volunteer desert firefighter. Since a permanent firefighting job was not available, a friend encouraged him to join the sheriff’s department.

After 29 years with the Riverside County Sheriff’s Department (RSO), Sawicki retired as a lieutenant and head of the sheriff’s Emergency Response Team, where he was a member of the Mountain Area Safety Taskforce.

After retirement, he and his wife moved to Idyllwild. They have three daughters, two of whom also have moved to Idyllwild, and four grandsons. Being retired, but still active, the vacant commission seat offered Sawicki an opportunity to return to his affinity for firefighting. His RSO experience also provided critical opportunities to work with fire departments.

As a commissioner and president, Sawicki has always encouraged and sought ways to promote collaboration between IFPD and other Hill fire departments.

“Some people come and go, but I always promote teamwork during my tenure,” Sawicki said proudly. “There’s a great working relationship between the five commissioners, and the chief and the staff. We’re very much like a family.”

All four candidates were asked to discuss IFPD’s two critical roles — emergency medical services and fire protection.

Sawicki quickly responded that fires and the associated protection get the bulk of public visibility, but the vast majority

The Town Crier interviewed each candidate and all four stories appear in this edition of the paper.

Stephanie Yost’s connections to Idyllwild began in the 1980s. From 1987 through 1990, she lived in Pine Cove, where she had her eldest daughter. But like many young people, she moved to Los Angeles. There she became a successful lawyer and an entertainment business executive. In 2008, she and her second husband, Steve Olson, began visiting the Hill on weekends. Seven years later, they bought a house, renovated it, and moved in full-time in 2017.

Since then, she continues to be an attorney while, also, an executive at Age of Learning. Yet, she is still sufficiently gifted and capable to devote much of her time to Idyllwild and Hill-related groups. First, she is the current president of the Idyllwild Community Center (ICC). In May, she was appointed to the Idyllwild Historic Preservation District Local Review Board. Also, she serves on three county commissions. She is the District 3 commissioner for First 5 Riverside County Children and Families Commission. And she also serves on two law enforcement advisory committees: Riverside County Sheriff’s Community Advisory Committee and the District Attorney’s Civilian Use of Force Advisory Committee.

“Although this might seem like a weirdly diverse group of committees, I’m a licensed attorney, as well as part of the founding team of a children’s education technology company, so they all touch different aspects of my professional life,” she wrote in an email.

“But most important to me, I love our mountain communities and am grateful for the opportunities I have to work with others to improve life for all of us,” Yost expressed enthusiastically.

Despite these commitments, she is motivated to serve on the IFPD Commission. “I feel like fire and safety are important issues to the community. The fire commission meets every two months for an hour and half. That’s not a large time commitment. To work with the fire de-

Response to COVID vaccinations concern

DEAR EDITOR:

Charles and Margaret Mooney, really? You expect the town to be alarmed by the lower vaccination rate.

CDC states the vaccine is to reduce the symptoms if you get COVID. It does not prevent getting COVID. Have you turned a blind eye to the number of vaccinated people who got COVID — Biden, for example?

You are so concerned about full-time residents when visitors frequent the places you mentioned. You also ignore that several of us got COVID (from being off the Hill) the end of the summer and are protected from getting COVID for three months.

But if COVID was a mild flu for many of us, why should we get the vaccine and risk the vaccine side effects? Are you aware there are risks getting the vaccine?

It really is sad that you don't take your grandchildren to the outdoor park when it isn't crowded and they can social distance instead of blindly thinking the vaccine will prevent all. So no we are not alarmed, we are proud that people try to become informed and make their own decision based on their own health whether to get the vaccine. Because in the end, a person really is responsible for their own health. So STOP the vaccine shaming.

STRs

Washington made it clear that he is only one of five supervisors. To pass an ordinance or change one, three supervisors must concur.

Speaking directly to his constituents, “I am one vote ... If you're not letting them know how you feel about the different components of that policy, then when it comes time to vote it will be 4-1,” he said.

“I'm here to represent you and they are not here to represent you. But this is a countywide ordinance so you need to make them aware of your sentiments on how you feel about this policy,” he implored.

Washington also had to refute the idea that he is opposed to STRs and is attempting to shut them down with a stronger Ordinance 927.

“Although some cities have banned STRs, I don't think that is appropriate for Riverside County. There is a tourism benefit,” he stated.

In clarification of the misrepresentation, Washington affirmed that his goal was to achieve “peace and quiet in our neighborhoods.” During the pandemic, there was an increase in noise and nuisances in the neighborhoods and county enforcement was insufficient.

“The core problem has been we don't have any teeth and we're not significantly organized in managing and making sure we corralled all the STRs into our program,” he averred. “The new framework supports building up Code Enforcement to enforce the new regulations. I think 927 as proposed will do that.”

Following Washington's comments, the board approved the revised Ordinance 927, which will take effect in 30 days.

Public comment

Several of the speakers were from Idyllwild. Some, such as Joel Feingold, Woody Henderson and Jon Brown, have spoken to the board at previous meetings and Martha Sanchez came forward for the first time.

Feingold did not speak for his full two minutes. In fact, he took an innovative action to gain attention for his actual comments.

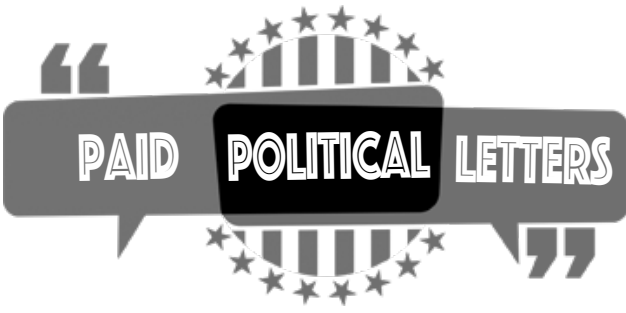

He began his time by saying, “For someone who talks a lot like me, it has often been said ‘Less is more.’” He then stood at the podium and said nothing for nearly 40 seconds.

“That was the sound of silence,” Feingold finally said. “Something many of Chuck Washington's constituents, and Manuel Perez's future constituents, no longer get to experience on any kind of regular basis.”

He then encouraged the Board to approve a 10% cap or limitation on STRs until attrition brings the percentage below 10. At that time, new STR certificates could be issued. Henderson also supported the cap and density limitations.

Brown, head of the Idyllwild STR group, noted surprise that many of his Idyllwild friends believe STR owners influenced the development of the revisions to 927 so that “We got everything we wanted.”

Just the opposite, he lamented. “We really just wanted more enforcement not more regulations. We got occupancy reductions, signage and snow removal requirements, parking requirements and increased fees.”

Political letters during election season are paid at 10 cents per word. No letters will be accepted the week before the Nov. 8 election.

Common sense

After reading Arlene Citrowski's letter in the Town Crier, I have come to realize that I am no longer living on an island of sanity in a surrounding sea of chaos. It's finally come up here to our schools.

It's clear to me that I am no longer living in the world I grew up in. Our country is going to h... in a government-subsidized hand basket.

I cannot believe a school board feels they have finally accomplished their objective of politically indoctrinating our schools and colleges well enough that they can now concentrate on the really big problem of not having tampons in the boys bathroom in our elementary schools.

If an irate parent should happen to get in there with a sledge hammer, will he or she get a really good talking to by a judge who does that to the misfits of our society before letting them out to wander our streets to repeatedly slug, kick, stab, shoot, rape, run over people with their car, and steal from stores before putting them out of business?

Idyllwild Indivisible wrote a letter a few weeks ago saying we should pray for a blue wave. Well, I think the swamp is a pretty deep shade of blue already. When I see a picture of the Statue of Liberty holding that torch high in the air, my heart beats faster. When I see a picture of our president holding his all-too-familiar ice cream cone in front of him, I find my fist clenching and my heart beating very fast but in a different way.

I would urge everyone to skip your single issue voting and disregard your party affiliation. Read your information pamphlet, make an informed intelligent decision, and vote to save the United States of America.

Seeking wildfire issue perspectives

University of California, Davis researchers want to hear Idyllwild-Pine Cove residents' perspectives on wildfire issues in California. The information will be used to protect the community from wildfire by sharing opinions and experiences at <https://linktr.ee/ucdwildfire>.

The responses will inform local leaders and policymakers of the landscape and community values, guiding solutions to reduce the impact of wildfire and bolstering resilience for everyone.

The project involves two surveys: one about wildfire risk and the other about wildfire messaging. The surveys should take 15 to 20 minutes to complete. Responses are kept strictly confidential, and everyone can be entered in a drawing to win an iPad or a $25 gift card.

Participants must be at least 18 years old. For questions, contact Emily Schlickman at eschlickman@ucdavis.edu.

Moratorium

The 45-day moratorium on new STR certificates, approved at the Sept. 13 meeting, expires Oct. 28 unless extended. The moratorium applies to the Idyllwild area, including Pine Cove and Mountain Center, and the Temecula Valley Wine Country. The moratorium would not prohibit operating STRs that have already obtained a county STR certificate.

However, Ordinance 449.251 also requires that the Planning Department prepare and submit a report to the board before any action on the moratorium — such as extending or letting it lapse — occurs.

At the Oct. 18 meeting, Charissa Leach, director of the county's Transportation and Land Management Agency, stressed that the agenda item was not a vote on the moratorium.

“It's just a report,” she stated. Then she described the two community meetings Washington and planning held in Idyllwild and the Wine Country.

After reviewing the priorities of the two groups, Leach said, “We need additional time to explore these priorities on where we go from here. One meeting with them is not going to get us where we need to be. We need more time.”

This item took about 30 minutes to finish. Most of the time was devoted to public comment although the action was simply to receive the report. A public hearing on whether to extend the moratorium was held Oct. 25. The maximum extension is 10 months and 15 days. If this is approved, the moratorium would continue through Sept. 9, 2023.

Forest Service ready for major maintenance work at lakes

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

Beginning Tuesday, Oct. 25, the U.S. Forest Service will begin a major rehabilitation project at Lake Hemet. In late November, the Forest Service will begin a second project at Lake Fulmor.

Both projects were authorized by the Great American Outdoors Act (GAOA) (H.R. 1957), which became Public Law No. 116-152 in August 2020.

The purpose of the GAOA is to help federal land managing agencies such as the Forest Service, National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management and others to address major projects that have suffered significantly because of lack of maintenance work.

Since its passage, the Forest Service has selected more than 880 Legacy Restoration Fund projects needing vital maintenance. The two projects in the San Jacinto Ranger District are examples of the work the Forest Service will conduct in the San Bernardino National Forest. These projects will improve outdoor recreation and contribute to economic growth and job creation, the Forest Service said in its press release.

The infrastructure work at Lake Hemet has been deteriorating for years. This project is expected to cost $407,000 and will provide four new shade structures along with the purchase of new grills and tables.

Although the work is expected to continue until early January, visitors can continue to enjoy the Lake Hemet Day Use Area during demolition and construction although Adventure Passes will be required. Contractors will be using the first loop at Lake Hemet for storage and construction, the Forest Service warned.

The second San Jacinto Ranger District project will be at Lake Fulmor and its estimated cost is $307,000. The work will include repair of asphalt and a new restroom. Due to the use of heavy equipment and the location of the restroom at Lake Fulmor, the entire day use area will be under a full closure starting Nov. 21 until its expected completion in early March 2023, the press release reported.

For those visitors looking for picnic sites, the Forest Service suggest alternatives such as nearby Fuller Mill Creek or fishing at Lake Hemet, which both also require an Adventure Pass.

The Forest Service will have other projects underway, including at Lytle Creek and other areas within the San Bernardino National Forest.

Andrewson

after a workshop on the issue, IFPD has nearly $1 million in bank and money market accounts.

“Yes, it’s good money management,” she affirmed. “Where would the department be without mutual aid? If we depended on emergency medical calls, I doubt we’d be in this position.”

And she no longer sees an immediate need to propose another parcel fee measure. “We’re in a position, which obviously dictates ‘No increase.’ I’m very conscious of what has happened in the country — the pandemic has been horrific, a very bad economy. It’s a hard time to get to work and to feed a family and some seniors have had to go back to work. How could we go and ask for more money?”

While she agrees IFPD could use a new ambulance, she also is willing to wait for better times, although inflation may raise its costs.

During her tenure, the commission has gone from a monthly meeting to bimonthly meetings. She is a strong supporter of this change. “It has absolutely worked out. We’re a good board and do our homework. Then when we hold a meeting to do the people’s business, it doesn’t take three and half hours. We cover a lot.”

Andrewson also mentioned that the commission has agreed to move its review of department policies from its regular meetings to workshops, which will be open to the public.

Finally, she said IFPD will work to expand the local siren system. “I’d like to see it cover a larger area. I can hear it from my porch but not inside the house. We knew that three sirens were efficient for the mountain plateau. I don’t want to see another Paradise disaster.”

Messina

ever in my time seen us run out of personnel for ambulance transports and we assist [American Medical Response], too. I think we’ve come a long way.”

Messina, who was one of the founders in 2012 of the Idyllwild Volunteer Company, is no longer a member. “They don’t have a big firefighter profile, but are helping with grant writing and fundraising,” he said.

If elected to serve a full term, Messina notes that IFPD for the first time is in a better financial position. But his No. 1 priority will be to “... keep the department solvent because it hadn’t been for many years. If we remain financially solvent, we’ll continue to replace antiquated equipment.”

Happy and grateful that IFPD has nearly $1 million in bank and money market accounts, he still sees a future need to increase revenue. “At some point, we need to bring the department into the 21st century. It is not possible to keep the department going like this. Look at what we’re paying for gas and food.”

Messina not only is worried about direct costs for IFPD, but the potential for a growing need to provide services to a larger community. “The incredible growth [of residents and tourists] has been good, but it brought a lot of other issues. There is a tremendous number of people in town all the time; tourism is at a peak. Consequently, more call volume and more inspections.”

Messina is glad that IFPD has installed a siren and has plans to increase the number of locations; but he recognizes that is a concern. “Without proper education of visitors, it could create chaos. In the beginning, it was primarily for locals, but it’s a different situation now. We’ll need some form of educational material available through the stores or restaurants or Airbnb. It needs to be addressed because the sirens are a huge asset.”

Messina is proud of IFPD accomplishments. “The $1 million in reserves and more this summer. We’re headed in a good direction and the board had a lot to do with that,” which is why he does not believe that any changes in the ommission composition are needed.

Noting the typical small attendance at IFPD commission meetings, he urged the public to read the chief’s report and the board packet of material to be discussed. “I don’t think they know what has happened in the last five years. Please educate yourself. I personally think we’re doing something good and would like to see it continue,” he said at the end.

Sawicki

25 cents on the dollar from insurance companies and there are transports where the individual is uninsured,” he noted. “This is true throughout the EMS community. We’d be in the black a lot of time if we just provided medical service.”

Yet, he stressed that providing emergency medical services is not dependent on financing. On the Hill, where hospitals are 30 miles or more away, “Somebody has got to do it. There’s only one [Riverside County] ambulance in Pine Cove or Anza. With the amount of visitors here, it is not unusual for us to have two or three ambulance calls simultaneously,” Sawicki stated. “Who would do it if we don’t?”

When Sawicki joined the IFPD board, two tax measures had recently failed. One did not even earn 50% of the vote and the other did not gather the required two-thirds. He was strongly in favor of pursuing a third effort in order to gain more resources for the IFPD. “They said they needed money for salaries and new equipment,” he commented.

Now, according to the fiscal year 2021 financial report, IFPD has nearly $1 million in bank deposits and money market funds. These resources are the result of IFPD going to fires throughout the state. The department is reimbursed for its expenses, such as for the crew sent and the crew calling for replacement and equipment.

“We couldn’t do this unless our people were trained,” Sawicki declared. “Throughout the state, IFPD is well respected. Our reputation is that our guys know what to do.

“And this is how we can afford to lose money on ambulance runs,” he added.

It also is how IFPD was able to purchase two new trucks and an engine in the past two years and has plans for another ambulance next fiscal year.

While the department is fully staffed now (nine firefighters for three shifts), Sawicki would like to increase staffing and add a battalion or assistant chief.

“We’re small in force, but not small in what we offer,” Sawicki said.

Yost

the department’s outreach. “Almost no one from the community attends the meetings,” she has observed. “I want to focus on communication and transparency. The community doesn’t have a real awareness of how well our staff is. The information is readily available. Years ago, even in the ‘80s, we used to see these folk out in the community, such as the concerts, talking to people.”

Whether IFPD is on a fire or emergency medical call, Yost argues that both aspects of the department’s operations are very, very important and critical to the community’s residents and visitors. “Neither is more important. They are equally important to everyone.”

While glad the department has $1 million in reserves, she acknowledges the details have not been well discussed. “Its financial health is in better shape, but not sure if that is grants or just mutual aid. I haven’t dug into the depths of the financial reports yet.”

While several years ago IFPD failed to conduct annual audits, Yost stresses her commitment to adhering to the state and departmental policies on financial reporting. She feels this is an important area for improved communication and transparency to the community.

Yost’s background is broad. Following her graduation from UCLA and then Southwestern University School of Law, she clerked on the 9th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, worked for a Los Angeles law firm, served as general counsel for private companies, and provided creative guidance as well as produced live shows, records and television commercials for a variety of clients.

So, seeking a seat on the IFPD Commission is not her challenging the success of the department. She has attended many meetings and noted how well the chief uses competition to reduce costs and negotiate good interest rates. Rather, she wants to address and improve how these results are communicated to the community.

“People should know how we operate, how mutual aid participation works, for example. I’ve worked with the sheriff’s and DA’s committees, who were made up of citizens and they helped report actions to the community. It takes time and efforts to help people understand,” Yost promised. “From my work with first responders, I can work with the chief to help educate the community.”

Panchals are new owners of Silver Pines Lodge

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

This Monday, the new owners of Silver Pines Lodge held a ribbon cutting with the help of Idyllwild Rotary and a special appearance by former owner Chris Perrault. Anjali and Rajiv Panchal, or “Raj and Anji” as Idyllwilders have come to know them, created a festive atmosphere combining traditional fall colors with hints of Diwali, the Hindu Festival of Lights. Afterward there was a lively reception with Indian sweet and savory treats and mango juice.

The Crier interviewed Raj and Anji this week and they were very excited to tell the story of how they came to be proprietors of one of the town’s most storied and historic inns. Even before this recent acquisition they were established members of the community, being owners of the Idyllwild Bunkhouse.

TC: “When did you begin at the Bunkhouse?”

RP: “In 2017, 01/17 we closed escrow and took over that place.”

TC: “What did you do before that?”

RP: “We came 10 years ago from India. In 2012, we landed in America, me, my wife Anji, and my now 16-year-old daughter. We came and we started working for my brother-in-law in Santa Maria as managers of a motel. From there, after a year and a half, we got an opportunity to be partners in a completely rundown motel in Utah. We moved there, brought the place back up so it made money.

“After three years the original owners came back so we handed the business back to them and then we bought the Idyllwild Bunkhouse. We started very humbly, beginning as an experiment to find what America could offer. We came with an $800 prepaid card in my pocket, $800 prepaid card in my wife’s pocket.”

TC: “How did you find Idyllwild?”

RP: “It was God-sent. Literally, it was like that. We wanted to move back to California, we were searching for a place. We decided to move to Lake Tahoe. We were searching for motels in Lake Tahoe but none worked out. This Bunkhouse had fallen out of escrow. One of our realtors called us saying, ‘This is different, but it fits your budget.’ Several deals in Tahoe fell through. We were only five years in America so our credit was not so good, but [the Bunkhouse] was owner financed, and the money we had saved was enough for the down payment; everything just worked out beautifully.”

TC: “What attracted you to Silver Pines?”

RP: “This one, from the day we saw it we had said, ‘Wow, what if we owned this one!’ There was always a ‘wow factor,’ such a beautiful property and such a nicely run property.

“In 2018, I had taken a promise form Chris, the owner; she kept it. Whenever she sells, I will be the first person who she will let know.”

TC: “Will running the Silver Pines be different from the Bunkhouse?”

RP: “It is different because Chris has been running it for 29 years and she has a certain clientele.

“Things will stay the same. We will try to keep it the same and not let go of the soul the place has.”

Raj was clearly enthused about the series of events that led up to the purchase. Concerned that maybe readers might not care about all the details, I assured him that many locals follow real estate the way others follow football or baseball, and that “falling out” of escrow is like striking out with the bases loaded.

RP: “One more story: I was the first person to get an escrow (for Silver Pines) but then my investors backed out and I fell. Then there were two more that tried to get in and they failed, and I got back in. It was eight months of ‘Are we going to get it?’ I want to say that Steve and Chris [Perrault], it is such a beautiful thing that they have given it to us. The handshake was like passing the baton in a relay race. They are so helpful. They are still helping us get everything on track. Such beautiful people to help us.”

Anji agreed: “Right now they are helping every step we take. Anything, any question or anything.”

Raj: “They say marriages are made in heaven. This was that kind of thing, it was meant to be.”

Anji: “We feel blessed. We’ve come to a place where we own the property, but the community is happy and makes us feel welcome. It’s a big thing for us. We used to believe ‘If it’s meant to be it will be,’ and now I thoroughly believe. We couldn’t have done it without Chris and Steve’s help.”

Beyond pride of ownership, the pair seem most thrilled by the support of the many friends and allies they have found here: “How much people want us to succeed.”

Fall signals Great Pumpkin Carnival and Tree Lighting Festival

By STEPHANIE YOST

PRESIDENT, IDYLLWILD COMMUNITY CENTER

Fall in the mountain communities welcomes two major traditional events, which in recent years the Idyllwild Community Center (ICC) has put on.

The first is Idyllwild’s annual Great Pumpkin Carnival. With no sidewalks, few streetlights and many second homes, door-to-door trick-or-treating isn’t done much on the Hill. Instead, for many decades community volunteers have put on a carnival for local and visiting ghouls and goblins of all ages.

While some aspects of the event have evolved over the years, most remain the same.

The Great Pumpkin Carnival and parade starts at 4:15 p.m. Monday, Oct. 31, at Fern Valley Corners located at the top of North Circle Drive. Costumed children parade down North Circle toward the center of town to the boisterous cheers (and candy donations) of family and friends, as well as residents and visitors.

At 2 p.m., North Circle Drive, Park Lane and a short section of Village Center Drive in the center of town around Idy Park will close to vehicle traffic as the area will be filled with costumed children and adults who collect trick-or-treat candy from local businesses and enjoy the special food booths and fun.

Immediately after the parade is the Great Pumpkin Carnival at Idy Park.

A $5 fee allows carnival goers to participate in Halloween-themed activities and play numerous carnival games for prizes. A face painter, bouncy-house slide, and costume contests with prizes courtesy of the Rustic Theater and Idyllwild Brewpub in six categories broken down by age group also are part of the fun.

The Great Pumpkin Carnival lasts until about 7 p.m. Community organizations hosting carnival booths this year include Rotary, Soroptimists, Mountain Disaster Preparedness, Idyllwild Association of Realtors, Art Alliance of Idyllwild, Friends of the Nature Center, Idyllwild Bible Church, Riverside Mountain Rescue Unit, ICC and first-time booth host Idyllwild Brewpub.

Mountain Community Patrol will provide traffic support, and deputy mayors Mikey and Mitzi and their staff will be there, too.

The second major fall event on the Hill sponsored by ICC is the annual Tree Lighting Ceremony, which starts at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26 (the Saturday of Thanksgiving weekend), in Idy Park. This will be the fourth year that all eight trees in Idy Park will be lit courtesy of various local businesses’ and groups’ sponsorships.

Current Market Temperature

Over the past two years, the substantial imbalance of low housing supply and high buyer demand pushed home sales and buyer competition to new heights. But this year, things are shifting as supply and demand reach an inflection point.

What Does This Inflection Point Mean for Buyers?

If you’re thinking of buying a home, you’ll have less competition and more options than you would have had last year. Enjoy having more homes to choose from in your home search and lean on a trusted real estate professional to understand how the increase in supply has also increased your negotiation power. That professional can talk you through the opportunities and challenges buyers face in today’s shifting market. You may be surprised to find they’re different than they were a year ago.

What Does This Inflection Point Mean for Sellers?

If you’re looking to sell your house, know that inventory is still low overall. That means, if you work with an agent to price your house based on current market value, it will still sell despite the inventory gains and moderating buyer demand this year. That’s because there are still buyers out there who want to move, and your house may be exactly what they’re looking for.

Bottom Line:

If you’re thinking of buying or selling a home, the best place to turn to for information on today’s supply and demand is a trusted real estate professional. I’ll be able to explain what’s happening in our local market and what that means for you.

STEMsational HALLOWEEN SCIENCE

Double, double, toil and trouble, Fire burn, and cauldron bubble. Come into the laboratory, Where we'll make science tell the story!

MONSTER MOLD

STUFF YOU'LL NEED:

- canning jars with lids
- water in a spray bottle
- bread, cheese, apple cut into one-inch cubes

THE EXPERIMENT

- Spray each piece of food with a little water.
- Place each piece of food in a separate jar, screw on the lid and write the food type and date on the top.
- Place the jars in different locations—in sunlight, a dark place (inside a paper bag would work), a cool place (in your refrigerator) and one in a warm place.
- Examine the jars every day, observe the changes and record how quickly food gets moldy.

Mold on food is not good to eat but mold is one of nature's recyclers. Things that rot in this way will eventually become soil and supply nutrients to help plants grow.

Standards Link: Science Investigation: Conduct simple experiments.

The Science

Unlike plants, molds don't grow from seeds. They grow from spores that float in the air. These spores multiply on damp food and the chemical they produce will make the food rot.

Don't open your jars as more spores are forming and could be released into the air. Molds can make people sick.

SPOOKY GLOW-IN-THE-DARK BUBBLES

STUFF YOU'LL NEED:

- bowl of water
- highlighters
- bubble solution
- black light

Have a parent help you open the highlighter pen. Pull out the felt and place it in a small amount of water. Let it soak for a few minutes and then discard the felt. Add a small amount of bubble solution to the bowl. Your mixture should be half highlighter water and half bubble solution.

Turn on your black light and blow bubbles. Describe what happens:

The phosphorescent chemicals in the highlighter ink are made visible by the ultraviolet in a black light.

Only two of the jack o'lanterns below are exactly the same. Can you find them? If you get stuck, do the math. The two even-numbered pumpkins are the matching pair.

 2 + 3	 9 + 2	 6 + 4	 4 + 3	 9 - 2
 5 + 4	 6 - 3	 4 + 9	 13 - 6	 11 - 2

Explanation: Baking soda added to vinegar creates a chemical reaction that makes carbon dioxide. This gas rises upwards into the balloon, inflating it.

Standards Link: Science Investigation: Conduct simple experiments.

Kid Scoop Together:

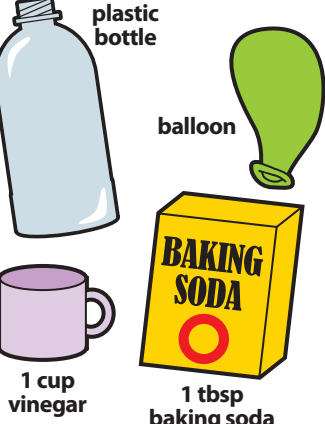

THE BUBBLY, BAFFLING BALLOON EXPERIMENT

Can you inflate a balloon with liquid? What do you think?

Try this experiment with a lab assistant (a parent) and see what happens.

STUFF YOU'LL NEED:

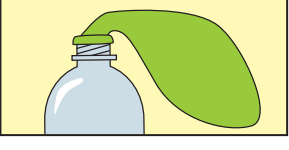

- plastic bottle
- balloon
- 1 cup vinegar
- 1 tbsp baking soda

1. Pour the vinegar into the plastic bottle.

2. Carefully pour a tablespoon of baking soda into the balloon.

3. Stretch the neck of the balloon over the bottle opening.

4. Slightly lift the balloon from the top so that the baking soda falls into the vinegar. Watch out!

Kid Scoop
THE MORE KIDS READ, THE MORE THEY SUCCEED!

BY ART CONNOR

Somewhat as anticipated, the weather this past Saturday morning was occasionally blustery, but with little chance for rain to occur; thus improving the outlook for the scheduled outdoor exhibition of local authors as sponsored by the Friends of the Idyllwild Library in the spacious Idy Park location. As set up in that area, all participants as well as interested book people (curiosity-seekers included) were assured of adequate space for whatever wares and general book companionship to be offered.

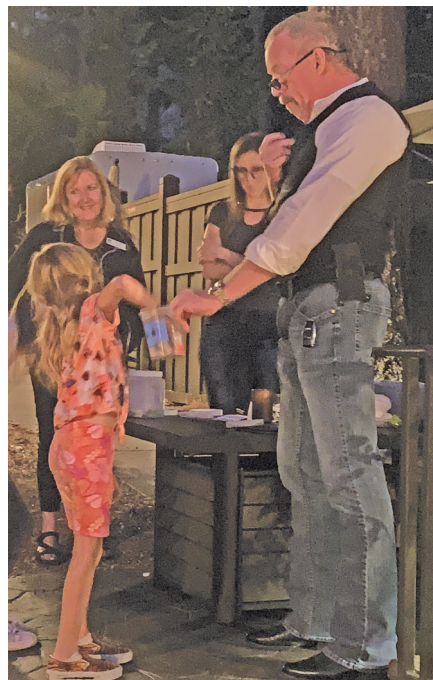

That being said, the usual mixture of offerings were presented much as in pre-pandemic times, with the variety that only bespeaks the natural interests of Hill readers (both followers and leaders). The Life Writers, led by Johnny Wilson, were on hand; as was Dale Allen Rowse, who promoted his "Dark Shaman" series in appropriate Halloween mode; Jolie Tunnell was vending her early Idyllwild mystery stories of "the unsinkable Loveda Brown," and the Helle Books group were busily selling the story of "Rasmoose, the Christmas Moose." Joanna Hill took further charge with her religious-themed works, and Ken Lubber had his fiction and poetry books well displayed.

As for the Friends themselves, they found it convenient to hold both a silent auction of art works (including pieces by Jon Gnagy and Barry Moser), as well as a selection of fiction, nonfiction and cookbooks from the bookstore. Together with a number of patron's donations (one coming toward the end of the exhibition), the day was counted as a success, and all was finally put in order and packed up before the overcast set in late in the afternoon.

Patrick Reitz (right) emceed the Soroptimist International of Idyllwild's annual Spaghetti Dinner and Basket Festival fundraiser at Ferro Wednesday night, Oct. 19. Marissa Corr (behind Reitz) was the Soroptimist's Live Your Dream scholarship recipient this year. She enrolled at the University of California, Irvine. Her twins, Midnight and Iris, helped draw the basket winners from the jars.

A portrait of a woman with short, layered reddish-brown hair. She is smiling, showing her teeth. She has light-colored eyes and is wearing small, round earrings. She is dressed in a black top and a thin, silver-colored chain necklace. The background is a plain, light gray. The image is framed by a thick blue border on the left and top, and a red border on the bottom.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

HOROSCOPES
October 2022 — Week 4

March 21 – April 19
Although you love being the focus of everyone's attention, it's a good idea to take a few steps back right now to just watch the action. What you see can help with an upcoming decision.

April 20 – May 20
"Caution" continues to be your watchword this week, as a former colleague tries to reconnect old links. There are still some dark places that need to be illuminated.

May 21 – June 21
Making a good first impression is important. Revealing your often hidden sense of humor can help you get through some of the more awkward situations.

June 22 – July 22
Are you taking that Cancer Crab image too seriously? Lighten up. Instead of complaining about your problems, start resolving them. A friend would be happy to help.

July 23 – August 22
A widening distance between you and that special person needs to be handled with honesty and sensitivity. Don't let jealousy create an even greater gap between you two.

August 23 – September 22
Congratulations. Your handling of a delicate family matter rates kudos. But, no resting on your laurels just yet. You still have to resolve that on-the-job problem.

September 23 – October 22
You might surprise everyone by being unusually impulsive this week. But even level-headed Libras need to do the unexpected now and then.

October 23 – November 21
A period of turmoil gives way to a calmer, more settled environment. Use this quieter time to patch up neglected personal and/or professional relationships.

November 22 – December 21
A new relationship could create resentment among family and friends who feel left out of your life. Show them you care by making more time for them.

December 22 – January 19
Concentrate on completing all your unfinished tasks before deadline. You'll then be able to use this freed-up time to research new career opportunities.

January 20 – February 18
You're right to try to help colleagues resolve their heated differences. But keep your objectivity, and avoid showing any favoritism between the two sides.

February 19 – March 20
Your personal life continues to show positive changes. Enjoy this happy turn of events, by all means. But be careful not to neglect your workplace obligations.

CREATURE CORNER

By JANICE MURASKO
Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," new ARF cats talked about costumes for pets.

Phil: It was a quiet weekend, wasn't it?

Atlas: Yes, except for Newton and me. We wrestled quite a bit.

Don: You two are so funny. You'd be great in a home with younger people who like to play.

Newton: Heck, yea! Two people were in on Sunday and found me irresistible. They kept cuddling with me and playing with me. Ahh. It was so nice.

Phil: So, for an active family we have Newton and Atlas. But you know, Don and I really like to play.

Don: And we're friendly on top of that!

Cuddles: Well, I'm here for the person who wants a beautiful cat to pose on his lap.

Phil: Yeah, that's you Cuddles.

Atlas: Guess what! I know a Halloween poem that would be so appropriate this week.

Newton: Yippee! I love poems, and I love Halloween. Let's hear it.

Cuddles: Atlas, you interrupted our discussion about how great we are!

Atlas: Sorry, Cuddles, but I'm so excited about my creation. Here goes:

Ghosts are scary
Dracula, too
Frankenstein's monster
Will frighten you!
ARF cats wait here
Watching the show,
Hoping to meet you
With you they'll go!

Pepper: Eh, not bad Atlas.

Cuddles: That's really pretty good for a kid!

Atlas: Yeah. Cut me a break. I'm not even a year old!

Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.
