Almost all election winners determined

By JP CRUMRINE
CORRESPONDENT

As of Tuesday morning, Nov. 15, in Riverside County about 94,000 ballots from Election Day Nov. 8 remain to be counted. About 10,000 of these ballots are provisional. Based on total ballots already counted and the uncounted ballots, turnout in Riverside County appears to have been about 41%.

While the leaders from election night have changed in some races, since Thursday the leaders have remained the same.

Local representatives

The local Congressional race for District 41, which includes the Hill neighborhoods, had national implications. After the initial ballot count Tuesday night, Democratic challenger Will Rollins had a 9,000-vote lead over incumbent U.S. Rep. Ken Calvert. By Thursday morning, Calvert had taken the lead from Rollins and it has slowly but steadily grown. With about 177,000 votes cast, Calvert's lead is about 5,500 votes or 51.6% of the counted votes.

After Monday night's vote totals were posted, the Associated Press called the race for Calvert. Earlier in the evening, Calvert had issued his own victory press release, saying, "I want to thank the Riverside County voters for once again choosing me to be their voice in the U.S. House of Representatives."

And later that night, Tom Emmer, chair of the National Republican Congressional Committee, issued a concurrence, "Congratulations to Ken Calvert on his reelection. Californians know Ken is an experienced leader who will always fight for them. I look forward to our continued work together."

Prior to the release of Monday evening's totals, Rollins' team said they "remained optimistic." With thousands of ballots still to be counted, they are expecting these to be dominated by Democratic and Independent voters who favored Rollins.

In this district, the number of registered voters is 463,351 and turnout, based on ballots counted, has been about 39%. Total county turnout appears to be about 41%, including the uncounted balances.

This was a very competitive race. Both candidates collected more than $3.3 million in contributions by Oct. 19. Data for the weeks leading up to Election Day have yet to be reported.

Which party will have a majority of seats in the 118th Congress was still undecided as of Monday morning, so the results of California's 41st District are likely to help Republicans regain control of the House of Representatives.

This attention was manifest when the House Committee on Administration sent several staff to observe the ballot counting.

U.S. Rep. Zoe Lofgren of California is the committee's chairperson and said in her Nov. 9 letter to Riverside County Registrar of Voters Rebecca Spencer, that the observers were only to collect information in case there might be a challenge to the results that the full House would have to consider.

Caution was raised before Nov. 8 when Jason Gagnon of Calvert's staff contacted the committee. "Prior to Election Day, our office indicated to the Minority Staff of the House Administration Committee that we were interested in having someone from the House Election Observer Program present during the canvass here in Riverside County. The House of Representatives holds the final constitutional authority to determine the winner of the election of its members, so it is vital that the Committee of jurisdiction has the facts and information

Molly & Milty — A Love Story

By KEN LUBER
IDYLLWILD AUTHOR

Editor's note: This is the second of several installments of a short story local author Kenneth Luber has written. See last week's Town Crier for the first installment.

By KEN LUBER
IDYLLWILD AUTHOR

That's why, one summer night, without thinking too much, I hustled into the den and decided to wake up my real protector. He always dozes after dinner in his brown Lazy Boy chair. "Fred... Fred." I did a purr-rub against his leg. "This is really important or I wouldn't have awakened you. I'm not going to mention that all Milton does is toss a leather bone around the living room. I won't waste your time with that, although, just as an aside, when was the last time you bought me a toy that didn't have a bell on it?" I could see his eyes slowly closing again so I got right to the point. "Milton really doesn't know what space means. He wags his tail against the glass coffee table with all of Miss Betty's beautiful candy dishes on it, which, by the way, have been empty for two years. And he races upstairs and runs in and out of the bathroom knocking over shampoo bottles and your shaving cream. I've been following him, and he really has no agility. I'm just sayin' he has no sense of space." I raised myself on my front paws and repeated, "No sense of space."

Fred's heavy-lidded eyes were shut. His double chin rested comfortably against the second button of his blue shirt. All I could think of was that his heavy breathing sounded very much like Milton's raspy snoring and that sometimes, people, especially people with moustaches, don't want to hear the truth. Which reminds me, Chester and Princess Gabby agree with me that those silly cat videos, all over the internet, do not represent the feline intellect or our grit. Just hang out with a lost alley cat for a week.

I waited three weeks before rubbing up against Fred's leg again, mostly because I had mixed feelings about this. I don't want to give Milton all the credit, after all, he didn't build it in the back kitchen door, but, since Fred had the doggie door installed for Milton, I've been able to use it, too. After all, it's a door. There's no sign saying: "NO CATS ALLOWED." The great news is that because of the door, I've been able to reconnect with Chester and Princess Gabriella on the fake Tudor roof and hear some of the neighborhood buzz. The cats are still afraid of Milton and won't rendezvous in the yard, which I've always considered to be a public animal space.

Molly and Mitty, the subjects of Ken Huber's short story.

"Fred, Fred," I said, "I know this isn't the most convenient time to approach you about Milton, but I think you should know something about Floppy Ears. Put down the lemon squeezer."

Of course, Fred didn't. He loves dribbling lemon juice over his fried zucchini, but I knew he was listening. "Milton is hiding things," I said. "Big and small things. I don't think he knows the difference." Finally, Fred looked over to me with a smile, his white mustache curling up at the edge of his lips and his blue eyes still sparkling, even after so many months of crying over the passing of his wife, Miss Betty. "Haven't you even noticed you're missing a house slipper? It's stuck in the snowy rose bush in the backyard. And, take a look and see if you can find the hot pad with the stitched windmill on it that you and Miss Betty brought back from your trip to Europe. How could you forget? Of course, I didn't go. You had me quartered at your sister's house with that vicious cat

Kaiser all the time you were on a deluxe vacation. Still the hot pad meant something to me just because Miss Betty used it all the time, including when she fried up that zucchini you like so much. And where is the hot pad now?"

Fred blinked. "Where is the hot pad now?" He followed me straight out of the house, across the foot high snow into the tool shed. I poked my nose at the bottom of a rusty rake. Fred smiled, reached down and pulled out the chewed-up hot pad.

Molly & Milty return next week.

How much Do Interest Rates REALLY Matter?

What's more important, home appreciation or locking in a low interest rate?

While a lower interest rate can lower your monthly payment, it could be a gamble to wait for rates to drop... Houses appreciated over 20% the last year in several major markets, and most economists generally agree that while that pace is not likely to continue, houses are still projected to appreciate.

Here's a look at why waiting for a lower rate may not work in your favor...

	Price	Rate	Monthly Payment	Equity in November 2023
Buying Today	$500,000	6.75% <small>APR 7.252%</small>	$3,747	$72,296 <small>10% Down + Appreciation + Principal</small>
Buying next year (*IF rates drop)	$525,000 <small>Same house + 1 yr appreciation</small>	5.75% <small>APR 6.18%</small>	$3,619	$52,500 <small>10% Down Payment</small>
Difference			$127	$19,796

Using a conservative rate of 5% appreciation in the example above, it could cost you nearly $19,796 in equity waiting for rates to decrease - in just one year!

Arrest at Strawberry Creek Plaza

By JACK CLARK
Co-Publisher

At 10:56 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 9, an arrest was made in the parking lot at Strawberry Creek Shopping Plaza. According to Riverside County Sheriff's deputy Cpl. M. Curtis, when he routinely entered the parking lot, he observed a parked pickup truck with a load in the back and the tail gate in a dropped position, which is sometimes a ploy used by individuals wishing to obscure the vehicle's license plate. An inspection of the plate revealed a date tag that appeared to have been altered. The corporal waited until the driver emerged from one of the stores and attempted to drive the vehicle away. He then pulled it over before it left the parking lot. The driver, Eric Thomas Wright, 54, of Idyllwild, was arrested without altercation and ultimately charged

Pine Cove Water remaining in Stage 2 water conservation

By BECKY CLARK
Editor

Pine Cove Water District (PCWD) General Manager Jeremy Potter reported that the district produced 3,387,550 gallons of water in October compared to 2,866,070 in October 2021 and 3,736,910 in October 2020. For September to October 2022, 7,283,570 gallons were produced with 6,575,293 accounted for, leaving a 10% loss. Potter reported that PCWD found and repaired a 10 gallons-per-minute leak on Emerick Road. The static well dropped 3.4 feet in two months. PCWD remains in Stage 2 water conservation. The staff created and made a PCWD wooden sign, as well as more than 600 bluebird houses using local cedar. Each PCWD customer may stop by the office to receive one birdhouse. Potter reported that 50 have been given out. The district received its financial statements and independent auditor's report from Rogers, Anderson, Malody and Scott LLP out of San Bernardino for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2022. The company reported, "The assets and deferred outflows of resources of the District exceeded its liabilities and deferred inflows of resources at June 30, 2022 by $3,632,262. Accordingly, some assets are not available to meet the near-term financial requirements of the District; $3,188,965 represents the net investment in capital assets. The remainder of the net position balance was a positive unrestricted amount of $443,297, which is primarily due to an increase in the District's operating and non-operating revenues." The financial firm reported assets at $8,339,646 and total liabilities at $800,629 putting PCWD in a good net position. The audit showed operating revenues at only $806,671 compared to operating expenses at $1,229,574 with driving without a valid driver's license and possession of a switchblade knife with less than a 2-inch blade, both misdemeanors, and forging or altering a vehicle registration and possession of metal knuckles (colloquially referred to as "brass" knuckles), both felonies. However, court records show that the felony charges were reduced to misdemeanors. Wright was booked into Larry D. Smith Correctional Facility in Banning and was scheduled to appear in court at Murrieta Southwest Justice Center at 1:30 p.m. Monday, Nov. 14.

Visual arts theme show returns unmasked

By DAVID JEROME
CORRESPONDENT

Last Friday, Nov. 11, Idyllwild Arts Academy’s Visual Arts program held an opening reception for this year’s Visual Arts Student Theme Show, “Identity.” Students submit candidate themes each year; teachers then narrow the field to three on which students vote. The works are thus conceived and completed in about two months.

The show’s statement lays out some markers that make up identity: “What could identity mean to you? Where you’re from, who you are, what you look like, who you love, what you love, what you want to be, how you are perceived by the world and the people around you.” Also present in the minds of the artists is their own youth and plasticity: “How we define ourselves will change countless times over the course of our lives and, as artists, we can capture these snapshots in our artwork to look back and reflect on each stage and how we have evolved.” The artist statements that accompanied each work bore out these various themes and introduced others, from the daringly personal to the technical and philosophical.

The opening reception had a festive atmosphere; last year everyone was masked up and more subdued — now the artists were mostly happy to talk about their work, and even happier to point out and praise their colleagues.

Last year’s juror was virtual, corresponding by internet, but this year’s juror, Devon Tsuno, was in person. Tsuno is an associate professor at California State University Dominguez Hills. His vibrantly colorful, deeply layered work focuses on plant life, but contains stories about his family and heritage, and California’s environmental issues. His latest high-profile commission includes four works to enliven the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority’s new Wilshire Rodeo station, slated to open in 2025.

The juror’s choices often affirmed the casual viewer’s judgment: some of these pieces had inescapable presence that impressed and arrested. Other works Tsuno singled out were subtle and understated in their mastery. The artists’ statements attached to the work allow (or force) the artists to put a piece of themselves out there into the world. The statements all lined up with the work; a viewer would usually get the gist of each work (as we should) from the work itself, but it was gratifying to get confirmation from the source.

Senior Adrain Wang, who last year was awarded third place, received first honorable mention (HM) for the digital media work “Magical Live Stream” that suggests the addictive but threatening and ultimately unsatisfying nature of online life.

Second HM went to freshman Audrey Everson’s hydra-headed “Personality.” The digital media work presents a character made of animal, human and mechanical selves blending uneasily.

Third HM was senior Lilikoi Amlin’s Goya-inspired dry point etching, “Brother and I.” An unsettling, perhaps strait-jacketed, Siamese-twin clown grins at the viewer. Behind are tables stacked with papers and what might be surgical implements, invoking the artist’s fear of separation. Ironically, this reporter learned, the artist has no brother, but an inseparably close friend who takes that role.

Fourth HM went to a first-year senior, Maria Barcelo Tous, for “Resilience,” which combines Lino printing on acetate with ceramic. The ceramic invokes the coral that grows in the sea around the artist’s native Mallorca, its fragility and resilience. It appears to be healing from a break. The prints on transparency suggest the ocean and the coral-like tangle of neurons in the brain.

Painting and drawing teacher Rachel Welch, commenting about the excitement of a student asking, “Can I do watercolor on canvas?” — the beginning of an exploration that led to Day Side’s third place “The Exhaustion of Comfortability.” The painting is both radiant and challenging. The watercolors remind of William Blake’s work, and the seated figure seems to be tearing themselves apart, an expression of gender dysmorphia.

Second place went to sophomore Luna Lee for “Kiss the Rain,” a mesmerizing, single-frame digital animation in which a figure kisses a spirit in the rain, having connected with a part of themselves.

First place went to Nil Delfin Uslu’s “Thank You,” one of the subtle pieces that were easy to walk by in a crowded gallery, but which are as full of detail as fingerprints. The artist’s statement expresses gratitude for even the difficult experiences that have shaped their identity. The acetone transfer method allows laser printed images to be transferred to canvas where the artist can further modify and distort them.

Best of Show went to junior Jiho Kim’s “Peccavi.” Last year, Jiho took second place with “Reflection,” another commanding oil. “Peccavi” is a work with a room-dominating presence, and its spiritual import is no less arresting. Although many works here (and in the canons) explore an artist’s wounds, here the “sinner” is the artist, and they show themselves taking ownership of their selfishness. The artist stands, back turned to a prone figure seen only as booted feet protruding into the frame. They seem to be facing a moment of guilt and self-awareness. The heaviness of the moment is not without a sense of humor, as the “crime” of self-absorption is lighter than the suggestion of murder. The large canvas invites a scrutiny of its breath-taking, old-master style photo realism.

Artists put a lot of thought and feeling and a lot of themselves into their work and this is a show worth checking out. The artists’ statements lift the veil and let the viewer know the makers’ thoughts. The Parks Exhibition Center is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday. The show will remain until Thursday, Dec. 8.

ART’S CORNER

By ART CONNOR

The prospect for the reopening of the Lowman Hall performance space to the expecting public was quite favorable this past Sunday, with mild enough temperatures and despite brisk winds and partial cloudiness. Inside, the stage itself resembled an operating theater, with a scrupulously clean setting, with only chairs and microphones interrupting a whitened, bare and illuminated circle. Nevertheless, the anticipation in the atmosphere was salutatory enough, with many of the attendees unmasked and at the ready, to welcome once again David Pelham and the “Art of the Guitar” series to the Idyllwild Arts campus.

After a short introduction by Pelham, the long anticipated return began by welcoming the Mexican guitarist Alberto Daniel Quintanilla with a varied program of well-chosen works, beginning with John Dowland’s “Lacrimae Pavan” in an appropriately somber mood, which served as a display of the artist’s talent as well as the hall’s acoustic capabilities. Both qualities also were observed in the following piece, Mauro Giuliani’s “Ros-siniana #1”; fulfilling the task of presenting the craft of virtuosity as well as the fitting of operatic excerpts together.

Further artistic deftness followed in the two movements of Cuban composer Leo Brouwer’s “Sonata I,” with the “Sarabanda de Scriabin” paying tribute to the mystical aspects of the Russian composer, and the “Toc-cata de Pasquini” emphasizing the coloristic contrasts of the entire fretboard.

The two concluding offerings by Señor Quintanilla were designed to put the listener at ease with guitar sonics; in a tribute to his teacher, Rodrigo Nefthali’s composition “Del otro lado del puente” (“From the Other Side of the Bridge”) sent a message of calm in the midst of U.S. and Mexican border relations, and Luiz Bonfá’s “Passeio no Rio” (“Walking Through Rio”) provided happy relief in the composer’s most popular, jazz-influenced vein.

The second part of the performance, featuring Turkish guitarist Aysegül Koca, began with a virtuoso display quite unparalleled in any location (and certainly in Idyllwild). Playing a specially tuned instrument, Ms. Koca assayed the Italian composer Carlo Domeniconi’s tribute to his travels in Turkey titled “Koyun-baba,” which fused the countryside’s Oriental modes with a Western sensitivity, and provided the audience with an exhibition of appropriate displays of Arabic oud (or more accurately, Turkish baglama) technique; this listener could discern quarter-tone effects with relative ease.

There followed a meditative piece by 19th century composer Giulio Regondi titled “Reverie” (on regularly-tuned guitar), which gave forth a similar calmness to the overall setting after the initial display; the piece’s general effect (including the tremoli sections) was of tender care, which Ms. Koca’s playing demonstrated in abundance.

The remainder of her program (as was the case with the first part) was a convenient blend of classical and popular sonics; Astor Piazzolla’s two vignettes of Buenos Aires in winter and spring (“Invierno Porteno”/“Primavera Portena”) gave out distinct and implicative inferences into the Argentine city’s life-styles; the former indicating the dour mood of mid-August and the latter replete with modified tango rhythms.

The Spanish side of the guitar also was evidenced in her rendition of Joaquin Turina’s “Sevillana,” and following that, a short encore piece based on an Azerbaijani folk melody also was appreciated. Then, with both players centrally located, the audience gave out the well-deserved approbations; and (to continue the surgical metaphoric conceit) the operation was a success, and “The Art of the Guitar” series survives.

Thanksgiving Around the World

People around the world are grateful for a good harvest. A good harvest in the fall means there will be plenty of food for all.

Ancient Greece

Thanksgiving celebrations go back thousands of years in some parts of the world.

In ancient Greek mythology, baby Zeus was fed by a goat foster-mother named Amalthea. One day, he broke off one of her horns. Food began to pour out of the horn. This is the story of the “horn of plenty,” a familiar symbol of Thanksgiving in the U.S.A. today.

Circle every other letter to discover another name for the “horn of plenty.”

How Wheat Becomes Bread

Work with a family member to number the pictures in order to show how wheat grows from a seed to become bread. It takes workers at every step to get the bread to people.

1. Seeds are planted.
2. Wheat grows from seed.
3. Grain is removed from the plant.
4. Wheat grains are ground into flour.
5. Flour is made into bread.

China: Moon Festival

China’s harvest celebration is called the Mid-Autumn Festival, the Moon Festival or the Mooncake Festival.

Families gather to eat different kinds of round foods that symbolize the moon. These include eggs and mooncakes. Tea is served in round cups.

Mooncakes are round pastries that are filled with a sweet filling.

All but one of these mooncakes has an identical twin. Can you find the unique mooncake?

Which Country?

On the first full moon in autumn, people in this country celebrate a thanksgiving holiday. Families get together to share food and give thanks for the harvest. In the evening, they take walks to enjoy the beauty of the full harvest moon. They call the holiday Chuseok.

Japan: Labor Thanksgiving Day

Long ago, people in Japan celebrated the harvest. As time went on, their day of giving thanks became a time to thank the workers who grew and harvested their food.

Today, Japan celebrates a Labor Thanksgiving Day. It’s a day to show gratitude for the workers in the community. School children make colorful thank you cards and gifts for the police, firefighters and hospital workers.

Ghana: Hooting at Hunger

In parts of Ghana, people celebrate a festival called Hooting at Hunger.

Years ago, a severe famine broke out among the people. The people put all of their energy into growing yams and soon had a big crop. Their hunger ended, and, with great joy, they “hooted at hunger.” This is the meaning of their name for their day of thanksgiving. Write down the letters on the correct path of the maze to the celebration’s name.

ATTENTION CONTRACTORS

California Business and Professions Code 7071.13 reads: "Any reference by a contractor in his advertising, soliciting, or other presentments to the public to any bond required to be filed pursuant to this chapter is a ground for the suspension of the license of such contractor."

This is a contractor's responsibility, not a newspaper's, and we are not responsible for it. However, as a courtesy, we will remove references to a bond in contractors' advertising, if we notice it.

Last week in "Days of Our Nine Lives," celebrated Newton's adoption and talked about pets handing the time change.
Phil: Brrrr! It's been pretty cold these last few days.
Atlas: If autumn is this chilly, what is this winter going to bring?
Don: Snow! That's what it will bring.
Cuddles: Ah, snow. It is so beautiful!
Phil: I would so love to be in a forever home so I could lounge in front of a window with my family and watch the snowflakes fall.
Don: Oh, that sounds so Norman Rockwell!
Cuddles: Your description, Phil, conjures up images of a happy family with a much-loved pet.
Phil: Yeah! And how about a crackling fire to add warmth and ambiance?
Atlas: You guys are making me feel sad that I'm missing all the holiday magic.
Pepper: Atlas, you are so young that you have time to celebrate all holidays with a family.
Cuddles: That's right. ARF just needs to draw in the perfect human to see how adorable you are. Then you'll be in a forever home, hopefully in time for the holiday celebrations.
Don: Wouldn't the holidays be extra special for a family that adopts a cat or dog?
Atlas: Yes, they would be.
Phil: When I think about it, pet adoption fits right into the spirit of giving. What a wonderful way for a person to show caring, love, and compassion.
Pepper: And I am pretty certain the lucky cat or dog will return the gifts of care, love and compassion. We pets do our best to make our humans feel special.
Atlas: I know I would! I can entertain them, purr for them, weave my way through their legs and offer unconditional love.
Phil: That's it! That is our most important gift... unconditional love.
Don: What more could a person want?
Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of "Days of our Nine Lives" each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Highway 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10 a.m.-3 p.m., Sundays 10 a.m.-2 p.m., and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

The event was sponsored by Southern California Edison (Edison International), Wild Idy Tree Foundation (the nonprofit entity created by Piño Tree Service), Idyllwild Community Center and the Tree People. Tree varieties included apple, cherry, ornamental red plum, maple and oak. More than 500 trees were given away before noon. In light of the resounding success, the event sponsors are planning to do another similar event with more trees sometime early next spring. PHOTO BY STEPHANIE YOST

HOROSCOPES

November 2022 — Week 3

March 21 – April 19
This is a good time to speak out on a difficult situation. You're known for your honesty, so people will listen and, perhaps, begin to make long-needed changes.

April 20 – May 20
The Bovine's sharp business sense alerts you to question the positions of those trying to push the Bull into a deal. Demand to see proof of what they profess.

May 21 – June 21
Your quick thinking helps you get out of a troubling situation that was suddenly thrust upon you. Later on, you can expect to learn more about why it happened.

June 22 – July 22
You might feel you've dotted all your i's and crossed all your t's regarding that upcoming deal. But there might be some facts you've ignored. Check again.

July 23 – August 22
Time for the Lion to be more physically active. It will help shake off any lingering Leonine lethargy and restore your energy levels so that you'll be prepared for what lies ahead.

August 23 – September 22
Helping those in need at this time is laudable. But don't ignore your own needs, especially where it concerns your health. A medical checkup is a wise move.

September 23 – October 22
Good news: Your outspoken views about a controversial on-the-job situation could find unexpectedly strong support from a most unlikely workplace faction.

October 23 – November 21
You might have to draw on your reservoir of spiritual strength to help someone special through a difficult time. Your loving attitude makes all the difference.

November 22 – December 21
Your proven leadership qualities make you the perfect person to take on an important workplace task. Don't shy away from the challenge.

December 22 – January 19
Although some compromise might need to be reached regarding your stand on an important issue, you'll still be able to get the most crucial points across.

January 20 – February 18
A chance to make a career change carries both positive and uncertain possibilities. Best advice: Check it out thoroughly, and don't be rushed into a decision.

February 19 – March 20
You're still a staunch supporter of one side of an important issue. But be prepared to deal with new information that could cause you to question your current stand.
