State Farm seeking 22% rate increase

IDYLLWILD, CA

Rising wildfire costs drive insurance giant to request steep premium hikes

By JP Crumrine Correspondent

State Farm General Insurance has requested that the California Department of Insurance grant a 22% rate increase due to the magnitude and devastation of the recent wildfires last month in Los Angeles County. SFG made the request in a Feb. 3 letter to California's Insurance Commissioner Richardo Lara.

SFG has already received 8,700 claims and paid more than $1 billion to customers, Dan Krause, President and Chief Executive Officer of SFG, wrote in the letter. "We know we will ultimately pay out significantly more, as these fires will collectively be the costliest in the history of the company."

SFG is asking for the proposed increases – 22% for homeowners, 15% for renters, 15% for condominium unit owners and 38% for owners of rental properties – to become effective on May 1.

knowledged that if the final rate increase quest, SFG would issue refunds to policy holders.

The need for additional cash is paramount to SFG. Their financial reserves were falling before this fire catastrophe and are now being drained more rapidly. According to Krause, "By year-end 2024, SFG's Policyholder Protection Fund – i.e. surplus, or capital available to pay claims - was approximately a quarter of what it was in 2016, and its surplus relative to the risk it supports dropped nearly eightyfive percent by one measure, putting the company below certain minimum regulatory Risk-Based Capital requirements." And this is half of the 2022 level.

Since 2016, SFG has paid $1.26 in claims and expenses for every $1.00 collected in premium, resulting in over $5 billion in cumulative underwriting loss-

Its deteriorating capital balance resulted in AM Best, a rating agency, downgrading SFG's financial status a year ago. As the cost of the Los Angeles fires continues, Krause is worried about possible future downgrades and how that will affect SFG's ability to raise additional capital.

He wrote that continuing downgrades of the company's financial strength may cause mortgage lenders to decide that SFG's fire insurance is insufficient collateral for mortgages. Policy holders would then have to find new in-

SFG is the largest insurer in the State with more than 3 million policies, nearly 20% of the market. But in 2023, because of declining financial position, SFG stopped writing new policies in the state. One year later, SFG announced it would not renew 72,000 existing California policies, including 29,000 that were for homeown-

Other insurance companies have also released their costs from these fires. Chubb Limited said in its Fourth Quarter 2024 earnings report that the Los Angeles fires have cost the company $1.5 billion. These will be taken in the first quarter of 2025. Chubb reported net income of $2.5 billion in the 2024 fourth quarter.

On Feb. 6, Allstate reported its losses The SFG rate increase request made would be $1.1 billion, before taxes and in June 2024 is still pending. Krause ac- after re-insurance payments. The report added that losses were limited to this approved is lower than this interim re- amount because the company had begun reducing is share of the California fire insurance market in 2007.

Both Chubb (2.7%) and Allstate (5.8%) have smaller shares of the state fire insurance market than SFG.

The enormous cost of the Los Angeles fires demonstrates the conundrum for policy holders and insurers. Cal Fire's preliminary data show more than 16,000 structures were destroyed in just the Palisades and Eaton Fires. Property owners and renters want insurance in case of a fire destroying their property. But they are concerned about the premiums.

SFG and other insurance companies will provide the security if they can make a profit.

California, as these fires demonstrated, is a high fire risk area and consequently insurance rates will increase to balance this risk. Simply, SFG stated, "We must appropriately match price to risk. That is foundational to how insurance works. Higher risks should pay more for insurance than lower risks.

"SFG needs your urgent assistance in the form of emergency interim approval of additional rate to help avert a dire situation for our customers and the insurance market in the state of California," Krause stressed to Lara.

"State Farm General's rate filings raise serious questions about its financial condition," said department spokesman Gabriel Sanchez to the media. "To protect millions of California consumers and the integrity of our residential property insurance market, the department will re-

Idyllwild Water District Board appoints Wendy Harsha to fill vacant seat

THURS., FEB 13, 2025

By David Jerome Correspondent

The Board of Directors of Idyllwild Water District held a special meeting on Friday, February 7, to consider applications for the open Board seat. The agenda named four candidates that had submitted letters of interest: Derrick Zimmerman, John Stamper, Jonathon Mills, and Wendy Harsha. All were present at the meeting. Board President Schelly explained that no interviews had been conducted prior to the meeting.

Schelly himself had prepared five questions for the candidates, the other directors also asked each a question they had prepared, and had the opportunity to ask follow up questions. Each candidate was given five minutes for a concluding statement.

Schelly's questions were: What special qualities do you bring to the board? What do you see as the difference between volunteers and elected officers? If you were on the board and there was a division of opinion, and you felt strongly about your point of view, would you try to persuade other directors? Have you ever been in a supervisory position, and if so, what was the most difficult part?

Steve Olson asked each candidate what they thought was the most important quality they would bring to the board. Jessica Priefer asked them to choose the three most important values from a list. Mitch Davis asked how long they intended to serve on the board.

Zimmerman is a teacher who has also managed group homes, Stamper retired after 25 years managing the service department for an automobile dealership, Mills a craftsmen and general contractor, and Harsha a bookkeeper and co-owner of a local business. The answers the candidates gave were mostly unsurprising. All agreed that the hardest part of supervising is firing someone. All picked safety and ethics from Priefer's list. All understood that being an elected official (or appointed to serve as one) was a greater responsibility than being a volunteer and obligated them in more serious ways.

After the interviews, nominations were made. Davis nominated Stamper, but there was no second. Olson nominated Harsha, and Preifer seconded. Olson noted Harsha's volunteerism, and her comments about the importance of listening and understanding the perspectives of others. He added that his own experience in accounting made him partial to the candidate with bookkeeping experience. A vote was held, Olson and Preifer voted yes and Davis voted no. After a moment Schelly added his vote to those of Olson and Preifer, making the total 3-1.

Schelly thanked the candidates and invited them to run the next time there is an election. He said that Harsha would be sworn in at the next regular meeting, on Wednesday, February 19.

Legislature approves $50 million for litigation of Trump actions

By JP Crumrine Correspondent

In the past month, the State Legislature has completed its Special Session, which Gov. Gavin Newsom called for on Nov. 7. Last week, the Assembly passed two bills to help the Attorney General defend the State's policies from anticipated litigation or enforcement actions filed against the State. Two weeks earlier, the Legislature passed legislation to provide $2.5 billion to help recovery from the Los Angeles County wildfires.

Legal Defense funding On Feb. 3, the State Assembly passed ABX1-1 and SBX1-2 which provide $50 million to resist actions taken or to be taken by President Donald Trump. Gov. Newsom initially requested the funding on Nov. 7, a day after the Presidential election.

Three months later, Newsom signed both bills on Feb. 7. In his signing message for SBX1-2, he wrote, "[it] will bolster funding for legal services programs that are vital to safeguarding the civil rights of California's most vulnerable residents...

Both bills provided $25 million. ABX1-1 is funding for the State's Attorney General's office. Newsom's original requested $25 million to enable the Attorney General's office to defend against the new federal government's action. For example, the freeze on federal grant money.

The state Administration was concerned about adverse actions threatened or taken by the federal government against California's laws related to climate change, clean water, reproductive healthcare and the rights of our vulnerable communities – immigrants, LGBTQ+, Asian Pacific Islander and Black residents.

The additional $25 million will be distributed to three entities. Ten million dollars will be directed to the Equal Access Fund to defend the civil rights of Californians, including providing legal services to vulnerable persons at risk of discrimination, detention, eviction, wage theft, deportation, intimate partner violence, and other actions that put their safety at risk

Another $10 million will be for One California through the Department of Social Services. The remaining $5 million will go to the California Access to Justice Commission. This money is intended to support organizations that are not primarily receiving funding through Equal Access Fund or One California.

The Governor and Assembly Democrats emphasized that these funds will not be used to provide services for individuals convicted of violent or serious

"None of the funding in this bill is intended to be used for immigration-related legal services for noncitizens convicted of serious or violent felonies," Newsom wrote in his signing message. He also encouraged the Legislature to enact additional legislation to ensure compliance with this purpose.

Nevertheless, Republicans were unhappy with this action. "These votes show just how out of touch the Democratic supermajority has become," said Assembly Republican Leader James Gallagher (East Nicolaus). "There is no reason to oppose these policies other than petty partisanship. It's a shame Democrats would rather play politics than support practical safeguards to protect the public and their tax dollars."

Wildfire funding On Jan. 23, Governor Gavin Newsom signed two bills appropriating $2.5 billion to help fund the recovery efforts in Los Angeles area after the devastation caused by multiple wildfires. The burning began Jan. 7. The Governor's press release described the damage as hurricane-force fire storms.

This was only 10 days after he made the request of the Legislature's Special Session. Both bills, ABX1-4 and SBX1-3, provide more than $2.5 billion for disaster relief and were passed unanimously.

"Thanks to our partners in the legislature, we're providing over $2.5 billion in immediate relief - expediting initial firestorm response and recovery efforts," Newsom said in the release. "We're also directing millions of dollars to help local governments speed up building approvals - so folks can rebuild their homes faster."

As of Jan. 25, Cal Fire reported that the various Los Angeles area fires have caused 28 fatalities and burned and destroyed more than 16,000 structures.

At its Feb. 4 meeting, the County Board of Supervisors held a public hearing to consider raising the fees for landfill disposal. Revenue from tonnage helps fund the Waste Resources Department. This year, the Department had MSW Consultants, of Murrieta, conduct a study of its costs and revenues. The not adequate to meet the Department's present and fu-$35.30 per ton." ture financial obligations."

However, the report recommended that annual intiple factors are causing the increase in operating costs. Besides salary and fuel increases, the following were also contributors: capital improvement projects, strictand heavy equipment costs.

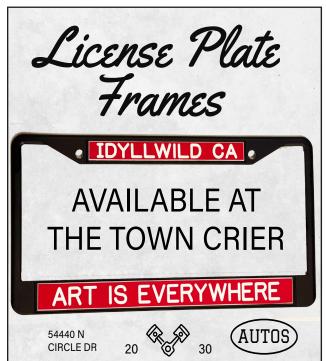

Consequently, the Department recommended increasing the landfill disposal fees by 2.88%, the latest 12-month change in the Riverside-San Bernardino-Ontario price index.

These fees will take effect on July 1. They do not change the residential and commercial annual fees for use of the Idyllwild Transfer Station. These were increased in October 2024.

In addition, to the general landfill and waste disposal fees, the Department also assessed the costs and operations of the Idyllwild Grinding Facility. The conclusion was "... green/woody waste disposal at IGF costs the conclusion "... found that the current tipping fees are Department $110.26 per ton, yet the current rate is only

Fees for bringing tires to County facilities will remain er regulatory compliance requirements, permitting fees at $6 per tire and a maximum of five tires per residential customer per day.

Supervisors Debate Immigration Resolution Amid Divided Opinions

By JP Crumrine Correspondent

"... Riverside County is a vibrant, compassionate, and welcoming county for all law-abiding immigrants and refugees; and commits to safeguarding the civil rights of all our residents to the fullest extent provided by the law," declared the Resolution which the County Board of Supervisors adopted at its Feb. 4 meeting.

More than two hours of public speakers - both supportive and opposed-- came before the Board and significant discussion among the Supervisors took place before the vote.

The vote on the Resolution, which Board Chair V. Manuel Perez (4th District) and Supervisor Yxstian Gutierrez (5th District) proposed, was not unanimous. Supervisor Karen Speigel (2nd District) was the lone "no" vote. During the discussion she expressed surprise with some comments and sympathy for some of the speakers. "I hadn't heard a lot of these issues in Riverside County about folks being taken into custody."

But she also noted that some of the public statements seemed to stretch what she had previously been told. For example, while many supporters argued that the County's Sheriff's Department was frequently collaborating with the Federal Immigration and Customs enforcement Agency in order to arrest and deport undocumented immigrants, Speigel said that there were only 13 involved in some crime against a person or property.

One of her reasons for opposing the resolution was ". .. this is just words not action."

"This is not a political issue; it is a moral obligation!"-Supervisor V. Manuel Perez

While some speakers argued that the Resolution would make Riverside County a sanctuary jurisdiction for illegal immigrants and expend resources on this issue, both Perez and Supervisor Chuck Washington (3rd District) had County Executive Jeff Van Wagenen and County Counsel Minh Tran address this allegation. Both affirmed that the resolution's language does not create a sanctuary nor affect the County Sheriff's opera-

> It states, "... this Resolution shall not be construed to prohibit any County department's assistance or cooperation with federal authorities if required by state and/or federal laws."

> The second clause explicitly states both the District Attorney's and Sheriff's Offices maintain independence in investigative and prosecutorial actions.

> Among the many public speakers were several youths. They expressed support for the Resolution. One felt it would help his friends return to school without fear that they would be arrested for simply being illegally here.

> 'This resolution recognizes the true history of the country. This resolution gives Riverside County a chance to lead with decency and fairness," said Nathan Kempos.

> "This conversation is always tough, but it needs to be had," Perez shared as he began his comments.

And he concluded, "We have not stopped support-"Does it direct us to spend any funds tomorrow that ing our Sheriff's Department and public safety. ### Riverside County Library System "working closely with" Emergency Management Department to keep Library power on during shutoffs

By David Jerome Correspondent

During the January Public Safety Power Shutoffs, many locals used public warming and charging centers for the first time. The Idyllwild Community Center made their Town Hall facilities available for Southern California Edison during the longest outage, and ICC operated Town Hall as a center on its own during later

The Idyllwild Public Library also remained open but without power. A trailer outside had free ice, and bottled water was available inside. Books could still be checked out, but the lights and heat were out.

The Town Crier asked if there was a plan to have the capability to keep the Library power on during shutoffs. We received this answer from Rebeckah Ross, Principal Development Specialist at the Riverside County Library System

"The Riverside County Library System (RCLS) is fully committed to ensuring uninterrupted service for our communities, even during power outages and electrical grid disturbances. Following the recent power outages in January, we conducted a thorough reassessment of our preparedness to better meet community needs. As part of these efforts, RCLS collaborated with the Riverside County Emergency Management Department (EMD) to evaluate backup power solutions for all our libraries, including the Idyllwild Library. Our RCLS Project Management team is now working closely with EMD to ensure that a generator will be operational in the near future. We remain committed to proactively enhancing our infrastructure to support our communities during emergencies."

Dear Spiritual Workout:

I have always had a lot of medical "issues" and am feeling exhausted from it all. Even though I have a full-time job and a family, it seems like my real fulltime job is to schedule and attend doctor's appointments and figure out how to pay for everything, fighting with insurance companies all the time. I obviously have to take care of my health, and my meds often help but something doesn't seem right. Thoughts?

Exhausted" and "something doesn't seem right" are, off the bat, what's got my attention — along, of course, with my sympathies for what sounds like a chronic struggle. I do a lot of work with clients who are experiencing serious medical conditions/diagnoses because the system most of us are operating within tends to de-emphasize the power of our minds, beliefs, and emotions when it comes to our physical health. I thus encourage you to do what you can to throw a wrench, if you will, into the exhausting dynamic that has taken hold in your life, to engage some sort of reset, and re-focus your attention on what I assume is your desire: to feel good. How much of your precious time and energy is focused on feeling good right now? On that intention? Your intuition — via an unmistakable feeling such as "exhausted" and via your sense that "something doesn't seem right" — is sending you a message that could be included and considered along with the messages you're getting from doctor's offices, labs, and insurance companies. As always, that is yours to listen to or ignore. But I remind you that this practice believes wholeheartedly in the power of listening to such guidance because it is always in our best soul-level intere

Dear Spiritual Workout:

Why is it so hard to stop caring about what other people think of me? I know it's the right thing to do, I trust the voices of those who say how harmful it is to be like this, but I can't stop. Can Spiritual Workout help with this? Dear Reader:

when you invest your precious time, energy, and trust in beliefs like "it's so hard" and "I can't stop," that's exactly what you will experience — as you can see. Next, your (quite common) complaint stems from a dearth of connection to the being part of the human you are. That's the spiritual part of Spiritual Workout. It's about listening to inspiration. It's about investing our precious time, energy, and trust in beliefs like "my worth Idyllwild and value is determined by me" and "I am the only one who knows when I'm aligned with what's true and right for me," which sound right when we are connected to this aspect of ourselves. When we're not, we are left with seeking validation from outside sources, which leave us vulnerable all day every day to whims of others, which cannot and will not ever satisfy us. Indeed, creating such transformations is exactly what SW is all about and, I promise you, it can be done.

Falling Trees

Dear editor:

A recent front-page article in the Town Crier reported the destruction of three trailers at the Royal Pines Park off Tollgate Road. A dog was killed, and several residents were made homeless in this terrifying incident. The culprit: a large black oak taken down by wind.

This event highlights the threat these trees present to our town, a danger which will only increase with time. The Idyllwild area was heavily logged in the late 19th and early 20th centuries; we live in a second-growth forest where many trees are now reaching maturity. The black oak's average life expectancy is 100-200 years. All the saplings which sprang up after logging are now within that range.

Black oaks fall apart with alarming regularity. Call it a design flaw. Even healthy trees may drop large limbs due to "heart rot", a condition in which fungus hollows out the core. While there may be outward signs of imminent collapse, most of us don't know how to spot them. One quiet spring morning a movement outside the front window caught my eye, and I looked up to see the top half of my neighbor's 25-foot oak nonchalantly detach and cascade down into the street between our houses. Nobody was passing by, and there was no damage to speak of, but the moment was staggering nonetheless. This cataclysm took place on a sunny, windless day.

My dog and I stroll about town noticing dozens of massive oaks, many old and less than reliable-looking, with huge limbs towering over cars, homes, and power lines. The incident at Royal Pines is not the first report in this paper of terrific damage caused by a black oak fall, and it surely won't be the last.

These are beautiful trees, but far from benign. I want to urge property owners to attend to this hazard. Call an arborist, get your oaks checked out. If necessary, have dubious trees removed. Better to end an oak's life a bit prematurely than allow it to choose the night it comes crashing through your bedroom ceiling.

Propaganda vs News

Dear editor:

On November 1, 1946, Ernie and Betty Maxwell published the first issue of Idyllwild Town Crier. In those days besides local gossip, it was the only go-to for information about the community. Since 2022, there are two newspapers serving a mountain town of less than four thousand residents. Each offered a different perspective on wildfire prevention and recovery this month

The STAR devoted a two column, full page analysis of the CA Assembly Republicans' efforts to pass Wildfire Prevention and Recovery Bills. President Trump was involved in the discussion and agreed to support a solution advocated by the Assembly Republican Leader to "remove the fuels that drive catastrophic wildfires." His press secretary, who wrote the article, ended with the sentence, "In contrast, Assembly Democrats last week rejected an effort to provide an additional $1 billion for wildfire prevention in last year's budget."

In contrast, the Town Crier published a one column article by JP Crumrine, with the headline, Legislature approves $2.5 billion to recovery from wildfires. Governor Newsom recognized the value of the bipartisan approach to the crisis and was quoted as saying "Thanks to our partners in the legislature, we're providing ...immediate relief expediting initial firestorm response and recovery efforts." Crumrine also reported a separate $5 million appropriation for rebuilding and another $1 million to rebuild schools. # Mountain Disaster Preparedness Community

Emergency Response Team learn about patient assessment

By David Jerome Correspondent

Mountain Disaster Preparedness is a local nonprofit that has a number of working groups within it, including its CERT (Community Emergency Response Team.) This group undergoes training that includes many aspects of emergency response, including first aid.

CERT's regular meetings are the first Thursday of the month and are held in the meeting room of Idyllwild Fire Protection District. Some meetings include presentations by members of IFPD, but the latest session was led by Richard Yocum, a retired MD who is a part of MDP's Core Medical Group (CMG). The purpose of the class was not to teach first aid, but to help volunteers evaluate patients in an emergency and be able to communicate with medical professionals and first responders. This was the first of a series of medical trainings CMG will be presenting.

Yocum presented an overview of types of patient assessments that medical professionals and first responders use but focused on the system used by Wilderness First Responders (WFR) in their certification program, which he has completed. The object is to teach students how to "perform a comprehensive physical examination, gather critical patient history, and evaluate vital signs." Training in a system helps volunteers communicate clearly and concisely and stay calm in an emergency. The system includes a sequence of actions to protect the safety of responders, bystanders and patients.

The introduction to the WFR system was followed by a role-playing exercise. The members broke into teams of three and were given envelopes describing realistic scenarios. One person was to play "patient", another was to evaluate them, and the third would act as scribe. The "patient" knew things about their condition or medical history that the evaluator had to find out by asking the right questions. It was like a game of 20 questions with a purpose, and team members said they had fun while learning serious lessons.

MDP's website says the group was founded in 1986 to address the unique challenges of living in and visiting our 'Island in the Sky' and recognizing the potential emergency concerns of a mountain community. The group is ready to help whenever the need arises, and to interface with various first responders.

MDP plans to hold a three-day drill in April which will allow participants to be certified as CERT members. Membership in MDP is free, and you can sign up online. For more information visit mdpidyllwild.org.

Assembly race costs millions

Assembly District 47 race sees soaring costs as candidates pour millions into re-election battle.

By JP Crumrine Correspondent

The election to represent Assembly District 47, in which incumbent Greg Walls defeated Christy Holstege a second time, may not have been as close as the 2022 election, but it was more expensive.

In 2022, the candidates reported spending nearly $5 million total in an election which Wallis won by less than 1%. Two years later, the cost of re-election escalated by nearly 25% to $6.2 million.

Holstege expenditures were more than Wallis's in both elections. In 2024, her total was $3.5 million, about 12.7% greater. However, to preserve his incumbency, Wallis increased his campaign funds by more than 40% to $2.6 million from $1.9 million.

Wallis

The Assemblyman's largest contributor was obviously the California Republican Party, which sent $1.1 million to his coffers. Much of this was classified as non-monetary contributions, including one $235,000 gift and three for $100,000, in addition, to a monetary any contributions for his re-election. donation of $100,000. All of these came with less than six Holstege weeks remaining in the campaign.

The only other contributions greater than $10,000 were two from the California Real Estate Political Action Committees. However, the Peace Officers Research Association of California, PAC gave Wallis $9,400.

More than $500,000 came from 100 contributions of more compared to Wallis, who received five of at least $5,000 to $7,500. And he had more than 260 donations of less than $1,000, which added $76,000 to his coffers.

Wallis's contributors were a variety of people and organizations. Tribes, such as the Agua Caliente Band, Barona Band, Morongo Band, Pechanga Band and the San Manuel Band contributed from $5,000 to $11,000 each to his campaign.

Other PACs ranged from AT&T, the Pistachio Growers, Pacific Gas and Electric, the Riverside Sheriff's Association Public Education Fund, Sempra Energy, United Healthcare, the Walt Disney Company and Zenith Insurance Company.

Out of nearly 900 separate donations, 136 (or 15%) individuals or groups were from outside of California. Their contributions totaled about $280,000.

Lobbying groups in the District of Columbia were a large source of contributions, but Wallis received funds from across the country – Massachusetts, Connecticut, Illinois, New York, North Carolina, Florida, Texas and 19 other states.

However, the Hill communities were not a source of Holstege's contributions totaled $3.1 million, nearly $1 million more than Wallis's total contributions. She had nearly 1,200 total contributions, which was only 300 more than Wallis's total contributions.

Holstege had only three contributions of $100,000 or which totaled $200.

that amount. But she had 14 contributions between $50,000 and $88,000 and another 57 greater than $10,000.

Smaller contributions of less than $1,000 came from nearly 700 sources, about half were for $100 or less.

Her largest contributor was the California Democratic Party, which gave her about $63,000 in cash and more than $1.4 million in non-monetary contributions. The Los Angeles, Mendocino, Riverside, Santa Clara, and Sonoma County Democratic Parties contributed $550,000 in cash. Also, many other incumbent Democratic Assembly candidates sent funds to Holstege.

Non-political contributors included the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, the Amalgamated Transit Union PAC, the Plumbers and Pipefitters Local 364 PAC, the Association of California School Administrators PAC, the California Nurses Association PAC, Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Caucus Leadership Fund, as well as the Palm Springs Police and Firefighter Associations.

Of her total contributions, 60 were from outside California. They totaled nearly $61,000. The largest non-Californian contribution was $21,800 from the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees PAC. But the greatest number of contributions came from the Jane Fonda Climate PAC and totaled about

She received two contributions from Idyllwild,

The new exterior color scheme is dark, allowing the cabins to blend with their surroundings, while the landscaping "pops." The property is now fully fenced, enhancing privacy. It consists of eleven units, which can be combined to accommodate groups of up to 36 people. Some of the larger units have their own fenced yards. A courtyard area features dining tables that can host large parties, providing plenty of opportunities, both indoors and outdoors, for solitude and community. The hotel has already hosted wedding parties and retreats.

The units range from "wellness studios" with a spalike atmosphere to multi-bedroom cabins, including the former innkeeper's residence, which sleeps ten. Each bathroom features a unique tiling scheme. The plan is to convert the old front office into a gift shop and vending Saturday night's very busy Idyllwild Rotary Bingo. On the second Saturday of every month, Idyllwild Rotary is holding a Bingo event in co-sponsorship with a different local non-profit organization at Town Hall, which is owned and operated by the non-profit Idyllwild Community Center (ICC). This month (February 8th) the co-sponsor was ICC. Next month's co-sponsor will be Soroptimist International of Idyllwild on (March 8th). Doors open at 4:30 pm, with Bingo beginning at 5:00 pm and lasting until around 7:30 pm. Food is available for purchase as part of the "Fun-raiser" event.

Please note that Rotary Bingo is open to those ages 18+, although Pine Cove resident Peaches the pup was enjoying Bingo with her "Mom and Dad."

Mile High Radio Club sees membership rise

Amateur radio group plays vital role in emergency preparedness

By David Jerome Correspondent

Idyllwild's Mile High Radio Club is a local nonprofit organization that helps our community stay in touch with the outside world during emergencies. They hold their monthly meetings at Middle Ridge Winery. A lively and diverse group crowded around the big table in the center of the room on Tuesday night, February 4. A few members joined in by zoom.

Middle Ridge owner Chris Johnston, a club member, is almost as enthusiastic about Ham Radio as he is about wine, and his talents as a recruiter were praised by members, who partly credited him with the Club's post-Covid resurgence in membership. President Roland Gaebert notes that "you don't have to be an operator to join the club and support the mis-MHRC is among the local groups that have resolved to make our community ready for emergencies. One flyer on their website reminds us that modern communications systems are convenient but complex, and complexity makes them prone to disruptions. Amateur radio is comparatively low-tech, and this makes it a useful tool in emergencies. Repeaters fline." allow signals to go beyond the few miles that a handheld or home base radio can reach, and even if repeater stations are out of operation, messages can still be relayed user to user.

The most basic system may start not noted a lot of new members over the last much over $100. With a simple license, you become part of a nationwide net of over 700,000 Hams. The Club provides help with study materials, teaches the classes, and administers the tests. The licensing process, including study time, can take as little as four weeks, "If a person is driven," says Gaebert. "Some take a few months, people are busy." There is an etiquette to operating a two-way radio on an open channel, but the rules are mostly common-sense steps to avoid interruptions, or keep them polite. "There are standards that require discipline."

Much informal teaching goes on at meetings, as old hands help new members with gear and the knowledge they need to pass the license exams. Gaebert summed it up; members "all support each other, all support the cause. We are all ambassadors for Amateur Radio, we encourage those who are interested to get their license, and we can help them with

Some newer members present that night had previous experience with radio but are new to Ham. One said he had operated radio in the Marines for 30 years. Another learned to use GPRS (General Packet Radio Service) for safety on hiking trips. A few were there for the first or second meeting.

Business at the meeting included the care and improvement of the Club's repeaters. Mile High Radio Club maintains four repeaters at three locations: Santa Rosa Mountain, Pine Cove, and the Girl Scout camp (Skyland Ranch).

These repeaters have batteries, some with solar recharging, to keep transmitting when the power is out. Gaebert explains "We can usually operate a good 24 hours or more without power. Cell towers have that problem also. After the Cranston Fire, and when the highway washed out, the cell towers had backup generators and fuel, but the fuel ran out. # STUDENTS OF THE WEEK

Mr. William Beuche, our music teacher, has chosen the following students:

Oliver Teel

Oliver Teel is a diligent and responsible student who excels at everything he puts his mind to. He is the only first-year instrumentalist who was selected for our District Honor Band and did an excellent job representing our school as a soloist on mallet percussion at the performance last Saturday. Great job Oliver! Bravo!

Ryker Brown

Ryker Brown is a kind, joyful, and hard-working student who brings great enthusiasm to everything he does. He is responsible and always comes to class prepared to do his best. He is kind to his classmates and always willing to lend a helping hand. Thank you for being an excellent student and a wonderful person, Ryker!

Last week in Days of Our Nine Lives, the ARF cats welcomed two new cats and talked about the five puppies.

Pepper: So, who watched the Puppy Bowl last weekend? Personally, I wanted to watch the Kitten Bowl.

Harley: Really? Is there a Kitten Bowl?

Pepper: There is, just not as well known. And speaking of felines, did you hear that our two new cats, Midnight and Fluffers, have already been adopted?

Marlowe: Holy catnip! That was very fast, about a week, right? Harley: Correct! And this last weekend two of our five puppies were also adopted. Rowan: I heard that Chilly and Windy found forever homes. How wonderful for them! Harley: So Rain, Frosty, and Stormy are ready to complete a home.

Rowan: They're so darned cute! I can see that they are learning manners. It is so important for them to learn important behaviors while they are young.

Marlowe: Thankfully, they have a great foster family that is spending lots of time with each of them.

Rowan: The fosters are willing to meet up with interested folks, as they live right here on the mountain.

Eeyore: If our weather stays dry, they just might be at Mt. Paws Pet Boutique again this Saturday, but these adorable pups may be met at other times.

Harley: All anyone needs to do is make a quick phone call to ARF to arrange a meet-n-greet.

This week's Creature Corner is sponsored by Lois Sheppard. Would you like to be a sponsor? Please let us know! Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of Days of our Nine Lives each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Hwy 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10-3, Sundays 10-2, and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

ADULT BASKETBALL

The ICC Adult Basketball League is off to a roaring start as the league keeps on growing with teams coming from as far as Anza and the Santa Rosa Reservation. The six teams took to the courts at the Idyllwild School gymnasium for some fast-paced, high-action games of 4-on-4 halfcourt basketball.

Last year the league comprised of five teams – this year there are six. Here is a quick profile of the six teams, in no particular order:

| Name                       | Captain           | Jersey Color |
|----------------------------|-------------------|--------------|
| Bomb Squad                 | Tino Macias       | Red          |
| Black Panthers             | Mauricio Palacios | Black        |
| Green Hornets              | Travis Garrison   | Green        |
| Palms to PinesElectric | Carl Dewese       | Grey         |
| Santa Rosa                 | Ashlie Bohannon   | Turquoise    |
| Monsters                   | Michael Mapel     | Blue         |

In the opening series of games last Wednesday February 5th, it was the Monsters and Palms to Pines Electric who came out victorious in both of their matches and are currently sitting at the top in the standings, both

Santa Rosa took on the Bomb Squad in their opening match, which was back-and-forth and very close in terms of score, but in the end it was the Bomb Squad who pulled ahead for the victory by 5 points.

The Black Panthers, playing one player short, had a tough loss against Palms to Pines Electric in their first game, but mustered the energy in their second game to come up with the win against the Green Hornets.

In a post-game interview with Carl Dewese, captain of Palms to Pines Electric, he was asked what he thought about his team's performance in their opening games. Here is what he had to say:

"I liked the teamwork we had and our defensive effort really showed. Toby [Posey] was on-fire from deep; and great hustle from Chad [Szopinski] getting every

The other team leading the pack is the Monsters with the ever-so threatening father-son duo of Brian Kretsinger and his MVP-prone son, 16-year-old Griffin

ADULT VOLLEYBALL

Village Hardware continues to dominate the volleyball court at Buckhorn Camp's Peace Center as they extend their winning streak to 6 wins and 0 losses. Led by coach Lance Fogle and family, they recently defeated the Red Kettle and got their sweet revenge with BBI Construction - the team that eliminated them in last year's semi-finals.

The "game of the month", as referee Brian Wilson calls it, happened last Tuesday February 4th. Idyllwild Garage (who finished in second place last year) were having their way with the Red Kettle and won the first two games - only one more game to win the match. (The first team to win 3 games wins the match).

Although morale was down for the Red Kettle, husband and wife Kyle Owen and Lindsay Owen were not going to go down that easily. They motivated the team and led them to throw in a one-game victory. It was now 2-1 for Idyllwild Garage who still needed just one game to win the match.

Then in another surprising turn of events, after a Braveheart-like speech from coach Kyle Owen, the Red Kettle managed to win yet another game, making it now tied at 2-2. This will have to go into a 5th game tie-breaker. Winner takes all.

With a full head of steam and a never-give-up attitude, the underdogs (Red Kettle) did not look like underdogs in the final game - more like a vicious rabid dogs foaming at the mouths for the victory. And in a close fifth game, it was (yes indeed) the Red Kettle who came from a 0-2 deficit to win 3 games straight and vanquish over Idyllwild Garage 3-2!

Unbelievable. You've got to love this sport. Always believe and never give up.

I caught up with coach Kyle Owen in a telephone interview after the game and asked him what the strategy was when they were down 2 games to 0. Here is his reply:

"Honestly, the whole strategy about this year in volleyball is that we are here to have fun. Don't take anything personally, and with that, we will be victorious. To me it's more about the community having fun, not really about who wins the trophy."

Well said, coach Kyle. Well said.

Nearly all of the $2.5 billion is intended to expedite the initial response and recovery efforts. These funds would help offset costs associated with the emergency protective measures, evacuations, sheltering for survivors, debris removal and cleanup, post-fire hazard assessments (such as flash flooding and debris flows), traffic control, and other necessary emergency response ac-

There is a separate $5 million appropriation for rebuilding. The Department of Housing and Community Development will receive $4 million for local governments in the fire areas. This will be used for additional planning review and building inspection resources to expedite building approvals during the recovery peri-

Another $1 million is targeted at fire-damaged school facilities. Its purpose is to aid the school districts to rebuild damaged structures. The funding will provide technical assistance to Los Angeles Unified School District, Pasadena Unified School District, and charter schools affected by the fires.

The money will come from the state's reserve fund dedicated to economic uncertainties, which had about $8.3 billion as of Jan. 10, according to the H.D. Palmer, spokesperson for California's Department of Finance,' Cal Matters reported.

"This money is moving immediately and was approved unanimously with bipartisan support," said Jesse Gabriel, chair of the Assembly's Budget Committee. "It's the first of many steps and there will be a lot of steps in this journey.

Besides seeking the Legislature's approval of supplemental funding to help the victims and the recovery, Newsom has issued a number of Executive Orders to address the problems of the victims and the local jurisdictions' recovery efforts.

"It is very meaningful for me as legislator for Southern California to see people of parts of the state stand up and say, 'We'll be with you'," Gabriel also said in his statement.
