Both candidates for congress to visit Idyllwild this week

By David Jerome
Editor

Both candidates for U.S. Congressional District 48, which includes Idyllwild and Pine Cove, will be holding meet and greets in Idyllwild this week.

Jim Desmond, the Republican, will be meeting voters at Tahquitz Pines Retreat on Friday Aug. 21, and Marni Von Wilpert, the Democratic candidate, will be at the Idyllwild Community Center on Saturday Aug. 22.

Proposition 50 redistricting moved Idyllwild out of the district of Republican Ken Calvert. The decision of Republican Darrell Issa not to run for reelection in the new district opened the race up.

Desmond's visit is at the invitation of the Town Crier. We will be inviting all of the candidates that we interview to come to Idyllwild and meet the voters

Community meeting on Flock cameras part of nationwide action, Riverside Sheriff's Office responds to questions

By David Jerome
Editor

A community meeting on the subject of Flock automated license plate reading cameras (ALPRs) planned at the Library on Friday, Aug, 21, will be part of a national week of action.

The cameras allow law enforcement to know which vehicles are entering or leaving our communities. They have engendered concern over an encroaching surveillance state that we find ourselves living in, and cases across the country of the data being abused.

Flock Safety recently announced it "will require stricter oversight" over access to the data from the cameras after a Washington Post story found dozens of police officers had used the data for improper purposes, including "spying on exes and romantic interests."
Flock has said that it would begin requiring all inquiries

IFPD transitions off of Oregon Grasshopper fire

By David Jerome
Editor

Idyllwild Fire Protection District Chief Mark LaMont and another 10 personnel were returning from their mutual aid deployment at the Grasshopper Fire near Oregon's Mount Hood on Friday afternoon, Aug. 14. LaMont noted that the fire was a big one. By Monday, Aug. 17, it had grown to over 90,000 acres but was 47% contained.

LaMont provided a brief update on their activities. "IFPD had 11 people on this one," the chief wrote, adding that IFPD also had "four people up in Spokane and 20 people on the Six Rivers National Forest on the Mile Post 18 fire."

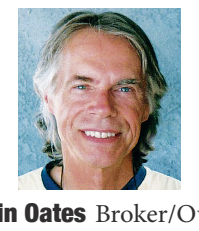

LaMont explained that these fires were the result of many years of policy failures, feeding natural cycles in a destructive way. "Super dry conditions, numerous restrictions for working in the wilderness, tree mortality, and a lack of fuels treatments have all contributed to what may become the worst fire season in Oregon and Washington history," he wrote.

The chief added that the IFPD team has been "transitioned" off the fire and a new team has arrived to continue the work. Cal Fire's Facebook page explains that "transitioning" on a mutual aid call means "executing a formal, structured transfer of command, responsibilities, or operational control between an outgoing emergency response team (or Incident Management Team) and an incoming relief team. This process maintains safety, accountability, and continuous situational awareness during extended incidents."

This is just one of many mutual aid calls IFPD will likely respond to this summer. "We all have a long ride home, work to catch up on and then likely back out on another one," LaMont added.

LaMont said he was also thinking about continuing the community safety projects that protect local populations. "The north side of the Strawberry fuel break is just about complete, and we look forward to getting to work on the south end and moving up the Westridge fuel break as well."

LaMont has emphasized in the past that even when IFPD has personnel and equipment on mutual aid calls, the station is better equipped and staffed than during any of the recent big fires that have threatened our mountain communities.

Life Tribute: Hunter McKay Spencer 2004 – 2026

Hunter McKay Spencer, 21, passed away on August 5, 2026, in Lakeside, California.

Hunter was born on Christmas Eve, December 24, 2004, at Naval Medical Center San Diego and spent childhood in San Diego before moving to Idyllwild with his mother and brother. Quirky, coy, funny and playful, Hunter had a personality entirely his own and will be deeply missed by those who knew and loved him.

Hunter was previously an enlisted member of the United States Navy and was stationed aboard the USS Gerald R. Ford in Norfolk, Virginia.

Services will be held Monday, August 24, 2026, from 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. at Bravo Family Mortuary in San Diego. Burial will follow at Mount Hope Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that memorial donations be made in Hunter's memory to Stop Soldier Suicide, an organization dedicated to preventing suicide among U.S. veterans and service members.

Bees are Vital

Experts estimate that nearly one in four wild bee species is at risk. The decline is driven by habitat loss, toxic chemicals and changing weather patterns. We know that bees are vital to a healthy environment; they serve as pollinators, and without them many plants would not reproduce.

In Idyllwild, residents are planting an increasing number of fruit trees and are giving gardening a try. We need our bees on the mountain to pollinate our native flowers and plants. Many of our mature oaks have become hollow and they are often homes for hives of bees. Some of these hollow oaks house thousands of bees. We need to be aware that as our oaks fall naturally or are hazards and must be cut there are often healthy bees inside with their queen. Once they are disturbed, they can swarm and become more aggressive.

When bees have been disturbed by humans whether it be a chain saw or nosy humans they need to be treated carefully. Without the proper clothing, a bee suit and head gear with a mask, they will sting. Always keep your distance and give them the respect they deserve. Bee stings are not only painful, but a number stings can be dangerous and land one in the hospital. Trying to kill bees with poisonous sprays (bad for the environment) is dangerous because a few may die but the angry ones that are alive have great radar and will make a 'bee line' to nearby humans.

It is possible to rescue a hive once they have swarmed but don't attempt it unless you are a trained beekeeper. The good news for us in Idyllwild is we have people who are trained to rescue bees. It can depend on the location of the hive, but it is worth it to save bees if possible to keep our bee population healthy.

Crystal Aguilar has recently opened her shop, Crystal pure honey, across from the mobile station. She and her husband are beekeepers and have a few thousand hives located in Aguanga, Sage and Temecula, and gather honey.

She sells a number of bee products in addition to raw honey from local hives. There is the thought that local honey taken daily can boost one's immune system. In addition to having a variety of delicious local honeys, crystal is the person to talk to if you come upon a hive of bees on your property. Spread the word and the honey.

From the HELP Center Board of Directors

The HELP Center Board of Directors knows that many in our community have questions about recent changes at the Center. We understand and respect your concerns, and are committed to sharing as much information as we can. Some matters cannot be discussed publicly because they involve individual privacy and legal considerations. The Board is actively working to strengthen the Center, improve its operations, and build a sustainable future for this important community resource.

In response to information shared by Thrift Store staff near the end of July, the Board determined it was necessary to temporarily close the Thrift Store to address repairs, maintenance, cleaning and organizational needs. Help Center Client Services (gas vouchers for getting to healthcare appointments, free firewood, food and utility assistance, and more) have been ongoing throughout this period and will continue without interruption.

Much has already been accomplished during the temporary closure. Plumbing has been inspected and repaired, internet services upgraded, portions of the property abated and inventory that had been exposed to the elements or contributed to a rodent problem has been removed. We are also putting stronger systems and processes in place to help ensure that the Center is clean, safe, organized and operating effectively. We are planning for the Thrift Store to re-open for sales August 24th, and to be open Thursday-Monday 11-4 thereafter.

Every Board member serves as a volunteer. We are neighbors with jobs, families and lives of our own here. We have each devoted many unpaid hours to helping the HELP Center move forward. None of us serves on the Board for personal benefit. We are here because we believe deeply in the HELP Center, its mission and the people it serves, just as so many of you do. The changes underway align with the goal of strengthening the organization, improving its operations and creating a strong and sustainable future for the Center and the people it serves.

Join us: in the days ahead we will be seeking applications for open Board positions and other volunteering opportunities. We will also publish a community input survey so anyone with love in their heart for the HELP Center can submit their own ideas for how it can succeed. As ever, the Center also welcomes direct funding donations.

We are fortunate to have an invaluable collection of documents from the Center's earliest days in the 1990s. Jack Sarvela wrote at the time that the Center wanted to "facilitate oneness and understanding within the community [and] was created from the community for the community solely for the purpose of enhancing the life quality in Idyllwild by relating to those in need…and becoming a more loving community". An early mission statement tells us "the Center should be continually open to new and better ways to serve the people". These words remain our guide today.

Sincerely Yours in Strength and Courage,

Michael Mapel, Cindy Hernandez, Rachel Webrand, Tamara McFarland, Rachelle Belleci, Annie Weaver

Concern for Children of Idyllwild

Flouride can kill you if you ingest too much. But water can kill you too if you ingest too much. I was a dentist for 32 years, I've been retired for 22. I could always tell by looking at a child's teeth whether they lived in the city, where the water was fluoridated, or in rural areas where the water was not flouridated.

I am suggesting that if parents want to save themselves some time and money, and save their children from the trauma of having their teeth drilled over and over, they should think about flouride for their children whose teeth are still growing.

None of the water districts here fluoridate their water because it's very expensive to do, and because it is seen as taking a choice away from individuals.

If you want to do something to help your kids and help yourself financially, I suggest you see a dentist and ask about fluoride supplements. A dentist can prescribe them and they're less expensive and traumatic than fillings.

Local USFS units participate in mutual aid calls and Sage Taffle Fire

By David Jerome
Editor

On Monday, Aug. 17, U.S. Forest Service Battalion 52 (Kenworthy) Chief Scotty Mason briefed the Town Crier on his agency's participation in recent mutual aid activities. He said that "quite a few" local assets had responded to the Timber Fire in the Los Padres National Forest, near Big Sur. That fire was listed at 5,189 acres and 17% containment.

Mason said that the Type 2 Tahquitz Hand crew and a strike team with 5 engines from the San Bernardino Forest were joined by the Del Rosa hot shots and water tender 56 (Keenwild.) Of the five engines, two were from the San Jacinto Ranger District, two from the Mountain Top District (Big Bear and Arrowhead) and one from the Front Country District (in the foothills near Yucaipa and Cherry Valley.)

The Vista Grande Hot Shots were returning from a fire in Montana, while the Big Bear Hot Shots were on their way to another fire.

The Keenwild Helitack team has been busy suppressing fires in the Big Bear area.

On Friday, Aug. 14, the entire district responded with four engines to the 77 acre Taffle Fire in Sage. That fire, which broke out near Taffle Road and Louis Lane, was reported as 90% contained by Monday. The cause was listed as under investigation.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST, DATED 1/31/2006. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER ON 10/14/2026 AT 9:00 AM, CLEAR RECON CORP, as duly appointed trustee under and pursuant to Deed of Trust recorded 2/10/2006 as Instrument No. 2006-0104206 of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Riverside County, State of California executed by: MORGAN LONCLE AND BETH THORNE, HUSBAND AND WIFE AND PAUL HANEY A SINGLE MAN WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH, CASHIER'S CHECK DRAWN ON A STATE OR NATIONAL BANK, A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, OR A CHECK DRAWN BY A STATE OR FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION, SAVINGS ASSOCIATION, OR SAVINGS BANK SPECIFIED IN SECTION 5102 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE AND AUTHORIZED TO DO BUSINESS IN THIS STATE; In the courtyard, of the Historic Corona Civic Center, 815 W Sixth St, Corona, CA 92882 all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State described as: MORE ACCURATELY DESCRIBED IN SAID DEED OF TRUST. The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 53083 CEDAR CREST DRIVE, IDYLLWILD, CA 92549, &, VACANT LAND CEDAR CREST DRIVE, IDYLLWILD, CA 92549 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be held, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, condition, or encumbrances, including fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to pay the remaining principal sums of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust. the total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $110,886.47 if the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to thE Trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. the beneficiary under said Deed of TRust heretofore executed and delivered to the undersigned a written declaration of default and demand for sale, and a written Notice of Default and Election to Sell. the undersigned or its predecessor caused said Notice of Default and Election to sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. you will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. you should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. if you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. you are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. if you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924G of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. if you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (855) 313-3319 or visit this Internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 145404-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet web site. the best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective january 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924M of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this Internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 145404-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Motorcycle crash on Hwy 74 results in fatality

The California Highway Patrol (CHP), Indio Area is investigating a motorcycle crash resulting in a fatality. On August 15, 2026, at approximately 7:35 a.m., the CHP responded to a solo vehicle traffic crash on State Route 74 near Mile Post Marker (MPM) 89.00.

The crash involved a 57-year-old male from Palm Desert, identified by the coroner's office as Luis Guerrero, riding a black Aprilia motorcycle on State Route 74. Preliminary investigation suggests the male was eastbound on State Route 74 when for reasons still under investigation, he left the roadway and collided into a guardrail. The rider was subsequently ejected from the motorcycle and was pronounced deceased at the scene.

Alcohol and/or drugs are not suspected to be a factor in this crash. This crash is still under investigation and anyone with information regarding the crash is encouraged to call Officer J. Madigan, at (760) 772-5300.

State approves more money to count votes

By JP Crumrine
Correspondent

The state legislature included $40 million in the Fiscal Year 2026-27 budget to help election officials count their ballots faster.

The funding includes $29 million for more county elections staff and equipment upgrades, with a priority on expenditures that will expedite counting ballots in the coming Nov. 3 general election. An additional $10 million is for a publicity campaign to help voters understand that returning their ballots before Election Day can speed up the count.

"While the amount budgeted is less than we had recommended, it still represents a sizable investment that prioritizes timely election results," said Kim Alexander, president of the California Voter Foundation (CVF), a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization working to improve the election process.

The funds are a one-time appropriation, and how they will be allocated among the 58 counties has not been determined.

Final counts on close races on the upcoming November ballot may not be known that evening or the next day. But results should be sooner.

"Fortunately, California voters have many options for returning voted ballots and state lawmakers appropriated funding to urge voters to cast their mail ballots a little earlier than Election Day rather than on Election Day," said Cathy Darling Allen, CVF board Chair and former Shasta County registrar of voters.

One contributor to the vote counting time is mail-in ballots. A vast majority of California voters use mail ballots, which are labor intensive to process and will still challenge even the best equipped county offices. More than 90 percent of Riverside County ballots in the June Primary were mailed into the Registrar's Office.

California has made mail ballots the standard way for voters to participate in elections. But ballots that arrive in envelopes are cumbersome to process. County offices are ill-equipped to quickly handle the glut of them that are turned in on Election Day. Before they can tally the votes, election officials must verify voters' signatures, open the envelopes and inspect ballots for damage or irregularities.

The state also counts ballots that arrive within seven days as long as they are postmarked by Election Day, an approach that was upheld in June by the Supreme Court.

"California doesn't have to choose between an accessible, secure election system and timely results," Alexander said in a statement. "Our research shows we can combat the long vote count while preserving — and in some cases strengthening — the protections that make California elections accessible and trustworthy."

One step to reduce counting time depends on voters being more diligent on returning the ballots as quickly as possible. If more voters submit their ballots early in the monthlong voting period, officials can process them sooner and have them tallied on election night, leading to faster results, according to voter registrar officials.

The CVF prepared a report with 10 recommendations to speed up vote counting. Two examples are "Sign and Go" and an electronic signature.

Sign, scan, and go voting would allow voters to return their completed vote-by-mail ballots in person. The ballots then would be scanned and processed in real time. This voting option is being advanced by CVF in Senate Bill 1420. In the June 2026 primary, 31 of the 58 counties offered voters this option, which eliminates many administrative steps involved in mail ballot processing.

Another recommendation would establish electronic signature curing. This process offers voters the option of using a secure text platform to cure their signature. CVF is cosponsoring legislation, Assembly Bill 2604, to make this ballot signature curing option more widely available.

Currently, about 21 counties employ this option. It reduces the amount of time needed to cure a ballot envelope signature by allowing voters to use their smartphones to log into a secure portal and make and submit a signature via their phone screens for immediate submission rather than using the mail.

to be labeled with a criminal case number and would automatically review all queries for "abnormal activity." This was previously a voluntary feature used by "about a third" of the 7,000 law enforcement agencies nationwide that use the data, according to the Post story.

Among the concerns highlighted by critics of ALPRs are their use to monitor attendance at First Amendment-protected events like political rallies and demonstrations, religious gatherings, their use by immigration enforcement, and their use to enforce abortion bans.

The Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) conducted an investigation last year that not only found the systems being used to track protestors at non-violent demonstrations like last summer's No Kings protests, but also to monitor women attempting to access reproductive health services.

The EFF argues that "Flock's business model depends on building a nationwide, interconnected surveillance network that creates risks no software update can eliminate. Our 2025 investigations proved that abuses stem from the architecture itself, not just how individual agencies use the technology."

A website allows users to see if the system has been used to search for their plates: haveibeenflocked.com.

The Town Crier asked Riverside Sheriff's Office about the role of ALPRs in their work, and their policies regarding data security. Our questions and the answers supplied by RSO's public information officer Sergeant Robert Martinez follow.

Q: What does RSO have to say about the role of ALPRs in law enforcement?

A: These cameras are a valuable resource to law enforcement. The cameras are an investigative tool that uses license plate information and vehicle descriptions to help law enforcement solve crimes. Flock cameras can also help locate missing or kidnapped persons who may be traveling in a vehicle.

Q: Has RSO been part of Flock's voluntary review of queries for "abnormal activity?" This feature will now be automatic.

A: Yes, RSO has proactively taken part in voluntary reviews of Flock search activity. With the use of Flock's Audit Assistance tool, it allows us to audit activity and identify search patterns that may need additional review.

Q: Does RSO require queries to include a criminal case number?

A: The Riverside Sheriff's FLOCK policy states:

-When conducting a specific license plate search of ALPR data, Sheriff's Office members shall include a related case number for justification.

-When conducting a generic vehicle description search of ALPR data, Sheriff's Office members shall include a justification description or related case number.

Discounts return for California first-time EV buyers

By JP Crumrine
Correspondent

Rebates for purchase of a zero-emission electric vehicle have returned for California buyers. In his Fiscal Year 2026-27 budget, Gov. Gavin Newsom included $135 million to provide incentives to first-time buyers for new or used EVs and the state Legislature approved this funding.

Participating automakers will match the funds, making a total program of $270 million. For those who qualify, car dealers will reduce the price of a new EV by $3,500. Purchasing a used EV will save the buyer $1,750.

Automakers are already offering these savings to first-time buyers. No application or waiting period is necessary.

There are price limits. New EVs must have a manufacturer's suggested price of $50,000 or less. Used EVs must have a sale price of $25,000 or less.

"They're better cars," Newsom said during his press conference for the Zero-Emission Vehicle (ZEV rebates.) "The technology stack is second to none. Yeah, they're cleaner, but they're also more fuel efficient. What more evidence do we need?"

Chevrolet, Ford, Genesis, Hyundai, Lucid, Kia and Rivian dealers and sales centers in the state are already offering rebates. Tesla has already expended all of its funding to support the program.

According to the governor's press release, additional automakers will soon launch their own rebate program.

In September, Toyota/Lexus, Honda, and Subaru plan to participate in the program. Mitsubishi is expected in November, and Nissan and Volvo are still determining their initial dates.

"We have found that when drivers go electric, they don't go back," Laura Renger, president of the California Electric Transportation Coalition, said. "That's because of all of the benefits of an electric vehicle. They are quiet. They are responsive. They are easy to maintain. They are increasingly affordable, and they are enjoyable to drive. But people cannot access cars if they are not able to afford them."

The California Air Resources Board estimates the $135 million lawmakers provided to fund the EV rebate program, along with automakers' matching funds, will cover 73,000 vehicle sales. At California's current rate —132,624 EVs sold through June 30, or about 22,000 a month — the rebate funds are likely to run out by the end of this year.

In 2023 and 2024, when California last offered rebates, more than 440,000 new EVs were sold. In 2025, before the federal tax rebate rescission was passed, California EV sales were 408,000. With the loss of these incentives, new EV sales in the first quarter of 2026 fell to only 63,500.

In July, the California Energy Commission announced that during the second quarter of 2026, 86,857 new ZEVs were sold in California. This represents 19.1% of new car sales, an increase of 3.3 percentage points compared to the first quarter of 2026. Most new ZEV sales in California are electric vehicles, representing 16.6% of new car sales compared to 5.8% nationally.

EVs and hybrid cars composed nearly 24% of new light-duty vehicle registrations in California in 2025, which is the most recent data the group has made publicly available. California was the only state where ZEVs had above 20% market share in 2025.

Regner noted that California's leadership and investment have helped build the nation's largest electric vehicle market, while automakers, electric utilities and other private-sector partners continue investing in vehicles, charging infrastructure, technology and jobs.

"But people cannot access cars if they're not able to afford them," Renger said. "That's why programs like this are so important. They bring the benefits of electric vehicles and clean transportation to more Californians."

Trump again recommends fewer childhood vaccines

By JP Crumrine
Correspondent

President Donald Trump is taking actions to change the federal government's philosophy and recommendations for childhood vaccines with an executive order. A fact sheet accompanying the order states its purpose is to "maximize parental choice over childhood vaccines…"

Trump continues to endorse reducing the number of recommended childhood vaccines to 11 from the current recommendation for 18. Trump points out than several European countries such as Denmark recommend few childhood vaccines. However, Denmark has national health care.

For all children, the following diseases remain targeted: measles, mumps, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, haemophilus influenzae type B, pneumococcal disease, human papillomavirus, and varicella.

Currently, the vaccines for measles, mumps, and rubella are combined into a single shot. However, the new executive order recommends separating the vaccines into three shots, one for each disease, and going to a physician's office three times for administration of these vaccines.

Single shots for these diseases are not currently available in the United States and the order recognizes this. It may take time for their approval by the FDA.

Although the order includes the measles vaccine among the 11 for all children, this recommendation to reduce reliance on the measles vaccine is coming during the worst year for measles cases in 35 years.

"They're safe. They're important for kids to be thriving and healthy in schools," Dr. Erica Pan, director of the California Department of Public Health and the state public health officer, told the Los Angeles Times. She credited California's robust vaccine requirements as a condition of enrollment for schoolchildren as a reason why the state so far has kept a lid on the outbreaks of measles seen in other parts of the nation.

Medical professionals, including pharmaceutical manufacturers, are not urging the changes.

"America's childhood immunization schedule is built on decades of rigorous scientific research and public health expertise designed for the U.S. population. Any changes to the childhood vaccine schedule, vaccine formulations and ingredients should be driven by the same high standard of evidence and focused on protecting children from serious and potentially life-threatening diseases," stated Dr. Michael Ybarra, chief medical officer for the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America.

"Simply imposing a narrower schedule by importing recommendations from foreign countries wouldn't reflect gold standard science – it would mean accepting a lower bar of protection against diseases that remain serious and, in some cases, life-threatening for children in the United States," said Ybarra.

Only high-risk groups are recommended to get vaccines for the following diseases: respiratory syncytial virus monoclonal antibodies, hepatitis A, hepatitis B, meningococcal B, meningococcal ACWY, and dengue.

High-risk groups are defined individually for each disease. For example, the hepatitis A vaccine should be given when children travel internationally to an endemic area. The birth dose of the hepatitis B vaccine for infants is recommended if they are born to mothers who are hepatitis B positive.

For more common diseases, Trump and Secretary of Health and Human Services Robert F. Kennedy recommend that parents consult with their physicians or other medical sources. For those children not in a high-risk group, this category includes hepatitis A, hepatitis B, rotavirus, meningococcal disease, influenza, and COVID-19.

Within hours of Trump's announcement, Sen. Bill Cassidy, Republican from Louisiana, expressed his opposition to the order.

"I'm a doctor. This executive order is wrong. The President does not have the expertise to make these changes. Vaccines are overwhelmingly safe. Vaccines are effective. Vaccines DO NOT cause autism," Cassidy declared. "Breaking up vaccines will mean children have to get more shots to get the same protection, not fewer shots. It will increase hesitancy and make children less safe. Parents should listen to their child's pediatrician about vaccines rather than listening to an inaccurate executive order. This is so wrong."

Trump signed the order despite the federal courts interceding and putting Kennedy's earlier efforts to accomplish the same effect on hold.

In March, a federal judge stopped the Department of Health and Human Services from implementing its decisions on vaccines. This applies to all HHS and Centers for Disease Control actions regarding changes to recommendations for childhood vaccines made in the past year. Even the Jan. 5 proposal, which also recommended reducing the number of recommended childhood vaccines from 18 to 10, is in abeyance depending on further litigative actions.

The American Academy of Pediatrics finds problems with the new executive order. Andrew D. Racine, MD, PhD, FAAP, president, said in a press release, "As measles cases reach a 35-year high in the U.S. and with cold and flu season quickly approaching, today's executive order on vaccines is not only disheartening but dangerous. Instead of ensuring every family can access life-saving vaccines for measles, influenza, RSV and more, federal leaders are once again spreading misleading claims.

"Today's executive order is not based on 'gold-standard science.' There is no new evidence to justify significant changes to childhood immunization guidance," Racine added. "Dozens of studies involving millions of people show there is no link between vaccines and autism, and yet federal leaders continue to promote this outdated, disproven idea to scare families."

Passing of Council Tree part of changes researchers see in local forest

By David Jerome
Editor

When we first heard of the passing of the iconic Council Tree at the James Reserve, the Town Crier spoke with Dr. Marko Spasojevic, one of the scientists from the University of California whose research at the James focuses on forest dynamics. This week, Spasojevic explained in greater depth the work his lab does at the James.

The James Reserve is part of the University of California Nature Reserve System, which maintains 42 protected areas across the state where research is conducted. The largest, the Santa Cruz Island Reserve, is over 46,000 acres. The James Reserve itself is 29 acres, but has a 160 acre sister site, the Oasis dos Osos, near the mouth of Snow Canyon.

The Council tree, although often said to be 200 feet tall, was measures at 174.5 feet, according to Spasojevic. Although the tallest conifer in Southern California, the tallest measured tree in the region is a 216-foot-tall Rose Gum (eucalyptus grandis) at the UCLA Mathias Botanical Garden.

Spasojevic agreed with the message local arborist Noah Whitney shared in a letter to the editor last week, the tree is "ancient, it's not surprising" that it would die, but it "could have held on a little longer without the bark beetle and drought." He added that the last few years have been "weird," with little snow and record high temperatures in January.

Spasojevic's lab works on a 200-meter by 200-meter study plot in Hall Canyon, where they have been monitoring forest dynamics since 2018. Every tree larger than one centimeter is mapped and measured. Within the plot are 256 seedling plots where researchers are looking for "baby trees," also known as "recruits." The established trees, he says, are doing OK, with normal mortality rates, the "big thing" is that there are no new ponderosa, Jeffrey, or Coulter pines, and few sugar pines.

This, Spasojevic says, is due partly to over one hundred years of fire suppression, after the mountain was mostly clear cut in the late 19th century. The Council Tree was one of the rare examples of old growth ancient trees that were somehow spared being turned into railroad ties or pallets. "We don't know why they left that one. It is a magnificent tree."

One of Spasojevic's graduate students, Sophie Crehan, has been doing a species census and cone count on the study plot. The cone count shows cones from Coulter and sugar pines. Crehan, he said, is finding lots of cedars, lots of firs and oaks, trees that do well in the shady environment of a fire-suppressed forest.

Spasojevic echoed sentiments shared by local firefighters. "We need fire back on the landscape, but we need to do some thinning first." Ponderosa pines need regular low intensity fires to clear out the understory, and its thick bark protects it. "The litter from the black oaks is ankle deep, eight to twelve inches. No pine is going to germinate through that..."

Spasojevic says he grew up in the Pacific Northwest and has been hiking in forests all his life. When he began teaching at UCR he visited the James and thought "it would be a great place to do some research. The forest here is understudied. Most of the forestry work is in the Sierra Nevada and Northern California."

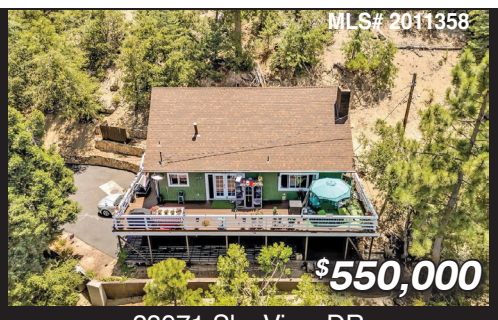

Even before the current work began, earlier surveys at the James had shown that the ranges of species are shifting. Manzanita is another species that needs fire to reproduce. "Some of our manzanita are trees, they are enormous. It hasn't burned in a long time."

He mentioned that studies of tree rings (dendrochronology) in the San Jacintos showed that prior to 1900, fires left marks on the trees every 32 years on average. "You can see when the Forest Service imposed the 10 a.m. rule," the rule that all wildfires should be extinguished by 10 a.m. on the day following its first report. It was adopted in 1935, and was abandoned in 1978.

These regular fires, started by lightning or Indigenous people, were "much lower intensity, they didn't jump the fuel ladder from the ground to the canopy." Spasojevic came back to the necessity of thinning before fire can be reintroduced on the landscape. "It's a complex management question, there's no simple answer," and the situation is made more difficult by drought and climate change.

Tonight, Thursday Aug. 20, the 1st Marine Division Concert Band from Camp Pendleton will return to the Butterfield Amphitheater for the eighth night of Idyllwild's free Summer Concert Series. There will be no opening act and the music starts at 7:00 p.m.

The First Marine Division Band, stationed in Camp Pendleton, plays across the country and around the world at military ceremonies, public outreach and community concerts, and its members are also part of an active military unit.

The Marine Band has been visiting Idyllwild for over 40 years, and has participated in every ISCS since the series' inception in 2000.

The return of the Marine Corps Band is a reminder of ISCS President Ken Dahleen's years of service in the band. Enlisting as a teenager in the hope of being sent to Vietnam, Dahleen said the corps decided it needed a clarinetist more than another foot soldier. Dahleen remained in the service for 12 years.

On the 27th the Blue Breeze Band, an audience favorite from past years, will bring their Motown revue, with In The Pocket opening at 6:05 p.m.

The series will finish on September 3 with another big band, the Dixie and Swing Collective, with no opening band.

This is the Series' 27th year, and the concerts have had the Butterfield Amphitheater for their home since 2019. Each year, Dahleen brings the best working tribute artists from the region to Idyllwild for unforgettable summer evenings of music, and invites favorites of our local music scene to get the crowds warmed up.

The concerts are always free and open to all. They are paid for entirely by donations from local businesses and individuals. Contributions, checks payable to "Idyllwild Summer Concert Org" may be sent to PO Box 1542, Idyllwild CA 92549, or call (760) 413-4638.

Keeping Up With the Girls

By Sam Markus

There are about 100 beehives at Crystal and Gus Chavez's home in Aguanga. That sounds like a lot until Crystal casually mentions the other 2,900.

Gus has been keeping bees since he was 17. His father, a beekeeper himself, gave each of his three sons 200 hives and the beginnings of their own businesses. Years later, Gus manages more than 3,000 hives scattered across Southern California.

Crystal came to the bees later. "When I met him, he was already a beekeeper," she says. "He took me out to the field one day, and I just fell in love with it."

Today the couple runs Crystal Pure Honey, with hives spread across properties throughout the region. Landowners provide a little space; the bees pollinate what's growing there; and honey comes back as part of the exchange.

With 3,000 hives, beekeeping might sound like an exercise in control. Crystal describes something closer to a chase. "We try to keep up with the girls."

A bee yard needs more boxes. Honey needs to be removed. Another yard needs attention. By the time they make the rounds, the first colonies may already need more room.

The landscape makes its way into the jar, too. Crystal Pure Honey currently offers four varieties, each shaped by a different flower source: citrus blossom, avocado blossom, alfalfa blossom and mountain wildflower. The bees work orange groves, avocado crops, fields and mountain terrain from Temecula and San Jacinto to Anza and Aguanga.

Different flowers mean different colors, textures and flavors. Crystal favors the sweeter alfalfa blossom in her coffee. Avocado blossom might end up drizzled over sourdough, avocado and egg. Citrus blossom has found its way onto chicken.

Her path to Idyllwild began at the Sunday farmers market, where she started selling honey last year. "I just fell in love with it," she says of the town. "The community was just so close, united."

After more than a decade of farmers markets, Crystal had long dreamed of giving the family's honey a storefront of its own. Each week in Idyllwild, she told Gus the same thing: she wanted a shop up here.

Eventually, a space became available. "Yes!" Crystal remembers. "Where do we sign?" Now the jars line a geometric display wall inside the shop, deliberately positioned where afternoon sunlight can pass through them and make the honey glow.

After all these years, Crystal still talks about honey less like a product than evidence of something larger. "Honey, honestly, is a reward for taking care of the bees."

Now Crystal has a new job to add to the list: running the retail side of the family business. The shop gives her a place to share what their bees produce, talk honey with locals and visitors, and finally realize the storefront she had imagined for years.

There are workshops she hopes to offer, regulars already coming back to restock, and plenty more she'd like to do.

Then, of course, there are 3,000 beehives. And it's back to keeping up with the girls.

Mountain Philosophy at the Library

By David Jerome

Curt Mayers stopped by our office last week to spread the word about a new philosophy discussion group that he was starting at the Idyllwild Library.

The discussion, Mayers said would be topic driven and rooted in lived experience. "We're not going to sit down and parse Wittgenstein," he said, name checking the important but difficult 20th century philosopher, "it's how we relate to the world and vice-versa."

Mayers says he was a Poli Sci student in college, majoring in public policy and drifting into tech later. Now, "getting older," he is attracted to the questions that the liberal arts pose.

The Town Crier attended the first meeting, on Thursday Aug 13, and took part in a spirited and freewheeling conversation that resisted easy ideological characterizations, and was based on personal experience and thought.

Mayers ran a similar group in Orange County, where they met twice a month, once at a restaurant, once in a private home. Mayers says that "if it gets traction" this group may do something similar. He also said he would like to host a Zen Sangha, a small group gathering to meditate.

The next meeting will likely be Thursday, Sept 10, at 3:30 p.m. in the Idyllwild Library meeting room.

The Longview: Thank You

By The Editor

Last week I mentioned that the membership model that the Clarks put in place when they owned the paper has kept the Town Crier alive to this point. I want to thank our members for supporting independent local journalism through thick and thin.

There was a period where we published the names of all our members; sustainers, supporters, sponsors, patrons, heroes, and angels, on the back page at regular intervals. Since I became editor, I have sought to fill the paper with as much content as I can, and so this gesture of appreciation has fallen by the wayside.

But every day, every time I sit in the editor's chair, I think of our members with gratitude. Some come in occasionally and write us a check "out of the blue." God bless the elders who know they can't take it with them.

Just this week the surviving spouse of a member who recently passed away sent us a check as they closed escrow and prepared to move on, complimenting the paper for the service we provide and sharing the hope that our "print edition survives for many more years."

This brings up an important point: our biggest monthly expense by far is printing and distributing the paper edition. I understand that, especially for older readers, that a "real paper" means everything. And we are working to keep it coming.

I have fallen behind in mailing out "thank you" cards to renewing members. A number of local businesses are offering discounts to Town Crier members, and it seemed to me that we needed to send out some kind of card to acknowledge this. Of course the cost of mass mailings is a concern. We are looking for a way to send out email acknowledgments, but we know that this will not reach all our members.

This failure of mine has also been a matter of time pressure. As I laid out last week in this column, there was a time when "membership coordinator" was a job. As were office assistant, staff reporter, proofreader, classified and legal ad sales, etc. But those were different times, and these have become the editor's responsibilities.

Some of these jobs have become easier with technology. Laying out a paper is much simpler on a computer. The job of managing membership became easier when Mike consolidated five different programs into two. There are always issues with passwords, and I keep a list of readers who cannot access the online edition, and each week email them a compressed pdf of the paper until the issue is resolved. It is always fewer than ten names, and I enjoy being able to provide a service. And the members are very appreciative.

I thank you, our readers, from the occasional to the devoted, from the sustainers to the angels, for the opportunity to be a part of two things that are bigger than myself; the Town Crier and the community.

An Arkansas high school football player somehow shared his helmet unwittingly with a two-foot-long venomous cottonmouth snake, during practice. The player did not notice the snake for over an hour. The Guardian US reported that the player felt "unusual movement" in the helmet during warmups and asked the coach to inspect it. The coach found the snake behind some padding.

The snake was unwilling to leave the helmet until the headgear was submerged in a bucket of water. The semi-aquatic viper still took several minutes to emerge, and then was taken to a wooded area near the school and released. Cottonmouths can survive up to a half hour underwater, and apparently longer in an occupied football helmet.

This should serve as a reminder, when outdoors, to always check footwear and headgear for uninvited guests before putting them on.

Corgi lovers around the world made their annual pilgrimage to Vilnius, Lithuania to watch their compact friends compete not only in races, but in events to recognize the "smartest nose" and loudest bark. This year, 150 canines from nine countries participated. American corgis took first and second place in the 25 meter dash, Gustave the Girl Dog and Mr. Corgington.

CBS 8 reports that the first three graduates of the raccoon nursery at the San Diego Humane Society's Ramona Wildlife Center were released into the wild. The raccoons were released in May and June. They were originally discovered by residents of Ocean Beach, Chula Vista, and Santee.

An 18 year old La Jolla human has pleaded guilty to kicking a sea lion at La Jolla Cove beach. The AP notes that the teen was charged with violating the federal Marine Mammal Protection Act. The teen faces up to a year in prison and a fine of up to $100,000 at their Oct. 20 sentencing.

ICC's Senior Cabaret opens call for storytellers, singers

By David Jerome
Editor

Those with a flare for the dramatic are invited to join Idyllwild Community Center's Town Hall Senior Cabaret. Leo Rodriguez, ICC director of children's programming and senior cabaret stage director, tells us that "sign ups for our 12 week Cabaret workshop are now open, and our 4th Senior Cabaret will happen on Friday, November 20th!"

At the performance, participants will present a story paired with a song, and the public is invited to gather around the Town Hall fireplace to enjoy the show.

Rehearsals begin September 2, and the workshop will consist of "music Mondays" and "story Wednesdays," each week helping the performers ready their work for the community. Rodriguez explained last year how he and accompanist Barbara Rayliss help the performers weave together stories and songs.

"Sometimes the stories inspire the song matching, sometimes it's the music that sparks the memory and the story is born from that experience. So each participant chooses from one to three songs to insert into their 'patter' (storytelling). Our time is spent going over the stories, editing them through the performance process, finding the humor, the poignancy, and finding ways to blend the song and the story for seamless transitions and great entertainment."

Last year's Cabaret was full of true and often cathartic storytelling, unique and unforgettable insight into our fellow human beings, leavened with uplifting solo and ensemble musical numbers.

Rodriguez has been a children's theater educator since 1989, working with all ages from K - 12th grade (and even college "kids"). Besides his own theatrical endeavors as a playwright (Tieresius, Chosen, I Could Have Been Chita Moreno, Broken Moments: a Bar Musical), producer, director, and songwriter, he also produces podcasts, and is a web designer and video editor.

Animal science major and professional artist Jason Perez was one of the vendors at Butterfly Daze. He was showing his art and sharing his enthusiasm for insects and the many niches they occupy in ecosystems, including "detritivores" like these beetles that play their part as nature's clean up crew.

HOROSCOPES

August 2026 — Week 2

March 21 – April 19
Be careful not to allow the backers of a new financial "deal" to pull the wool over the Lamb's eyes. It could hold fewer plusses and more negatives than you were first led to believe.

April 20 – May 20
It's a good idea to finish all incomplete tasks so that you can devote your attention to next week's projects. The weekend could hold surprises for romantic Fernandas and Ferdinands!

May 21 – June 21
A workplace suggestion you made a while ago that you might've forgotten could come back with a request to turn it from an idea to a reality. Meanwhile, your social life picks up considerably this weekend.

June 22 – July 22
Someone from the past could return with an intriguing opportunity for a future project. By all means, check into it, but don't neglect your current responsibilities.

July 23 – August 22
Keeping your claws sheathed and using good humor to counter someone who's bad-mouthing the Big Cat isn't easy. But it's the best way to avoid more problems down the line.

August 23 – September 22
A workplace situation could improve if you're less critical and more supportive of those who are, after all, trying to do their best. Let them know that you're there to help when necessary.

September 23 – October 22
A new job offer might not carry all the benefits that you're seeking. Make sure that you know what you're entitled to, what's off the table, and what's negotiable before you make a decision.

October 23 – November 21
A social obligation that you'd rather get out of could hold some surprisingly positive aspects. Why not go and see it for yourself? Also, a family member makes a curious request.

November 22 – December 21
Before tackling a new project awaiting you at home or on the job, take time out for some much-deserved pampering to help lift your spirits and restore your energy levels.

December 22 – January 19
Your social calendar begins to fill up more quickly than you expected, which is great. You deserve to enjoy some good fun after so much time spent on serious matters.

January 20 – February 18
A domestic situation continues to improve, thanks to all the tender, loving concern that you've shown. A colleague makes a questionable move that you might want to check out sooner rather than later.

February 19 – March 20
A sudden turn in a romantic relationship calls for both a rational and passionate response. Keep the love level high, but also find out why the problem arose in the first place.

A rare shot of RMRU President Dr Richard Yocum at rest. He said he thought they might have bought "all the eggs in town" for the pancake breakfast and had made several additional supply runs that morning. "And that's so far, it's only 10:20 in the morning."

Creature Corner

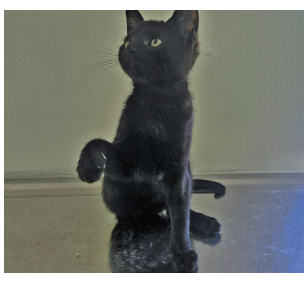

Last week in Days of Our Nine Lives, the ARF cats discussed the advantages of adopting two kittens as opposed to adopting just one.

Pepper: New cat alert!
Sequoia: Oh boy! Who is it?
Pepper: She is Cartier, or Carti for short.
Star: She is beautiful! Hey look-here she is now.
Carti: (strolling into the room) Hello fellow felines. Oh, and one dog. I'm Carti, and I'm so happy to be here.
Tasha: Welcome. Will you tell us about yourself?
Carti: Well, I'm about 15-months old, and I'm very friendly. Sadly, my guardians were unable to care for me, so I'm here.
Tasha: You ended up in the right place! ARF will take good care of you.
Sequoia: And hopefully it won't be long before you are in a wonderful new home.
Tasha: Adopting a pair simplifies training as kittens learn from observing each other. Easy peasy!
Honey: And having two kittens encourages both to stay active and healthy while preventing potential damage from boredom or excess energy.
Pepper: Sounds logical to me!
Sequoia: But when it comes down to it, any kitten (or cat) adopted into a loving home, single or with another, is a lucky cat. We all just want loving homes.

This week's Creature Corner is sponsored by Lois Shepard. Would you like to be a sponsor? Please let us know! Be sure to keep up with the animal antics of Days of our Nine Lives each week. And please stop in to say hello to the entire adoptable cast at the ARF House, 26890 Hwy 243. ARF is open Saturdays 10-3, Sundays 10-2, and during the week by appointment. Please call 951-659-1122.

There was a new taxi cab service in Idyllwild, the Village Cab Co. In addition to transporting people to local and off-Hill destinations, owners Kat and Barry Davis delivered pets and parcels.

30 years ago - 1996

With the Hill just getting back to normal after the Bee Canyon Fire, firefighters from many agencies were battling two more — the Wolfskill and Cabazon fires. More than 10,300 acres were burned and Highway 243 was closed near the Twin Pines Boys Ranch, which had to be evacuated.

15 years ago - 2001

The Board of Governors of the Idyllwild Arts Foundation feted more than 100 people after a successful five-year campaign that raised $9.3 million for expansion and renovation of campus facilities.

15 years ago - 2011

On Wednesday, Aug. 10, Idyllwild lost one of its early residents with the passing of Inie Wilson. She was 96 years old. 18-year-old Inie Wilson arrived in Idyllwild in 1932, in the midst of the Great Depression.

10 years ago - 2016

A records request by the Town Crier to the State Water Resource Control Board revealed that Idyllwild Water District's general manager Tom Lynch had failed his third attempt to obtain a T2 operator certificate. Obtaining the certificate had been a condition of his employment when he was hired in February of 2014.
